Just as Jesus is literally the Son of Mary, so he is the personal and literal offspring of God the Eternal Father, who himself is an exalted personage having a tangible body of flesh and bones. (E. & C. 130:22.) Apostate religionists--unable to distinguish between the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost--falsely suppose that the Holy Ghost was the Father of our Lord. Matthew's statement, "she was found with child of the Holy Ghost," properly translated should say, 'she was found with child by the power of the Holy Ghost.' (Matt. 1:18.) Luke's account (Luke 1:35) accurately records what took place. Alma perfectly describes out LOrd's conception and birth by prophesying: Christ "shall be born of Mary,...she being a virgin, a precious and chosen vessel, who shall be overshadowed and conceive by the power of the Holy Ghost, and bring forth a son, yea, even the Son of God." (Alma 7:10.) Nephi spoke similary when he said that at the time of her conception, Mary "was carried away in the Spirit," with the result that the child born of her was "the Lamb of God, yea, event he Son of the Eternal Father." (1 Ne. 11:19-21.) As Gabriel told luke, he was the "Son of the highest" (Luke 1:32), and "the Higherst" is the first member of the godhead, not the third.
[The Holy Ghost should be a part of every marriage relationship overshadowing this most devine and holy of holy relationships held in the holy of holies of a man and wife.... For the Holy Ghost is given as a constant companion..... This is a perfect relationship when overshadowed by the third member of the godhead as was Mary and the Father the Perfect pattern of the highest sacrement of all sacrements..... (DNTC 1, p. 82-83.)

Only begotten Son:
Only Begotten in the flesh, meaning in mortality. This designation of our Lord signifies that he was begotten by Man of Holiness as literally as any mortal father begets a son. The natural processes of procreation were involved; Jesus was begotten by his Father as literally as he was conceived by his mother. [Heber J. Grants talk in Brigham City.]

Luke 3:38 Adam, which was the son of God

This statement, found also in Moses 6:22, has a deep and profound significance and also means what it says. Father Adam came, as indicated, to this sphere, gaining an immortal body, because death had not yet entered the world. (2 Ne. 2:22.) Jesus, on the otherhand, was the Only Begotten in the flesh, meaning into a world of mortality where death already reigned. (DNTC 1, p. 95.)

Though "there is none other God but one" for men on this earth to worship, yet "there be gods many and lords many" throughout the infinite expanse of eternity. (1 Cor. 8:4-7.) That is, there are many exalted, perfected, glorified personages who reign as gods over their own dominions. John saw 144,000 of them standing with Christ upon MOunt Zion, all "having his Father's name written in their foreheads" (Rev.14-1), which is to say that they were gods and were so identified by wearing crowns so stating. Indeed, to each person who overcomes and gains exaltation, Christ has promised: "I will write upon him the name of my God,: and he shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:12, 21.) Joseph Smith said: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) All exalted persons "are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:58.) Through obedience to the whole gospel law, including celestial marriage, they attain the "fulness of the glory of the Father" [Even to the ataining of the Eternal Godhead themselves, they take a covenant: They themself in the eternal cycle will become God the 1st or Creator, one of their Sons will become God the Second or God the Savior and a third, God the testitator or witnessor....] (D. & C. 93:6-28.) and "a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be form everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 491.)

Know thee the only true God

It is one thing to know about God and another to know him. We know about him when we learn that he is a personal being in whose image man is created; when we learn that the Son is in the express image of his Father's person; specified attributes and powers. But we know them, in the sense of gaining eternal life, when we enjoy and experience the same things they do. To know God is to think what he thinks, to feel what he feels, to have the power he possesses, to comprehend the truths he understands, and to do what he does. Those who know God become like him, and have his kind of life, which is eternal life. (DNTC 1, p. 762.)

Hebrews 7:21

God swore an oath that Christ should be a priest forever; that is, though our Lord had possessed the priesthood in pre-existance, he would receive it anew in mortality and would have it forever--in time and in eternity. And this sets the pattern for all who become sons of God and joint-heirs with Christ.

"Every person upon whom the Melchizedek Priesthood is conferred receives his office and clalling in this higher priesthood with an oath and a covenant. The covenant is to this effect: 1. Man on his part solemnly agree to magnify his calling in the priesthood, to keep the commandments of God, to live by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of Deity, and to walk in paths of righteousness and virtue; and 2. God on his part agrees to give such persons an inheritance of exaltation and godhood in his everlastin presence. The oath is the solemn attestation of Deity, his sworn promise, that those who keep their part in the covenant shall come forth and inherit all things according to the promeise." [D&C 132:19.] (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p 480.) (DNTC 3, p. 173.)

Revelation 1:6

Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)

Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.

"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'

"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.

"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. [D&C 132:19; 93:1]
To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

Sit with me in my throne] In conversation with Deity, Enoch said: "Thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to they throne." (Moses 7:59.) Thus: "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) 'Ye shall have eternal life; ye shall have exaltation; ye shall be gods; ye shall rule and reign forever on a heavenly throne.'

I...am set down with my Father in his throne] "I am even as the Father." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Speaking of those who are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked, "What is it?" and then answered: "To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone befoer. What did Jesus do? Why; I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came roling into existence. My Father workded out his kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to my Father, so that he may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take his place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of his Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all his children. It is plain beyond disputatuin, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel." (Teachings, pp. 347-348.) (DNTC 3, p. 462.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)

The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted bgings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12-17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322-323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

How We May Know What God Is Like

In the Sacred Grove interview with the Eternal Father, the Prophet Joseph Smith, as had Moses of old, talked face to face with God, and was introduced to God the Son, the Redeemer of the world, as the Only Begotten, meaning only begotten in the flesh, and beloved Son of God the Father, whom John described as the "Word," who was God, and was with God in the beginning. Concerning this it was revealed to Joseph Smith that the Lord was the firstborn of the Father in the pre-mortal estate. Thus, Jesus Christ is the Son of God, being the first born, as to his spirit person birth, and the Only Begotten, as to his birth in the flesh. We also are the sons and daughters of God the Eternal Father. We can, upon that reasoning, understand something about what God is like, for there is an eternal principle in heaven and on earth that every seed begets of its kind, every seed brings forth in its own likeness and character. This confirms the scriptural declarations that man is created in the image of God. (ARD p. 90.)

The Species Of Gods

Associated with God the Eternal Father, who presides at the center of all intelligence and wisdom referred to scripturally as "the throne of God," are other gods of the same species, within the same realm of glory as he who presides. This is a condition of being and existence obtainable through the very processes of mortality and its subsequent glorified immortality. Both ancient and modern revelation from God establish this as the fact.

"God himself," taught the Prophet Joseph Smith, "was once as we are now, and is an exalted man,... that is the great secret. If the veil were rent today, and the great God who holds this world in its orbit, and who upholds all worlds and all things by his power, was to make himself visible,-I say, if you were to see him today, you would see him like a man in form-like yourselves in all the person, image, and very form as a man." (DHC, Joseph Smith, Vol. 6, p. 305.)

When we look upon the human face we look upon the likeness of our Father and God.
God the Father, is an individual, and personality, as are all of the species of Gods who dwell and associate with him. But he is over all. These glorified nobles dwell in tabernacles of flesh and bones. Their bodies are different than mortal bodies, in that they possess bodies which have been quickened by the spirit and are thus glorified. Such celestialized bodies are not governed by the same laws as those by which earthly bodies are governed. (ARD p. 178.)

How God Became God

But, if God is an individual spirit and dwells in a glorified resurrected body, the question will arise, "Is he the Eternal Father?" Yes, he is the Eternal Father. "Is it a fact that he never had a beginning?" In the elementary parts of his organism, he did not. But is he is an organized Being, there must have been a time when that being was organized. This, some will say, would infer that God had a beginning. This spirit which pervades all things, which is the light and life of all things, by which our Heavenly Father operates, by which he is omnipotent, never had a beginning and never will have an end. It is the light of truth; it is the spirit of intelligence.
The Prophet Joseph Smith made this statement which gives further enlightenment on this subject:

"I am going to tell you how God came to be God. We have imagined and supposed that God was God from all eternity. I will refute that idea, and take away the veil, so that you may see.
... It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with him as one man converses with another; and that he was once a man like us; yes that God himself, the Father of us all, dwelt on an earth, the same as Jesus Christ himself did." (DHC, VOL. VI, p. 205.)

A revelation from God establishes this fact. "Intelligence or the light of truth never was created, neither indeed can be." (D&C 93:29.) And we are told further that this Spirit, when it is manifest, is God moving in his glory. Now, this Spirit always existed. It always operated, but it is not understood, and cannot be comprehended except through organisms–(meaning its enclosure in organized bodies). (J of D, Chas. W. Penrose, Vol. 26, p. 23.) (ARD p. 179.)

Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
Joseph confirmed this by saying:

Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)

And again--

Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)

Brigham Young added:

For any person to have the fulness of that Priesthood, he must be a king and a priest. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, Aug. 6, 1843)

KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS-PROXIE:

Sons and Daughters of a King:

It is a glorious thing... to know that our religion is true and given us from God and that in obedience to it we may attain to the exalted position occupied by Him and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.... We are of the race of God, the sons and daughters of a King. What monarch's children do not hope and look forward to sovereignty. May we, who are the offspring of the Almighty King, not hope for crowns and kingdoms in eternity? (DEN, March 28, 1881; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 87.)

Priests and Kings Upon Thrones:

It is God's design to make us priests and kings, not to have an empty title, not to sit upon thrones without power but to be actually and really priests and kings. The promise is that all things that He hath shall be given unto us. We will be His heirs; we will be (if I may use the term without irreverence) co-partners with Him in all this power and authority.... (Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 88.) [Note: this suggest that we should start exercising this authority in our homes now on earth and not keep secret. King of kings and Lord of lord implies that others round about know that you are a king just by looking at you.... Joseph Smith said "We have got to learn to be kings and priests and gods...."]

Kings with Kingdom:

We build temples and we administer and submit to ordinances and perform those things within them which will prepare us to dwell eternally with our God, with Jesus and the Apostles in the heavens. There each man will have his family and kingdom. It is said that God is Lord of lords and King of kings; but how can He be King of kings unless there be kings under Him to give Him homage and pay respect unto Him and acknowledge Him as their Lord and their King?
When God led forth Abraham and told him that as the stars of the firmament were innumerable so should his seed be, He proclaimed to him the greatness of his kingdom in eternity. He told Abraham that he should be a king over this innumerable host; for, if Abraham were not to be king over them, of what use or glory would his posterity be to him? When God pointed Abraham to the sand on the sea shore and told him that as it was countless so should his see be, He told him in accents that could not be mistaken of the future glory of his eternal kingdom. And if all mankind attained to the same promises as Abraham, the also would have an innumerable posterity to reign over. (Apr. 8, 1871, Jd, 14:128; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 90.)

Other Worlds to be Created:

What will be their occupation? The exercise of that creative power that our Father and God has exercised in preparing this earth as the abode for man. He called to gether the elements and formed the earth as a habitation for man; and man, if he is faithful, will progress until he will do that very same thing for his posterity.
Abraham, standing at the head of an innumerable posterity, will find it necessary to have room. He will want to emigrate after awhile from this earth and find a new habitation for there will not be room enough on the glorified earth for him and his posterity in the coming eternity. Thus it is that the heavens are bespangled with the glorious orbs that we see at night--the creations of God, peopled by the children of God.
And all this God promises to us, if we are faithful. He says, "You shall be kings; you shall be queens; you shall sit upon thrones; you shall sway scepters, and you shall have power and dominion, if you prove yourselves faithful and true to Me; and you shall be My heirs, and joint heirs with My beloved Son, Jesus Christ, your Redeemer." (Oct. 9, 1892, Dw 45:619-620; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 92.)

Keys of the Kingdom
"In their fulness, the keys are held by only one person at a time, the Prophet and Presiden of the Church. He may delegate any portion of this power to another, in which case that person holds the keys of that particular labor." [D&C 132: My house is a house of order.] (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., p. 136.)

King of Kings
Christ is the King of kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King holds dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which position s they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1: 6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continues to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of Saints forever. (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 424.)

Lord of lords
Both the Father and the Son are properly known by the title Lord of Lord's, a designation that means literally what it says. (Deut. 10:12-22; 1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:16.) The purpose of this name is not simply to reveal that Christ, for instance, is the Lord of mortal persons who are ranked as lords, but rather it is to show that he is Lord and God to others who themselves also are Lords and Gods in their own right. Thus Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (among others) "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, [What promises? The ones sealed upon us in the temple D&C 131; 132] and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) Since exalted beings themselves beocme Lords and Gods, and since they still stand in subjection to Christ their Lord and their God, it follows that he is a Lord of Lords. Whatever is true of him is also true of his Father, and in due course it will be true of all exalted beings. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 451.)

Patriarchal Order

...Those married in the temple in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage become inheritors of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and all the patriarchs and thereby enter into the patriarchal order. [When do they enter into this order? When they are married in the temple.] If the participating parties abide in the eternal marriage covenant, they shall reap the full blessings of patriarchal heirship in eternity where the patriarchal order will be the order of government and rule. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 559.)

Keys of the kingdom shall be delivered up again unto the Father:
The keys of the kingdom are the rights and powers of presidency; they consist of the authorization and obligation to preside over the Chruch (shich is the kingdom of God on earth) and to regulate all of its affairs. In due course these keys were given to Peter, James, and John, and then to all the Twelve of that day. They were restored to Joseph Smith and his associates in this day and are now held by the living oracles of this dispensation. When the great gathering at Adam-ondi-Ahman takes place those who have held keys on earth will make accounting of their stewareships, Christ will take back the keys, and then the millennial era shall be ushered in, an era in which the rightful King of the kingdom shall riegn personally upon the earth. Finally, there shall be a day when the salvation of man shall be completed, a day in which the keys shall be returned to the Father. Or, as Paul expresses it, "Then cometh the end, when the [Christ] shall have delivered up the kingdom ot God, event he Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all aruthority and power." (1 Cor. 15:24; Mormon Doctrine, pp. 377-379.) (DNTC 1, p. 116-117.)

Though "there is none other God but one" for men on this earth to worship, yet "there be gods many and lords many" throughout the infinite expanse of eternity. (1 Cor. 8:4-7.) That is, there are many exalted, perfected, glorified personages who reign as gods over their own dominions. John saw 144,000 of them standing with Christ upon MOunt Zion, all "having his Father's name written in their foreheads" (Rev.14-1), which is to say that they were gods and were so identified by wearing crowns so stating. Indeed, to each person who overcomes and gains exaltation, Christ has promised: "I will write upon him the name of my God,: and he shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:12, 21.) Joseph Smith said: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) All exalted persons "are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:58.) Through obedience to the whole gospel law, including celestial marriage, they attain the "fulness of the glory of the Father" [Even to the ataining of the Eternal Godhead themselves, they take a covenant: They themself in the eternal cycle will become God the 1st or Creator, one of their Sons will become God the Second or God the Savior and a third, God the testitator or witnessor....] (D. & C. 93:6-28.) and "a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods, because they have no ent; therefore shall they be form everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 491.)

I Go to prepare a place for you
'I go to prepare a place of exaltation for you, a place with me in the highest heaven of the celestial world (D. & C. 131:1-4), for "the desciple" shall "be as his master, adn the servant as his lord." (Matt. 10:25.) "Ye shall be even as I am, and I am even as the Father."' (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 1, p. 729.)

Holy women
The Lord never sends apostles and prophets and righteous men to minister to his people without placing women of like spiritual stature at their sides. Adam stands as the great high priest, under Christ, to rule as a natural patriarch over all men of all ages, but he cannot rule alone; Eve, his wife, rules at his side, having like caliber and attainments to his own. Abraham is tested as few men have been when the Lord commands him to offer Isaac upon the altar (Gen. 22:1-19); and sarah struggles with like problems when the Lord directs that she withhold from the Egyptians her status as Abraham's widfe. (Abra. 2:21-25; Gen. 12:7-20.) Isaac gains from the Lord the promise that his seed shall "multiply as the stars of heaven" (Gen. 26:1-4); and Rebekah, his wife, receives a blessing of her own in which she is promised that she shall be "the mother of thousands of millions.: (Gen. 24:59-60.) And so it goes, in all dispensations and at all times when there are holy men there are also holy women. Neither stands alone before the Lord. The exaltation of the one is dependent upon that of the other.
Whose daughters ye are]
Brethren in the Church become "the seed of Abraham" by faith. (D. & C. 84:34.) That is, they believe what Abraham believed; they worship as Abraham worshiped; they are one with him in spiritual things--and are therefore considered to be his followers and sons, for "if ye be Christ's [Anointed ones], then are ye Abraham's see, and heirs according to the promise." (Gal. 3:29.) Thus, to identify the women in the Church as the daughters of Sarah is to testify that Sarah, and Abraham her husband, were also followers of Christ and believers in the same truths of salvation revealed anew in the Christian dispensation.

Heirs together] Neither men or women are saved alone. Salvation is a family affair. The fulness of the blessings of the gospel come to men and women together; they grow out of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. (DNTC 3, p. 302-303.)

Revelation 1:6
Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)

Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.
"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'
"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.
"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. [D&C 132:19; 93:1]
To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

Sit with me in my throne] In conversation with Deity, Enoch said: "Thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to they throne." (Moses 7:59.) Thus: "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) 'Ye shall have eternal life; ye shall have exaltation; ye shall be gods; ye shall rule and reign forever on a heavenly throne.'

I...am set down with my Father in his throne] "I am even as the Father." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Speaking of those who are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked, "What is it?" and then answered: "To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone befoer. What did Jesus do? Why; I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came roling into existence. My Father workded out his kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to my Father, so that he may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take his place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of his Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all his children. It is plain beyond disputatuin, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel." (Teachings, pp. 347-348.) (DNTC 3, p. 462.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)

The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day

Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted bgings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12-17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322-323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

I will continue the point I am now at. The Lord created you and me for the purpose of becoming Gods like Himself; when we have been proved in our present capacity, and been faithful with all things He puts into our possession. We are created, we are born for the express purpose of growing up from the low estate of manhood, to become Gods like unto our Father in heaven. That is the truth about it, just as it is. The Lord has organized mankind for the express purpose of increasing in that intelligence and truth, which is with God, until he is capable of creating worlds on worlds, and becoming Gods, even the sons of God. How many will become thus privileged? Those who honor the Father and the Son; those who receive the Holy Ghost, and magnify their calling, and are found pure and holy; they shall be crowned in the presence of th Father and the Son. (By Brigham Young, J. D. Vol. 3:93.)

KING OF KINGS.
Christ is the King of Kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King hold dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which positions they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continued to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of saints forever (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 424.)

KINGS.

Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fullness of the ordinances of the temple the receive the fullness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 425.)

Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
Joseph confirmed this by saying:

Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)

And again--

Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)

KINGS AND PRIESTS-MEN ANOINTED UNTO THE MOST HIGH GOD AND HIS FATHER-LIKE THE LORD:

Heirs of God:

Remember the word! If we are heirs of God, why then we shall inherit the power and the blessings and the glory of God our Eternal Father. This is what the Latter-day Saints ought to have constantly in view, "How can I live so as to become an heir of God and a Joint heir with Jesus Christ? What course can I take to secure to myself celestial glory--a never-fading crown?" Not an empty bauble, not a barren sceptre but a sceptre of power, a sceptre of dominion, a crown that means something real, a throne that means the kingly and queenly authority. This is what the Latter-day Saints have in view when they have their hearts fixed as they should be and their eyes open to the glory that God has in store for the faithful. (Apr. 27, 1890, DW 40:836; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 89-90.)

Kings and Priests:

Thus shall we also become legitimately and by right, through the atonement and adoption, kings and priests--priests to administer in the holy ordinances pertaining to the endowments and exaltations; and kings, under Christ, who is King of Kings and Lord of lords, to rule and govern, according to the eternal laws of justice and equity, those who are thus redeemed and exalted. (Ma, 156, 158-159; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 138.)

The Patriarchal Order:

We find that after the days of Noah an order was introduced called the patriarchal order, in which every man managed his own family affairs. And prominent men among them were kings and priests unto God, and officiated in what is known among us as the priesthood of the Son of God, or the priesthood after the order of Melchizedek. Man began again to multiply on the face of the earth, and the heads of families became their kings and priests, that is, the fathers of their own people. And they were more or less under the influence and guidance of the Almighty. We read, for instance, in our revelations pertaining to these matters, of a man called Melchizedek, who was a great high priest. We are told that there were a great many high priests in his day, and before him and after; and these men had communication with God, and were taught of him in relation to their general proceedings, and acknowledged the hand of God in all things with which the were associated. (JD, 17:207, October 7, 1874; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 139.)
[Note: Here Christ is a King of kings and Lord of lords and instruction each family patriarch as needed.]

Blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood
As seen by the Prophet Isaiah

|c49|v0 Messiah shall be a light to the Gentiles and shall free the prisoners--Israel shall be gathered with power in the last days--Kings shall be their nursing fathers--Compare 1 Nephi 21.

|v1 Listen, O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far; The LORD hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.

We are all foreordained and known unto the Lord, and we shall all recognize that the Lord has called us all from the womb, and made mention of our name.

We were foreordained from the very beginning to receive a fullness of the Priesthood, which is a fullness of the father. Our names are mentioned: Ordinance of Naming and blessing of infants and temple blessings....

|v2 And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me;

|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

We all take upon ourselves to be the Lords servants, pointing to the mortal ministry of Jesus Christ as did John the Baptist and all the holy prophets and righteous fathers before him, for the blessings of the Father through the Son. And like all the Prophets and righteous fathers since the Saviors mortal ministry, we as servants and Elias point to the Son's Second coming. Where he shall come in glory. And we prepare the Saints not only with baptism, and the Holy Ghost, but the fulness of all the Priesthood blessings found in the holy temple, that when he comes we shall be like him. And when he shows the Father unto us we shall be like him too.

|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

How is the Lord glorified? He told Moses, "For behold, this is my work and my glory–to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man.

Who is the Lord talking to, in whom he will be glorified?
His servant Israel [the children of Israel]. Through the posterity of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob... The Lord will give these people immortality and eternal life as he gave Abraham and Sarah and promised to all their posterity.

In Doctrine and Covenants section 132 verse 37 the Lord brings further light of what he means by being glorified and bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of his children,

"Abraham received concubines, and they bore him children; and it was accounted unto him for righteousness, because they were given unto him, and he abode in my law; as Isaac and also Jacob did none other things than that which they were commanded; and because they did none other things than that which they were commanded, they have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods."

|v4 Then I said, I have labored in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the LORD, and my work with my God.

As long as every Prophet, Elias, or Father, Mother, Brother or Sister knows that there is one more soul to be saved, one more soul to receive all the blessings of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father. There

Labor is in vain. For what Father or Mother having received there Exaltation like Abraham and sees his children or grandchildren truly has a fulness of joy. No one for all their children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren to the latest generation are engraven on their hands and they know them and are doing everything in there power to help them receive the Fulness of the Priesthood which is a fulness of the fathers even the greatest father of us all, God our heavenly Father.

Was this not Christ mission, to bring us back unto the fulness of The Father. Thus each Prophet, Elias, Father and Mother takes the same image as Christ and Abraham, Adam and Elohim, to bring to pass the immortality and eternal lives of their children.... We can never have a fulness of Joy until every last child or brother or sister has the opportunity to live the life that the Fathers and Mothers live.

|v5 And now, saith the LORD that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob [the house of Israel] again to him, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD, and my God shall be my strength.

|v6 And he said, It is a light thing that thou shouldest be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth.

What is the light that the Lord promised Isaiah should be to raise up [all] the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel:

The Lord also promised that Isaiah would give the same light to the Gentiles, that Isaiah would be the Salvation to the end of the earth.

Isaiah is told that he would give some special light to raise up the tribes of [Israel] to a new elevation, a new height, a zenith. He was then told that he would give this same light to the Gentiles. The Lord then explains that this light would be the Capstone of salvation to the end of the earth.

In other words the light that Isaiah is about to share with us will be very great, the capstone of the blessings of the Father the Capstone of Salvation and exaltation to the children of Fathers, Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob or all the tribes of Israel and that these great blessings of the Fathers even of God the Eternal would be given to the Gentiles as well for a great purpose.

The Lord finally tell Isaiah that this Light is so important that he shall be the Lord's salvation to the end of the Earth.

What does this mean? We know that the Lord Glory is, "For behold, this is my work and my glory-to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of [my children]."

Isaiah is going to shed light to help all the Fathers children receive the Capstone blessings of the Priesthood to raise up the tribes of Israel and the Gentiles to receive the fulness of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father....

|v7 Thus saith the LORD, the Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One, to him whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth, to a servant of rulers, Kings shall see and arise, princes also shall worship, because of the LORD that is faithful, and the Holy One of Israel, and he shall choose thee.

The LORD has chosen us because we are his children and he wants his children, to be awakened to the truth and receive all the blessings which he has to offer, that we may be like him. For what parent having children doesn't want them to grow up and be like them possessing all that they have and are.... These are the blessings of eternity.

|v8 Thus saith the LORD, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee: and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages;

We have the promises of the Fathers, of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And the now the Lord, through Isaiah is telling us that we should again receive and inherit the great promises of the Fathers which have become desolate. Of which the Lord said,"In an acceptable time (1) have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have (2) I helped thee: and (3) I will preserve thee, and (4) give thee for a covenant of the people, (5) to establish the earth, (6) to cause to inherit the desolate heritages; because we are his children.

We now know why we are to receive the fullness of the blessings of the Priesthood, a fullness of our anointings, a the fulness of the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And when we have received a fullness of the blessings of the Lord, then what does the He expect us to do with them...

Christ himself gives us the answer. He said:

If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.
(John 13:13-17).

Now there are many who have received the key-stone blessings and ordinances of the Fathers, but as Isaiah is about there are not many who have received the Capstone blessings and ordinances of the Fullness of the Priesthood, which is a Fulness of the blessings of the Fathers, even God Our Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And why do we receive these Capstone blessings. 1. So that We ourselves can receive the fulness of the blessings of the Fathers and Mothers and 2. So...

|v9 That thou mayest say to the prisoners [those in spirit prison], Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Shew yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places [all the blessings and ordinances found in the House of our Eternal Father and Fathers Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and even our immediate Fathers and Mothers].

|v10 They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them: for he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them.

Here the Lord is telling us the simple truth, that we will no longer be prisoners, that we will no longer hunger or thirst, for he will guide us by the springs of water.

We are his children and he has promised that he will give us all he blessings, all of them to the point that we hunger and thirst no longer for ourselves, because we have the fullness of blessings powers, thrones and principalities as our fathers Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and our immediate Fathers and we will "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." For the Lord tells us that he will guide us by the springs of water. And what is our springs of water, it is none other than the fullness of the priesthood, living the same lives that of our Fathers and Mothers, Even our true Spring of Living Water who is God our Eternal Father.

|v11 And I will make all my mountains a way, and my highways shall be exalted.

The Lord has prophesied that the highways where with we shall be exalted will be found in the mountains or in other wards where the Lord has established the Keys of his holy Priesthood, which is the order of the Priesthood after the Order of Melchizedek, which is after the Order of the Son of God, which is after the Order of God our Father our Spring.

|v13 Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the LORD hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted.

Here we see the unnumbered multitudes found in heaven and earth who are in prison are to receive a blessings at the Hand of the Priesthood, the fulness of the Priesthood of God our Father in the Mountains: For it is here that the LORD Will comfort his people [his Children] and will have mercy upon his afflicted [who many of his children have not had the opportunity to receive of his fulness but are in prisons having only receive portions of light, but need all light even the Capstone light of the Fulness of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost even the fulness of the Priesthood to enter the same blessings as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he has sent.

|v14 But Zion said, The LORD hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me.

And because these blessings have become desolate and there are many prisoners the people cry and Zion, [those who have received the Key-stone blessings] say the LORD hath forsaken us and forgotten me and I am left here in this prison and there is none to bring me to salvation and exaltation.....

But the Lord having no fulness of joy, without his faithful children told Isaiah that he would teach us the greater light and bring even the Lord his Salvation unto the end of the earth [those things telestial and terrestrial], and bring us to the light of the celestial, the fulness of the Priesthood for all the worthy children of the Fathers and God the Eternal Father.

For said he,

|v15 Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee. |v16 Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me.

We are the Lords children and it greaves him when we are stopped from progressing to him. But he has not forgotten us but will bless us with a fulness of his great blessings. For our prayers are before him always.

|v18 Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold: all these gather themselves together, and come to thee. As I live, saith the LORD, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee, as a bride doeth.

We shall be clothed and cloth those who are in prison with the fulness of the Priesthood. For we are the bride of the bridegroom and if the bridegroom is to receive the fulness of the blessings of the Priesthood or the Father, he must receive them with the bride, for they must receive them together or not at all. Therefore these blessings must be extended to all the faithful for the bridegroom cannot come in glory without the bride.

Therefore let the prisoners go free. Let the bride of the Lord clothe herself with the ornament of the fulness of the Priesthood and all the blessings found in the House of our Heavenly Father, by the hands of his holy Servants.

|v19 For thy waste and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction, shall even now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be far away.

The un-numbered hosts who have gathered in prison are already to many. The time is far spent and there is little remaining, "even now this prison is to narrow (crowded) by reason of the inhabitants. And because we don't let our dead go free but keep adding to them we have swallowed them up in this great prison and are far, far away from our fathers whom we must surly set free. That the bride may come with the bridegroom. Where the Lord shall be a King of kings and a Lord of lords-a God of gods.

|v20 The children which thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other, shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: give place to me that I may dwell.

Now we children of the Fathers, according to the Light which Isaiah hath shown us are saying we don't want to go to the prison which is already to strait or crowded, bless us with the blessings of the Fathers, the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and let us break down the prison door of our Father that we might be saved with them and be the true bride at the Bridegrooms Second coming with all the ornaments of the Fulness of the Priesthood lacking nothing.

|v21 Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath begotten me these, seeing I have lost my children, and am desolate, a captive, and removing to and fro? and who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left alone; these, where had they been?

|v22 Thus saith the Lord GOD, Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people: and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.

We have the responsibility to bring the key-stone blessings to our dead and living who haven't received these blessings, but Isaiah is about to shed a greater light even the Capstone blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood.

|v23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD: for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

Here is the further light, Kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers. We shall be called up and Anointed Kings and our wives Queens unto their husbands and we shall nurse these captive [do the work for our dead by proxy and bestowing the fulness of the priesthood upon them, making them kings and queens, priests and priestesses unto the Most High God.]

We also learn, by looking at another angle found in Nephi, that Nephi recorded these things for his posterity-his children and his children's children.
Not only will our dead bow down to us with their faces toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet. But we fathers will, as Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Lehi, and Nephi bestow these blessings of the Fathers upon our children. Teaching our children to know the Lord as Adam taught Seth and Seth taught Enos all the way to Noah, and as Abraham taught Isaac and Isaac taught Jacob to know the Lord. For do not our children do what we do and say what we say, thus licking up the dust of our feet that they shalt know through the Fathers that the Lord is God. For none will be ashamed that wait upon the Lord for in that day all shall know him from the least (the children) unto the greatest (the fathers) and no man shall need to teach his brother to know the Lord for all shall know him. Because they shall be like him and shall Be King and priests and Queens and Priestesses and shall walk forth out of the prison and be a kingdom of priests and Priestesses a kingdom of Anointed a kingdom of kings and queens to the most high God and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.....
Also in the Doctrine and Covenants the Lord says,

|v25 For there is a time appointed for every man, according as his works shall be.

|v26 God shall give unto you knowledge by his Holy Spirit, yea, by the unspeakable gift of the Holy Ghost, that has not been revealed since the world was until now;
|v28 A time to come in the which nothing shall be withheld, whether there be one God or many gods, they shall be manifest.
|v29 All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ.
(D&C: Section 121:25-29)

|v24 Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?
|v25 But thus saith the LORD, Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered: for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children.

The Fathers have received a promise, that all their righteous children shall not be held captive any longer but shall receive the fulness of all the Keystone and Capstone blessings just as they have received them that they might be one with the Father even as the Son is one with the Father.

(OldT:Isaiah 49:Heading-26)

God of Gods
"Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions," the Prophet said. (Teachings, p. 374.) Hence, the Father, who shall continue to all eternity as the God of exalted beings, is a God of Gods. Further, as the Prophet also taught, ther is a "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. [This would go well with the picture of Orson Pratts/Hyde]. ...If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suposse that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father?...Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe thathe had a Father also?" (Teachings, pp. 370, 373.) In this way both the Father and the Son, as also all exalted beings, are now or in due course will become God of Gods. (Teachings, pp. 342-376.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 321-322.)

Kings
[Linked As a part of the following ordiances]
Calling and Election made sure, celestial Marriage, Endowments, Exaltation, Melchizedek Priesthood Priestesses, Priests, Queens.
Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordiances of the temple they receive the fulness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have [This is unconditional, man and wifes calling and election has been made sure] exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 425.)

Those who are faithful in their priesthood callings in this life shall continue on in their holy authorizations in eternity; they shall remain forever "priests and kings"; their destiny is to stand as "priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son." (D. & C. 76:56-57.)

This priesthood "holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God." (D. & C. 84:17-19.)

Those who are priests forever, who "are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek,... are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:57-58.) They have become joint-heirs with Christ, having kept the same covenant and been bount by teh same oath.

|v33 For whoso is faithful unto the obtaining these two priesthoods of which I have spoken, and the magnifying their calling, are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies.
|v35 And also all they who receive this priesthood receive me, saith the Lord;
|v36 For he that receiveth my servants receiveth me;
|v37 And he that receiveth me receiveth my Father;
|v38 And he that receiveth my Father receiveth my Father's kingdom; therefore all that my Father hath shall be given unto him.

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D. & C. 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) Theses, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communications of keys," the prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fulness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30.)
"Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordiances of the house of the Lord.... All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordiances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordiances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 474-482.)

"And thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5:10; 20:4.)

Priests
see Calling and election sure, Celestial Marriage, (linked0

Those who endure in perfect faith, who receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, and who gain the blessings of the temple (including celestial marriage) [Celestial Marriage is a condition president] are eventually ordained kings and priests. These are offices given faithful holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood, and in them they will bear rule as exalted being durring the millennium and in eternity. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 599.)

Thrones
In the eternal sense, thrones are reserved for exalted persons who rule and reign as kings and queens in the highest heaven of the celestial world. It is in such a sphere that "God, even the Father, reigns upon his throne forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:92; Rev. 20:11.) After Christ has presented up the kingdom to his Father, "Then shall he be crowned with the crown of his glory, to sit on the throne of his power to reign forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:108.)
Then shall all those who are joint-heirs with him--who have been "crowned with the glory of his mighe," and "made equal with him" (D. & C. 88:107)--then shall they also sit upon their thrones and even sit down with our Lord on his throne. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am sent down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:21.) Enoch foresaw this state of exaltation and said: "Thou art God,... thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to thy throne." (Moses 7:59.)
In token of their kingship, sovereignty, and dominion, exalted beings shall sit on thrones in eternity. "All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ." (D. & C> 121:29.) "Abraham..hath entered into his exaltation and sitteth upon his throne," as also have other righteous saints of former ages. (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 794.)

Revelation 1:6
Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)

Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.
"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'
"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.
"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

I will continue the point I am now at. The Lord created you and me for the purpose of becoming Gods like Himself; when we have been proved in our present capacity, and been faithful with all things He puts into our possession. We are created, we are born for the express purpose of growing up from the low estate of manhood, to become Gods like unto our Father in heaven. That is the truth about it, just as it is. The Lord has organized mankind for the express purpose of increasing in that intelligence and truth, which is with God, until he is capable of creating worlds on worlds, and becoming Gods, even the sons of God. How many will become thus privileged? Those who honor the Father and the Son; those who receive the Holy Ghost, and magnify their calling, and are found pure and holy; they shall be crowned in the presence of th Father and the Son. (By Brigham Young, J. D. Vol. 3:93.)

> Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jer. 31:31-34)
> The Lord stated further:
> ...I say unto you that mine eyes are upon you. I am in your midst and ye cannot see me; but the day soon cometh that ye shall see me, and know that I am; for the veil of darkness shall soon be rent, and he that is not purified shall not abide the day. Wherefore, gird up your loins and be prepared. (D. & C. 38:7-9)
> Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)

|v3 Without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually.
|v4 Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils.
(NewT:Hebrews 7:1-4)

Sons and Daughters of a King:

It is a glorious thing... to know that our religion is true and given us from God and that in obedience to it we may attain to the exalted position occupied by Him and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.... We are of the race of God, the sons and daughters of a King. What monarch's children do not hope and look forward to sovereignty. May we, who are the offspring of the Almighty King, not hope for crowns and kingdoms in eternity? (DEN, March 28, 1881; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 87.)

Priests and Kings Upon Thrones:

It is God's design to make us priests and kings, not to have an empty title, not to sit upon thrones without power but to be actually and really priests and kings. The promise is that all things that He hath shall be given unto us. We will be His heirs; we will be (if I may use the term without irreverence) co-partners with Him in all this power and authority.... (Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 88.) [Note: this suggest that we should start exercising this authority in our homes now on earth and not keep secret. King of kings and Lord of lord implies that others round about know that you are a king just by looking at you.... We have got to learn to be kings and priests and gods....]

Kings with Kingdom:

We build temples and we administer and submit to ordinances and perform those things within them which will prepare us to dwell eternally with our God, with Jesus and the Apostles in the heavens. There each man will have his family and kingdom. It is said that God is Lord of lords and King of kings; but how can He be King of kings unless there be kings under Him to give Him homage and pay respect unto Him and acknowledge Him as their Lord and their King?
When God led forth Abraham and told him that as the stars of the firmament were innumerable so should his seed be, He proclaimed to him the greatness of his kingdom in eternity. He told Abraham that he should be a king over this innumerable host; for, if Abraham were not to be king over them, of what use or glory would his posterity be to him? When God pointed Abraham to the sand on the sea shore and told him that as it was countless so should his see be, He told him in accents that could not be mistaken of the future glory of his eternal kingdom. And if all mankind attained to the same promises as Abraham, the also would have an innumerable posterity to reign over. (Apr. 8, 1871, Jd, 14:128; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 90.)

Other Worlds to be Created:

What will be their occupation? The exercise of that creative power that our Father and God has exercised in preparing this earth as the abode for man. He called to gether the elements and formed the earth as a habitation for man; and man, if he is faithful, will progress until he will do that very same thing for his posterity.
Abraham, standing at the head of an innumerable posterity, will find it necessary to have room. He will want to emigrate after awhile from this earth and find a new habitation for there will not be room enough on the glorified earth for him and his posterity in the coming eternity. Thus it is that the heavens are bespangled with the glorious orbs that we see at night--the creations of God, peopled by the children of God.
And all this God promises to us, if we are faithful. He says, "You shall be kings; you shall be queens; you shall sit upon thrones; you shall sway scepters, and you shall have power and dominion, if you prove yourselves faithful and true to Me; and you shall be My heirs, and joint heirs with My beloved Son, Jesus Christ, your Redeemer." (Oct. 9, 1892, Dw 45:619-620; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 92.)

|v2 Unto whom I have given the keys of the kingdom, which belong always unto the Presidency of the High Priesthood:

|v8 The Melchizedek Priesthood holds the right of presidency, and has power and authority over all the offices in the church in all ages of the world, to administer in spiritual things. (D&C: Section 107:8)

|v9 The Presidency of the High Priesthood, after the order of Melchizedek, have a right to officiate in all the offices in the church.
(D&C: Section 107:9)

|v33 The Twelve are a Traveling Presiding High Council, to officiate in the name of the Lord, under the direction of the Presidency of the Church, agreeable to the institution of heaven; to build up the church, and regulate all the affairs of the same in all nations, first unto the Gentiles and secondly unto the Jews.
(D&C: Section 107:33)

|v30 For unto you, the Twelve, and those, the First Presidency, who are appointed with you to be your counselors and your leaders, is the power of this priesthood given, for the last days and for the last time, in the which is the dispensation of the fulness of times.
(D&C: Section 112:30)

|v18 And when Alma had done this he departed out of the land of Zarahemla, as if to go into the land of Melek. And it came to pass that he was never heard of more; as to his death or burial we know not of.
(BofM:Alma 45:18)

|v19 Behold, this we know, that he was a righteous man; and the saying went abroad in the church that he was taken up by the Spirit, or buried by the hand of the Lord, even as Moses. But behold, the scriptures saith the Lord took Moses unto himself; and we suppose that he has also received Alma in the spirit, unto himself; therefore, for this cause we know nothing concerning his death and burial.
(BofM:Alma 45:19)

|v37 And it came to pass in the fifty and third year of the reign of the judges, Helaman died, and his eldest son Nephi began to reign in his stead. And it came to pass that he did fill the judgment-seat with justice and equity; yea, he did keep the commandments of God, and did walk in the ways of his father.
(BofM:Helaman 3:37)

|v2 And Nephi, the son of Helaman, had departed out of the land of Zarahemla, giving charge unto his son Nephi, who was his eldest son, concerning the plates of brass, and all the records which had been kept, and all those things which had been kept sacred from the departure of Lehi out of Jerusalem.
(BofM:3 Nephi 1:2)

|v3 Then he departed out of the land, and whither he went, no man knoweth; and his son Nephi did keep the records in his stead, yea, the record of this people.
(BofM:3 Nephi 1:3)

|v42 From Adam to Seth, who was ordained by Adam at the age of sixty-nine years, and was blessed by him three years previous to his (Adam's) death, and received the promise of God by his father, that his posterity should be the chosen of the Lord, and that they should be preserved unto the end of the earth;
(D&C: Section 107:42)

|v53 Three years previous to the death of Adam, he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuselah, who were all high priests, with the residue of his posterity who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing.

(D&C: Section 107:53)

This is why stake presidents can be released because it is the office of presidency and will vanish as patriarchs are set up.

Christ
...with the righteous saints, he shall reign to all eternity as King of Kings, Lord of Lords, and God of Gods. To his holy name, both now and forever, be ascribed glory and honor, power, riches, and dominion, and an eternal fulness of all things for endless ages.

Eternal God
Both the Father and the Son carry the exalted name-title, Eternal God. Both are exalted Beings and as such are Eternal; both are from everlasting to everlasting, with all that this phrase connotates;

> Everlasting to Everlasting: by gaining exaltation-which includes the fulness of the Father and "a continuation of seeds forever and ever"-men [and women jointly] become "gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) That is, those who gain eternal increase, who have unending spirit children in the resurrection, have thereby become from everlasting to everlasting. Because of their eternal progeny they continue everlastingly without end; from eternity to eternity they are the same; and being perfected and exalted beings, their course never varies, nor is there shadow of turning to the right or the left.
> Our Eternal Father, of course, now has this kind of and existence. "There is a God in heaven," the revelation says, of him "who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting the same unchangeable God." (D. & C. 20:17; 109:77.) Christ also describes himself as being "from everlasting to everlasting." (D. & C. 61:1; Ps. 90:2; Docrtines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 244.)
> both are beyond finite comprehension in power, dominion, godly attributes, and eternal glory. (D. & C. 121:32.) By their eternal grace men have been [1] created [by the Father], [2] redeemed [by the Son], and placed as possible heirs of all things. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 236-237.)

First Vision
Our knowledge of God's dealings with his children from the days of Adam to the present leads us to believe that bothe the Father and the Son have been manifested to other prophets in other ages. Joseph Smith, himself, on at least two other occasions saw these heavenly Beings in vision (D. & C. 76:22-24; Teachings, p. 107), and Stephen beheld them as the murderous mob stoned him to death. (Acts 7:54-60.) Indee, it is the privilege of those who attain the Second Comforter to have the Son "manifest the Father" unto them. (Teachings, pp. 149-151; John 14:23; D. & C. 130:3.)
Fulness of the Father The express fulness of the Father has reference to his position of power, glory, perfection, and godhood, The "fulness of the glory of the Father" consists in the possession of "all power, both in heaven and on earth [D&C 132:19]." (D. & C. 93: 16-17.) God is an exalted Man, and exaltation consists in having the fulness of all powers, all attributes, and all perfections. (D. & C. 76; 93; 132.) [No one can have this singly but needs their complementry part to hold and have all power, the power to creat

The plan of exaltation is one whereunder those who fill the full measure of their creation are able to progress to that state wherein they will gain the fulness of the Father. Christ is the Examplar; he went from grace to grace until finally after the resurrection he gained the fulness of all things, including the fulness of truth, knowledge, and power. (Matt. 28:18; D. & C. 93:6-30.)
Obedience to the whole law of crowning ordiance of celestial marriage, is the way whereby the fulness of the Father may be gained. Those so married, who keep their covenants, shall go on " to their exaltation and glory in all things,...which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:6, 19-20; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 24, 44-45, 62-63.)
Joseph Smith taught: "All those who keep his [the Father's] commandments shall grow up from grace to grace, and become heirs of the heavenly kingdom, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ; possessing the same mind, being transformed into the same image or likeness, even the express image of him who fills all in all; being filled with the fulness of his glory, and become one in him, even as the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are one.... As the son partakes of the fulness of the Father through the Spirit so the saints are, byt eh same Spirit, to be partakers of the same fulness, to enjoy the same glory; for as the Father and the Son are one, so, in like manner, the saints are to be one in them. Through the love of the Father, the mediation of Jesus Christ, and the gift of the Holy Spirit, they are to be heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ." (Lectures on Faith, pp. 50-52; 3 Ne. 28:10-11.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 300-301.)

Keys of the Kingdom
"In their fulness, the keys are held by only one person at a time, the Prophet and Presiden of the Church. He may delegate any portion of this power to another, in which case that person holds the keys of that particular labor." [D&C 132: My house is a house of order.] (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., p. 136.)

King of Kings
Christ is the King of kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King holds dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which position s they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1: 6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continues to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of Saints forever. (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 424.)

Both the Father and the Son are properly known by the title Lord of Lord's, a designation that means literally what it says. (Deut. 10:12-22; 1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:16.) The purpose of this name is not simply to reveal that Christ, for instance, is the Lord of mortal persons who are ranked as lords, but rather it is to show that he is Lord and God to others who themselves also are Lords and Gods in their own right. Thus Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (among others) "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, [What promises? The ones sealed upon us in the temple D&C 131; 132] and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) Since exalted beings themselves beocme Lords and Gods, and since they still stand in subjection to Christ their Lord and their God, it follows that he is a Lord of Lords. Whatever is true of him is also true of his Father, and in due course it will be true of all exalted beings. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 451.)

Patriarchal Order

...Those married in the temple in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage become inheritors of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and all the patriarchs and thereby enter into the patriarchal order. [When do they enter into this order? When they are married in the temple.] If the participating parties abide in the eternal marriage covenant, they shall reap the full blessings of patriarchal heirship in eternity where the patriarchal order will be the order of government and rule. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 559.)

Keys of the kingdom shall be delivered up again unto the Father:
The keys of the kingdom are the rights and powers of presidency; they consist of the authorization and obligation to preside over the Chruch (shich is the kingdom of God on earth) and to regulate all of its affairs. In due course these keys were given to Peter, James, and John, and then to all the Twelve of that day. They were restored to Joseph Smith and his associates in this day and are now held by the living oracles of this dispensation. When the great gathering at Adam-ondi-Ahman takes place those who have held keys on earth will make accounting of their stewareships, Christ will take back the keys, and then the millennial era shall be ushered in, an era in which the rightful King of the kingdom shall riegn personally upon the earth. Finally, there shall be a day when the salvation of man shall be completed, a day in which the keys shall be returned to the Father. Or, as Paul expresses it, "Then cometh the end, when the [Christ] shall have delivered up the kingdom ot God, event he Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all aruthority and power." (1 Cor. 15:24; Mormon Doctrine, pp. 377-379.) (DNTC 1, p. 116-117.)

Though "there is none other God but one" for men on this earth to worship, yet "there be gods many and lords many" throughout the infinite expanse of eternity. (1 Cor. 8:4-7.) That is, there are many exalted, perfected, glorified personages who reign as gods over their own dominions. John saw 144,000 of them standing with Christ upon MOunt Zion, all "having his Father's name written in their foreheads" (Rev.14-1), which is to say that they were gods and were so identified by wearing crowns so stating. Indeed, to each person who overcomes and gains exaltation, Christ has promised: "I will write upon him the name of my God,: and he shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:12, 21.)
Joseph Smith said: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) All exalted persons "are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:58.) Through obedience to the whole gospel law, including celestial marriage, they attain the "fulness of the glory of the Father" [Even to the ataining of the Eternal Godhead themselves, they take a covenant: They themself in the eternal cycle will become God the 1st or Creator, one of their Sons will become God the Second or God the Savior and a third, God the testitator or witnessor....] (D. & C. 93:6-28.) and "a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods, because they have no ent; therefore shall they be form everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 491.)

Gospel Mysteries

I Go to prepare a place for you
'I go to prepare a place of exaltation for you, a place with me in the highest heaven of the celestial world (D. & C. 131:1-4), for "the desciple" shall "be as his master, adn the servant as his lord." (Matt. 10:25.) "Ye shall be even as I am, and I am even as the Father."' (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 1, p. 729.)

Holy women
The Lord never sends apostles and prophets and righteous men to minister to his people without placing women of like spiritual stature at their sides. Adam stands as the great high priest, under Christ, to rule as a natural patriarch over all men of all ages, but he cannot rule alone; Eve, his wife, rules at his side, having like caliber and attainments to his own. Abraham is tested as few men have been when the Lord commands him to offer Isaac upon the altar (Gen. 22:1-19); and sarah struggles with like problems when the Lord directs that she withhold from the Egyptians her status as Abraham's widfe. (Abra. 2:21-25; Gen. 12:7-20.) Isaac gains from the Lord the promise that his seed shall "multiply as the stars of heaven" (Gen. 26:1-4); and Rebekah, his wife, receives a blessing of her own in which she is promised that she shall be "the mother of thousands of millions.: (Gen. 24:59-60.) And so it goes, in all dispensations and at all times when there are holy men there are also holy women. Neither stands alone before the Lord. The exaltation of the one is dependent upon that of the other.
Whose daughters ye are]
Brethren in the Church become "the seed of Abraham" by faith. (D. & C. 84:34.) That is, they believe what Abraham believed; they worship as Abraham worshiped; they are one with him in spiritual things--and are therefore considered to be his followers and sons, for "if ye be Christ's [Anointed ones], then are ye Abraham's see, and heirs according to the promise." (Gal. 3:29.) Thus, to identify the women in the Church as the daughters of Sarah is to testify that Sarah, and Abraham her husband, were also followers of Christ and believers in the same truths of salvation revealed anew in the Christian dispensation.

Heirs together] Neither men or women are saved alone. Salvation is a family affair. The fulness of the blessings of the gospel come to men and women together; they grow out of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. (DNTC 3, p. 302-303.)

Revelation 1:6
Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)
Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.

"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'
"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.
"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. [D&C 132:19; 93:1]
To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

Sit with me in my throne] In conversation with Deity, Enoch said: "Thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to they throne." (Moses 7:59.) Thus: "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) 'Ye shall have eternal life; ye shall have exaltation; ye shall be gods; ye shall rule and reign forever on a heavenly throne.'

I...am set down with my Father in his throne] "I am even as the Father." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Speaking of those who are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked, "What is it?" and then answered: "To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone befoer. What did Jesus do? Why; I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came roling into existence. My Father workded out his kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to my Father, so that he may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take his place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of his Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all his children. It is plain beyond disputatuin, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel." (Teachings, pp. 347-348.) (DNTC 3, p. 462.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)
The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted bgings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12-17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322-323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

I will continue the point I am now at. The Lord created you and me for the purpose of becoming Gods like Himself; when we have been proved in our present capacity, and been faithful with all things He puts into our possession. We are created, we are born for the express purpose of growing up from the low estate of manhood, to become Gods like unto our Father in heaven. That is the truth about it, just as it is. The Lord has organized mankind for the express purpose of increasing in that intelligence and truth, which is with God, until he is capable of creating worlds on worlds, and becoming Gods, even the sons of God.
How many will become thus privileged? Those who honor the Father and the Son; those who receive the Holy Ghost, and magnify their calling, and are found pure and holy; they shall be crowned in the presence of th Father and the Son. (By Brigham Young, J. D. Vol. 3:93.)

KING OF KINGS.

Christ is the King of Kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King hold dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which positions they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continued to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of saints forever (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 424.)

KINGS.

Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fullness of the ordinances of the temple the receive the fullness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 425.)

The Apostle Orson Hyde describes the course these elect must follow to become Gods:

> The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the time of god on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, and have not been anointed an ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom. (Mill. Star 9:23-24)
> Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)
> Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
> Joseph confirmed this by saying:
> Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)
> Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)
> Brigham Young added:
> For any person to have the fulness of that Priesthood, he must be a king and a priest. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, Aug. 6, 1843)

This was also confirmed by Dan Jones:

> Dan Jones heard Wilson Law...declare that while he (Mr. Smith) was once preaching from Daniel 2nd chapter, 44th verse, <he> said that the kingdom referred to was already set up, and that he was the king over it. (DHC 6:568-569)

It was in this context that a man could become king of kings and lord of lords, as explained by Brigham Young:

> We understand that we are to be made kings and priests unto God; now if I be made the king and lawgiver to my family, and if I have many sons, I shall become the father of many fathers, for they will have sons, and their sons will have sons, and so on, form generation to generation, and, in this way, I may become the father of many fathers, or the king of many kings. This will constitute every man a prince, king, lord, or whatever the Father sees fit to confer upon us.
> In this way we can become king of kings, and lord of lords, or father of fathers, or prince of princes, and this is the only course, for another man is not going to raise up a kingdom for you. (JD 3:266)

John Taylor also revealed:

You have been ordained kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to your Lord; you have been put in possession of principles that all the kings, potentates, and power upon the earth are entirely ignorant of; they do not understand it; but you have received this form the hands of God. (JD 5:189)

In the year that king Uzziah died I [Isaiah] saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple. ***
Then said I, Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the LORD of hosts. (Isaiah 6:1, 5)

Pratt said:

> Do we not expect that the Lord will, by and by, come and visit us and stay a little while, about a thousand years? Yes, and then we shall be made glad with the joy of the countenance of our Lord. He will be among us, and will be our King, and he will reign as a King of kings and Lord of lords. He will have a throne in Zion, and another in the Temple at Jerusalem, and he will have with him the twelve disciples who were with him during his ministry at Jerusalem; and they will eat and drink with him at his table; and all the people of this globe who are counted worthy to be called Zion, the pure in heart, will be made glad by the countenance of their Lord for a thousand years, during which the earth will rest. (O. Pratt, J.D. 17:332)

FILE:#32 KINGS AND PRIESTS-MEN ANOINTED UNTO THE MOST HIGH GOD AND HIS FATHER-LIKE THE LORD

Priests and Kings Upon Thrones:

It is God's design to make us priests and kings, not to have an empty title, not to sit upon thrones without power but to be actually and really priests and kings. The promise is that all things that He hath shall be given unto us. We will be His heirs; we will be (if I may use the term without irreverence) co-partners with Him in all this power and authority.... (Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 88.) [Note: this suggest that we should start exercising this authority in our homes now on earth and not keep secret. King of kings and Lord of lord implies that others round about know that you are a king just by looking at you.... We have got to learn to be kings and priests and gods....]

Heirs of God:

Remember the word! If we are heirs of God, why then we shall inherit the power and the blessings and the glory of God our Eternal Father. This is what the Latter-day Saints ought to have constantly in view, "How can I live so as to become an heir of God and a Joint heir with Jesus Christ? What course can I take to secure to myself celestial glory--a never-fading crown?" Not an empty bauble, not a barren sceptre but a sceptre of power, a sceptre of dominion, a crown that means something real, a throne that means the kingly and queenly authority. This is what the Latter-day Saints have in view when they have their hearts fixed as they should be and their eyes open to the glory that God has in store for the faithful. (Apr. 27, 1890, DW 40:836; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 89-90.)

Kings and Priests:

Thus shall we also become legitimately and by right, through the atonement and adoption, kings and priests--priests to administer in the holy ordinances pertaining to the endowments and exaltations; and kings, under Christ, who is King of Kings and Lord of lords, to rule and govern, according to the eternal laws of justice and equity, those who are thus redeemed and exalted. (Ma, 156, 158-159; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 138.)

The Patriarchal Order:

We find that after the days of Noah an order was introduced called the patriarchal order, in which every man managed his own family affairs. And prominent men among them were kings and priests unto God, and officiated in what is known among us as the priesthood of the Son of God, or the priesthood after the order of Melchizedek. Man began again to multiply on the face of the earth, and the heads of families became their kings and priests, that is, the fathers of their own people. And they were more or less under the influence and guidance of the Almighty. We read, for instance, in our revelations pertaining to these matters, of a man called Melchizedek, who was a great high priest. We are told that there were a great many high priests in his day, and before him and after; and these men had communication with God, and were taught of him in relation to their general proceedings, and acknowledged the hand of God in all things with which the were associated. (JD, 17:207, October 7, 1874; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 139.) [Note: Here Christ is a King of kings and Lord of lords and instruction each family patriarch as needed.]

Blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood
As seen by the Prophet Isaiah

|c49|v0 Messiah shall be a light to the Gentiles and shall free the prisoners--Israel shall be gathered with power in the last days--Kings shall be their nursing fathers--Compare 1 Nephi 21.

|v1 Listen, O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far; The LORD hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.

We are all foreordained and known unto the Lord, and we shall all recognize that the Lord has called us all from the womb, and made mention of our name.

We were foreordained from the very beginning to receive a fullness of the Priesthood, which is a fullness of the father. Our names are mentioned: Ordinance of Naming and blessing of infants and temple blessings....

|v2 And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me;

|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

We all take upon ourselves to be the Lords servants, pointing to the mortal ministry of Jesus Christ as did John the Baptist and all the holy prophets and righteous fathers before him, for the blessings of the Father through the Son. And like all the Prophets and righteous fathers since the Saviors mortal ministry, we as servants and Elias point to the Son's Second coming. Where he shall come in glory. And we prepare the Saints not only with baptism, and the Holy Ghost, but the fulness of all the Priesthood blessings found in the holy temple, that when he comes we shall be like him. And when he shows the Father unto us we shall be like him too.
|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

How is the Lord glorified? He told Moses, "For behold, this is my work and my glory-to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man.

Who is the Lord talking to, in whom he will be glorified?

Gospel Mysteries

His servant Israel [the children of Israel]. Through the posterity of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob... The Lord will give these people immortality and eternal life as he gave Abraham and Sarah and promised to all their posterity.

In Doctrine and Covenants section 132 verse 37 the Lord brings further light of what he means by being glorified and bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of his children,
"Abraham received concubines, and they bore him children; and it was accounted unto him for righteousness, because they were given unto him, and he abode in my law; as Isaac and also Jacob did none other things than that which they were commanded; and because they did none other things than that which they were commanded, they have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods."

|v4 Then I said, I have labored in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the LORD, and my work with my God.

As long as every Prophet, Elias, or Father, Mother, Brother or Sister knows that there is one more soul to be saved, one more soul to receive all the blessings of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father. There Labor is in vain. For what Father or Mother having received there Exaltation like Abraham and sees his children or grandchildren truly has a fulness of joy. No one for all their children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren to the latest generation are engraven on their hands and they know them and are doing everything in there power to help them receive the Fulness of the Priesthood which is a fulness of the fathers even the greatest father of us all, God our heavenly Father.

Was this not Christ mission, to bring us back unto the fulness of The Father. Thus each Prophet, Elias, Father and Mother takes the same image as Christ and Abraham, Adam and Elohim, to bring to pass the immortality and eternal lives of their children.... We can never have a fulness of Joy until every last child or brother or sister has the opportunity to live the life that the Fathers and Mothers live.

|v5 And now, saith the LORD that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob [the house of Israel] again to him, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD, and my God shall be my strength.

|v6 And he said, It is a light thing that thou shouldest be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth.

What is the light that the Lord promised Isaiah should be to raise up [all] the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel:

The Lord also promised that Isaiah would give the same light to the Gentiles, that Isaiah would be the Salvation to the end of the earth.
Isaiah is told that he would give some special light to raise up the tribes of [Israel] to a new elevation, a new height, a zenith. He was then told that he would give this same light to the Gentiles. The Lord then explains that this light would be the Capstone of salvation to the end of the earth.
In other words the light that Isaiah is about to share with us will be very great, the capstone of the blessings of the Father the Capstone of Salvation and exaltation to the children of Fathers, Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob or all the tribes of Israel and that these great blessings of the Fathers even of God the Eternal would be given to the Gentiles as well for a great purpose.

The Lord finally tell Isaiah that this Light is so important that he shall be the Lord's salvation to the end of the Earth.

What does this mean? We know that the Lord Glory is, "For behold, this is my work and my glory–to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of [my children]."

Isaiah is going to shed light to help all the Fathers children receive the Capstone blessings of the Priesthood to raise up the tribes of Israel and the Gentiles to receive the fulness of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father....

|v7 Thus saith the LORD, the Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One, to him whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth, to a servant of rulers, Kings shall see and arise, princes also shall worship, because of the LORD that is faithful, and the Holy One of Israel, and he shall choose thee.

The LORD has chosen us because we are his children and he wants his children, to be awakened to the truth and receive all the blessings which he has to offer, that we may be like him. For what parent having children doesn't want them to grow up and be like them possessing all that they have and are.... These are the blessings of eternity.

|v8 Thus saith the LORD, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee: and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages;

We have the promises of the Fathers, of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And the now the Lord, through Isaiah is telling us that we should again receive and inherit the great promises of the Fathers which have become desolate. Of which the Lord said,"In an acceptable time (1) have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have (2) I helped thee: and (3) I will preserve thee, and (4) give thee for a covenant of the people, (5) to establish the earth, (6) to cause to inherit the desolate heritages; because we are his children.

We now know why we are to receive the fullness of the blessings of the Priesthood, a fullness of our anointings, a the fulness of the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And when we have received a fullness of the blessings of the Lord, then what does the He expect us to do with them...

Christ himself gives us the answer. He said:

If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.
(John 13:13-17).

Now there are many who have received the key-stone blessings and ordinances of the Fathers, but as Isaiah is about there are not many who have received the Capstone blessings and ordinances of the Fullness of the Priesthood, which is a Fulness of the blessings of the Fathers, even God Our Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And why do we receive these Capstone blessings. 1. So that We ourselves can receive the fulness of the blessings of the Fathers and Mothers and 2. So...

|v9 That thou mayest say to the prisoners [those in spirit prison], Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Shew yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places [all the blessings and ordinances found in the House of our Eternal Father and Fathers Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and even our immediate Fathers and Mothers].

|v10 They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them: for he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them.

Here the Lord is telling us the simple truth, that we will no longer be prisoners, that we will no longer hunger or thirst, for he will guide us by the springs of water.

We are his children and he has promised that he will give us all he blessings, all of them to the point that we hunger and thirst no longer for ourselves, because we have the fullness of blessings powers, thrones and principalities as our fathers Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and our immediate Fathers and we will "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." For the Lord tells us that he will guide us by the springs of water. And what is our springs of water, it is none other than the fullness of the priesthood, living the same lives that of our Fathers and Mothers, Even our true Spring of Living Water who is God our Eternal Father.

|v11 And I will make all my mountains a way, and my highways shall be exalted.

The Lord has prophesied that the highways where with we shall be exalted will be found in the mountains or in other wards where the Lord has established the Keys of his holy Priesthood, which is the order of the Priesthood after the Order of Melchizedek, which is after the Order of the Son of God, which is after the Order of God our Father our Spring.

|v13 Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the LORD hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted.

Here we see the unnumbered multitudes found in heaven and earth who are in prison are to receive a blessings at the Hand of the Priesthood, the fulness of the Priesthood of God our Father in the Mountains: For it is here that the LORD Will comfort his people [his Children] and will have mercy upon his afflicted [who many of his children have not had the opportunity to receive of his fulness but are in prisons having only receive portions of light, but need all light even the Capstone light of the Fulness of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost even the fulness of the Priesthood to enter the same blessings as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he has sent.

|v14 But Zion said, The LORD hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me.

And because these blessings have become desolate and there are many prisoners the people cry and Zion, [those who have received the Key-stone blessings] say the LORD hath forsaken us and forgotten me and I am left here in this prison and there is none to bring me to salvation and exaltation.....

But the Lord having no fulness of joy, without his faithful children told Isaiah that he would teach us the greater light and bring even the Lord his Salvation unto the end of the earth [those things telestial and terrestrial], and bring us to the light of the celestial, the fulness of the Priesthood for all the worthy children of the Fathers and God the Eternal Father.

For said he,

|v15 Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee.
|v16 Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me.

We are the Lords children and it greaves him when we are stopped from progressing to him. But he has not forgotten us but will bless us with a fulness of his great blessings. For our prayers are before him always.

|v18 Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold: all these gather themselves together, and come to thee. As I live, saith the LORD, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee, as a bride doeth.

We shall be clothed and cloth those who are in prison with the fulness of the Priesthood. For we are the bride of the bridegroom and if the bridegroom is to receive the fulness of the blessings of the Priesthood or the Father, he must receive them with the bride, for they must receive them together or not at all. Therefore these blessings must be extended to all the faithful for the bridegroom cannot come in glory without the bride.

Therefore let the prisoners go free. Let the bride of the Lord clothe herself with the ornament of the fulness of the Priesthood and all the blessings found in the House of our Heavenly Father, by the hands of his holy Servants.

|v19 For thy waste and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction, shall even now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be far away.

The un-numbered hosts who have gathered in prison are already to many. The time is far spent and there is little remaining, "even now this prison is to narrow (crowded) by reason of the inhabitants. And because we don't let our dead go free but keep adding to them we have swallowed them up in this great prison and are far, far away from our fathers whom we must surly set free. That the bride may come with the bridegroom. Where the Lord shall be a King of kings and a Lord of lords-a God of gods.

|v20 The children which thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other, shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: give place to me that I may dwell.

Now we children of the Fathers, according to the Light which Isaiah hath shown us are saying we don't want to go to the prison which is already to strait or crowded, bless us with the blessings of the Fathers, the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and let us break down the prison door of our Father that we might be saved with them and be the true bride at the Bridegrooms Second coming with all the ornaments of the Fulness of the Priesthood lacking nothing.

|v21 Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath begotten me these, seeing I have lost my children, and am desolate, a captive, and removing to and fro? and who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left alone; these, where had they been?

|v22 Thus saith the Lord GOD, Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people: and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.

We have the responsibility to bring the key-stone blessings to our dead and living who haven't received these blessings, but Isaiah is about to shed a greater light even the Capstone blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood.

|v23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD: for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

Here is the further light, Kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers. We shall be called up and Anointed Kings and our wives Queens unto their husbands and we shall nurse these captive [do the work for our dead by proxy and bestowing the fulness of the priesthood upon them, making them kings and queens, priests and priestesses unto the Most High God.]

We also learn, by looking at another angle found in Nephi, that Nephi recorded these things for his posterity-his children and his children's children. Not only will our dead bow down to us with their faces toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet. But we fathers will, as Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Lehi, and Nephi bestow these blessings of the Fathers upon our children. Teaching our children to know the Lord as Adam taught Seth and Seth taught Enos all the way to Noah, and as Abraham taught Isaac and Isaac taught Jacob to know the Lord. For do not our children do what we do and say what we say, thus licking up the dust of our feet that they shalt know through the Fathers that the Lord is God. For none will be ashamed that wait upon the Lord for in that day all shall know him from the least (the children) unto the greatest (the fathers) and no man shall need to teach his brother to know the Lord for all shall know him. Because they shall be like him and shall Be King and priests and Queens and Priestesses and shall walk forth out of the prison and be a kingdom of priests and Priestesses a kingdom of Anointed a kingdom of kings and queens to the most high God and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.....

Also in the Doctrine and Covenants the Lord says,

|v25 For there is a time appointed for every man, according as his works shall

|v26 God shall give unto you knowledge by his Holy Spirit, yea, by the unspeakable gift of the Holy Ghost, that has not been revealed since the world was until now;
|v27 Which our forefathers have awaited with anxious expectation to be revealed in the last times, which their minds were pointed to by the angels, as held in reserve for the fulness of their glory;
|v28 A time to come in the which nothing shall be withheld, whether there be one God or many gods, they shall be manifest.
|v29 All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ.
(D&C: Section 121:25-29)

|v24 Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?
|v25 But thus saith the LORD, Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered: for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children.

The Fathers have received a promise, that all their righteous children shall not be held captive any longer but shall receive the fulness of all the Keystone and Capstone blessings just as they have received them that they might be one with the Father even as the Son is one with the Father.

(OldT:Isaiah 49:Heading-26)

|c21|v0 Messiah shall be a light to the Gentiles and shall free the prisoners--Israel shall be gathered with power in the last days--Kings shall be their nursing fathers--Compare Isaiah 49.

|v1 And again: Hearken, O ye house of Israel, all ye that are broken off and are driven out because of the wickedness of the pastors of my people; yea, all ye that are broken off, that are scattered abroad, who are of my people, O house of Israel. (BofM:1 Nephi 21:Heading-26)

Gospel Mysteries

|c6|v0 Jacob recounts Jewish history: Their Babylonian captivity and return; the ministry and crucifixion of the Holy One of Israel; the help received from the gentiles; and their latter-day restoration when they believe in the Messiah.

|v1 The words of Jacob, the brother of Nephi, which he spake unto the people of Nephi:
|v2 Behold, my beloved brethren, I, Jacob, having been called of God, and ordained after the manner of his holy order, and having been consecrated by my brother Nephi, unto whom ye look as a king or a protector, and on whom ye depend for safety, behold ye know that I have spoken unto you exceedingly many things.
|v3 Nevertheless, I speak unto you again; for I am desirous for the welfare of your souls. Yea, mine anxiety is great for you; and ye yourselves know that it ever has been. For I have exhorted you with all diligence; and I have taught you the words of my father; and I have spoken unto you concerning all things which are written, from the creation of the world.
|v4 And now, behold, I would speak unto you concerning things which are, and which are to come; wherefore, I will read you the words of Isaiah. And they are the words which my brother has desired that I should speak unto you. And I speak unto you for your sakes, that ye may learn and glorify the name of your God.
|v5 And now, the words which I shall read are they which Isaiah spake concerning all the house of Israel; wherefore, they may be likened unto you, for ye are of the house of Israel. And there are many things which have been spoken by Isaiah which may be likened unto you, because ye are of the house of Israel.

|v6 And now these are the words: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people; and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.
|v7 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers; they shall bow down to thee with their faces towards the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord; for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

|v8 And now I, Jacob, would speak somewhat concerning these words. For behold, the Lord has shown me that those who were at Jerusalem, from whence we came, have been slain and carried away captive.
|v9 Nevertheless, the Lord has shown unto me that they should return again. And he also has shown unto me that the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel, should manifest himself unto them in the flesh; and after he should manifest himself they should scourge him and crucify him, according to the words of the angel who spake it unto me.
|v10 And after they have hardened their hearts and stiffened their necks against the Holy One of Israel, behold the judgments of the Holy One of Israel shall come upon them. And the day cometh that they shall be smitten and afflicted.
|v11 Wherefore, after they are driven to and fro, for thus saith the angel, many shall be afflicted in the flesh, and shall not be suffered to perish, because of the prayers of the faithful; they shall be scattered, and smitten, and hated; nevertheless, the Lord will be merciful unto them, that when they shall come to the knowledge of their Redeemer, they shall be gathered together again to the lands of their inheritance.

|v12 And blessed are the Gentiles, they of whom the prophet has written; for behold, if it so be that they shall repent and fight not against Zion, and do not unite themselves to that great and abominable church, they shall be saved; for the Lord God will fulfil his covenants which he has made unto his children; and for this cause the prophet has written these things.
|v13 Wherefore, they that fight against Zion and the covenant people of the Lord shall lick up the dust of their feet; and the people of the Lord shall not be ashamed. For the people of the Lord are they who wait for him; for they still wait for the coming of the Messiah.
|v14 And behold, according to the words of the prophet, the Messiah will set himself again the second time to recover them; wherefore, he will manifest himself unto them in power and great glory, unto the destruction of their enemies, when that day cometh when they shall believe in him; and none will he destroy that believe in him.
|v15 And they that believe not in him shall be destroyed, both by fire, and by tempest, and by earthquakes, and by bloodshed, and by pestilence, and by famine. And they shall know that the Lord is God, the Holy One of Israel.
|v16 For shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?
|v17 But thus saith the Lord: Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered; for the Mighty God shall deliver his covenant people. For thus saith the Lord: I will contend with them that contendeth with thee--
|v18 And I will feed them that oppress thee, with their own flesh; and they shall be drunken with their own blood as with sweet wine; and all flesh shall know that I the Lord am thy Savior and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.
(BofM:2 Nephi 6:Heading-18)

|c10|v0 Jews shall crucify their God--They shall be scattered until they begin to believe in him--America shall be a land of liberty where no king shall rule--Be reconciled to God and gain salvation through his grace.

|v1 And now I, Jacob, speak unto you again, my beloved brethren, concerning this righteous branch of which I have spoken.
|v2 For behold, the promises which we have obtained are promises unto us according to the flesh; wherefore, as it has been shown unto me that many of our children shall perish in the flesh because of unbelief, nevertheless, God will be merciful unto many; and our children shall be restored, that they may come to that which will give them the true knowledge of their Redeemer.
|v3 Wherefore, as I said unto you, it must needs be expedient that Christ--for in the last night the angel spake unto me that this should be his name--should come among the Jews, among those who are the more wicked part of the world; and they shall crucify him--for thus it behooveth our God, and there is none other nation on earth that would crucify their God.
|v4 For should the mighty miracles be wrought among other nations they would repent, and know that he be their God.
|v6 Wherefore, because of their iniquities, destructions, famines, pestilences, and bloodshed shall come upon them; and they who shall not be destroyed shall be scattered among all nations.

|v7 But behold, thus saith the Lord God: When the day cometh that they shall believe in me, that I am Christ, then have I covenanted with their fathers that they shall be restored in the flesh, upon the earth, unto the lands of their inheritance.
|v8 And it shall come to pass that they shall be gathered in from their long dispersion, from the isles of the sea, and from the four parts of the earth; and the nations of the Gentiles shall be great in the eyes of me, saith God, in carrying them forth to the lands of their inheritance. |v9 Yea, the kings of the Gentiles shall be nursing fathers unto them, and their queens shall become nursing mothers; wherefore, the promises of the Lord are great unto the Gentiles, for he hath spoken it, and who can dispute?

|v10 But behold, this land, said God, shall be a land of thine inheritance, and the Gentiles shall be blessed upon the land.
|v11 And this land shall be a land of liberty unto the Gentiles, and there shall be no kings upon the land, who shall raise up unto the Gentiles.
|v12 And I will fortify this land against all other nations.
|v13 And he that fighteth against Zion shall perish, saith God.
|v14 For he that raiseth up a king against me shall perish, for I, the Lord, the king of heaven, will be their king, and I will be a light unto them forever, that hear my words.
|v15 Wherefore, for this cause, that my covenants may be fulfilled which I have made unto the children of men, that I will do unto them while they are in the flesh, I must needs destroy the secret works of darkness, and of murders, and of abominations.
|v16 Wherefore, he that fighteth against Zion, both Jew and Gentile, both bond and free, both male and female, shall perish; for they are they who are the whore of all the earth; for they who are not for me are against me, saith our God.
|v17 For I will fulfil my promises which I have made unto the children of men, that I will do unto them while they are in the flesh--
|v18 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, thus saith our God: I will afflict thy seed by the hand of the Gentiles; nevertheless, I will soften the hearts of the Gentiles, that they shall be like unto a father to them; wherefore, the Gentiles shall be blessed and numbered among the house of Israel.
|v19 Wherefore, I will consecrate this land unto thy seed, and them who shall be numbered among thy seed, forever, for the land of their inheritance; for it is a choice land, saith God unto me, above all other lands, wherefore I will have all men that dwell thereon that they shall worship me, saith God.

|v20 And now, my beloved brethren, seeing that our merciful God has given us so great knowledge concerning these things, let us remember him, and lay aside our sins, and not hang down our heads, for we are not cast off; nevertheless, we have been driven out of the land of our inheritance; but we have been led to a better land, for the Lord has made the sea our path, and we are upon an isle of the sea.
|v21 But great are the promises of the Lord unto them who are upon the isles of the sea; wherefore as it says isles, there must needs be more than this, and they are inhabited also by our brethren.
|v22 For behold, the Lord God has led away from time to time from the house of Israel, according to his will and pleasure. And now behold, the Lord remembereth all them who have been broken off, wherefore he remembereth us also.
|v23 Therefore, cheer up your hearts, and remember that ye are free to act for yourselves--to choose the way of everlasting death or the way of eternal life.
|v24 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, reconcile yourselves to the will of God, and not to the will of the devil and the flesh; and remember, after ye are reconciled unto God, that it is only in and through the grace of God that ye are saved.
|v25 Wherefore, may God raise you from death by the power of the resurrection, and also from everlasting death by the power of the atonement, that ye may be received into the eternal kingdom of God, that ye may praise him through grace divine. Amen.

Eternal God

Both the Father and the Son carry the exalted name-title, Eternal God. Both are exalted Beings and as such are Eternal; both are from everlasting to everlasting, with all that this phrase connotates;

> Everlasting to Everlasting: by gaining exaltation-which includes the fulness of the Father and "a continuation of seeds forever and ever"-men [and women jointly] become "gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) That is, those who gain eternal increase, who have unending spirit children in the resurrection, have thereby become from everlasting to everlasting. Because of their eternal progeny they continue everlastingly without end; from eternity to eternity they are the same; and being perfected and exalted beings, their course never varies, nor is there shadow of turning to the right or the left.
> Our Eternal Father, of course, now has this kind of and existence. "There is a God in heaven," the revelation says, of him "who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting the same unchangeable God." (D. & C. 20:17; 109:77.) Christ also describes himself as being "from everlasting to everlasting." (D. & C. 61:1; Ps. 90:2; Docrtines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 244.)
> both are beyond finite comprehension in power, dominion, godly attributes, and eternal glory. (D. & C. 121:32.) By their eternal grace men have been [1] created [by the Father], [2] redeemed [by the Son], and placed as possible heirs of all things. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 236-237.)

God of Gods

"Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions," the Prophet said. (Teachings, p. 374.) Hence, the Father, who shall continue to all eternity as the God of exalted beings, is a God of Gods. Further, as the Prophet also taught, ther is a "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. [This would go well with the picture of Orson Pratts/Hyde]. ...If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may supposse that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father?...Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe thathe had a Father also?" (Teachings, pp. 370, 373.) In this way both the Father and the Son, as also all exalted beings, are now or in due course will become God of Gods. (Teachings, pp. 342-376.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 321-322.)

[Linked As a part of the following ordiances]

Calling and Election made sure, celestial Marriage, Endowments, Exaltation, Melchizedek Priesthood Priestesses, Priests, Queens.

Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordiances of the temple they receive the fulness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have [This is unconditional, man and wifes calling and election has been made sure] exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 425.)

Gospel Mysteries

Those who are faithful in their priesthood callings in this life shall continue on in their holy authorizations in eternity; they shall remain forever "priests and kings"; their destiny is to stand as "priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son." (D. & C. 76:56-57.)

This priesthood "holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God." (D. & C. 84:17-19.)

Those who are priests forever, who "are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek,... are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:57-58.) They have become joint-heirs with Christ, having kept the same covenant and been bount by teh same oath.

|v33 For whoso is faithful unto the obtaining these two priesthoods of which I have spoken, and the magnifying their calling, are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies.
|v34 They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, and the church and kingdom, and the elect of God.
|v35 And also all they who receive this priesthood receive me, saith the Lord;
|v36 For he that receiveth my servants receiveth me;
|v37 And he that receiveth me receiveth my Father;
|v38 And he that receiveth my Father receiveth my Father's kingdom; therefore all that my Father hath shall be given unto him.

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D. & C. 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) Theses, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communications of keys," the prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fulness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30.) "Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordiances of the house of the Lord.... All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordiances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordiances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 474-482.)

"And thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5:10; 20:4.)

see Calling and election sure, Celestial Marriage, (linked0

Those who endure in perfect faith, who receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, and who gain the blessings of the temple (including celestial marriage) [Celestial Marriage is a condition president] are eventually ordained kings and priests. These are offices given faithful holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood, and in them they will bear rule as exalted being durring the millennium and in eternity. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 599.)

In the eternal sense, thrones are reserved for exalted persons who rule and reign as kings and queens in the highest heaven of the celestial world. It is in such a sphere that "God, even the Father, reigns upon his throne forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:92; Rev. 20:11.) After Christ has presented up the kingdom to his Father, "Then shall he be crowned with the crown of his glory, to sit on the throne of his power to reign forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:108.)
Then shall all those who are joint-heirs with him--who have been "crowned with the glory of his mighe," and "made equal with him" (D. & C. 88:107)--then shall they also sit upon their thrones and even sit down with our Lord on his throne. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am sent down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:21.) Enoch foresaw this state of exaltation and said: "Thou art God,... thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to thy throne." (Moses 7:59.)
In token of their kingship, sovereignty, and dominion, exalted beings shall sit on thrones in eternity. "All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ." (D. & C> 121:29.) "Abraham..hath entered into his exaltation and sitteth upon his throne," as also have other righteous saints of former ages. (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 794.)

Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)
Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.

"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'
"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.
"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

I will continue the point I am now at. The Lord created you and me for the purpose of becoming Gods like Himself; when we have been proved in our present capacity, and been faithful with all things He puts into our possession. We are created, we are born for the express purpose of growing up from the low estate of manhood, to become Gods like unto our Father in heaven. That is the truth about it, just as it is. The Lord has organized mankind for the express purpose of increasing in that intelligence and truth, which is with God, until he is capable of creating worlds on worlds, and becoming Gods, even the sons of God.
How many will become thus privileged? Those who honor the Father and the Son; those who receive the Holy Ghost, and magnify their calling, and are found pure and holy; they shall be crowned in the presence of th Father and the Son. (By Brigham Young, J. D. Vol. 3:93.)

Gospel Mysteries

The Apostle Orson Hyde describes the course these elect must follow to become Gods:

> The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the time of god on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, and have not been anointed an ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom. (Mill. Star 9:23-24)

From Joseph Smith's Inspired Translation of the Bible, we read that the fulness of the Priesthood comes "not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God." (Gen. 14:28) Willard Richards wrote in the Joseph Smith Diary that is Priesthood is for those who are--

> ...called, elected and made were without father, etc.; a priesthood which holds the priesthood by right from the Eternal Gods--and not by descent from father and mother. (words of Joseph Smith, p 244)

> And again, speaking of Hebrews 7:

> Paul is here treating of three different priesthoods, namely the priesthood of Aaron <Levitical>, Abraham <patriarchal>, and Melchizedek. Abraham's priesthood was of greater power than Levi's, and Melchizedek's was of greater power than that of Abraham. (Words of Joseph Smith, p.245-246)
> The Prophet Joseph stated that, "those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God,..." (TPJS, p. 322) He further explained this Priesthood order as--

> That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but of King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & law of endless life to man, & no man can attain to the joint heirship with Jesus Christ without being administered to by one having the same power & authority of Melchisedec. (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 245)

> In another instance, Joseph emphasized that the spirit of "Messiah is above the spirit and power of Elijah" (TPJS, p. 340), for--

> ... this greater priesthood administereth the gospel and holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God. For without this no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live. (D. & C. 84:19 & 22)

> In conclusion then, the Prophet stated that "the spirit of Elias is first, Elijah second, and Messiah last." (TPJS, p. 340) This highest power and authority of Priesthood was the kingly Priesthood which Peter referred to as the "Royal Priesthood" (I Peter 2:9), confirmed by the King of Kings-the Messiah Himself.

Those with the highest Priesthood may enjoy the following powers and privileges:

> Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that Priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy, and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam. (TPJS, p. 322)
> All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (DHC 5:424)
> The power and authority of the highest, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18-19)
> The object of every man should be to obtain the Priesthood and magnify his calling in that Priesthood until he proves himself worthy of the fulness of the ordinances of God's kingdom. Only then can he possess the power to have the heavens opened to him and commune with God the Father and His Son.

In our dispensation, the Lord has said: "every man might speak in the name of God that Lord, even the Savior of the world." (D. & C. 1:20) The prophet Jeremiah prophesied:

> Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jer. 31:31-34)
> The Lord stated further:
> ...I say unto you that mine eyes are upon you. I am in your midst and ye cannot see me; but the day soon cometh that ye shall see me, and know that I am; for the veil of darkness shall soon be rent, and he that is not purified shall not abide the day. Wherefore, gird up your loins and be prepared. (D. & C. 38:7-9)

Gospel Mysteries

Joseph said:

> But there must be a holy place prepared for that purpose,...that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God, having nothing to do with temporal things, but their whole time will be taken up with things pertaining to the house of God. (DHC 6:319)

> Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

> Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
> Joseph confirmed this by saying:

> Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)

> And again--

> Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)

> Brigham Young added:

> For any person to have the fulness of that Priesthood, he must be a king and a priest. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, Aug. 6, 1843)

William Smith, brother to the Prophet Joseph, testified of his own ordination and also the ordination of others:

> I was present with Joseph at the last council that was held previous to the Twelve and others going on their electioneering campaign to the east and various other parts of the United States; it was at this time that I received my initiation into the highest priesthood lodge, was washed and anointed, and clad with the sacerdotal robe of pure white, and ordained to be priest and king, and invested with all the power that any man on earth ever did possess; power entitling me to preach the gospel, to bind up the Kingdom of God on earth, among all nations, and people of every tongue. In consequence of these endowments and ordination received from under the hands of Joseph, I hold as much power and as many keys to seal and bind on earth, as can possibly belong to Brigham Young; the power was conferred equally on all the Twelve, and not therefore bestowed on one. (William Smith's letter to the Warsaw Signal, Jan. 7, 1846)

> Joseph Smith bestowed these ordinations on others, as George Miller and William Smith testified:

> Many of the Apostles and Elders having returned from England, Joseph washed and anointed as Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel, the following named persons, as he said was commanded of God, viz: James Adams (of Springfield), William Law, William Marks, Willard Richards, Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Newel K. Whitney, Hyrum Smith, and myself; and conferred on us Patriarchal Priesthood. This took place on the 5th and 6th of May, 1842. (Journal of George Miller, "De Tal Palo Tal Astilla," p. 120-121)

> This Priesthood, including that of the Aaronic, holds the keys of revelation of the oracles of God to man upon the earth; the power and right to give laws and commandments to individuals, churches, rulers, nations and the world; to appoint, ordain, and establish constitutions and kingdoms; to anoint kings, presidents, governors or judges, and to ordain or anoint them to their several holy callings, also to instruct, warn, or reprove them by the word of the Lord. (Parley P. Pratt, Key to Theology, 1885, p. 66)

> It was in this context that a man could become king of kings and lord of lords, as explained by Brigham Young:

> We understand that we are to be made kings and priests unto God; now if I be made the king and lawgiver to my family, and if I have many sons, I shall become the father of many fathers, for they will have sons, and their sons will have sons, and so on, form generation to generation, and, in this way, I may become the father of many fathers, or the king of many kings. This will constitute every man a prince, king, lord, or whatever the Father sees fit to confer upon us.
> In this way we can become king of kings, and lord of lords, or father of fathers, or prince of princes, and this is the only course, for another man is not going to raise up a kingdom for you. (JD 3:266)

John Taylor also revealed:

You have been ordained kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to your Lord; you have been put in possession of principles that all the kings, potentates, and power upon the earth are entirely ignorant of; they do not understand it; but you have received this form the hands of God. (JD 5:189)

Alvin R. Dyer describes the endowment and the promises connected therewith:

> I call your attention now to the washing and anointing that you received in the Temple.... When you went into the washing and anointing room, where you were washed and anointed with water and oil, you were given a new name, and you were promised that some day you would be called up to be a king and priest, or a queen and priestess. (From speech "For What Propose", March 18, 1961)

Joseph Fielding Smith probably wrote more on this subject that did any other present-day leader. in his book The Way to Perfection, he wrote:

Gospel Mysteries

Each person baptized into the Church is under obligation to keep the commandments of the Lord. He is under covenant, for baptism in a "new and an everlasting covenant." (D. & C. 22:1) When he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him, then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the "Church of the Firstborn". Into his hands "the Father has given all things." He will be a priest and a king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of His glory. (Way to Perfection, p. 208)

Thus we see that those who receive the "higher" order of ordinances, and become ordained kings and queens, can become members of the Church of the Firstborn.

KING OF KINGS.

Christ is the King of Kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King hold dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which positions they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continued to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of saints forever (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 424.)

KINGS.

Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fullness of the ordinances of the temple the receive the fullness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 425.)

Nation of Kings by Orson Pratt:

St. John beheld the New Earth, and the angel said unto him, "Come hither, I will shew thee the Bride, the Lamb's Wife;" and he was carried in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and saw a great city called the holy Jerusalem, descending form the heavens upon the New Earth. This city contained the throne of God and the Lamb, and was inhabited by a great nation of kings who were to "reign forever and ever," being Gods, as is evident from the name of God being written on each of their foreheads. The inscription upon their foreheads was not intended as a mere sham or mockery, but was in reality the name given to each, that all the inhabitants of eternity, when they saw GOD conspicuously inscribed upon all their foreheads, might know most assuredly that each one was a god, as the written title or name expressly declared. The grandeur and glory of this city are still further described; the city and the streets thereof were of pure gold, clear as glass, while the walls and the gates were of the most precious stones; and the glory of God enlightened the city, so that they had no need of the light of the sun or moon. This light was so great that all the nations that were saved that dwelt upon all the face of the New Earth, walked in the light of it. There was no night there, but the whole Earth was clothed in one eternal day. It was in the midst of this city that the King of kings and Lord of lords sat upon His throne, while upon His "right hand did stand the Queen," arrayed in the most costly apparel. (Orson Pratt, The Seer, pp. 169-172.)

Joseph Smith--We must receive all the ordinances:

All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (DHC 5:424)

6 October 1844

Brigham Young on Revelation:

I will not ascend any higher than a priest, and ask the priest what is your right. You have the right to receive the administration of angels. If an angel was to come to you and tell you what the Lord was going to do in this day, you would say you had a revelation. The president of the priests has a right to the Urim and Thummim, which gives revelation. He has the right of receiving visits from angels. Every priest then in the church has the right of receiving revelations. Every member has the right of receiving revelations for themselves, both male and female. It is the very life of the church of the living God, in all ages of the world. (DHC 7:285) 22 August 1852
John Taylor--Kings and Priests:

I hear some of our elders saying, sometimes, that they are going to do great things--to be rulers in the kingdom of God, kings and priests to the Most High, and are again to exalt thousands of other to thrones, principalities, and powers, in the eternal worlds. But we cannot get them out of their nests to travel a few miles here. If they cannot do this, how will they ever learn to go from world to world? (John Taylor, J.D., 1:19-20.)

William Smith:

I was present with Joseph at the last council that was held previous to the Twelve and others going on their electioneering campaign to the east and various other parts of the United States; it was at this time that I received my initiation into the highest priesthood lodge, was washed and anointed, and clad with the sacerdotal robe of pure white, and ordained to be priest and king, and invested with all the power that any man on earth ever did possess; power entitling me to preach the gospel, to bind up the Kingdom of God on earth, among all nations, and people of every tongue. In consequence of these endowments and ordination received from under the hands of Joseph, I hold as much power and as many keys to seal and bind on earth, as can possibly belong to Brigham Young; the power was conferred equally on all the Twelve, and not therefore bestowed on one. (William Smith's letter to the Warsaw Signal, Jan. 7, 1846; Calling and Election by Ogden Kraut, p. 123-124.)

5th & 6th May 1843

George Miller--Kings and Priests

Many of the Apostles and Elders having returned from England, Joseph washed and anointed as Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel, the following named persons, as he said was commanded of God, viz: James Adams (of Springfield), William Law, William Marks, Willard Richards, Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Newel K. Whitney, Hyrum Smith, and myself; and conferred on us Patriarchal Priesthood. This took place on the 5th and 6th of May, 1842. (Journal of George Miller, "De Tal Palo Tal Astilla," p. 120-121)

Dan Jones--Joseph Smith the [Proxy] King over the Kingdom of God on the Earth:

Dan Jones heard Wilson Law... declare that while he (Mr. Smith) was once preaching from Daniel 2nd chapter, 44th verse, [he] said that the kingdom referred to was already set up, and that he was the king over it. (DHC 6:568-569)

Parley P. Pratt--Anointing Kings:

This Priesthood, including that of the Aaronic, holds the keys of revelation of the oracles of God to man upon the earth; the power and right to give laws and commandments to individuals, churches, rulers, nations and the world; to appoint, ordain, and establish constitutions and kingdoms; to anoint kings, presidents, governors or judges, and to ordain or anoint them to their several holy callings, also to instruct, warn, or reprove them by the word of the Lord. (Parley P. Pratt, Key to Theology, 1885, p. 66)

Brigham Young explained that we become king of kings, and lord of lords or fathers of fathers, or prince of princes to our families:

We understand that we are to be made kings and priests unto God; now if I be made the king and lawgiver to my family, and if I have many sons, I shall become the father of many fathers, for they will have sons, and their sons will have sons, and so on, form generation to generation, and, in this way, I may become the father of many fathers, or the king of many kings. This will constitute every man a prince, king, lord, or whatever the Father sees fit to confer upon us.
In this way we can become king of kings, and lord of lords, or father of fathers, or prince of princes, and this is the only course, for another man is not going to raise up a kingdom for you. (J.D. 3:265-266)

Hyrum Andurs--Explains the role of Priestess and Queen in the home within the Patriarchal order of the Priesthood:

A priestess is a female priest--one who exercises priestly rights and powers by virtue of the priesthood. In this context, a queen is a woman with a political status and power in the home, within the patriarchal order of the priesthood. (Doctrines of the Kingdom, p. 411)

John Taylor Explained:

You have been ordained kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to your Lord; you have been put in possession of principles that all the kings, potentates, and power upon the earth are entirely ignorant of; they do not understand it; but you have received this form the hands of God. (J.D. 5:189)

John Taylor:

Have you forgotten who you are, and what your object is? Have you forgotten that you profess to be Saints of the Most High God, clothed upon with the holy priesthood? Have you forgotten that you are aiming to become kings and priests to the Lord, and queens and priestesses to him? Have you forgot that you are associated with the Saints of God in Zion, where the oracles of truth are revealed, and the truths of God are made manifest, and clearly developed; where you and your posterity after you can learn the ways of life and salvation; where you are placed in a position that you can obtain blessings from the great Eloheim, that will rest upon you and your posterity worlds without end? (J.D. 1:372)

Alvin R. Dyer:

I call your attention now to the washing and anointing that you received in the Temple.... When you went into the washing and anointing room, where you were washed and anointed with water and oil, you were given a new name, and you were promised that some day you would be called up to be a king and priest, or a queen and priestess. (From speech "For What Propose", March 18, 1961)

Brigham Young explained:

After men have got their exaltations and their crowns--have become Gods, even the sons of God--are made Kings of kings and Lords of lords, they have the power then of propagating their species in spirit; and that is the first of their operations with regard to organizing a world. Power is then given to them to organize the elements, and then to commence the organization of tabernacles. How can they do it? Have they to go to that earth? Yes, an Adam will have to go there and he cannot do without Eve; he must have Eve to commence the work of generation, and they will go into the garden, and continue to eat and drink of the fruits of the corporeal world, until this grosser matter is diffused sufficiently through their celestial bodies, to enable them, according to the established laws, to produce mortal tabernacles for their spiritual children. This is a key for you. (J.D. 6:275)

Brigham Young:

Joseph Smith holds the keys of this last dispensation [as proxy King of kings and Lord of lords, in place of the Lord until he comes to claim those keys], and is now engaged behind the veil in the great work of the last days.  No man or woman in this dispensation will ever enter into the celestial kingdom of God without the consent of Joseph Smith. From the day that the Priesthood was taken from the earth to the winding up scene of all things, every man and woman must have the certificate of Joseph Smith, junior, as a passport to their entrance into the mansion where God and Christ are--
He holds the keys of that kingdom for the last dispensation--the keys to rule in the spirit world; and he rules there triumphantly, for he gained full power and a glorious victory over the power of Satan while he was yet in the flesh, and was a martyr to his religion and to the name of Christ, which gives him a most perfect victory in the spirit world. He reigns there as supreme a being in his sphere, capacity, and calling, as God does in heaven. Many will exclaim--"Oh, that is very disagreeable! It is preposterous! We cannot bear the thought!" But it is true.
I will now tell you something that ought to comfort ever man and woman on the face of the earth. Joseph Smith, junior, will again be on this earth dictating plans and calling forth his brethren to be baptized for the very characters who wish this was not so, in order to bring them into a kingdom to enjoy, perhaps, the presence of angels or the spirits of good men, if they cannot endure the presence of the Father and the Son; and he will never cease his operations, under the directions of the Son of God, until the last ones of the children of men are saved that can be, from Adam till now.
Should not this thought comfort all people? They will, by-and-by, be a thousand times more thankful for such a man as Joseph Smith, junior, than it is possible for them to be for any earthly good whatever. It is his mission to see that all the children of men in this last dispensation are saved, that can be, through the redemption. You will be thankful, every one of you, that Joseph Smith, junior, was ordained to this great calling before the worlds were. I told you that the doctrine of election and reprobation is a true doctrine. It was decreed in the counsels of eternity, long before the foundations of the earth were laid, tat he should be the man, in the last dispensation of this world, to bring forth the word of God to the people, and receive the fulness of the keys and power of the Priesthood of the Son of God. [Note: In order to have a kingdom there must be a king. Joseph Smith holds the Key of the Kingdom of God or is Proxy King of king in this last Dispensation. Also the Prophets who preside after Joseph Smith also hold this key and are Proxy King of kings and Lord of lords for the Lord and will deliver this key up to the Lord when he comes to gather up all the keys and reign as King of kings and Lord of lords over all the earth.] (J.D. 7:289)

Joseph Fielding Smith::

So being ordained an elder, or a high priest, or an apostle, or even president of the Church, is not the thing that brings the exaltation, but obedience to the laws and the ordinances and the covenants required of those who desire to become members of the Chruch of the Firstborn as these are administered in the House of the Lord. To become a member of the Church of the Firstborn, as I understand it, is to become one of the inner circle. We are all members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by being baptized and confirmed, and there are many who seem to be content to remain such without obtaining the privileges of exaltation. the Lord has made it possible for us to become members of the Church of the Firstborn by receiving the blessings of the House of the Lord, and "overcoming all things." Thus we become heirs, "priests and kings, who have received a fulness, and of his glory," who shall "dwell in the presence of God and His Christ forever and ever," with full exaltation. (Take Heed to Yourselves, see pp. 112-114.)

Joseph Fielding Smith:

Each person baptized into the Church is under obligation to keep the commandments of the Lord. He is under covenant, for baptism in a "new and an everlasting covenant." (D. & C. 22:1) When he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him, then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the "Church of the Firstborn". Into his hands "the Father has given all things." He will be a priest and a king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of His glory. (Way to Perfection, p. 208)

Heber C. Kimball declared:

This people here are the people of God. Here, in the Territory of Deseret, is the Kingdom of God, and here are all the officers pertaining to that kingdom; and here is an organization that is organized after the order of God, and it is organized after the order of the Church of the First Born.
* * * and when God our Father organized that Church, He organized it just as His Father organized the Church on the earth where He dwelt; and that same order id here in the City of Great Salt Lake; and it is that order that Joseph Smith the Prophet of God organized in the beginning in Kirtland, Ohio. brother Brigham Young, myself, and others were present when that was done; and when those officers received their endowments they were together in one place. They were organized, and received their endowments and blessings, and those keys were placed upon them, and that kingdom will stand forever [can there be a kingdom without a King? No there must therefore be a Proxy King in place of the Lord until he comes--this being the Prophet of the Lord].
Now mark it--that kingdom will never be overthrown; although they may kill, that is, if they can, Brother Brigham and me, and Brother Daniel H. Wells, and they may kill the apostles, if they can, and so they may keep on from this time to all eternity, and they never can obliterate this work. I know it. They may kill, and destroy, and waste a great many limbs that are upon this Church; but let me tell you, they never can kill the tree nor destroy the root from whence we have sprung; for our Father and our God is that root, and Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is the tree or vine, and we spring out of that vine. (J.D. 5:129-130)

The Apostle Orson Pratt:

But the time will come, when the Spirit of God will be poured out upon all flesh and "The wolf shall lie down with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them," etc. That will change the fall of creation or at least, the living portion of it. The curse then will be removed. It will be like the garden of Eden, and Jesus will be here, and he will teach his people, fulfilling what is written in the sacred Scriptures about his reign of a thousand years. The Saints then will be resurrected, and they will also be the inhabitants of this globe. They are singing about in heaven, while their bodies are sleeping in the grave. Read the 5th chapter of John's Revelations, that will give you an idea what the Saints of heaven anticipate. The words of the new song which John heard them sing, were: "Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue and people and nation. And hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth!" How plain! "We shall reign on the earth!" They hope for it; they sing about it; they expect it, just as much as we hope to go with them, and mingle with them, and just as much as we have faith that we will, when we lay our bodies down in the grave, go to our former abode where we once were, to the mansions prepared, and that we will join with the heavenly hosts. We will not forget the earth; it is our native abode; but instead of forgetting it, we will join with them in their new song, and with them we will look forward with joyful anticipation to the day when we shall return to reign on the earth, having been made kings and priests unto our God. And Jesus and the Twelve Apostles will be in our midst. (J.D. 19:176)

Orson Pratt:
Do we not expect that the Lord will, by and by, come and visit us and stay a little while, about a thousand years? Yes, and then we shall be made glad with the joy of the countenance of our Lord. He will be among us, and will be our King, and he will reign as a King of kings and Lord of lords. He will have a throne in Zion, and another in the Temple at Jerusalem, and he will have with him the twelve disciples who were with him during his ministry at Jerusalem; and they will eat and drink with him at his table; and all the people of this globe who are counted worthy to be called Zion, the pure in heart, will be made glad by the countenance of their Lord for a thousand years, during which the earth will rest. (O. Pratt, J.D. 17:332)

John Taylor--To Establish the Kingdom of God:

What are we engaged in? We are engaged in building up the kingdom of God, and many of you have been ordained by the revelations of the Almighty to hold the power and authority of the Holy Priesthood. Besides this, you have been ordained kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to your Lord; you have been put in possession of principles that all the kings, potentates, and powers upon the earth are entirely ignorant of they do not understand it; but you have received this from the hands of God.
The kingdom is put upon the shoulders of President Young and this people to carry it out, and by whom? By the Lord God--by him who holds dominion throughout the universe; by him who created all by the word of his power; by him who said, "Let there be light;" by him who spake, and the worlds rolled into existence. By him you received rights that are not of this world--rights that flow from the great Eloheim.

What are we going to do, then? We are going to establish the Kingdom of God upon the earth. This is our privilege--our right, if you please. But I consider it a high privilege--the greatest boon that can be bestowed upon mortals on the earth, to be the representatives of God. (J.D., Vol. 5:189-190, John Taylor August 30, 1857.)

Elijah the Prophet:

His latter-day mission was to "restore the authority and deliver the keys of the priesthood, in order that all the ordances may be attended to in righteousness.... Why send Elijah? Because he holds the keys of the authority to administer in all the ordinances of the priesthood; and without the authority is given, the ordinances could not be administered in righteousness." (Teachings, p. 172.)
"The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is," the Prophet also taught, "that ye have power to hold the key of the revelations, ordiances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God, even unto the turning of the hearts of the fathers unto the children, and the hearts of the children unto the fathers, even those who are in heaven....
"This is the spirit of Elijah, [1] that we redeem our dead, and [2] connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven, and [3] seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection; and here is the power of Elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven. This is the power of Elijah and the keys of the kingdom of Jehovah." (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)
"How shall God come to the rescue of this generation?" the Prophet asked. "He will send Elijah the Prophet....Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers. The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called, [2] elected, and [3] made sure." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224-225).

[Here we see a number of significant things:
1. The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is to bestow the Fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood-which is to receive all the ordiances of the temple.

_____2. We learn that it is the Power of
a. Revelations
b. ordiances
c. oracles
d. powers
e. endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood
f. and of the kingdom of God on the earth
g. and to receive
h. obtain
i. perform all the ordiances belonging to the kingdom of God,
j. sealing the children to the fathers.
"...to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven" (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)

3. We learn that it is the power in the to seal up our dead [and ourselves to come forth in the first resurrection which is a joint sealing contained in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial mariage. (D & C 132:19.)

4."It is to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers." (Teachings, p. 323.)
This is contained as part of the joint blessing that husband and wife receive together or not at all; That of sealing children to parents all the way back to Adam and Eve and from them to Our heavenly Father and Mother for this is a Joint blessing or not at all.

5. The Power of Elijah which is fulfilled within the New and Everlasting Covenant contains the following:
" The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called [to join the church and receive the fulness of the priesthood], [2] elected [to receive the Melchizedek Priesthood and the New and everlasting covenant of Celestial Marriage, and [3] the crowning ordinance of the Fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage is to receive the fulness of the priesthood to be annointed and made a king and priest and queen and preistess and become a member of the Church of the Firstborn and all these are then to be sealed] and made sure [by 1. the sealing power of the Priesthood and 2. the ratifing seal of the Holy Ghost..." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224).

Bruce R. Mcconkie:

Resurrection:

...Those beings[s] resurrected with celestial bodies, whose destiny is to inherit a celestial kingdom, will come forth in the morning of the first resurrection. Their graves shall be opened and they shall be caught up to meet the Lord at his Second Coming. They are Christ's, the firstfruits, and they shall descend with him to reign as kings and priests durring the millennial era. (D. & C. 29:13; 43:18; 76:50-70; 88:97:98; 1 Thess. 4:16-17; Rev. 20:3-7.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 640.)

FIRST AND SECOND ANOINTING:

The "holy anointing" was part of a complex of sanctifying ordiances intended to prepare the brethern to receive a spiritual outpouring known in Kirtland as "an endowment of power."
Purification" was one of the ordiances which prepared the brethren for the "endowment." It consisted of having one's body washed and bathed with cinnamon-perfumed whiskey and later washing one's own body with pure water and perfume. Cf. D&C 89:7. (Kirtland Elders' Quorum Record, 25 January 1836, footnotes.)

The Prophet's remarks refer to a second solemn assembly planned for the 6th of April, 1837. Worthy brethren who were unable to attend to solemn assembly the previous year were invited to participate in certain purifying ordinances preparatory to receiving a spiritual endowment of power. These ordinances consisted of (1) washing "head to foot" in soap and water, (2) washing in clear water and perfumed whiskey, (3) having one's head anointed with consecrated oil and receiving a blessing by the spirit of prophecy, (4) having the anointing blessing sealed with uplifted hands (solemn prayer, a sealing prayer, and the hosannah shout), and (5) washing of faces and feet and partaking of the Lord's Supper. (26 Jan 1836, footnote.)

Elect Lady:

An elect lady is a female member of the Church who has already received, or who through obedience is qualified to receive, the fulness of gospel blessings. This includes [1] temple endowments, [2] celestial marriage, and [3] the fulness of the sealing power. She is one who has been elected or chosen by faithfulness as a daughter of God in this life, and heir of God, a member of his household. Her position is comparable to that of the elders who magnify their callings in the preisthood and thereby receive all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:38.)
In the early days of this dispensation Emma Smith, the Prophet's wife, was in such complete harmony with the Lord's porgram that he forgave her of her sins and addressed her as an elect lady. (D. & C. 25:1-3; History of the Chruch, vol. 4, p. 552.) John the Beloved used a similar salutation to certain chosen women in his day. (2 John 1, 13.) Just as it is possible for the very elect to be deceived, and to fall from grace through disobedience, so an elect lady, by failing to endure to the end, can lose her chosen status. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 217).

FIRST AND SECOND COMFORTER:

Jesus Discourses on the Two Comforters

These statements about the two Comforters climax and crown the teachings of the Son of God. We have no record of anything he ever said which can completely withdraw the curtain of eternity and open to the faithful a vision of the glories of God. Based on love, born of obedience, Jesus promises the saints that they can have, here and now in this life, the following:
(1) The gift and constant companionship of the Holy Ghost;

[a] the comfort and peace which it is the function of the Holy Spirit to bestow;

[b] the revelation and th sanctifying power which alone will prepare men for the companionship of gods and angels here after;

(2) Personal visitations from the Second Comforter, the Lord Jesus Christ himself, the resurrected and perfected being who dwells with his Father in the mansions on high; and

(3) God the Father--mark it well Phillip!--shall

[a] visit man in person,

[b] take up his abode with him, as it were, and

[c] reveal to him all the hidden mysteries of his kingdom.

Joseph Smith, as the Holy Ghost poured light and revelation into his soul, said this about the two Comforters: "There are two Comforters spoken of. One is the Holy Ghost, the same as given on the day of Pentecost, and that all Saints receive after faith, repentance, adn baptism. This first Comforter or Holy Ghost has no other effect than pure intelligence. It is more powerful in expanding the mind, enlightening the understanding, and storing the intellect with present knowledge, of a man who is of the literal seed of Abraham, than one that is a Gentile, though it may not have half as much visible effect upon the body; for as the Holy Ghost falls upon one of the literal seed of Abraham, it is calm and serene; and his whole soul and body are only exercised by the pure spirit of intelligence; while the effect of the Holy Ghost upon a Gentile, is to purge out the old blood, and make him actually of the seed of Abraham. That man that has none of the blood of Abraham (naturally) must have a new creation by the Holy Ghost. In such a case, there may be more of a powerful effect upon the body, and visible to the eye, than upon an Israelite, while the Israelite at first might be far before the Gentile in pure intelligence.

"The other Comforter spoken of is a subject of great interest, and perhaps understood by few of this generation. After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and his election made sure, then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter, which the Lord hath promised the saints, as is recorded in the testimony of St. John, in the 14th chapter, from the 12th to the 27the verses. Note the 16, 17, 18, 21, 23 verses....

"Now what is this other Comforter. It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even he will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the First Born." (Teachings, pp. 149-151.) (DNTC 1, p. 735-736.)

The Lord Jesus Christ himself, the Second Comforter, will appear personally to the faithful. Mortal men have power while in this life to see God. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 92:1.) The Brother of Jared, among others, is one who complied with this law and thereby saw the Lord. "Because of the knowledge of this man," the record says, "he could not be kept from beholding within the viel; and he saw the finger of Jesus, which, when he saw, he fell with fear; for he knew, that it was the finger of the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting. Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; and he did minister unto him." (Ether 3:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 738.)

John 14:23
Jesus here announces the supreme earthly reward for personal righteousness--a personal visitation to man of the Father and the Son. "John 14:23--The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance; and the idea that the Father and the Son dwell in a man's heart is an old sectarian notion, and is false." (D. & C. 130:3.)

He shall teach you all things
All things? yes, all things; and all things means all things. "And by the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know the truth of all things." (Moro. 10:5.) The revealed word says God knows all things and has all thruth, which means there is nothing he does not know and no truth he does not possess. Consequently, now and hereafter, in time or eternity, the Holy Ghost shall teach all things to deserving and eligible students.

He shall testify of me (John 14:26)
Salvation centers in Christ. The Holy Ghost is Christ's revelator to bear witness of his divine Sonship and of the saving truths of his gospel. "The Holy Ghost," In Abraham's record this third member of the Godhead was called "God the third, the witness or Testator." (Teachings, p. 190.) As a Spirit personage, the Holy Spirit, by laws which are ordained, has power to speak to the spirit within man and to convey truth with absolute certainty. This revealed knowledge becomes a personal testimony to the recipient. By definition and testimony of the gospel is to know by personal revelation from the Holy Ghost that Jesus is the Christ through whom salvation comes; that Joseph Smith is the prophet who revealed anew to the world the saving truths of the gospel; and that the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints is the kingdom of God on earth. [He seals, approves, ratifies, confirms, sanctifies and seals all blessings, truths, and ordiances of the gospel upon you.]

He shall glorify me
The Father and the Son, through their ministries, as Jesus has just announced, glorify each other. (John 13:31-32; 14:13.) Now Jesus says the Holy Ghost shall glorify the Son--a thing which comes to pass because men believe the testimony of the Holy Ghost, so live as to gain exaltation, and thereby add dominions and kingdoms to the endless domains of the Father and the Son. See John 13:31-35.

1 Cor 12:3
Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost.

Two principles are here set forth: 1. Any man who has the Spirit praises Christ and testifies fo his goodness and mercy; and 2. Christ is and can be known by revelation from the Holy Ghost, and in no other way. Revelation is the sole and only sure source of knowledge about God and Christ and gospel truths. A knowledge of these things does not and cannot come by reason, research, or rationalization. God stands revealed, or he remains forever unknown. In keeping with this principle, Joseph Smith said that the latter part of verse three should read: No man can know that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." (Teachings, p. 223.) (DNTC 2, p. 365-367.)

Jesus taught that "the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things" (John 14:26), and the latter-day revelation on spiritual gifts says this about knowing of Christ's divinity by the power of the Spirit: "To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he was crucified for the sins of the world. To others it is given to believe on their words, that they also might have eternal life if they continue faithful." [Parents to children][Abraham] (D. & C. 46:13-14.) (DNTC 2, p. 367-368.)

The word of God pierces the soul of man [The Holy Ghost]
The Holy Ghost is a personage of spirit, a spirit being ,a dn when he speaks to the spirit within man, knowledge and truth are conveyed with absolute surety. These wisperings of the Spirit are called the still small voice as is shown by the experience of Elijah on Mount Horeb. When the Prophet sought instructions from the Lord, "behold, the Lord passed by, and a great and strond wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the Lord; but the Lord was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake: and after the earthquake a fire; but the Lord was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voeice." (1Kings 19:11-12.) Then by the wisperings of the Spirit Elijah learned what the Lord wanted him to do. That these spiritual impressions can sink into the heart with a power transcending anything earthly is shown from Joseph Smith's statemrnt: "Thus saith the still small voice, which whispereth through and pierceth all things, and often times it maketh my bones to quake while it maketh mankfest." (D. & C. 85:6.) (DNTC 3, p. 152-153.)

"The priesthood is an everlasting principle, and exited with God form eternity, and will to eternity, without beginning of days or end of years.: (Teachings, p. 157.) Christ and others held the priesthood in pre-existence. Andam, the Prophet says, "obtained in in the creation, before the world was formed." (Teachings, p. 157.)

The "fulness of the gospel" refers to all of the laws and commandments of God. The Lord said that the scriptures were given for "the salvation of mine own elect; for they will hear my voice, and shall see me...." (D & C 35:20-21)

GODHEAD-ATTAIN:

"God" = Eternal Father and Eternal Mother:

What is a good basis for imagining eternal marriage, then? The plain scriptures, I believe. In the first place, modern scriptures and revelations suggest quite plainly that we would more accurately and profitably read the scriptural references to "God" as meaning God the eternal partnership of Heavenly Father and Heavenly Mother. They have a more perfect unity even than that of God and Christ and the Holy Ghost, and so the word God implies both of them, at least as much as it denotes the three beings in the classical Christian trinity called "God". Such a more correct identification of "God" might help us better comprehend the direct role our Heavenly Mother played in our creation and salvation. When we read in Genesis that God said, "Let us create man in our image," it makes most sense to read it as God the Father and God the Mother speaking as One. When we read in John that God sent His only begotten Son to save us, it would be better to understand, as it certainly makes more sense, that our Heavenly Parents sent Their only begotten Son. This process is truer to the evidence -- and to our real needs as men and women -- than looking for a female God between the lines in the scriptures or in apocryphal works of mythologies, as many feminist theologians are doing. It might help us better imagine our futures as husbands and wives, equally yoked in what Shakespeare called "the marriage of true minds" -- and to work toward that future now. Second, modern revelation tells us that when God put "man" on the earth, "in the image of mine Only Begotten created I him; male and female created I them." (Moses 2:27.) Clearly men and woman were both created in the "image" of Christ. That would seem to mean we are created in the image of the Heavenly Parents who together make up the "God" whom Christ came to reveal, that is, the perfect eternal partnership He came to teach us how to achieve and to show us in His life and character what we would be like when we achieved it. (Becoming Bone of Bone and Flesh of Flesh by Eugene England, As Women of Faith, Talks selected from the BYU Women's Conferences, Edited by Mary E. Stoval and Carol Cornwall Madsen, Deseret Book Company, p. 110-111.)

Christ's Service Places Godhood Within Man's Reach:

As a man through the powers of his body he could attain to the dignity and completeness of manhood, but could go on further. As a man he is born, as a man he lives, and as a man he dies. But through the essence and power of the Godhead, which is in him, which descended to him as the gift of God from his Heavenly Father, he is capable of rising from the contracted limits of manhood to the dignity of a God, and thus through the atonement of Jesus Christ and the adoption he is capable of eternal exaltation, eternal lives, and eternal progression. (MA, 139-141; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 58.)

Though "there is none other God but one" for men on this earth to worship, yet "there be gods many and lords many" throughout the infinite expanse of eternity. (1 Cor. 8:4-7.) That is, there are many exalted, perfected, glorified personages who reign as gods over their own dominions. John saw 144,000 of them standing with Christ upon MOunt Zion, all "having his Father's name written in their foreheads" (Rev.14-1), which is to say that they were gods and were so identified by wearing crowns so stating. Indeed, to each person who overcomes and gains exalted, Christ has promised: "I will write upon him the name of my God,: and he shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:12, 21.)

Joseph Smith said: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) All exalted persons "are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:58.) Through obedience to the whole gospel law, including celestial marriage, they attain the "fulness of the glory of the Father" [Even to the ataining of the Eternal Godhead themselves, they take a covenant: They themself in the eternal cycle will become God the 1st or Creator, one of their Sons will become God the Second or God the Savior and a third, God the testitator or witnessor....] (D. & C. 93:6-28.) and "a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be form everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 491.)

GODHOOD-ATTAIN:

Godhood
That exaltation which the saints of all ages have so devotly sought is godhood itself. Godhood is to have the character, possess the attributes, and enjoy the perfections which the Father has. It is to do what he does, have the powers resident in him [and his complementry companion[s] jointly], and live as he lives, having eternal increase. (D. & C. 132:17:20, 37.) It is to know him in the full and complete sense, and no one can fully know God except another exalted personage who is like him in all respects. Those attaining the supreme height are sons of God (D. & C. 76:50-60); they receive the fulness of the Father and find membership in the Church of the Firstborn (D. & C. 93:17-22); they are joint heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:14-18), inheriting with him all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:33-51) [Expand the consept of earthly parents oldest child has more tallents takes care of other children and perhaps even saves them but the Father and mother love all their children equally they appreciate the tallents of the oldest children. But they love the Children all the same not the talents-they appreciate the tallents therefore all their children inherit the same-thus we are Joint-heirs with Christ. And Christ our eldest most tallented brother and savior thought it not robery to receive the fulness of God.]
Joseph Smith said: "God himself was once as we are now, and is an exalted man, and sits enthroned in yonder heavens!... I am going to tell you how God came to be God. We have imagined and supposed that God was God from all eternity. I will refute that idea, and take away the veil, so that you may see.... It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with him as one man converses with another, and that he was once a man like us; yea, that God himself, the Father of us all, dwelt on an earth, the same as Jesus Christ himself did; and I will show it from the Bible.... "Here, then, is eternal life--to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests [and Queens and Priestesses] to God, the same as all gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another, and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation the exaltation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting brunings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power.... [Such persons are] heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. What is it? To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a god, and ascend the throne fo eternal power, the same as those who have gone before." (Teachings, pp. 345-347.) Again: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 321-322.)

God swore an oath that Christ should be a priest forever; that is, though our Lord had possessed the priesthood in pre-existance, he would receive it anew in mortality and would have it forever--in time and in eternity. And this sets the pattern for all who become sons of God and joint-heirs with Christ.
"Every person upon whom the Melchizedek Priesthood is conferred receives his office and clalling in this higher priesthood with an oath and a covenant. The covenant is to this effect: 1. Man on his part solemnly agree to magnify his calling in the priesthood, to keep the commandments of God, to live by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of Deity, and to walk in paths of righteousness and virtue; and 2. God on his part agrees to give such persons an inheritance of exaltation and godhood in his everlastin presence. The oath is the solemn attestation of Deity, his sworn promise, that those who keep their part in the covenant shall come forth and inherit all things according to the promeise." [D&C 132:19.] (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p 480.) (DNTC 3, p. 173.)

GODS-ALSO LINAGE:

|v58 And as I said unto Abraham concerning the kindreds of the earth, even so I say unto my servant Joseph: In thee and in thy seed shall the kindred of the earth be blessed.
(D&C: Section 124:58)

Gods in Embryo:
There was a period when we, with jesus and others, basked in the light of the presence of God and enjoyed His smiles. We are the children of God, and as His children there is no attribute we ascribe to Him that we do not possess, though they may be dormant or in embryo. The mission of the Gospel is to develop these powers and make us like our Heavenly Parent[s]. I know this is true, and such knowledge makes me feel happy. (Oct. 4, 1863, MS 25:722; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 3)

Literal offspring of God.
God in His infinite mercy has revealed to us a great truth. It is a truth that , when understood by us, gives a new light to our existence and inspires us with the most exalted hopes. That truth is that God is our Father, and we are His children. What a tender relationship! What a feeling of nearness it creates within us! What? God my Father? Am I indeed His son? Am I indeed His daughter? Do I belong to the family of God? Is this literally true? The answer is, "Yes." God has revealed it, that we are literally His children, His offspring, that we are just as much His children as our offspring are our children, that He begot us, and that we existed with Him in the family relationship as His children. What an immensity of vision is given to us in this truth! What a field for reflection! and how our hearts should be inspired with great hopes and anticipations to think that the Being under whose direction this earth was organized, who governs the planets and controls the universe, who causes the rotation of the seasons and makes this earth so beautiful and such a delightful place of habitation, is our Father and that we are His children, descended from Him! What illimitably hopes the knowledge of this inspires us with! (Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 3.)

To Be Made Gods:

God has removed doubt from our hearts and our minds concerning these things. We know them. The testimony of God is with us. He bears testimony to us that we are His children. And he wants to draw us to Him, in His arms of love. He wants to save us and exalt us and make us like Himself, clothe us with glory and make us indeed gods in the eternal world, wielding dominion and power. For this purpose He has sent us here. For this purpose He has given us His laws, which we understand to some extent. (1890, Contributor 11:480; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 84-85.)

Sons and Daughters of a King:

It is a glorious thing... to know that our religion is true and given us from God and that in obedience to it we may attain to the exalted position occupied by Him and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.... We are of the race of God, the sons and daughters of a King. What monarch's children do not hope and look forward to sovereignty. May we, who are the offspring of the Almighty King, not hope for crowns and kingdoms in eternity? (DEN, March 28, 1881; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 87.)

Progression From an Infant to a God:

What is there manor helpless, weak, puny, insignificant, it may be said, in many respects, than a human being when it is born into the world. Yet that being, if nurtured properly, if trained as it should be, has before it a career of never-ending glory. That little pulling infant may become, in the eternity of our God, a god, to sway power and dominion in the eternal worlds, to be the father of unnumbered millions. Yet at its birth who would anticipate such a future for it. (Oct. 5, 1844, JD, 25:319; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 104.)

The Origin of Man:
If we take man, he is said to have been made in the image of God, for the simple reason that he is a son of God, and being his son, he is, of course, has offspring, an emanation from God, in whose likeness, we are told, he is made. He did not originate from a chaotic mass of matter, moving or inert, but came forth possessing, in an embryonic state, all the faculties and powers of a God. And when he shall be perfected, and have progressed to maturity, he will be like his Father--a God, being indeed his offspring. As the horse, the ox, the sheep, and every living creature, including man, propagates its own species and perpetuates its own kind, so does God perpetuate his. (Ma, 164--165; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 52.)

A God in Embryo:

Man is a dual being, possessed of body and spirit, made in the image of God, and connected with him and with eternity. He is a God in embryo and will live and progress throughout the eternal ages, if obedient to the laws of the Godhead, as the Gods progress throughout the eternal ages. (JD, 23:65, April 9, 1882; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 52.)

Man, A Son Of God:

What is man? A god, even the son of God, possessing noble aspirations, holy feelings, that may be governed by virtuous principles, possessing elevated ideas, wishing to realize everything that God has destined to submit to all his laws, to endure every kind of privation and affliction and suffering, as seeing him that is invisible, looking for a city that hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God--feeling to live for that purpose, and that alone.
This is what man is, if he lives the religion of heaven, and performs faithfully those things God has appointed him to do, that he may increase from intelligence to intelligence, and go on with that eternal progression, not only in this world, but in worlds without end. (JD, 8:1-2, 3-4, 5, February 19, 1860; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 54-55.)

The Image of God:

We are made in the image of God, we were designed by the intelligence of God, and the organs we have are the same kind of organs that the Gods themselves possess. I consider that the body and the spirit are connected together in some inscrutable, indefinable, and intelligent manner; that, if we comprehended, would be a greater wonder and mystery to us than anything that we have already referred to. (JD, 11:74-77, February 5, 1866; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 56.)

The Exaltation of Man:

It is for the exaltation of man to this state of superior intelligence and Godhood that the mediation and atonement of Jesus Christ is instituted; and that noble being, man, made in the image of God, is rendered through adoption, and is rendered capable of becoming a God, possessing the power, the majesty, the exaltation and the position of a God.... (The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 57.)

Sons and Daughters of God:
And now, after the many testimonies which have been given of him, this is the testimony, last of all, which we give of him: That he lives! For we saw him, even on the right hand of God; and we heard the voice bearing record that he is the Only Begotten of the Father-That by him, and through him, and of him, the worlds are and were created, and the inhabitants thereof are begotten sons and daughters unto God." (D&C 76:20-24.)

Christ
...with the righteous saints, he shall reign to all eternity as King of Kings, Lord of Lords, and God of Gods. To his holy name, both now and forever, be ascribed glory and honor, power, riches, and dominion, and an eternal fulness of all things for endless ages.

Eternity to eternity.

Those who become gods will then be from eternity to eternity, everlastingly the same, always possessing the fulness of all things and multiplying their race without end. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Momon Doctrine, p. 240.)

Exaltation

Celestial marriage is the gate to exaltation, and exaltation consists in the continuation of the family unit in eternity. Exaltation is eternal life, the kind of life which God lives. Those who obtain it gain an inheritance in highest of three heavens within the celestial kingdom. (D. & C. 131:1-4.)

They have eternal increase, a continuation of the seeds forever and ever, a continuation of the lives, eternal lives; that is, they have spirit children in the resurrection, in relation to which offspring they stand in the same position that God our Father stands to us. They inherit in due course the fulness of the glory of the Father, meaning that they have all power in heaven and on earth. (D. & C. 76:50-60; 93:1-40.) "Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:16-26; Docrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 35-79.)

Although salvation may be defined in many ways to mean many things, in its most pure and perfect definition it is a synonym of exaltation. This was the way in which the Prophet used it when he left us this inspired explanation: "Where shall we find a prototype into whose likeness we may be assimilated, in order that we may be made partakers of life and salvation? or, in other words, where shall we find a saved being? for if we can find a saved being, we may ascertain without much difficulty what all others must be in order to be saved. We think that it will not be a matter of dispute, that two beings who are unlike each other cannot be saved; for whatever constitutes the salvation of one will constituet the salvation of every creature which will be saved; and if we find one saved being in all existence, we may see what others must be, or else not be saved.

"We ask, then, where is the prototype? or where is the saved being? We conclude, as to the answer of this question, there will be dispute among those who believe the Bible, that it is Christ: all will agree in this, that he is the prototype or standard of salvation; or, in other words, that he is a saved being. And if we should continue our interrogation and ask how it is that he is saved, the answer would be-because he is a just and holy being; and if he were anything different from what he is, he would not be saved; for his salvation depends on his being precisely what he is and nothing else; for if it were possible for him to change, in the least degree, so sure he would fail of salvation and lose all his dominion, power, authority and glory, which constitute salvation; for salvation consists in the glory, authority, majesty, power and dominion which Jehovah possesses and in nothing else; and no being can possess it but himself or one like him."

After quoting many passages of scripture, the record of the Prophet's teachings continues: "These teachings of the Savior most clearly show unto us the nature of salvation, and what he proposed unto the human family when he proposed to save them--that he proposed to make them like unto himself, and he was like the Father, the great prototype of all saved beings; and for any portion of the human family to be assimilated into their likeness is to be saved; and to be unlike them is to be destroyed; and on this hinge truns the door of salvation." (Lectrues on

First Vision

Our knowledge of God's dealings with his children from the days of Adam to the present leads us to believe that bothe the Father and the Son have been manifested to other prophets in other ages. Joseph Smith, himself, on at least two other occasions saw these heavenly Beings in vision (D. & C. 76:22-24; Teachings, p. 107), and Stephen beheld them as the murderous mob stoned him to death. (Acts 7:54-60.) Indee, it is the privilege of those who attain the Second Comforter to have the Son "manifest the Father" unto them. (Teachings, pp. 149-151; John 14:23; D. & C. 130:3.)

Fulness of the Father

The express fulness of the Father has reference to his position of power, glory, perfection, and godhood, The "fulness of the glory of the Father" consists in the possession of "all power, both in heaven and on earth [D&C 132:19]." (D. & C. 93: 16-17.) God is an exalted Man, and exaltation consists in having the fulness of all powers, all attributes, and all perfections. (D. & C. 76; 93; 132.) [No one can have this singly but needs their complementry part to hold and have all power, the power to creat life...]

The plan of exaltation is one whereunder those who fill the full measure of their creation are able to progress to that state wherein they will gain the fulness of the Father. Christ is the Examplar; he went from grace to grace until finally after the resurrection he gained the fulness of all things, including the fulness of truth, knowledge, and power. (Matt. 28:18; D. & C. 93:6-30.)

Obedience to the whole law of crowning ordiance of celestial marriage, is the way whereby the fulness of the Father may be gained. Those so married, who keep their covenants, shall go on " to their exaltation and glory in all things,...which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:6, 19-20; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 24, 44-45, 62-63.)

Joseph Smith taught: "All those who keep his [the Father's] commandments shall grow up from grace to grace, and become heirs of the heavenly kingdom, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ; possessing the same mind, being transformed into the same image or likeness, even the express image of him who fills all in all; being filled with the fulness of his glory, and become one in him, even as the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are one.... As the son partakes of the fulness of the Father through the Spirit so the saints are, byt eh same Spirit, to be partakers of the same fulness, to enjoy the same glory; for as the Father and the Son are one, so, in like manner, the saints are to be one in them. Through the love of the Father, the mediation of Jesus Christ, and the gift of the Holy Spirit, they are to be heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ." (Lectures on Faith, pp. 50-52; 3 Ne. 28:10-11.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 300-301.)

God

Man's purpose in life is to learn the nature and kind of being that God is, and then, by conformity to his laws and ordiances, to progress to that high state of exaltation wherein man becomes perfect as the Father is perfect. (Matt. 5:48; Teachings, pp. 342-362.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 318.)

God

God can be known only by revelation. He must be revealed, or remain forever unknown (cf. Mosiah 4:9). God first revealed himself to Adam (Moses 5; 6) and has repetedly made himself known by revelation to chosen patriarchs and prophets since that time. The present translation of John 1:18 and 1Jn. 4:12 is misleading, for these say that no man has ever seen God. However, the scriptures state that there have been many who have seen him. The JST [Joseph Smith Translation] corrects these items to show that no sinful man has ever seen God, and also that Jesus Christ is the only Way to God. God the Father and his son have been manifested by voice, sight, or otherwise at various times, as at the baptism of Jesus (Matt. 3:16-17); the Transfiguration (Matt. 17:1-8); to Stephen (Acts 7:55-56); and to the Nephites 3 Ne. 11:7). The Father and the Son personally visited Joseph Smith in the Sacred Grove, in the spring of 1820, near Manchester, New York, in the opening of the dispensation of the fulness of times (JS-H 1:11-20).

Latter-day revelation confirms the biblical account of God as the literal father of the human family; as a being who is concerned fro the welfare of mankind, and a Personage who hears and answers prayers. (Bible Dictionary, p. 682).
Although God created all things and is the ruler of the universe, being omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent (through his Spirit), mankind has a special relationship to him that differentiates man from all other created things: man is leterly God's offspring, made in his image, whereas all other things are but the work of his hands (cf. Acts 17:28-29.) (Bible Dictionary, p. 681-682.)

|v28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring.
|v29 Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device.
(NewT:Acts 17:28-29)

|v38 Which was the son of Enos, which was the son of Seth, which was the son of Adam, which was the son of God.
(NewT:Luke 3:38)

|v22 And this is the genealogy of the sons of Adam, who was the son of God, with whom God, himself, conversed.
(PoGP:Moses 6:22)

Godhood
That exaltation which the saints of all ages have so devotly sought is godhood itself. Godhood is to have the character, possess the attributes, and enjoy the perfections which the Father has. It is to do what he does, have the powers resident in him [and his complementry companion[s] jointly], and live as he lives, having eternal increase. (D. & C. 132:17:20, 37.) It is to know him in the full and complete sense, and no one can fully know God except another exalted personage who is like him in all respects. Those attaining the supreme height are sons of God (D. & C. 76:50-60); they receive the fulness of the Father and find membership in the Church of the Firstborn (D. & C. 93:17-22); they are joint heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:14-18), inheriting with him all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:33-51) [Expand the consept of earthly parents oldest child has more tallents takes care of other children and perhaps even saves them but the Father and mother love all their children equally they appreciate the tallents of the oldest children. But they love the Children all the same not the talents-they appreciate the tallents therefore all their children inherit the same-thus we are Joint-heirs with Christ. And Christ our eldest most tallented brother and savior thought it not robery to receive the fulness of God.]

Joseph Smith said: "God himself was once as we are now, and is an exalted man, and sits enthroned in yonder heavens!... I am going to tell you how God came to be God. We have imagined and supposed that God was God from all eternity. I will refute that idea, and take away the veil, so that you may see.... It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with him as one man converses with another, and that he was once a man like us; yea, that God himself, the Father of us all, dwelt on an earth, the same as Jesus Christ himself did; and I will show it from the Bible.... "Here, then, is eternal life--to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests [and Queens and Priestesses] to God, the same as all gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another, and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation the exaltation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting brunings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power.... [Such persons are] heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. What is it? To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a god, and ascend the throne fo eternal power, the same as those who have gone before." (Teachings, pp. 345-347.) Again: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 321-322.)

Joint-Heirs with Christ
As the literal Son of God--the Firstborn in the spirit, the Only Begotten in the flesh--Christ is the natural heir of the Father. It thus became his right to inherit, receive, and possess all that his Father had. (John 16:15.) And his Father is possessor of all things: the universe; all power, wisdom, and goodness; the fulness of truth and knowledge; and an infinity of all good attributes. By heirship and by obedience, going from grace to grace, the Son attained these same things. (D. & C. 93:5-17.)
By obedience to the fulness of gospel law, righteous men are adopted into the family of God so that they also become heirs, joint-heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:14-18; Gal. 3:26-29; 4:1-7), inheritors of all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:33-41.) In his famous King Follett Sermon, speakin of those who "shall be heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked what their glory should be. Answering his own query, he described joint-heirship as inheriting "the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone before." (Teachings, p. 347.)
A joint-heir is one who inherits equally with all other heirs including the Chief Heir who is the Son. Each Joint-heir has an equal and an undivided portion of the whole of everything. If one knows all things, so do all others. If one has all power, so do all those who inherit jointly with him. If the universe belongs to one, so it does equally to the total of all upon whom the joint inheritances are bestowed.
Joint-heirs are possessors of all things. (D. & C. 50:26-28.) All things are theirs for they have exaltation. (D. & C. 76:50-60.) They are made "equal" with their Lord. (D. & C. 88:107.) They gain all power both in heaven and on earth and receive the fulness of the Father, and all knowledge and truth are theirs. (D. & C. 93:15-30.) They are gods. (D. & C. 132:20.) Celestial marriage is the gate to this high state of exaltation. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 24, 35-39; D. & C. 131: 1-4; 132.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 394-395.)

Both the Father and the Son are properly known by the title Lord of Lord's, a designation that means literally what it says. (Deut. 10:12-22; 1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:16.) The purpose of this name is not simply to reveal that Christ, for instance, is the Lord of mortal persons who are ranked as lords, but rather it is to show that he is Lord and God to others who themselves also are Lords and Gods in their own right. Thus Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (among others) "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, [What promises? The ones sealed upon us in the temple D&C 131; 132] and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) Since exalted beings themselves become Lords and Gods, and since they still stand in subjection to Christ their Lord and their God, it follows that he is a Lord of Lords. Whatever is true of him is also true of his Father, and in due course it will be true of all exalted beings. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 451.)

Those who are faithful in their priesthood callings in this life shall continue on in their holy authorizations in eternity; they shall remain forever "priests and kings"; their destiny is to stand as "priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son." (D. & C. 76:56-57.)

This priesthood "holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God." (D. & C. 84:17-19.)

Those who are priests forever, who "are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek,... are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:57-58.) They have become joint-heirs with Christ, having kept the same covenant and been bount by teh same oath.

|v33 For whoso is faithful unto the obtaining these two priesthoods of which I have spoken, and the magnifying their calling, are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies.
|v34 They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, and the church and kingdom, and the elect of God.
|v35 And also all they who receive this priesthood receive me, saith the Lord;
|v36 For he that receiveth my servants receiveth me;
|v37 And he that receiveth me receiveth my Father;
|v38 And he that receiveth my Father receiveth my Father's kingdom; therefore all that my Father hath shall be given unto him.

Patriachal Chain.
Those who shall here after urle and reign in eternity as exalted beings will form a patriarchal chain which will begin with Father Adam and spread out until every exalted person is linked in. Exaltation consists in the continuatin of the family unit in eternity, and every family which so continuation of the family unit in eternity, and every family which so continues will find its proper place in the eternal organizational framwork which the Almighty has ordained. None [of the worthy] will be forgotten. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 558)

D&C 132 must abide this law [plurality of wives]:
[Jesus is the Son of God, not of the Holy Ghost]
Just as Jesus is literally the Son of Mary, so he is the personal and literal offspring of God the Eternal Father, who himself is an exalted personage having a tangible body of flesh and bones. (E. & C. 130:22.) Apostate religionists--unable to distinguish between the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost--falsely suppose that the Holy Ghost was the Father of our Lord. Matthew's statement, "she was found with child of the Holy Ghost," properly translated should say, 'she was found with child by the power of the Holy Ghost.' (Matt. 1:18.) Luke's account (Luke 1:35) accurately records what took place. Alma perfectly describes out LOrd's conception and birth by prophesying: Christ "shall be born of Mary,...she being a virgin, a precious and chosen vessel, who shall be overshadowed and conceive by the power of the Holy Ghost, and bring forth a son, yea, even the Son of God." (Alma 7:10.) Nephi spoke similary when he said that at the time of her conception, Mary "was carried away in the Spirit," with the result that the child born of her was "the Lamb of God, yea, event he Son of the Eternal Father." (1 Ne. 11:19-21.) As Gabriel told luke, he was the "Son of the highest" (Luke 1:32), and "the Higherst" is the first member of the godhead, not the third.
[The Holy Ghost should be a part of every marriage relationship overshadowing this most devine and holy of holy relationships held in the holy of holies of a man and wife.... For the Holy Ghost is given as a constant companion..... This is a perfect relationship when overshadowed by the third member of the godhead as was Mary and the Father the Perfect pattern of the highest sacrement of all sacrements..... (DNTC 1, p. 82-83.)

Only begotten Son:
Only Begotten in the flesh, meaning in mortality. This designation of our Lord signifies that he was begotten by Man of Holiness as literally as any mortal father begets a son. The natural processes of procreation were involved; Jesus was begotten by his Father as literally as he was conceived by his mother. [Heber J. Grants talk in Brigham City.]

Luke 3:38 Adam, which was the son of God
This statement, found also in Moses 6:22, has a deep and profound significance and also means what it says. Father Adam came, as indicated, to this sphere, gaining an immortal body, because death had not yet entered the world. (2 Ne. 2:22.) Jesus, on the otherhand, was the Only Begotten in the flesh, meaning into a world of mortality where death already reigned. (DNTC 1, p. 95.)

Though "there is none other God but one" for men on this earth to worship, yet "there be gods many and lords many" throughout the infinite expanse of eternity. (1 Cor. 8:4-7.) That is, there are many exalted, perfected, glorified personages who reign as gods over their own dominions. John saw 144,000 of them standing with Christ upon MOunt Zion, all "having his Father's name written in their foreheads" (Rev.14-1), which is to say that they were gods and were so identified by wearing crowns so stating. Indeed, to each person who overcomes and gains exaltation, Christ has promised: "I will write upon him the name of my God,: and he shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:12, 21.)

Joseph Smith said: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) All exalted persons "are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:58.) Through obedience to the whole gospel law, including celestial marriage, they attain the "fulness of the glory of the Father" [Even to the ataining of the Eternal Godhead themselves, they take a covenant: They themself in the eternal cycle will become God the 1st or Creator, one of their Sons will become God the Second or God the Savior and a third, God the testitator or witnessor....] (D. & C. 93:6-28.) and "a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be form everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 491.)

Know thee the only true God
It is one thing to know about God and another to know him. We know about him when we learn that he is a personal being in whose image man is created; when we learn that the Son is in the express image of his Father's person; specified attributes and powers. But we know them, in the sense of gaining eternal life, when we enjoy and experience the same things they do. To know God is to think what he thinks, to feel what he feels, to have the power he possesses, to comprehend the truths he understands, and to do what he does. Those who know God become like him, and have his kind of life, which is eternal life. (DNTC 1, p. 762.)

Hebrews 7:21
God swore an oath that Christ should be a priest forever; that is, though our Lord had possessed the priesthood in pre-existance, he would receive it anew in mortality and would have it forever--in time and in eternity. And this sets the pattern for all who become sons of God and joint-heirs with Christ.
"Every person upon whom the Melchizedek Priesthood is conferred receives his office and clalling in this higher priesthood with an oath and a covenant. The covenant is to this effect: 1. Man on his part solemnly agree to magnify his calling in the priesthood, to keep the commandments of God, to live by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of Deity, and to walk in paths of righteousness and virtue; and 2. God on his part agrees to give such persons an inheritance of exaltation and godhood in his everlastin presence. The oath is the solemn attestation of Deity, his sworn promise, that those who keep their part in the covenant shall come forth and inherit all things according to the promeise." [D&C 132:19.] (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p 480.) (DNTC 3, p. 173.)

Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)

Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.
"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'
"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.
"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine,

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. [D&C 132:19; 93:1]
To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

Sit with me in my throne] In conversation with Deity, Enoch said: "Thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to they throne." (Moses 7:59.) Thus: "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) 'Ye shall have eternal life; ye shall have exaltation; ye shall be gods; ye shall rule and reign forever on a heavenly throne.'

I...am set down with my Father in his throne] "I am even as the Father." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Speaking of those who are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked, "What is it?" and then answered: "To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone befoer. What did Jesus do? Why; I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came roling into existence. My Father workded out his kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to my Father, so that he may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take his place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of his Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all his children. It is plain beyond disputatuin, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel." (Teachings, pp. 347-348.) (DNTC 3, p. 462.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)

The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted bgings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12-17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322-323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

How We May Know What God Is Like

In the Sacred Grove interview with the Eternal Father, the Prophet Joseph Smith, as had Moses of old, talked face to face with God, and was introduced to God the Son, the Redeemer of the world, as the Only Begotten, meaning only begotten in the flesh, and beloved Son of God the Father, whom John described as the "Word," who was God, and was with God in the beginning. Concerning this it was revealed to Joseph Smith that the Lord was the firstborn of the Father in the pre-mortal estate. Thus, Jesus Christ is the Son of God, being the first born, as to his spirit person birth, and the Only Begotten, as to his birth in the flesh. We also are the sons and daughters of God the Eternal Father. We can, upon that reasoning, understand something about what God is like, for there is an eternal principle in heaven and on earth that every seed begets of its kind, every seed brings forth in its own likeness and character. This confirms the scriptural declarations that man is created in the image of God. (ARD p. 90.)

The Species Of Gods

Associated with God the Eternal Father, who presides at the center of all intelligence and wisdom referred to scripturally as "the throne of God," are other gods of the same species, within the same realm of glory as he who presides. This is a condition of being and existence obtainable through the very processes of mortality and its subsequent glorified immortality. Both ancient and modern revelation from God establish this as the fact.

"God himself," taught the Prophet Joseph Smith, "was once as we are now, and is an exalted man,... that is the great secret. If the veil were rent today, and the great God who holds this world in its orbit, and who upholds all worlds and all things by his power, was to make himself visible,-I say, if you were to see him today, you would see him like a man in form-like yourselves in all the person, image, and very form as a man." (DHC, Joseph Smith, Vol. 6, p. 305.)

When we look upon the human face we look upon the likeness of our Father and God.
God the Father, is an individual, and personality, as are all of the species of Gods who dwell and associate with him. But he is over all. These glorified nobles dwell in tabernacles of flesh and bones. Their bodies are different than mortal bodies, in that they possess bodies which have been quickened by the spirit and are thus glorified. Such celestialized bodies are not governed by the same laws as those by which earthly bodies are governed. (ARD p. 178.)

How God Became God

But, if God is an individual spirit and dwells in a glorified resurrected body, the question will arise, "Is he the Eternal Father?" Yes, he is the Eternal Father. "Is it a fact that he never had a beginning?" In the elementary parts of his organism, he did not. But is he is an organized Being, there must have been a time when that being was organized. This, some will say, would infer that God had a beginning. This spirit which pervades all things, which is the light and life of all things, by which our Heavenly Father operates, by which he is omnipotent, never had a beginning and never will have an end. It is the light of truth; it is the spirit of intelligence.

The Prophet Joseph Smith made this statement which gives further enlightenment on this subject:

"I am going to tell you how God came to be God. We have imagined and supposed that God was God from all eternity. I will refute that idea, and take away the veil, so that you may see.
... It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with him as one man converses with another; and that he was once a man like us; yes that God himself, the Father of us all, dwelt on an earth, the same as Jesus Christ himself did." (DHC, VOL. VI, p. 205.)

A revelation from God establishes this fact. "Intelligence or the light of truth never was created, neither indeed can be." (D&C 93:29.) And we are told further that this Spirit, when it is manifest, is God moving in his glory. Now, this Spirit always existed. It always operated, but it is not understood, and cannot be comprehended except through organisms-(meaning its enclosure in organized bodies). (J of D, Chas. W. Penrose, Vol. 26, p. 23.) (ARD p. 179.)

Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
Joseph confirmed this by saying:

Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)

And again--

Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)

Brigham Young added:

For any person to have the fulness of that Priesthood, he must be a king and a priest. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, Aug. 6, 1843)

KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS-PROXIE:

Sons and Daughters of a King:

It is a glorious thing... to know that our religion is true and given us from God and that in obedience to it we may attain to the exalted position occupied by Him and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.... We are of the race of God, the sons and daughters of a King. What monarch's children do not hope and look forward to sovereignty. May we, who are the offspring of the Almighty King, not hope for crowns and kingdoms in eternity? (DEN, March 28, 1881; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 87.)

Priests and Kings Upon Thrones:

It is God's design to make us priests and kings, not to have an empty title, not to sit upon thrones without power but to be actually and really priests and kings. The promise is that all things that He hath shall be given unto us. We will be His heirs; we will be (if I may use the term without irreverence) co-partners with Him in all this power and authority.... (Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 88.) [Note: this suggest that we should start exercising this authority in our homes now on earth and not keep secret. King of kings and Lord of lord implies that others round about know that you are a king just by looking at you.... Joseph Smith said "We have got to learn to be kings and priests and gods...."]

Kings with Kingdom:

We build temples and we administer and submit to ordinances and perform those things within them which will prepare us to dwell eternally with our God, with Jesus and the Apostles in the heavens. There each man will have his family and kingdom. It is said that God is Lord of lords and King of kings; but how can He be King of kings unless there be kings under Him to give Him homage and pay respect unto Him and acknowledge Him as their Lord and their King?
When God led forth Abraham and told him that as the stars of the firmament were innumerable so should his seed be, He proclaimed to him the greatness of his kingdom in eternity. He told Abraham that he should be a king over this innumerable host; for, if Abraham were not to be king over them, of what use or glory would his posterity be to him? When God pointed Abraham to the sand on the sea shore and told him that as it was countless so should his see be, He told him in accents that could not be mistaken of the future glory of his eternal kingdom. And if all mankind attained to the same promises as Abraham, the also would have an innumerable posterity to reign over. (Apr. 8, 1871, Jd, 14:128; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 90.)

Other Worlds to be Created:

What will be their occupation? The exercise of that creative power that our Father and God has exercised in preparing this earth as the abode for man. He called to gether the elements and formed the earth as a habitation for man; and man, if he is faithful, will progress until he will do that very same thing for his posterity.
Abraham, standing at the head of an innumerable posterity, will find it necessary to have room. He will want to emigrate after awhile from this earth and find a new habitation for there will not be room enough on the glorified earth for him and his posterity in the coming eternity. Thus it is that the heavens are bespangled with the glorious orbs that we see at night--the creations of God, peopled by the children of God. And all this God promises to us, if we are faithful. He says, "You shall be kings; you shall be queens; you shall sit upon thrones; you shall sway scepters, and you shall have power and dominion, if you prove yourselves faithful and true to Me; and you shall be My heirs, and joint heirs with My beloved Son, Jesus Christ, your Redeemer." (Oct. 9, 1892, Dw 45:619-620; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 92.)

"In their fulness, the keys are held by only one person at a time, the Prophet and Presiden of the Church. He may delegate any portion of this power to another, in which case that person holds the keys of that particular labor." [D&C 132: My house is a house of order.] (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., p. 136.)

King of Kings

Christ is the King of kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King holds dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which position s they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1: 6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continues to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of Saints forever. (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 424.)

Lord of lords

Both the Father and the Son are properly known by the title Lord of Lord's, a designation that means literally what it says. (Deut. 10:12-22; 1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:16.) The purpose of this name is not simply to reveal that Christ, for instance, is the Lord of mortal persons who are ranked as lords, but rather it is to show that he is Lord and God to others who themselves also are Lords and Gods in their own right. Thus Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (among others) "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, [What promises? The ones sealed upon us in the temple D&C 131; 132] and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) Since exalted beings themselves beocme Lords and Gods, and since they still stand in subjection to Christ their Lord and their God, it follows that he is a Lord of Lords. Whatever is true of him is also true of his Father, and in due course it will be true of all exalted beings. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 451.)

Patriarchal Order

...Those married in the temple in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage become inheritors of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and all the patriarchs and thereby enter into the patriarchal order. [When do they enter into this order? When they are married in the temple.] If the participating parties abide in the eternal marriage covenant, they shall reap the full blessings of patriarchal heirship in eternity where the patriarchal order will be the order of government and rule. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 559.)

Keys of the kingdom shall be delivered up again unto the Father:
The keys of the kingdom are the rights and powers of presidency; they consist of the authorization and obligation to preside over the Chruch (shich is the kingdom of God on earth) and to regulate all of its affairs. In due course these keys were given to Peter, James, and John, and then to all the Twelve of that day. They were restored to Joseph Smith and his associates in this day and are now held by the living oracles of this dispensation. When the great gathering at Adam-ondi-Ahman takes place those who have held keys on earth will make accounting of their stewareships, Christ will take back the keys, and then the millennial era shall be ushered in, an era in which the rightful King of the kingdom shall riegn personally upon the earth. Finally, there shall be a day when the salvation of man shall be completed, a day in which the keys shall be returned to the Father. Or, as Paul expresses it, "Then cometh the end, when the [Christ] shall have delivered up the kingdom ot God, event he Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all aruthority and power." (1 Cor. 15:24; Mormon Doctrine, pp. 377-379.) (DNTC 1, p. 116-117.)

Though "there is none other God but one" for men on this earth to worship, yet "there be gods many and lords many" throughout the infinite expanse of eternity. (1 Cor. 8:4-7.) That is, there are many exalted, perfected, glorified personages who reign as gods over their own dominions. John saw 144,000 of them standing with Christ upon MOunt Zion, all "having his Father's name written in their foreheads" (Rev.14-1), which is to say that they were gods and were so identified by wearing crowns so stating. Indeed, to each person who overcomes and gains exaltation, Christ has promised: "I will write upon him the name of my God,: and he shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:12, 21.) Joseph Smith said: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) All exalted persons "are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:58.) Through obedience to the whole gospel law, including celestial marriage, they attain the "fulness of the glory of the Father" [Even to the ataining of the Eternal Godhead themselves, they take a covenant: They themself in the eternal cycle will become God the 1st or Creator, one of their Sons will become God the Second or God the Savior and a third, God the testitator or witnessor....] (D. & C. 93:6-28.) and "a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods, because they have no ent; therefore shall they be form everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 491.)

I Go to prepare a place for you
'I go to prepare a place of exaltation for you, a place with me in the highest heaven of the celestial world (D. & C. 131:1-4), for "the desciple" shall "be as his master, adn the servant as his lord." (Matt. 10:25.) "Ye shall be even as I am, and I am even as the Father."' (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 1, p. 729.)

Holy women
The Lord never sends apostles and prophets and righteous men to minister to his people without placing women of like spiritual stature at their sides. Adam stands as the great high priest, under Christ, to rule as a natural patriarch over all men of all ages, but he cannot rule alone; Eve, his wife, rules at his side, having like caliber and attainments to his own. Abraham is tested as few men have been when the Lord commands him to offer Isaac upon the altar (Gen. 22:1-19); and sarah struggles with like problems when the Lord directs that she withhold from the Egyptians her status as Abraham's widfe. (Abra. 2:21-25; Gen. 12:7-20.) Isaac gains from the Lord the promise that his seed shall "multiply as the stars of heaven" (Gen. 26:1-4); and Rebekah, his wife, receives a blessing of her own in which she is promised that she shall be "the mother of thousands of millions.: (Gen. 24:59-60.) And so it goes, in all dispensations and at all times when there are holy men there are also holy women. Neither stands alone before the Lord. The exaltation of the one is dependent upon that of the other.

Whose daughters ye are]

Brethren in the Church become "the seed of Abraham" by faith. (D. & C. 84:34.) That is, they believe what Abraham believed; they worship as Abraham worshiped; they are one with him in spiritual things--and are therefore considered to be his followers and sons, for "if ye be Christ's [Anointed ones], then are ye Abraham's see, and heirs according to the promise." (Gal. 3:29.) Thus, to identify the women in the Church as the daughters of Sarah is to testify that Sarah, and Abraham her husband, were also followers of Christ and believers in the same truths of salvation revealed anew in the Christian dispensation.

Heirs together] Neither men or women are saved alone. Salvation is a family affair. The fulness of the blessings of the gospel come to men and women together; they grow out of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. (DNTC 3, p. 302-303.)

Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)

Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.

"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'

"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.
"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. [D&C 132:19; 93:1]
To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

Sit with me in my throne] In conversation with Deity, Enoch said: "Thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to they throne." (Moses 7:59.) Thus: "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) 'Ye shall have eternal life; ye shall have exaltation; ye shall be gods; ye shall rule and reign forever on a heavenly throne.'

I...am set down with my Father in his throne] "I am even as the Father." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Speaking of those who are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked, "What is it?" and then answered:

"To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone befoer. What did Jesus do? Why; I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came roling into existence. My Father workded out his kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to my Father, so that he may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take his place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of his Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all his children. It is plain beyond disputatuin, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel." (Teachings, pp. 347-348.) (DNTC 3, p. 462.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)

The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted bgings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12-17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322-323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

I will continue the point I am now at. The Lord created you and me for the purpose of becoming Gods like Himself; when we have been proved in our present capacity, and been faithful with all things He puts into our possession. We are created, we are born for the express purpose of growing up from the low estate of manhood, to become Gods like unto our Father in heaven. That is the truth about it, just as it is. The Lord has organized mankind for the express purpose of increasing in that intelligence and truth, which is with God, until he is capable of creating worlds on worlds, and becoming Gods, even the sons of God. How many will become thus privileged? Those who honor the Father and the Son; those who receive the Holy Ghost, and magnify their calling, and are found pure and holy; they shall be crowned in the presence of th Father and the Son. (By Brigham Young, J. D. Vol. 3:93.)

KING OF KINGS.
Christ is the King of Kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King hold dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which positions they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continued to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of saints forever (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 424.)

KINGS.

Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fullness of the ordinances of the temple the receive the fullness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, Page 425.)

Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
Joseph confirmed this by saying:

Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)

And again--

Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)

KINGS AND PRIESTS-MEN ANOINTED UNTO THE MOST HIGH GOD AND HIS FATHER-LIKE THE LORD:

Heirs of God:

Remember the word! If we are heirs of God, why then we shall inherit the power and the blessings and the glory of God our Eternal Father. This is what the Latter-day Saints ought to have constantly in view, "How can I live so as to become an heir of God and a Joint heir with Jesus Christ? What course can I take to secure to myself celestial glory--a never-fading crown?" Not an empty bauble, not a barren sceptre but a sceptre of power, a sceptre of dominion, a crown that means something real, a throne that means the kingly and queenly authority. This is what the Latter-day Saints have in view when they have their hearts fixed as they should be and their eyes open to the glory that God has in store for the faithful. (Apr. 27, 1890, DW 40:836; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 89-90.)

Kings and Priests:

Thus shall we also become legitimately and by right, through the atonement and adoption, kings and priests--priests to administer in the holy ordinances pertaining to the endowments and exaltations; and kings, under Christ, who is King of Kings and Lord of lords, to rule and govern, according to the eternal laws of justice and equity, those who are thus redeemed and exalted. (Ma, 156, 158-159; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 138.)

The Patriarchal Order:

We find that after the days of Noah an order was introduced called the patriarchal order, in which every man managed his own family affairs. And prominent men among them were kings and priests unto God, and officiated in what is known among us as the priesthood of the Son of God, or the priesthood after the order of Melchizedek. Man began again to multiply on the face of the earth, and the heads of families became their kings and priests, that is, the fathers of their own people. And they were more or less under the influence and guidance of the Almighty. We read, for instance, in our revelations pertaining to these matters, of a man called Melchizedek, who was a great high priest. We are told that there were a great many high priests in his day, and before him and after; and these men had communication with God, and were taught of him in relation to their general proceedings, and acknowledged the hand of God in all things with which the were associated. (JD, 17:207, October 7, 1874; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 139.)
[Note: Here Christ is a King of kings and Lord of lords and instruction each family patriarch as needed.]

Blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood
As seen by the Prophet Isaiah

|c49|v0 Messiah shall be a light to the Gentiles and shall free the prisoners--Israel shall be gathered with power in the last days--Kings shall be their nursing fathers--Compare 1 Nephi 21.

|v1 Listen, O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far; The LORD hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.

We are all foreordained and known unto the Lord, and we shall all recognize that the Lord has called us all from the womb, and made mention of our name.

We were foreordained from the very beginning to receive a fullness of the Priesthood, which is a fullness of the father. Our names are mentioned: Ordinance of Naming and blessing of infants and temple blessings....

|v2 And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me;

|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

We all take upon ourselves to be the Lords servants, pointing to the mortal ministry of Jesus Christ as did John the Baptist and all the holy prophets and righteous fathers before him, for the blessings of the Father through the Son. And like all the Prophets and righteous fathers since the Saviors mortal ministry, we as servants and Elias point to the Son's Second coming. Where he shall come in glory. And we prepare the Saints not only with baptism, and the Holy Ghost, but the fulness of all the Priesthood blessings found in the holy temple, that when he comes we shall be like him. And when he shows the Father unto us we shall be like him too.

|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

How is the Lord glorified? He told Moses, "For behold, this is my work and my glory–to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man.

Who is the Lord talking to, in whom he will be glorified?
His servant Israel [the children of Israel]. Through the posterity of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob... The Lord will give these people immortality and eternal life as he gave Abraham and Sarah and promised to all their posterity.

In Doctrine and Covenants section 132 verse 37 the Lord brings further light of what he means by being glorified and bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of his children,

"Abraham received concubines, and they bore him children; and it was accounted unto him for righteousness, because they were given unto him, and he abode in my law; as Isaac and also Jacob did none other things than that which they were commanded; and because they did none other things than that which they were commanded, they have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods."

|v4 Then I said, I have labored in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the LORD, and my work with my God.

As long as every Prophet, Elias, or Father, Mother, Brother or Sister knows that there is one more soul to be saved, one more soul to receive all the blessings of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father. There Labor is in vain. For what Father or Mother having received there Exaltation like Abraham and sees his children or grandchildren truly has a fulness of joy. No one for all their children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren to the latest generation are engraven on their hands and they know them and are doing everything in there power to help them receive the Fulness of the Priesthood which is a fulness of the fathers even the greatest father of us all, God our heavenly Father.

Was this not Christ mission, to bring us back unto the fulness of The Father. Thus each Prophet, Elias, Father and Mother takes the same image as Christ and Abraham, Adam and Elohim, to bring to pass the immortality and eternal lives of their children.... We can never have a fulness of Joy until every last child or brother or sister has the opportunity to live the life that the Fathers and Mothers live.

|v5 And now, saith the LORD that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob [the house of Israel] again to him, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD, and my God shall be my strength.

|v6 And he said, It is a light thing that thou shouldest be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth.

What is the light that the Lord promised Isaiah should be to raise up [all] the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel:

The Lord also promised that Isaiah would give the same light to the Gentiles, that Isaiah would be the Salvation to the end of the earth.

Isaiah is told that he would give some special light to raise up the tribes of [Israel] to a new elevation, a new height, a zenith. He was then told that he would give this same light to the Gentiles. The Lord then explains that this light would be the Capstone of salvation to the end of the earth.

In other words the light that Isaiah is about to share with us will be very great, the capstone of the blessings of the Father the Capstone of Salvation and exaltation to the children of Fathers, Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob or all the tribes of Israel and that these great blessings of the Fathers even of God the Eternal would be given to the Gentiles as well for a great purpose.

The Lord finally tell Isaiah that this Light is so important that he shall be the Lord's salvation to the end of the Earth.

What does this mean? We know that the Lord Glory is, "For behold, this is my work and my glory–to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of [my children]."

Isaiah is going to shed light to help all the Fathers children receive the Capstone blessings of the Priesthood to raise up the tribes of Israel and the Gentiles to receive the fulness of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father....

|v7 Thus saith the LORD, the Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One, to him whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth, to a servant of rulers, Kings shall see and arise, princes also shall worship, because of the LORD that is faithful, and the Holy One of Israel, and he shall choose thee.

The LORD has chosen us because we are his children and he wants his children, to be awakened to the truth and receive all the blessings which he has to offer, that we may be like him. For what parent having children doesn't want them to grow up and be like them possessing all that they have and are.... These are the blessings of eternity.

|v8 Thus saith the LORD, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee: and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages;

We have the promises of the Fathers, of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And the now the Lord, through Isaiah is telling us that we should again receive and inherit the great promises of the Fathers which have become desolate. Of which the Lord said,"In an acceptable time (1) have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have (2) I helped thee: and (3) I will preserve thee, and (4) give thee for a covenant of the people, (5) to establish the earth, (6) to cause to inherit the desolate heritages; because we are his children.

We now know why we are to receive the fullness of the blessings of the Priesthood, a fullness of our anointings, a the fulness of the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And when we have received a fullness of the blessings of the Lord, then what does the He expect us to do with them...

Christ himself gives us the answer. He said:

If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.
(John 13:13-17).

Now there are many who have received the key-stone blessings and ordinances of the Fathers, but as Isaiah is about there are not many who have received the Capstone blessings and ordinances of the Fullness of the Priesthood, which is a Fulness of the blessings of the Fathers, even God Our Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And why do we receive these Capstone blessings. 1. So that We ourselves can receive the fulness of the blessings of the Fathers and Mothers and 2. So...

|v9 That thou mayest say to the prisoners [those in spirit prison], Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Shew yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places [all the blessings and ordinances found in the House of our Eternal Father and Fathers Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and even our immediate Fathers and Mothers].

|v10 They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them: for he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them.

Here the Lord is telling us the simple truth, that we will no longer be prisoners, that we will no longer hunger or thirst, for he will guide us by the springs of water.

We are his children and he has promised that he will give us all he blessings, all of them to the point that we hunger and thirst no longer for ourselves, because we have the fullness of blessings powers, thrones and principalities as our fathers Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and our immediate Fathers and we will "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." For the Lord tells us that he will guide us by the springs of water. And what is our springs of water, it is none other than the fullness of the priesthood, living the same lives that of our Fathers and Mothers, Even our true Spring of Living Water who is God our Eternal Father.

The Lord has prophesied that the highways where with we shall be exalted will be found in the mountains or in other wards where the Lord has established the Keys of his holy Priesthood, which is the order of the Priesthood after the Order of Melchizedek, which is after the Order of the Son of God, which is after the Order of God our Father our Spring.

|v13 Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the LORD hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted.

Here we see the unnumbered multitudes found in heaven and earth who are in prison are to receive a blessings at the Hand of the Priesthood, the fulness of the Priesthood of God our Father in the Mountains: For it is here that the LORD Will comfort his people [his Children] and will have mercy upon his afflicted [who many of his children have not had the opportunity to receive of his fulness but are in prisons having only receive portions of light, but need all light even the Capstone light of the Fulness of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost even the fulness of the Priesthood to enter the same blessings as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he has sent.

|v14 But Zion said, The LORD hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me.

And because these blessings have become desolate and there are many prisoners the people cry and Zion, [those who have received the Key-stone blessings] say the LORD hath forsaken us and forgotten me and I am left here in this prison and there is none to bring me to salvation and exaltation.....

But the Lord having no fulness of joy, without his faithful children told Isaiah that he would teach us the greater light and bring even the Lord his Salvation unto the end of the earth [those things telestial and terrestrial], and bring us to the light of the celestial, the fulness of the Priesthood for all the worthy children of the Fathers and God the Eternal Father.

For said he,

|v15 Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee. |v16 Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me.

We are the Lords children and it greaves him when we are stopped from progressing to him. But he has not forgotten us but will bless us with a fulness of his great blessings. For our prayers are before him always.

|v18 Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold: all these gather themselves together, and come to thee. As I live, saith the LORD, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee, as a bride doeth.

We shall be clothed and cloth those who are in prison with the fulness of the Priesthood. For we are the bride of the bridegroom and if the bridegroom is to receive the fulness of the blessings of the Priesthood or the Father, he must receive them with the bride, for they must receive them together or not at all. Therefore these blessings must be extended to all the faithful for the bridegroom cannot come in glory without the bride.

Therefore let the prisoners go free. Let the bride of the Lord clothe herself with the ornament of the fulness of the Priesthood and all the blessings found in the House of our Heavenly Father, by the hands of his holy Servants.

|v19 For thy waste and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction, shall even now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be far away.

The un-numbered hosts who have gathered in prison are already to many. The time is far spent and there is little remaining, "even now this prison is to narrow (crowded) by reason of the inhabitants. And because we don't let our dead go free but keep adding to them we have swallowed them up in this great prison and are far, far away from our fathers whom we must surly set free. That the bride may come with the bridegroom. Where the Lord shall be a King of kings and a Lord of lords-a God of gods.

|v20 The children which thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other, shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: give place to me that I may dwell.

Now we children of the Fathers, according to the Light which Isaiah hath shown us are saying we don't want to go to the prison which is already to strait or crowded, bless us with the blessings of the Fathers, the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and let us break down the prison door of our Father that we might be saved with them and be the true bride at the Bridegrooms Second coming with all the ornaments of the Fulness of the Priesthood lacking nothing.

|v21 Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath begotten me these, seeing I have lost my children, and am desolate, a captive, and removing to and fro? and who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left alone; these, where had they been?

|v22 Thus saith the Lord GOD, Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people: and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.

We have the responsibility to bring the key-stone blessings to our dead and living who haven't received these blessings, but Isaiah is about to shed a greater light even the Capstone blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood.

|v23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD: for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

Here is the further light, Kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers. We shall be called up and Anointed Kings and our wives Queens unto their husbands and we shall nurse these captive [do the work for our dead by proxy and bestowing the fulness of the priesthood upon them, making them kings and queens, priests and priestesses unto the Most High God.]

We also learn, by looking at another angle found in Nephi, that Nephi recorded these things for his posterity-his children and his children's children.
Not only will our dead bow down to us with their faces toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet. But we fathers will, as Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Lehi, and Nephi bestow these blessings of the Fathers upon our children. Teaching our children to know the Lord as Adam taught Seth and Seth taught Enos all the way to Noah, and as Abraham taught Isaac and Isaac taught Jacob to know the Lord. For do not our children do what we do and say what we say, thus licking up the dust of our feet that they shalt know through the Fathers that the Lord is God. For none will be ashamed that wait upon the Lord for in that day all shall know him from the least (the children) unto the greatest (the fathers) and no man shall need to teach his brother to know the Lord for all shall know him. Because they shall be like him and shall Be King and priests and Queens and Priestesses and shall walk forth out of the prison and be a kingdom of priests and Priestesses a kingdom of Anointed a kingdom of kings and queens to the most high God and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.....
Also in the Doctrine and Covenants the Lord says,

|v26 God shall give unto you knowledge by his Holy Spirit, yea, by the unspeakable gift of the Holy Ghost, that has not been revealed since the world was until now;
|v27 Which our forefathers have awaited with anxious expectation to be revealed in the last times, which their minds were pointed to by the angels, as held in reserve for the fulness of their glory;
|v28 A time to come in the which nothing shall be withheld, whether there be one God or many gods, they shall be manifest.
|v29 All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ.
(D&C: Section 121:25-29)

|v24 Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?

|v25 But thus saith the LORD, Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered: for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children.

The Fathers have received a promise, that all their righteous children shall not be held captive any longer but shall receive the fulness of all the Keystone and Capstone blessings just as they have received them that they might be one with the Father even as the Son is one with the Father.

(OldT:Isaiah 49:Heading-26)

God of Gods
"Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions," the Prophet said. (Teachings, p. 374.) Hence, the Father, who shall continue to all eternity as the God of exalted beings, is a God of Gods. Further, as the Prophet also taught, ther is a "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. [This would go well with the picture of Orson Pratts/Hyde]. ...If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suposse that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father?...Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe thathe had a Father also?" (Teachings, pp. 370, 373.) In this way both the Father and the Son, as also all exalted beings, are now or in due course will become God of Gods. (Teachings, pp. 342-376.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 321-322.)

Kings
[Linked As a part of the following ordiances]
Calling and Election made sure, celestial Marriage, Endowments, Exaltation, Melchizedek Priesthood Priestesses, Priests, Queens.
Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordiances of the temple they receive the fulness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have [This is unconditional, man and wifes calling and election has been made sure] exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 425.)

Those who are faithful in their priesthood callings in this life shall continue on in their holy authorizations in eternity; they shall remain forever "priests and kings"; their destiny is to stand as "priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son." (D. & C. 76:56-57.)

This priesthood "holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God." (D. & C. 84:17-19.)

Gospel Mysteries

Those who are priests forever, who "are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek,... are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:57-58.) They have become joint-heirs with Christ, having kept the same covenant and been bount by teh same oath.

|v33 For whoso is faithful unto the obtaining these two priesthoods of which I have spoken, and the magnifying their calling, are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies.
|v34 They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, and the church and kingdom, and the elect of God.
|v35 And also all they who receive this priesthood receive me, saith the Lord;
|v36 For he that receiveth my servants receiveth me;
|v37 And he that receiveth me receiveth my Father;
|v38 And he that receiveth my Father receiveth my Father's kingdom; therefore all that my Father hath shall be given unto him.

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D. & C. 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) Theses, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communications of keys," the prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fulness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30.)
"Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordiances of the house of the Lord.... All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordiances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordiances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 474-482.)

"And thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5:10; 20:4.)

see Calling and election sure, Celestial Marriage, (linked0

Those who endure in perfect faith, who receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, and who gain the blessings of the temple (including celestial marriage) [Celestial Marriage is a condition president] are eventually ordained kings and priests. These are offices given faithful holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood, and in them they will bear rule as exalted being durring the millennium and in eternity. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 599.)

Thrones

In the eternal sense, thrones are reserved for exalted persons who rule and reign as kings and queens in the highest heaven of the celestial world. It is in such a sphere that "God, even the Father, reigns upon his throne forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:92; Rev. 20:11.) After Christ has presented up the kingdom to his Father, "Then shall he be crowned with the crown of his glory, to sit on the throne of his power to reign forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:108.)

Then shall all those who are joint-heirs with him--who have been "crowned with the glory of his mighe," and "made equal with him" (D. & C. 88:107)--then shall they also sit upon their thrones and even sit down with our Lord on his throne. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am sent down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:21.) Enoch foresaw this state of exaltation and said: "Thou art God,... thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to thy throne." (Moses 7:59.)

In token of their kingship, sovereignty, and dominion, exalted beings shall sit on thrones in eternity. "All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ." (D. & C> 121:29.) "Abraham..hath entered into his exaltation and sitteth upon his throne," as also have other righteous saints of former ages. (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 794.)

Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)

Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.

"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'

"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.
"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

I will continue the point I am now at. The Lord created you and me for the purpose of becoming Gods like Himself; when we have been proved in our present capacity, and been faithful with all things He puts into our possession. We are created, we are born for the express purpose of growing up from the low estate of manhood, to become Gods like unto our Father in heaven. That is the truth about it, just as it is. The Lord has organized mankind for the express purpose of increasing in that intelligence and truth, which is with God, until he is capable of creating worlds on worlds, and becoming Gods, even the sons of God. How many will become thus privileged? Those who honor the Father and the Son; those who receive the Holy Ghost, and magnify their calling, and are found pure and holy; they shall be crowned in the presence of th Father and the Son. (By Brigham Young, J. D. Vol. 3:93.)

Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jer. 31:31-34)

The Lord stated further:

...I say unto you that mine eyes are upon you. I am in your midst and ye cannot see me; but the day soon cometh that ye shall see me, and know that I am; for the veil of darkness shall soon be rent, and he that is not purified shall not abide the day. Wherefore, gird up your loins and be prepared. (D. & C. 38:7-9)

Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)

Lamb of God

In honor of the Lamb, a great choir of 100,000,000 [men] voices of the redeemed shall sing this new song (Rev. 5:9-13):
[In order for there to be 100 Million men voices singing this song, who had been made kings and priests their would have to be at least another 100 million queens and priestesses who held jointly these blessings.]

Thou wast slain,
And hast redeemed us to God by thy blood
Out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;
And hast made us unto our God kings and priests:
And we shall reign on the earth....
Worthy is the Lamb that was slain
To receive power, and riches, and wisdom,
And strength, and honor, and glory, and blessings....
Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power,
Be unto him that sitteth upon the throne,
And unto the Lamb for ever and ever.

Kings and Priests

In the following lines from his "Elias: An Epic of the Ages," the late Elder Orson F. Whitney paraphrased what Abraham and other seers have revealed concerning the proceeding and consequences of that heavenly council and the role Jesus Played in it. Not listen to these majestic lines of Brother Whitney:

"In solemn council sat the Gods,...
"...That awful hour was one
When thought doth most avail;
Of worlds unborn the destiny
Hung trembling in the scale.
Silence self-spelled; and there arose,
Those kings and priests among,
A power sublime, than whom appeared
None nobler 'mid the throng.

"A stature mingling strength with grace,
Of meek though godlike mien;
The glory of whose countenance
Outshone the noonday sheen....
He spake;--attention grew more grave,
The stillness e'en more still.

"'Father!'--the voice like music fell,...
'Father,' it said, 'since one must die,
Thy children to redeem,
From spheres all formless now and void,
Where pulsing life shall teem;

"'And mighty Michael [Adam] foremost fall
That mortal man may be;
And chosen savior Thou must send,
Lo, here am I--Send me!
I ask, I seek no recompense,
Save that which then were mine;
Mine be the willing sacrifice,
The endless glory Thine!...'

"Still rang that voice, when sudden rose
Aloft a towering form,
Proudly erect as lowering peak
'Lumed by the gathering storm;...

"'Send Me! 'coiled 'neath his courtly smile
A scarce concealed disdain--
'And none shall hence, from heaven to earth,
That shall not rise again.
My saving plan exception scorns.
Man's will?--Nay, mine alone.
As recompense, I claim the right
To sit on yonder Throne!'
"Ceased Lucifer. The breathless hush

Resumed and denser grew.
All eyes were turned; the general gaze
One common magnet drew.
A moment there was solemn pause--
Listened eternity,
While rolled from lips omnipotent
The Father's firm decree:

"'Jehovah, thou my Messenger!
Son Ahman, thee I send;
And one shall go thy face before,
While twelve thy steps attend.
And many more on that far shore
The pathway shall prepare,
That I, the first, the last may come,
And earth my glory share....

"'Go forth, thou Chosen of the Gods,
Whose strength shall in thee dwell!
Go down betime and rescue earth,
Dethroning death and hell.
On thee alone man's fate depends,
The fate of being all.
Thou shall not fail, though thou art free--
Free, but too great to fall.

"'By arm divine, both mine and thine,
The lost thou shalt restore,
And man, redeemed, with God shall be,
As God forevermore.
Return, and to the parent fold
This wandering planet bring,
And earth shall hail thee Conqueror,
And heaven proclaim thee King.'

"'Twas done, From congregation vast,
Tumultuous murmurs rose:
Waves of conflicting sound, as when
Two meeting seas oppose.
'Twas finished. But the heavens wept;
And still their annals tell
How one was choice of Elohim, O'er one who fighting fell."

"And Adam and Eve...made all things known unto their sons and their daughters." (Moses 5:8,12.)

The Ten Blessings of the Priesthood
Elder Bruce R. McConkie
Priesthood Session, Saturday, October 1, 1977

We are the servants of the Lord, his agents, his representatives. We have been endowed with power from on high. We hold either the Aaronic Priesthood, which is a preparatory, schooling order, or we hold the Melchizedek Priesthood, which is the highest and greatest power that the Lord gives to men on earth.

There are in this greater priesthood five offices or callings--elder, seventy, high priest, patriarch, and apostle--yet the priesthood is the same; and the priesthood is greater than any of its offices. We are a kingdom of brethren, a congregation of equals, all of whom are entitled to receive all of the blessings of the priesthood. There are no blessings reserved for apostles that are not freely available to all the elders of the kingdom; blessings come because of obedience and personal righteousness, not because of administrative positions.

I shall speak of these blessings--the ten priesthood blessings--which are available to all of us who hold the holy Melchizedek Priesthood.

Blessing one: We are members of the only true and living Church upon the face of the whole earth, and we have received the fullness of the everlasting gospel.

"This greater priesthood administereth the gospel." It "continueth in the church of God in all generations, and is without beginning of days or end of years." (D&C 84:19,17.)

The gospel is the plan of salvation; it is the way and the means, provided by the Father, whereby his spirit children have power to advance and progress and become like him. The priesthood is the power and authority of God, delegated to man on earth, to act in all things for the salvation of men.

Where the Melchizedek Priesthood is, there is a Church and kingdom of God on earth; there is the gospel of salvation; and where there is no Melchizedek Priesthood, there is on true Church, and no power that will save men in the kingdom of God.

Blessing Two: We have received the gift of the Holy Ghost, and we are entitled to receive the gifts of the Spirit--those wondrous spiritual endowments which set us apart from the world and raise us above carnal things.

The gift of the Holy Ghost is the right to the constant companionship of that member of the Godhead based on faithfulness. It is the right to receive revelation, to see visions, to be in tune with the Infinite.

John, who held the Priesthood of Aaron, baptized with water for the remission of sins. Jesus, who was an high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek, baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire.

The Holy Ghost is a revelator; he bears witness of the Father and the Son, those Holy Beings whom to know is eternal life. Thus it is that "this greater priesthood... holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God." (D&C 84:19.) The spiritual gifts are the signs which follow those that believe; they are the miracles and healings performed in the name of the Lord Jesus; they include marvelous outpourings of truth and light and revelation from God in heaven to man on earth.

Our revelations say that the Melchizedek Priesthood holds "the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church," and that all those who hold this holy order "have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant." (D&C 107:18-19.)

Blessing three: We can be sanctified by the Spirit, have dross and evil burned out of us as though the fire, become clean and spotless, and be fit to dwell with gods and angles.

The Holy Ghost is the Sanctifier. Those who magnify their callings in the priesthood "are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies." (D&C 84:33.) They are born again; they become new creatures of the Holy Ghost; they are alive in Christ.

Of such faithful persons among the ancients, Alma says: "They were called after this holy order"--that is, they held the Melchizedek Priesthood--"and[they]were sanctified, and their garments were washed white through the blood of the Lamb. Now they, after being sanctified by the Holy Ghost, having their garments made white, being pure and spotless before God, could not look upon sin save it were with abhorrence; and there were many, exceeding great many, who were made pure and entered in the rest of the Lord their God." (Alma 13:11-12.)

Blessing four: We can stand in the place and stead of the Lord Jesus Christ in administering salvation to the children of men.

He preached the gospel; so can we. He spoke by the power of the Holy Ghost so can we. He served as a missionary; so can we. He went about doing good; so can we. He performed the ordinances of salvation; so can we. He kept the commandments; so can we. He wrought miracles; such also is our privilege if we are true and faithful in all things.

We are his agents; we represent him; we are expected to do and say what he would do and say if he personally were ministering among men at this time.

Blessing five: We have power to become the sons of God, to be adopted into the family of the Lord Jesus Christ, to have him as our Father, to be one with him as he is one with his Father.

"Thou art after the order of him who was without beginning of days or end of years, from all eternity to all eternity," the Lord said to Adam. "Behold, thou art one in me, a son of God; and thus may all become my sons." (Moses 6:67-68.)

As sons of God, we also have power to advance and progress until we become "joint-heirs with Christ," until we have "conformed to the image" of God's Son, as Paul expressed it. (Rom. 8:17, 29.) [Also look at Eph. 4:11-14, we are able to measure ourselves to Christ.]

Blessing Six: We can enter into the patriarchal order, the order of eternal marriage, the order which enables the family until to continue everlastingly in celestial glory.

To gain the highest heaven and to enjoy the fullness of that light and glory which comprise eternal life, we must "enter into" that "order of the priesthood" which bears the name "the new and everlasting covenant of marriage." (D&C 131:2; see also 131:1-4.)

Blessing seven: We have power to govern all things, both temporal and spiritual, both the kingdoms of the world, and the elements and storms and powers of the earth.

With reference to this, our scriptures say: "For God having sworn unto Enoch and unto his seed with an oath by himself; that every one being ordained after this order and calling should have power, by faith, to break mountains, to divide the seas, to dry up waters, to turn them out of their course;

"To put at defiance the armies of nations, to divide the earth, to break every band, to stand in the presence of God; to do all things according to his will, according to his command, subdue principalities and powers; and this by the will of the Son of God which was from before the foundation of the world." (Gen. 14:30-31, Inspired Version.)

Indeed. The Melchizedek Priesthood is the very power that Christ himself will use to govern the nations in that day when "the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." (Rev. 11:15.)

Blessing eight: We have power, through the priesthood, to gain eternal life, the greatest of all the gifts of God.

Eternal life is the name of the kind of life God lives. It consists, first, of the continuation of the family unit in eternity, and second, of an inheritance of the fullness of the father.

All those who receive the Melchizedek Priesthood enter into a covenant with the Lord. Each such person solemnly promises:

I covenant to receive the priesthood;

I covenant to magnify my calling in the priesthood; and

I covenant to keep the commandments, to "live by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God." (D&C 84:44.)

The Lord on his part covenants to give such faithful persons "all that my Father hath," which is eternal life in the kingdom of God. (D&C 84:38; see also 84:33-44.)

Then the Lord-to show the binding nature of his promise-swears with an oath that the promised reward shall be obtained.

This oath, as it pertained to the Son of God himself, is spoken of in these words; "The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek." (Ps. 110:4.)

And with reference to all others who also receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, the scripture saith: "And all those who are ordained unto this priesthood are made like unto the Son of God, abiding a priest continually." (Heb 7:3, I.V.) That is to say, they will be kings and priests forever; their priesthood will continue to all eternity; they will have eternal life.

"They are they who are the church of the Firstborn.

"They are they into whose hands the Father has given all things- "They are they who are priests and kings, who have received of his fullness and of his glory;

"And are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotting Son.

"Wherefore, as it is written, they are gods, even the sons of God-

"Wherefore, all things are theirs, whether life or death, or things present, or things to come, all are theirs and they are Christ's, and Christ is God's." (D&C 76:54-59.)

Blessing nine: We have power to make our calling and election sure, so that while we yet dwell in mortality, having overcome the world and been true and faithful in all things we shall be sealed up unto eternal life and have the unconditional promise of eternal life in the presence of Him whose we are.

Our revelations say: "The more sure word of prophecy means a man's knowing that his is sealed up unto eternal life, by revelation and the spirit of prophecy, through the power of the Holy Priesthood." (D&C 131:5.)

During the latter years of his ministry, in particular, the Prophet Joseph Smith pleaded fervently with the Saints to press forward in righteousness until they made their calling and election sure, until they heard the heavenly voice proclaim: "Son, thou shalt be exalted." (Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 150.)

He himself became the pattern for all such attainment in this dispensation, when the voice from heaven said to him: "I am the Lord thy God, and will be with thee even unto the end of the world, and through all eternity; for verily I seal upon you your exaltation, and prepare a throne for you in the kingdom of my Father, with Abraham your father." (D&C 132:49.)

Blessing ten: We have the power and it is our privilege-so to live, that becoming pure in heart, we shall see the face of God while we yet dwell as mortals in a world of sin and sorrow.

This is the crowning blessing of mortality. It is offered by that God who is no respecter of persons to all the faithful in his kingdom.

Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D&C 93:1.)

"And again, verily I say unto you that it is your privilege, and a promise I give unto you that have been ordained unto this ministry"-he is speaking now to those who hold the Melchizedek Priesthood-"that inasmuch as you strip yourselves from jealousies and fears, and humble yourselves before me, for ye are not sufficiently humble, the veil shall be rent and you shall see me and know that I am-not with the carnal neither natural mind, but with the spiritual.

"For no man has seen God at any time in the flesh, except quickened by the Spirit of God.

"Neither can any natural man abide the presence of God, neither after the carnal mind.

"Ye are not able to abide the presence of God now, neither the ministering of angels; wherefore, continue in patience until ye are perfected." (D&C 67:10-13.)

These, then are the ten blessings of the priesthood, the Holy Priesthood, after the order of the Son of God, the priesthood which the saints in ancient days called after Melchizedek to avoid the too frequent repetition of the name of Deity.

In this connection, these words from holy writ are appropriate:

"Now Melchizedek was a man of faith, who wrought righteousness; and when a child he feared God, and stopped the mouths of lions, and quenched the violence of fire.

"And thus, having been approved of God, he was ordained an high priest after the order of the covenant which God made with Enoch.

"I being after the order of the Son of God; which order came, not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God;

"And it was delivered unto men by the calling of his own voice, according to his own will, unto as many as believed on his name....

"And now, Melchizedek was a priest of this order; therefore he obtained peace in Salem, and was called the Prince of peace.

"And his people wrought righteousness, and obtained heaven, and sought for the city of Enoch which God had before taken, separating it from the earth, having reserved it unto the latter days, or the end of the world;

"And hath said, and sworn with an oath, that the heavens and the earth should come together; and the sons of God should be tried so as by fire.

"And this Melchizedek, having thus established righteousness, was called the king of heaven by his people, or, in other words the King of peace.

"And he lifted up his voice, and he blessed Abram....

"And it came to pass, that God blessed Abram, and gave unto him riches, and honor, and lands for an everlasting possession; according to the covenant which he had made, and according to the blessing wherewith Melchizedek had blessed him." (Gen. 14:26-29, 33-37, 40, I.V.)

Now, my brethren, this is the priesthood which we hold. It will bless us as it blessed Melchizedek and Abraham. The priesthood of Almighty God is here. The doctrines which we teach are true, and by obedience to them we can enjoy the words of eternal life here and now and be inheritors of immortal glory hereafter.

I know, and you know, that as the heavens are above the earth, so are these truths of which we speak above all the ways of the world and all the honors which men can confer.

God grant that we may keep the commandments and be inheritors of all that a gracious Lord promises his people. In the name of Jesus Christ, amen. (November Ensign 1977, pp. 33-35.)

...far in the distance--its heights hidden in the clouds, the divine Shechinah resting upon its summit--far in the distance stands Mount Zion, the greadest peak of all.

Through the morning mists we see Mount Zion, whereon is built "the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem," where there is assembled "an innumerable company of angels," on whose height is congregated "the general assembly and church of the firstborn" (Heb. 12:22-23).

Looking back with pride, we see the spring of 1820 when the Gods of heaven, the supreme rulers of the universe, rent the heavens, appeared to Joseph Smith, and ushered in the dispensation of the fullness of times (see D&C 112:30).

We see Moroni flying through the midst of heaven, sounding the trump of God, and revealing the book which whispers from the dust with a familiar spirit (see Rev. 14:6).

We see other angelic ministrants come, bringing keys and powers and authorities until all of the keys of the kingdom of God are committed unto man on the earth.

We see the little stone cut from the mountain without hands beginning to roll forth toward the coming day when it shall smite the Babylonian image, break in pieces the kingdoms of men, and fill the whole earth (see Dan. 2:34-35).

We see the elders of the kingdom going forth to many nations, crying repentance, gathering Israel, and assembling the faithful in the tops of the mountains were stands the house of the Lord (see 2 Ne. 12:2).

We see converts and stakes and temples. Gifts and signs and miracles abound. The sick are healed and the dead are raised by the power of God, and the work of the Lord goes forward.

* * * * * * *

We rejoice because of the glory and honor that awaits those who come forth out of all this tribulation with clean hands and pure hearts (see Ps. 24:4).

* * * * * * * *

We see stakes of Zion in all parts of the earth; and Israel, the chosen people, gathering into these cities of holiness, as it were, to await the coming of their King.

We see temples in great numbers dotting the earth, so that those of every nation and kindred and tongue and people can receive the fullness of the ordinances of the house of the Lord and can qualify to live and reign as kings and priests on earth a thousand years.

We see the seed of Cain--long denied that priestly power which makes men rulers over many kingdoms--raise up and bless Abraham as their father.

We see the Saints of God, who are scattered upon all the face of the earth, rise in power and glory and stand as lights and guides to the people of their own nations.

We see our children and our children's children stand firm in defense of truth and virtue, crowned with the power of God, carrying off the kingdom triumphantly.

We see the faithful Saints perfecting their lives and preparing for the coming of him whose children they are, preparing for the glorious mansion he has promised them in the kingdom his Father. ***

As the meek among men make their calling and election sure....

...The elect of God forsake the traditions of their fathers and the ways of the world. The kingdom grows and prospers, for the Lord is with his people. (Ensign May 1980, pp. 71-73.)

November 1974

Eldred G. Smith--Patriarch to the Church [Perhaps he understands that temple work is the work of the Patriarchal priesthood.]

Every person who comes on this earth must have an opportunity to receive all the blessings of the these sealings, if he will accept, sometime before the end of the Millennium. There could be no just God if it were otherwise

These sealing blessings are obtained first through the ordinance of baptism into the church of Jesus Christ. Then the wife is sealed to her husband for time and all eternity, and those children who are not born under the marriage covenant must be sealed to their parents, that they may receive all the blessings as though they were born under the new and everlasting covenant.

Those who have died without this law may have the privilege of receiving these blessings by proxy. That is where our responsibility comes in. We must first teach the gospel to the living. Then we must gather the records of those of our families who died without this law and get this great and important work done for them.

The promise was given to our forefathers that when the gospel is restored in the last days, "the hearts of the children shall turn to their fathers." (D&C 2:2.) This means we must fulfill the promise to our ancestors to do the ordinance work for them. If we do not, then our own salvation may be in jeopardy.

Not only the ordinance of baptism, but also the sealing of families together as an eternal unit must be done on the earth. Hence, we must perform these ordinances ourselves first, then by proxy for our ancestors who have passed on to the spirit world. These most sacred ordinances must be performed in a holy temple erected and dedicated to the Lord for this very purpose.

In modern revelation the Lord commanded the Prophet Joseph Smith to "build a house to my name, for the Most High to dwell therein.

"For there is not a place found on earth that he may come to and restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fullness of the priesthood." (D&C 124:27-28.)

These temples are built for a special and most important purpose--where the living may receive their most holy ordinances, where families may be sealed together for all eternity. The family unit is the only eternal organization. The temples are beautiful buildings, and rightly should be, but are not just monuments for show alone. They are the only way whereby all the righteous, living and dead, can have the blessings of exaltation. The living come first. Then after they have performed these holy sealings, they should turn to their fathers and vicariously open the way for their ancestors to receive these same blessings.

For this purpose family research must be done. Many choice spirits have been held in reserve to come to earth at this time so they could accept the gospel and do the temple work for their ancestor. ***

The gospel has been restored in these the last days never to be taken from the earth again, to bring the blessings of salvation and exaltation to all God's children who prove their worthiness through their faithfulness. The purpose of this earth and our life here is to give each and every one of Adam's posterity the opportunity to end this life as a family unit for all eternity. (November Ensign 1974, pp. 25-26.)

November 1979

Temples have been built where the Lord may come "and restore again that which was lost... even the fullness of the priesthood" (D&C 124:28). (November Ensign 1979, pp. 24)

October 1933

Gospel Mysteries

President George Albert Smith:

One of the beautiful things to me in the Gospel of Jesus Christ is that it brings us all to a common level. It is not necessary for a man to be a president of a stake, or a member of the Quorum of the Twelve, in order to attain a high place in the celestial kingdom. The humblest member of the Church, if he keeps the commandments of God, will obtain an exaltation just as much as any other man in the celestial kingdom. The beauty of the Gospel of Jesus Christ is that it makes us all equal.... As we keep the commandments of the Lord... we have equal opportunity for exaltation" (in Conference Report, Oct. 1933. p. 25).

King of Kings

Bruce R. McConkie

Christ is the King of Kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19: 11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King holds dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which positions they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continues to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of Saints forever. (Rev 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, Bruce R. McConkie, pp. 424.)

Kings

Bruce R. McConkie

Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fullness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fullness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed,. p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fullness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.) (Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Bruce R. McConkie, p. 436.)

Queens

Bruce R. McConkie

If righteous men have power through the gospel and its crowning ordinance of celestial marriage to become kings and priests to rule in exaltation forever, it follows that the women by their side (without whom they cannot attain exaltation will be queens and priestesses. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) Exaltation grows out of the eternal union of a man and his wife. Of those whose marriage endures in eternity, the Lord says, "Then shall they be gods" (D&C 132:20); that is each of them, the man and the woman, will be a god. As such they will rule over their dominions forever. (Mormon Doctrine, Bruce R. McConkie, pp. 613.)

Priestesses

Gospel Mysteries

Bruce R. McConkie

Women do not have the priesthood conferred upon them and are not ordained to offices therein, but they are entitled to all priesthood blessings. Those women who go on to their exaltation, ruling and reigning with husbands who are kings and priests, will themselves be queens and priestesses. They will hold positions of power, authority, and preferment in eternity. (Gospel Kingdom, pp. 221-222, 229.) (Mormon Doctrine, Bruce R. McConkie, pp. 594.)

Elect Lady Bruce R. McConkie

"An elect lady is a female member of the Church who has already received, or who through obedience is qualified to receive, the fullness of the gospel blessings. This includes [1] temple endowments, [2] celestial marriage, and [3] the fullness of the sealing power. She is one who has been elected or chosen by faithfulness as a daughter of God in this life, an heir of God, a member of his household. Her position is comparable to that of the elders who magnify their callings in the priesthood and thereby receive all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:38.) (Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Vol. 3:410.)

Priests

Bruce R. McConkie

Those who endure in perfect faith, who receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, and who gain the blessings of the temple (including celestial marriage) are eventually ordained kings and priests. These are offices given faithful holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood, and in them they will bear rule as exalted beings during the millennium and in eternity. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10.) (Mormon Doctrine, Bruce R. McConkie, pp. 599.)

May 3, 1975

President Spencer W. Kimball:

You could be the queen of Holland, the czar of Russia, or the emperor of Japan. You could be any great person in this world, but you would be a pygmy compared to what you can be in the Church. Every one of you can be a Queen who will not lose her crown when she dies, a king who will not lose his scepter when he dies. Every one of you! Not just the smartest of you, but every one of you can become a queen or a king and have princes and princesses of your own. It all depends on what you do. (The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, pp. 52; Lamanite Conf., San Diego North Stake (5/3/75)(pride in being Lamanite, missions.)

Bruce R. McConkie

Also at our Lord's return, the righteous dead shall come forth from their graves with celestial bodies to meet their God. They, then, as kings and priests, shall live and reign with Christ on earth in resurrected glory for a thousand years. (Rev. 5:10.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Vol 3:52.)

Elias to Seal 144,000 During the Sixth Seal:

Bruce R. McConkie

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, [1] converted, [2] baptized, [3] endowed, [4] married for eternity, and [5] finally sealed up unto eternal life, having their calling and election made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (Bruce R. McConkie, Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Vol 3:491.)

... the remnants of Israel shall be restored before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and that through the ordinances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priests, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D&C 77:9-11.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Vol 3:494.)

John Seeth the Hosts of the Exalted from all Nations

Bruce R. McConkie

Those who serve the Lord, "day and night in his temple," that is who keep the commandments in this life, shall rise as kings and priests to dwell with him on earth during the Millennial Era; and they are the ones who shall serve eternally in that kingdom where he and his Father shall dwell with them forever. (Bruce R. McConkie, Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Vol 3:496.)

Sealed in Forehead

Bruce R. McConkie

John foresaw that in the latter days the servants of God would plead with the Lord to stay the tide of desolation and destruction "till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads." (Rev. 7:3; 9:4; Ezek. 9:4-6.) With the restoration of the gospel, the power has again been given to seal men up unto eternal life (D. & C. 1:8-9; 68:12; 77:8-9), to place seal on them so that no matter what happens in the world, no matter what desolation sweeps the earth, yet they shall behaved in the day of the Lord Jesus. (D. & C. 88:84-85; 109:38, 46; 124:124; 131:5; 132: 19, 46, 49.)

Since these sealing blessings are conferred by the laying on of hands of those who hold the keys of this power, it follows that John's description of placing a seal in the forehead is not just apocalyptic imagery but a literal description ow what takes place. (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2 ed., p 683.)

Kings and priests
Joseph Fielding McConkie

The revelation on the degrees of glory describes those who obtain the highest heaven as having received the promise of "all things." These, it states, are "priests and kings" who have received the fullness of the glory of God. (D&C 76:55-56.) Later Joseph Smith explained that to have the fullness of the priesthood one "must be a king and priest," yet he assured us that "a person may be anointed king and priest long before he receives his kingdom" (HC 5:527). Such was also the doctrine of John the Revelator, who testified of Christ as he who had "washed us from our sins in his own blood, And hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen." (Revelation 1:5-6.)

In this passages and the endowment ceremony we learn that the Old Testament and Book of Mormon anointing of prophets, priests,a nd kings was not only a type and shadow of Christ but a representation of the blessings to be enjoyed by the faithful Saints of all ages. (Gospel Symbolism, Joseph Fielding McConkie, Bookcraft, p. 203.)

How to Join Church of the Firstborn

Joseph Fielding Smith

The Lord has made it possible for us to become members of the Church of the Firstborn, by receiving the blessings of the house of the Lord and overcoming all things. Thus we become heirs, "priests and kings, who have received of his fullness and of his glory," who shall "dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever, " with full exaltation.

I have said that only one man at a time on the earth holds the keys of this sealing power of the priesthood but he may, and dons, delegate power to others, and they officiate under his direction in the temples of the Lord. No man can officiate in these sealing ordinances until he receives the authority to do so by being se apart by the one who holds the keys, notwithstanding he may hold the priesthood. All the authority exercised in the temples is then, after all, the authority centered in one man. He has the power and calls upon others to officiate, and they seal upon us the keys and powers which, through our obedience, entitle us to become sons and daughters and members of the Church of the Firstborn, receiving all things in the kingdom. This is what we can get in the temple, so that we become members of the family, sons and daughters of God, not servants. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 2:42.)

Fullness of the Priesthood

HOW CHRIST GAINED FULLNESS OF PRIESTHOOD:

Joseph Fielding Smith

Joseph Smith said: If a man get a fullness of the priesthood of God, he has to get in the same way the Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord."

I hope we understand that. If we want to receive the fullness of the priesthood of God, then we must receive the fullness of the ordinances of the house of the Lord and keep his commandments. This idea that we can put off our salvation because of some weaknesses of the flesh until the end, and then our children will go and do this work for us in the temple of the Lord when we are dead, will get us nowhere. Salvation for the dead is for those who died without a knowledge of the gospel so far as celestial glory is concerned. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3:131.)

Fullness of Priesthood Not Dependent on Office Held:

Let me put this in a little different way. I do not care what office you hold in this Church--you may be an apostle, you may be a patriarch, a high priest, or anything else--you cannot receive the fullness of the priesthood unless you go into the temple of the Lord and receive these ordinances of which the Prophet speaks. No man can get the fullness of the priesthood outside of the temple of the Lord. There was a time when that could be done, for the Lord could give these things on the mountain tops--no doubt that is where Moses got it, that is not doubt where Elijah got it--and the Lord said that in the days of poverty, when there was no house prepared in which to receive these things, that they can be received on the mountain tops.

But now we have temples, and you cannot get these blessings on the mountain tops; you will have to go into the house of the Lord, and you cannot get the fullness of the priesthood unless you go there. Do not think because somebody has a higher office in this Church than you have that you are barred from blessings, because you can go into the temple of the Lord and get all the blessings there are that have been revealed, if you are faithful; you can have them sealed upon you sas an elder in this Church, and then you have all that any man can get. There have to be offices in the Church, and we are not all called to the same calling, but you can get the fullness of the priesthood in the temple of the Lord by obeying this which I have read to you. I want to make this emphatic. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3:131-132.)

Fullness of the Priesthood Required for Exaltation:

There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fullness of priesthood. How could a man be an heir in that kingdom without the priesthood? While the sisters do not hold the priesthood, they share in the fullness of its blessings in the celestial kingdom with their husbands. These blessings are obtained through obedience to the ordinances and covenants of the house of the Lord....

To obtain the fullness of the priesthood does not mean that man must become President of the Church. Every man who is faithful and will receive this ordinances and blessings obtains a fullness of the priesthood, and the Lord has said that "he makes them equal in power, and in might, and in dominion." Only one man at a time on the earth holds the keys of the priesthood; only one man at a time has the power to receive revelations for the Church, but the Lord has made possible for every man in this Church, through his obedience, to receive the fullness of the priesthood through the ordinances of the temple of the Lord. This cannot be received anywhere else. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3:132-133.)

Fullness of Priesthood for Living and Dead:

Joseph Fielding Smith

Only in the temple of the Lord can the fullness of the priesthood be received. Now that temples are on the earth, there is no other place where the endowment and the sealing powers for all eternity can be given. No man can receive the keys of exaltation in any other place.

Joseph Smith has said that, "the saints have not too much time to save and redeem their dead, and gather to gether their living relatives, that they may be saved also, before the earth will be smitten, and the consumption decreed falls upon the world." When that day comes, those who have professed to believe in the latter day work, and who have rejected the doctrine of the temple building and the ceremonial endowments therein, will find themselves shut out of the kingdom of God. This subject occupied the mind of the Prophet

Joseph Smith for several years before his death, for the Lord revealed to him all things pertaining to the work in the temples, and he revealed them unto others that the work might go on.

In the temples the saints are performing the ordinances which will insure, through faithfulness, the fullness of the blessings of the kingdom of God. During the past century the Church has been true to this calling, and the prospect for the future is good. This work will go on through the millennium, until redemption shall come to all who are worthy to receive it. In the words of the Prophet: "Let the dead speak forth anthems of eternal praise to the King Immanuel, who hath ordained, before the world was, that which would enable us to redeem them out of their prison; for the prisoners shall go free." (Gen. & His. Mag., Vol. 21, p. 57; D&C 128:22) (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3:132-133.)

Fullness of the Priesthood is in Sealing Power of Elijah

Joseph Fielding Smith

But now we have the fullness of the power of the priesthood. The Lord has restored the keys and authorities of all the dispensations and has made it possible, by the power of Elijah, to make every act performed by authority of force when men are dead or out of the world. Let us remember that the contracts, bonds, oaths, or performances, which are not entered into by the authority of this sealing power, are of no efficacy or virtue after man are dead. The house of the Lord is a house of order and everything in it is obedient to divine law. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3:134.)

Elijah the Prophet

Bruce R. McConkie

Because Elijah has come in this dispensation, fullness of salvation is again available for the living and the dead. He "was the last prophet that held the keys of the priesthood" in ancient Israel, the Prophet said. His latter day mission was to "restore the authority and deliver the keys of the priesthood, in order that all the ordinances may be attended to in righteousness.... Why send Elijah? Because he holds the keys of authority to administer in all the ordinances of the priesthood; without the authority is given, the ordinances could not be administered in righteousness." (Teachings, p. 172.)

"The spirit, power and calling of Elijah is," the Prophet also taught, "that ye have power to hold the key of the revelations, ordinances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fullness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of god, even unto the turning of the hearts of the fathers unto the children, and the hearts of the children unto the fathers, even those who are in heaven,....

"This is the spirit of Elijah, that we redeem our dead, and connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven, and seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection; and here we want the power of Elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven. This is the power of Elijah and the keys of the kingdom of Jehovah." (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)

"How shall God come to the rescue of this generation?" the Prophet asked. "He will send Elijah the Prophet.... Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers. The anointing and sealing is to be called, elected, and made sure." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p.

Bruce R. McConkie

The fullness of the gospel consists in those laws, doctrines, ordinances, powers, and authorities needed to enable men to gain the fullness of salvation. Those who have the gospel fullness don not necessarily enjoy the fullness of gospel knowledge understand all of the doctrines of the plan of salvation. But they do have the fullness of the priesthood and sealing power by which men can be sealed up unto eternal life. The fullness of the gospel grows out of the fullness of the sealing power and not out of the fullness of the gospel knowledge. (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 333.)

Keys of Salvation:

Bruce R. McConkie

The President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints holds the keys of salvation for all men now living because he is the only one by whose authorization the sealing power of the priesthood can be used to seal men up to salvation and exaltation in the kingdom of God. ["All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by (1) the Holy Spirit of promise, of (2) him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead.] (D&C 132:7.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 411.)

Holy Spirit of Promise

Bruce R. McConkie:

The Holy Spirit of Promise is the Holy Spirit promised the saints, or in other words the Holy Ghost. This name-title is used in connection with the sealing and ratifying power of the Holy Ghost, that is the power given him to ratify and approve the righteous acts of men so that those acts will be binding on earth and in heaven. "All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations," must be sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, if they are to have "efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead." (D&C 132:7.)

To seal is to ratify, to justify, or to approve. Thus an act which is sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise is one which is ratified by the Holy Ghost; it is one which is approved by the Lord; and the person who has taken the obligation upon himself is justified by the Spirit in the thing he has done. The ratifying seal of approval is put upon an act only if those entering the contract are worthy as a result of personal righteousness to receive the divine approbation. They "are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true." D&C 76:53.) If they are not just and true and worthy the ratifying seal is withheld. (See the a Facsimile From the Book of Abraham explanation Fig. 7. [We see what could be the tree of life which represents Christ or the Priesthood, and] "the sign of the Holy Ghost (the ratifying seal) unto Abraham.) [It appears from this picture that it could be interpreted that Christ or the Priesthood representative of Christ puts the first seal on an individual through the ordinances of the gospel, then the Holy Ghost ratifies and places his seal upon the act or ordinance, then the Father places the final seal of approval by inviting the individual into his kingdom to live the life that he lives.]

When any ordinance or contract is sealed by the Spirit, it is approved with a promise of reward, provided unrighteousness does not thereafter break the seal, remove the ratifying approval, and cause loss of the promised blessing. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 1 p. 55; Vol. 2 pp. 94-00.) Seals are placed on contracts through righteousness.

The operation and power of the Holy Spirit of Promise is best illustrated by the ordinance and contract of baptism. An unworthy candidate for baptism might deceive the elders and get the ordinance performed, but no one can lie to the Holy Ghost and get by undetected. Accordingly, the baptism of an unworthy and unrepentant person would not be sealed by the Spirit; it would not be ratified by the Holy Ghost; the unworthy person would not be justified by the Spirit in his actions. [Hence, the Savior taught, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of [1] the water and [2] of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. (John 3:5.) [1] The priesthood act preformed by Christ or one of his servants and [2] the Seal of the Holy Ghost must be accompanied by every ordinance of the gospel or as the Savior put it, "he cannot enter into the kingdom of God".] If thereafter he became worthy through repentance and obedience, the seal would then be put in force. Similarly, if a worthy person is baptized, with the ratifying approval of the Holy Ghost attending the performance, yet the seal may be broken by subsequent sin.

These principles also apply to every other ordinance and performance in the Church. Thus if both parties are "just and true," if they are worthy, a ratifying seal is placed on their temple marriage; if they are unworthy, they are not justified by the Spirit and the ratification of the Holy Ghost is withheld. Subsequent worthiness will put the seal in force, and unrighteousness will break any seal.

Even if a person progresses to that state of near-perfection in which his calling and election is made sure, in which he is "sealed up unto eternal life [by the Priesthood representative of Christ and ratified by the Holy Ghost]" (D&C 131:5; 132:18-26), in which he receives "the promise...of eternal life" (D&C 88:3-4), in which he is sealed up unto the day of redemption" (D&C 124:124; Eph 1:13)--yet with it all, these great promises are secured only if the "performances" are sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise. (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 362.)

Priesthood:

Bruce R. McConkie:

As pertaining to man's existence on this earth, priesthood is the power and authority of God delegated to man on earth to act in all things for the salvation of men. It is the power by which the gospel is preached; by which the ordinances of salvation are preformed so that they will be binding on earth and in heaven; by which men are sealed up unto eternal life, being assured of the fullness of the Father's kingdom hereafter; and by which in due course the Lord will govern the nations of the earth and all that pertains to them. (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., pp 136-200.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 594.)

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fullness of the priesthood," meaning the fullness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D&C 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) These, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communication of keys,: the Prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fullness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D&C 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30.)

"Those holding the fullness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the most high God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fullness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all of the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord.... All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive all the ordinances of his kingdom; and all those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p.482.)

Temple Ordinances:

Bruce R. McConkie

It is only through the ordinances of his holy house that the Lord deigns to "restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fullness of the priesthood." (D&C 124:28; 127:8; 128:17.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 637.)

Resurrection

Bruce R. McConkie

Those being resurrected with celestial bodies, whose destiny is to inherit a celestial kingdom, will come forth in the morning of the first resurrection. Their graves shall be opened and they shall be caught up to meet the Lord at his Second Coming. They are Christ's, the firstfruits, and they shall descend with him to reign as kings and priests during the millennial era. (D&C 29:13; 43:18; 76:50-70; 88:97-98; 1 Thess. 4:16-17; Rev 20: 3-7.) (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 640.)

Lamb of God

Bruce R. McConkie

In honor of the Lamb, a great choir of 100,000,000 ["and thousands of thousands"] voices of the redeemed shall sing this new song (Rev. 5:9-13):

Thou wast slain,
An hast redeemed us to God by thy blood
Out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;
And hast made us unto our God kings and priests:

And we shall reign on the earth....
Worthy is the Lamb that was slain
To receive power, and riches, and wisdom,
And strength, and honor, and glory, and blessings....
Blessing, and honor, and glory and power,
Be unto him that sitteth upon the throne,
And unto the Lamb for ever and ever. (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 429-430.)

...to marry for time and all eternity in the Patriarchal order, and to live and serve as the Lord Jesus did in his life and ministry.

In return the Lord covenants and promises to give them all that his Father hath, meaning eternal life, which is exaltation and godhood in that eternal realm where alone the family unit continues in eternity.

In return the Lord admits them to his eternal patriarchal order, an order that prevails in the highest heaven of the celestial world, an order that assures its members of eternal increase, or in other words of spirit children in the resurrection. (See D&C 131:1-4.)

These are the most glorious promises given to men. There neither is nor can be anything as wondrous and great. * * *

It is that priesthood is the very name of the power of God, and that if we are to become like him, we must receive and exercise his priesthood or power as he exercises it.

It is that he has given us an endowment of heavenly power here on earth, which is after the order of his Son and which, because it is the power of God, is of necessity without beginning of days or end of years.

It is that we can enter an order of the priesthood named the new and everlasting covenant of marriage (see D&C 131:2), named also the patriarchal order, because of which order we can create for ourselves eternal family units of our own, patterned after the family of God our Heavenly Father.

It is that we have power, by faith to govern and control all things, both temporal and spiritual; to work miracles and perfect lives; to stand in the presence of God and be like him because we have gained his faith, his perfections, and his power, or in other words the fullness of the priesthood. (The Doctrine of the Priesthood, Elder Bruce R. McConkie, Ensign, May 1982, pp. 32-33.)

President Gorden B. Hinckley

This small document [a temple recommend], simple in its appearance, certifies that the bearer has met certain precise and demanding qualifications and is eligible to enter the House of the Lord and there participate in the most sacred ordinances administered anywhere on earth. These ordinances are concerned not only with the things of life, but with the things of eternity. Only in the House of the Lord is the fullness of the everlasting priesthood exercised with authority reaching beyond the veil of death.

Everything that occurs in the temple is eternal in its consequences. We there deal with matters of immortality, with things of eternity, with things of man and his relationship to his Divine Parent and his Redeemer. Hands must be clean and hearts must be pure and thoughts concerned with the solemnities of eternity when in these sacred premises.

Gospel Mysteries

Here is taught the great plan of man's eternal journey. Here are solemnized covenants sacred and everlasting. Entering the temple is a privilege to be earned and not a right that automatically goes with Church membership. (Keeping the Temple Holy, President Gordon B. Hinckly, Ensign, May 1990, pp. 50-51.)

Elder Adney Y. Komatsu

...the Prophet Joseph Smith received the following revelation:

"For there is not a place found on earth that he may come to and restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fullness of the priesthood." ....(D&C 124:28-30, 40-41.)

In this revelation, which is recorded in section 124 of the Doctrine and covenants, reference is made to "the fullness of the priesthood." What is the meaning of that and how is it obtained? The Prophet Joseph Smith taught: "If a man gets a fullness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way the Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all of the ordinances of the house of the Lord. (Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, sel. Joseph Fielding Smith, Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Company, 1938, p. 308.)

President Joseph Fielding Smith further taught: "If you want salvation in the fullest, that is exaltation in the kingdom of God, so that you may become his sons and his daughters, you have got to go to the temple of the Lord and receive these holy ordinances which belong to that house, which cannot be had elsewhere. No man shall receive the fullness of eternity, of exaltation, alone; no woman shall receive that blessing alone; but man and wife, when they receive the sealing power in the temple of the Lord,...shall pass on to exaltation, and shall continue and become like the Lord. And that is the destiny of men; that is what the Lord desires for his children." (Doctrines of Salvation, comp. Bruce R. McConkie, 3 vols., Salt Lake City: Bookcraft, 1954-56, 2:44.)

It is clear, then, that unless we go to the temple of the Lord and receive all the ordinances and obey the commandments, we cannot receive a fullness of priesthood blessings and neither can we receive exaltation. These are wonderful blessings that have been made available to us through temple work. (The House of the Lord, Elder Adney Y. Komatsu, November Ensign 1983, pp. 27-28.)

A promise to the Faithful:

George Q. Cannon

It is not a strong assurance or hope that the Latter-day Saints have that they will receive these blessings in the eternal worlds; but when the promise is sealed upon their heads that they shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection and be crowned with glory, immortality and eternal lives, there is a testimony from God, our Eternal Father in the heavens above, which rests down upon them and confirms the truth of these words upon the soul of a faithful man or woman. They know, when words are pronounced upon them by a man who has the authority, sealing upon them blessings, keys, thrones, principalities, powers and exaltations in the eternal Kingdoms of God our Father,... that these words are not the words of men but that they are the words of the Spirit of God inspiring that man and that God takes a record of that ordinance in the heavens and that it is sealed upon them and upon their children and that they will actually come forth in the morning of the first resurrection according to the promise. Hence, there is no fear of death in the minds of the Latter-day Saints. (July 19, 1874, JD 17:136-38; Gospel Truth, Two Volumes In One, Discourses And Writings of George Q. Cannon, Compiled by Jerreld L. Newquist, 1987 Deseret Book Company, p. 29.)

Priests and Kings Upon Thrones:

George Q. Cannon

It is God's design to make us priests and kings, not to have an empty title, not to sit upon thrones without power but to be actually and really priests and kings. The promise is that all things the He hath shall be given unto us. We will be His heirs; we will be (if I may us the term without irreverence) co-partners with Him in all this power and authority.... (Apr. 9, 1899, CR 64-67; Gospel Truth, Two Volumes In One, Discourses And Writings of George Q. Cannon, Compiled by Jerreld L. Newquist, 1987 Deseret Book Company, p. 88.)

Heirs of God:

Remember the word! If we are heirs of God, why then we shall inherit the power and blessings and the glory of God our Eternal Father. This is what the Latter-day Saints ought to have constantly in view, "How can I live so as to become an heir of God and a joint heir with Jesus Christ? What course can I take to secure to myself celestial glory--a never-fading crown?" Not an empty bauble, not a barren scepter but a scepter of power, a scepter of dominion, a crown that means something real, a throne that means the kingly and queenly authority. This is what the Latter-day Saints have in view when they have their hearts fixed as they should be and their eyes opened to the glory that God has in store for the faithful. (April 27, 1990, Deseret Weekly (1888-98) 40:836; Gospel Truth, Two Volumes In One, Discourses And Writings of George Q. Cannon, Compiled by Jerreld L. Newquist, 1987 Deseret Book Company, p. 90.)

Kings with kingdoms:

We build temples and we administer and submit to ordinances and perform those things within them which will prepare us to dwell eternally with our God, with Jesus and the Apostles in the heavens. There each man will have his family and kingdom. It is said that God is Lord of lords and King of kings; but how can He be King of kings unless there be kings under Him to give him homage and pay respect unto Him and acknowledge Him as their Lord and their King?

When God led forth Abraham and told him that as the stars of the firmament were innumerable so should his seed be, He proclaimed to him the greatness of his kingdom in eternity. He told Abraham that he should be a king over this innumerable host; for, if Abraham were not to be king over them, of what use or glory would his posterity be to him? When God pointed

Abraham to the sand on the sea shore and told him that as it was countless so should his seed be, He told him in accents that could not be mistaken of the future glory of his eternal Kingdom. And if all mankind attained to the same promises as Abraham, they also would have an innumerable posterity to reign over. Reign on the Earth:

Many men wonder how it is that we can believe in celestial marriage. We believe in it because it lies at the foundation of all future greatness. If a man rules in heaven, he will rule over his own posterity. The Apostle John said that they sang a new song in heaven--"And hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Revelation 5:10.) Reign on the earth! This was the song. Over whom were they to reign? Over whom more properly than their families? (Aug. 10, 1873, JD 16:143; Gospel Truth, Two Volumes In One, Discourses And Writings of George Q. Cannon, Compiled by Jerreld L. Newquist, 1987 Deseret Book Company, p. 91.)

Other Worlds to be Created:

What will be their occupation? The exercise of that creative power that our Father and God has exercised in preparing this earth as the abode for man. He called together the elements and formed the earth as a habitation for man; and man, if he is faithful, will progress until he will do that very same thing for his posterity.

Abraham, standing at the head of an innumerable posterity, will find it necessary to have room. He will want to emigrate after awhile from this earth and find a new habitation for there will not be room enough on the glorified earth for him and his posterity in the coming eternity. Thus it is that the heavens are bespangled with the glorious orbs that we see at night--the creations of God, peopled by the children of God.

And all this God promises to us, if we are faithful. He says, "You shall be kings; you shall be queens; you shall sit upon thrones; you shall sway scepters, and you shall have power and dominion, if you prove yourselves faithful and true to Me; and you shall be My heirs, and joint heirs with My beloved Son, Jesus Christ, you Redeemer." (Oct. 9 1892, Deseret Weekly 1888-98, 45:619-20; Gospel Truth, Two Volumes In One, Discourses And Writings of George Q. Cannon, Compiled by Jerreld L. Newquist, 1987 Deseret Book Company, p. 92.)

Power of procreation Promised:

If I have children, if I have a wife, I shall have them in eternity. I shall preside over that family no matter how small it may be or how large it may extend. They will be my kingdom; for this is the promise of God. What is there that is more delightful in the contemplation of the future than this thought, that those with whom we are associated here, with whom our lives and happiness is entwined, who give unto us the greatest pleasure because of the love we have for them and they have for us, that that union shall be perpetuated throughout eternity and that there shall be an increase of that love and of that union and an increase also of that power, because the power of procreation is promised--the greatest power that man possess on the earth. That is promised unto those who are faithful. (Apr. 6, 1899, CR 19-20; Gospel Truth, Two Volumes In One, Discourses And Writings of George Q. Cannon, Compiled by Jerreld L. "A Diagram of the Kingdom of God."

Elder Orson Hyde
Millennial Star, IX,2 (January 15, 1847), pp. 23-4.

The above diagram shows the order and unity of the kingdom of God. The eternal Father sits at the head, crowned King of kings and Lord of lords. Wherever the other lines meet, there sits a king and a priest unto God, bearing rule, authority, and dominion under the Father. He is one with the Father, because his kingdom is joined to his Father's and becomes part of it.

The most eminent and distinguished prophets who have laid down their lives for their testimony (Jesus among the rest), will be crowned at the head of the largest kingdoms under the Father, and will be one with Christ as Christ is one with his Father; for their kingdoms are all joined together, and such as do the will of the Father, the same are his mothers: sisters, and brothers. He that has been faithful over a few things, will be made ruler over many things; he that has been faithful over ten talents, shall have dominion over ten cities, and he that has been faithful over five talents, shall have dominion over five cities, and to every man will be given a kingdom and a dominion, according to his merit, powers, and abilities to govern and control. It will be seen by the above diagram that there are kingdoms of all sizes, an infinite variety to suit all grades of merit and ability. The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the temple of God on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, (for the fulness of the priesthood includes the authority of both king and priest) and have not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom. but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown, or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom.

While this portion of eternity that we now live in, called time, continues, and while the other portions of eternity that we may hereafter dwell in, continue, those lines in the foregoing diagram, representing kingdoms, will continue to extend and be lengthened out; and thus, the increase of our kingdoms will increase the kingdom of our God, even as Daniel hath said:"Of the increase of his kingdom and government there shall be no end." All these kingdoms are one kingdom, and there is a King over kings, and a Lord over lords. There are Lords many, and Gods many, for they are called Gods to whom the word of God comes, and the word of God comes to all these kings and priests. But to our branch of the kingdom there is but one God, to whom we all owe the most perfect submission and loyalty; yet our God is just as subject to still higher intelligences, as we should be to him.

The great fault of all nations has been, that they would worship more Gods than one. They well knew that there was more than one God, and vainly sought to worship all they imagined. We well know that there are more sovereigns than one over the kingdoms of this world, but would it not be folly in the extreme for an Englishman to attempt to serve other kings and rulers, while a subject of her Majesty, and living within her dominions? Most certainly it would: his Queen would be jealous of him, but if there was no other power to serve, she never would be jealous; there would be no room for fear or suspicion. If there was only one man on earth, that one man would never be jealous of his wife. Our God says that he is a jealous God; but how could he be jealous if he were the only God? These kingdoms, which are one kingdom, are designed to extend till they not only embrace this world, but every other planet that rolls in the blue vault of heaven. Thus will all things be gathered in one during the dispensation of the fulness of times, and the Saints will not only possess the earth, but all things else, for, says Paul, "All things are yours, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's."

FILE:#14 ESTABLISH KINGDOM OF GOD ON EARTH

To Establish the Kingdom of God:

What are we engaged in? We are engaged in building up the kingdom of God, and many of you have been ordained by the revelations of the Almighty to hold the power and authority of the Holy Priesthood. Besides this, you have been ordained kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to your Lord; you have been put in possession of principles that all the kings, potentates, and powers upon the earth are entirely ignorant of they do not understand it; but you have received this from the hands of God.

The kingdom is put upon the shoulders of President Young and this people to carry it out, and by whom? By the Lord God--by him who holds dominion throughout the universe; by him who created all by the word of his power; by him who said, "Let there be light;" by him who spake, and the worlds rolled into existence. By him you received rights that are not of this world--rights that flow from the great Eloheim.

What are we going to do, then? We are going to establish the Kingdom of God upon the earth. This is our privilege--our right, if you please. But I consider it a high privilege--the greatest boon that can be bestowed upon mortals on the earth, to be the representatives of God. (JD, Vol. 5:189-190, John Taylor August 30, 1857.)

Elijah the Prophet
His latter-day mission was to "restore the authority and deliver the keys of the priesthood, in order that all the ordances may be attended to in righteousness.... Why send Elijah? Because he holds the keys of the authority to administer in all the ordinances of the priesthood; and without the authority is given, the ordinances could not be administered in righteousness." (Teachings, p. 172.)

Gospel Mysteries

"The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is," the Prophet also taught, "that ye have power to hold the key of the revelations, ordiances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God, even unto the turning of the hearts of the fathers unto the children, and the hearts of the children unto the fathers, even those who are in heaven....
"This is the spirit of Elijah, [1] that we redeem our dead, and [2] connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven, and [3] seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection; and here is the power of Elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven. This is the power of Elijah and the keys of the kingdom of Jehovah." (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)
"How shall God come to the rescue of this generation?" the Prophet asked. "He will send Elijah the Prophet....Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers. The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called, [2] elected, and [3] made sure." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224-225).

[Here we see a number of significant things: 1. The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is to bestow the Fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood-which is to receive all the ordiances of the temple.
2. We learn that it is the Power of
a. Revelations
b. ordiances
c. oracles
d. powers
e. endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood
f. and of the kingdom of God on the earth
g. and to receive
h. obtain
i. perform all the ordiances belonging to the kingdom of God,
j. sealing the children to the fathers.
"...to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven" (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)

3. We learn that it is the power in the to seal up our dead [and ourselves to come forth in the first resurrection which is a joint sealing contained in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial mariage. (D & C 132:19.)

4."It is to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers." (Teachings, p. 323.)
This is contained as part of the joint blessing that husband and wife receive together or not at all; That of sealing children to parents all the way back to Adam and Eve and from them to Our heavenly Father and Mother for this is a Joint blessing or not at all.
5. The Power of Elijah which is fulfilled within the New and Everlasting Covenant contains the following:
" The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called [to join the church and receive the fulness of the priesthood], [2] elected [to receive the Melchizedek Priesthood and the New and everlasting covenant of Celestial Marriage, and [3] the crowning ordinance of the Fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage is to receive the fulness of the priesthood to be annointed and made a king and priest and queen and preistess and become a member of the Church of the Firstborn and all these are then to be sealed] and made sure [by 1. the sealing power of the Priesthood and 2. the ratifing seal of the Holy Ghost..." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224).

First Vision

Our knowledge of God's dealings with his children from the days of Adam to the present leads us to believe that bothe the Father and the Son have been manifested to other prophets in other ages. Joseph Smith, himself, on at least two other occasions saw these heavenly Beings in vision (D. & C. 76:22-24; Teachings, p. 107), and Stephen beheld them as the murderous mob stoned him to death. (Acts 7:54-60.) Indee, it is the privilege of those who attain the Second Comforter to have the Son "manifest the Father" unto them. (Teachings, pp. 149-151; John 14:23; D. & C. 130:3.)

Fulness of the Father The express fulness of the Father has reference to his position of power, glory, perfection, and godhood, The "fulness of the glory of the Father" consists in the possession of "all power, both in heaven and on earth [D&C 132:19]." (D. & C. 93: 16-17.) God is an exalted Man, and exaltation consists in having the fulness of all powers, all attributes, and all perfections. (D. & C. 76; 93; 132.) [No one can have this singly but needs their complementry part to hold and have all power, the power to creat life...]

The plan of exaltation is one whereunder those who fill the full measure of their creation are able to progress to that state wherein they will gain the fulness of the Father. Christ is the Examplar; he went from grace to grace until finally after the resurrection he gained the fulness of all things, including the fulness of truth, knowledge, and power. (Matt. 28:18; D. & C. 93:6-30.)

Obedience to the whole law of crowning ordiance of celestial marriage, is the way whereby the fulness of the Father may be gained. Those so married, who keep their covenants, shall go on " to their exaltation and glory in all things,...which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:6, 19-20; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 24, 44-45, 62-63.)

Joseph Smith taught: "All those who keep his [the Father's] commandments shall grow up from grace to grace, and become heirs of the heavenly kingdom, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ; possessing the same mind, being transformed into the same image or likeness, even the express image of him who fills all in all; being filled with the fulness of his glory, and become one in him, even as the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are one.... As the son partakes of the fulness of the Father through the Spirit so the saints are, byt eh same Spirit, to be partakers of the same fulness, to enjoy the same glory; for as the Father and the Son are one, so, in like manner, the saints are to be one in them. Through the love of the Father, the mediation of Jesus Christ, and the gift of the Holy Spirit, they are to be heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ." (Lectures on Faith, pp. 50-52; 3 Ne. 28:10-11.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 300-301.)

Resurrection

...Those beings[s] resurrected with celestial bodies, whose destiny is to inherit a celestial kingdom, will come forth in the morning of the first resurrection. Their graves shall be opened and they shall be caught up to meet the Lord at his Second Coming. They are Christ's, the firstfruits, and they shall descend with him to reign as kings and priests durring the millennial era. (D. & C. 29:13; 43:18; 76:50-70; 88:97:98; 1 Thess. 4:16-17; Rev. 20:3-7.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 640.)

D. & C. 45:55

Gospel Mysteries

"And because of the righteousness of his people, Satan has no power; wherefore, he cannot be loosed for the space of many years; for he hath no power over the hearts of the people, for they dwell in righteousness, and the Holy One of Israel reigneth." (1 Ne. 22:26.)

PROGRESSION BETWEEN KINGDOMS

by Richard Ware

1. The position of the Church today is, that it has no position one way or the other. This is so even though there have been brethren who have taught for and against the idea.

2. Those who have taught against the idea apparently are concerned that the Latter-day Saints will procrastinate their repentance if they thought they could sin now and latter get into the Celestial kingdom. This seemed to be Joseph Fielding Smith's concern in Doctrines of Salvation.

3. Latter-day Saints are bound only to follow those teachings which are set forth authoritatively in the 4 standard works, and in the official pronouncements by the First Presidency. Writings and publicatins of the General Authorities are considered to be their own opinions and do not reflect Church position. Examples of this are the two books Mormon Doctrine and Man, His Origin and Destiny. The First Presidency, in response to an enquiry as to whether they reflected the church's position, stated that they reflected the opinions of the writers only, and that they did not reflect the position of the church.

4. The principle of advancement between kingdoms is tied directly with the idea that an individual will never cease to progress in knowledge, wisdom, and dominion. In order for an individual to progress between kingdoms he must be able to increase his light and knowledge.

5. Apparently those in the highest degree of the celestial kingdom will be able to reach down into the lower kingdoms and redeem their family members, close friends, and others. These will be "adopted" into their kingdoms and will forever serve the person who redeems them. Thus there will never be any worry about who is progressing fastest.

6. A person will be able to increase his kingdom in the eternal worlds in two ways: (1) through procreation---having spirit offspring, and (2) by doing "missionary" work in the lower kingdoms. Those who are redeemed through your efforts become adopted into your kingdom as your sons and daughters.

7. Just as the moon appears to fill up and empty out each month, just so does the Terrestrial kingdom fill up from those below, and empties out into those kingdoms above it. The individuals who leave the Terrestrial glory for the celestial glory apparently go in as servants first, then enter marriage as monogamists, and then enter the highest degree of the celestial kingdom as polygamists, sealed up to eternal life, having all power and dominion over their own kingdoms, but always subject to the person or God who redeemed them from the lower kingdoms.

PROGRESSION BETWEEN KINGDOMS

1. "Words of the Prophet", p. 24 ("Scriptural Items"); Scribe: Franklin D. Richards, August 1, 1843; CHO?Ms/d/4409/Misc Minutes Collection.

Hiram [Smith] said Aug lst [18]43 Those of the Terrestrial Glory either advance to the Celestial or recede to the Telestial [or] else the moon could not be a type [viz. a symbol of that kingdom]. [for] it [the moon] "waxes & wanes". Also that br George will be quickened by celestial glory having been ministered to by one of that Kingdom.

2. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; August 5, 1855.

He [Brigham Young] thought they [those of lower kingdoms] would eventually have the privilege of proving themselves worthy and advancing to a celestial kingdom but it would be a slow progress.

3. J.D. 25:236; Franklin D. Richards; Discourse delivered in the Tabernacle, Logan, Cache County; Saturday afternoon; May 17, 1884.

. . .but those in the terrestrial kingdom are those who will come forth at the time when Enoch comes back, when the Savior comes again to dwell upon the earth. . . .They will go forward, like unto the new moon, increasing in knowledge and brightness and glory, until they come to a fullness of celestial glory. During the Millennium multitudes of people who have not heard the gospel will hear and receive it and go forward into this glory, while those who will not go forward to a fullness will go back to that lesser glory which is likened unto the stars of heaven. . . .

4. The Articles of Faith, by James E. Talmage; lst Edition, pp. 420-421, 1899.

25. It is reasonable to believe, in the absence of direct revelation by which alone absolute knowledge of the matter could be acquired, that, in accordance with God's plan of eternal progression, advancement from grade to grade within any kingdom, and from kingdom to kingdom, will be provided for. But if the recipients of a lower glory be enabled to advance, surely the intelligences of higher rank will not be stopped in their progress; and thus we may conclude, that degrees and grades will ever characterize the kingdoms of our God. Eternity is progressive; perfection is relative; the essential feature of God's living purpose is its associated power of eternal increase.

5. Improvement Era 14:87; November 1910; Pres. Joseph F. Smith.

[O]nce a person enters these glories there will be eternal progress in the line of each of these particular glories, but. . .the privilege of passing from one to another (though this may be possible for especially gifted and faithful characters) is not provided for.

6. The Articles of Faith, by James E. Talmage; 12th Edition, pp. 420-421; 1917.

25. It is reasonable to believe, in the absence of direct revelation by which alone absolute knowledge of the matter could be acquired, that, in accordance with God's plan of eternal progression, advancement within each of the three specified kingdoms will be provided for; though as to possible progress from one kingdom to another the scriptures make no positive affirmation. Eternal advancement along different lines is conceiable. We may conclude that degrees and grades will ever characterize the kingdoms of our God. Eternity is progressive; perfection is relative; the essential feature of God's living purpose is its associated power of eternal increase.

7. Discourse delivered in the Ogden Tabernacle, 22 September 1922, Melvin J. Ballard; See Three Degrees of Glory, by N. B. Lundwall.

Those whose lives have entitled them to terrestrial glory can never gain celestial glory. One who gains possession of the lowest degree of the telestial glory may ultimately arise to the highest degree of that glory, but no provision has been made for promotion from one glory to another.

8. Letter from Orson F. Whitney to Elder R. Bruce Major of Kaysville, Utah; 13 December 1923; BYU HBLee Library Archives/Mss 15/Bxl/fd3/0rson F. Whitney Papers.

Dear Brother Major:

The first good opportunity to answer your letter of the 6th instant now presents itself. Read Doctrine and Covenants, Section 76, 109th to 112th paragraphs, and you will have about all I know upon the subject you mention. The rest is mere conjecture, and may be right or wrong. The passages quoted apply to the Telestial Kingdom, and the 112th paragraph reads as follows: "And they shall be servants of the Most High; but where God and Christ dwell they cannot come, worlds without end."
Whether the same or similar restrictions obtain in the Terrestrial Kingdom, is not stated. But I infer that they do, since the Son, and not the Father, ministers in person to them, just as the Holy Spirit, and not the Son, ministers to the Telestial. See paragraph 77; same Section: "These are they who receive of the presence of the Son, but not the fulness of the Father." Concerning the Telestial inhabitants, it is said:--"These are they who receive not of his fulness in the eternal world, but of the Holy Spirit through the ministration of the Terrestrial; "and the Terrestrial through the ministration of the Celestial". (paragraphs 86 and 87.)
What bounds, if any, are put upon the Celestial inhabitants, is not revealed; but we are told, in Section 130, that "a white stone is given to each of those who come into the Celestial Kingdom, whereon is a new name written, which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it." And this follows a statement in paragraph 10, same Section, to the effect that this white stone, which is also mentioned in John's Revelation (2:17) will become a Urim and Thummim to each individual who receives one, whereby things pertaining to a higher order of kingdoms will be made known." Query: Would this white (seer) stone be needed, if they could [p. 2] ascend in person to those higher kingdoms?
It is often argued that eternal progression which is doubtless the privilege of all in the hereafter as well as here will eventually enable the inhabitants of the lesser glories to advance beyond them and become residents and possessors of the highest degree of glory. This may or may not be the case.

It seems to me that the inhabitants of any kingdom of glory might progress eternally in their own sphere, without transcending it. All would depend, I think, upon whether they are or can become possessed of the necessary power to thus advance. The Telestial inhabitants, who are they that "are cast down to hell", but afterwards redeemed therefrom, may have lost something in the process that has cleansed them of their sins and made them worthy to rise even to the least degree of glory.
Moreover, these are they who receive not the gospel of Christ, "neither the testimony of Jesus, neither the prophets, neither the everlasting covenant." Consequently they are not in the Church the Church of the First Born, which comprises those in the Celestial Kingdom, (Section 76, paragraphs 82,84,85, and 101) where God and Christ dwell. It does not say that they cannot pass into the Terrestrial Kingdom, but it does declare most positively that "where God and Christ dwell they cannot come, worlds without end."
Hoping this will partly answer your questions and serve your purpose, I remain, Your brother, OFW.

9. Outlines of Ecclesiastical History, 4th Edition, by Brigham H. Roberts; 1925; "The Restoration of the Gospel", pp. 416-417.

The question of advancement within the great divisions of glory--celestial, terrestrial, and telestial; as also the question of advancement from one sphere of glory to another, remains to be considered. In the revelation from which we have summarized what has been written here, in respect to the different degrees of glory, it is said that those of the terrestrial glory will be ministered unto by those of the celestial; and those of the telestial will be ministered to by those of the terrestrial---that is, those of the higher glory minister to those of a lesser order of glory. We can conceive of no reason for all this administration of the higher to the lower, unless it be for the purpose of advancing our Father's children along the lines of eternal progression. Whether or not in the great future, full of so many possibilities now hidden from us, they of the lesser glories after education and advancement within those spheres may at last emerge from them and make their way to the higher degrees of glory until at last they attain to the highest, is not revealed in the revelations of God, and any statement made on the subject must partake of more or less the nature of conjecture.
But if it be granted that such a thing is possible, they who at the first entered into the celestial glory---having before them the privilege also of eternal progress---have been moving onward, so that the relative distance between them and those who have fought their way up from the lesser glories, may be as great when the latter have come into the degrees of celestial glory in which the righteous at first stood, as it was at the commencement; and thus between them is an impassable gulf which time cannot destroy. Thus: those whose faith and works in this like were such as to entitle them to entrance into the celestial kingdom---they may arrive where these were, but never where they are. But if it be granted that the chief fact about Intelligences is that they have power to add fact to fact and thus build up knowledge, and through knowledge have wisdom, and thus make progress; and if to such intelligences there is granted eternal life---immortality---then it is useless to postulate any limitations for them; for in the passing of even a few thousands of millions of years, even if progress be very slow---there will come a time when these intelligences--men and women of even the telestial glory---may become very acceptable characters, and very important personages.

10. Letter from the First Presidency, dated March 5, 1952, signed by Joseph Anderson, secretary to the First Presidency.

[Note: See end of this compilation for letter]

11. Doctrines of Salvation, 2:28-29, by Joseph Fielding Smith, 1955 Edition.

It has been asked if it is possible for one who inherits the telestial glory to advance in time to the celestial glory?
The answer to this question is, No!
The scriptures are clear on this point. Speaking of those who go to the telestial kingdom, the revelation says: "And they shall be servants of the Most High; but where God and Christ dwell they cannot come, worlds without end." (D&C 76:112)
Notwithstanding this statement, those who do not comprehend the word of the Lord argue that while this is true, that they cannot go where God is "worlds without end," yet in time they will get where God was, but he will have gone on to other heights.
This is false reasoning, illogical, and creates mischief in making people think they may procrastinate their repentance, but in course of time they will reach exaltation in celestial glory.

12. Evidences & Reconciliations, by John A. Widtsoe, 1960

Progress means a moving forward from place to place, from knowledge to knowledge, from action to action. It is a process of adding to that which we now possess, by the elimination of errors, by the actual accretion of new truth, and by the development of greater self-mastery. It is a process by which increased power of every faculty is gained. It is a process of growth and development, a movement towards greater maturity. It is a steady approach to the likeness of God. (p. 179)
They who so employ their time and talents properly, whether here or hereafter, increase in knowledge. That is, the beginning of wisdom. There is no end to knowledge. . . .What then is eternal progress? It is an eternity of active life, increasing in all good things, toward the likeness of the Lord. It is the highest conceivable form of growth. (pp. 182-183)
Is There Progress in Heaven?
Those in lower kingdoms cannot "overtake" those in higher kingdoms. What may happen if the man with less power uses it steadily in the spirit of repentance through the eternal years is not known to man. That knowledge rests as yet in the bosom of God. (pp. 184-185)
Is it possible to progress from one glory to another? Lower kingdoms will progress, but they will not "overtake" higher kingdoms.

13. Church News, 23 April 1960, p.3; President J. Reuben Clark (member of the First Presidency at the time).
I am not a strict constructionalist, believing that we seal our eternal progress by what we do here. It is my belief that God will save all of His children that he can; and while, if we live unrighteously here, we shall not go to the other side in the same status, so to speak, as those who lived righteously; nevertheless, the unrighteous will have their chance, and in the eons of the eternities that are to follow, they, too, may climb to the destinies to which they who are righteous and serve God, have climbed to those eternities that are to come.

There are those who say that there is progression from one kingdom to another in the eternal world. Or if not that, lower kingdoms eventually progress to where higher kingdoms once were. This is worse than false. It is an evil and pernicious doctrine.

Dear Brother:

The brethren direct me to say that the Church has never announced a definite doctrine upon this point. Some of the brethren have held that it was possible in the course of progression to advance from one glory to another, invoking the principle of eternal progression; others of the Brethren have taken the opposite view. But as stated, the Church has never announced a definite doctrine on this point.

Sincerely your brother,

[Note: The inquiry which prompted the above statement said, in part: "Dear Brother: Please inform me to the teaching of the Church regarding the possibility of a person progressing from one kingdom to another after the resurrection."]

Dear Brother Christensen:

Reference is made to your letter of December 7th in which you inquire what the teaching of the Church is relative to the possibility of progression from one particular glory to another after the resurrection.

The brethren direct me to say that the Church has never announced a definite doctrine upon this point, though some have held the view that it was possible in the course of progression to advance from one glory to another, invoking the principle of eternal progression; others have taken an opposite view. As indicated, however, the Church has never announced a definite doctrine on this point.

Sincerely your brother,

LDS BIBLE DICTIONARY:

ARMAGEDDON:

A greek transliteration from the Hebrew Har Megiddon, or Mountain of Megiddo. The valley of Megiddo is in the western portion of the plain of Esdraelon 50 miles north of Jerusalem. Several times the valley of Megiddo was the scene of violent and crucial battles during O.T. times (Judg. 5:19; 2 Kgs. 9:27; 23: 29). A great and final conflict taking place at the second coming of the Lord is called the battle of Armageddon because it too will be fought in the same locale and will be decisive. See Zech. 11-14, especially 12:11; Rev. 16. 16:14-21.

MORMON DOCTRINE BY : Bruce R. McConkie

BATTLE OF ARMAGEDDON:

Some 60 air miles north of Jerusalem lies the ancient city of Megiddo (now called Tell el-Mutesellim). In its north-central Palestinian location, Megiddo overlooks the great plain of Esdraelon, an area of some 20 by 14 miles in which many great battles took place anciently. Megiddo is the older Hebrew form of Armageddon or Har-Magedon meaning the Mount or Hill of Megiddo, or the Hill of Battles; it is "the valley of Megiddon" mentioned in Zachariah. (Zech. 12:11.)
At the very moment of the Second Coming of our Lord, "all nations" shall be gathered "against Jerusalem to battle" (Zech. 11:12; 13; 14), and the battle of Armageddon (obviously covering the entire area from Jerusalem to Megiddo, and perhaps more) will be in progress. As John expressed it, "the kings of the earth and the whole world" will be gathered "to the battle of that great day of God Almighty,...into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon." Then Christ will "come as a thief," meaning unexpectedly, and the dramatic upheavals promised to accompany his return will take place. (Rev. 16:14-21.) It is incident to this battle of Armageddon that the Supper of the Great God shall take place (Rev. 19:11-18), and it is the same battle described by Ezekiel as the war with Gog and Magog. (Ezek. 38; 39; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 3, p. 45.)

GOG AND MAGOG:

Our Lord is to come again in the midst of the battle of Armageddon, or in other words during the course of the great war between Israel and Gog and Magog. At the Second Coming all the nations of the earth are to be engaged in battle, and the fighting is to be in progress in the area of Jerusalem and Armageddon. (Zech. 11; 12; 13; Rev. 16:14-21.) The prophecies do not name the modern nations which will be fighting for and against Israel, but the designation Gog and Magog is given to the combination of nations which are seeking to overthrow and destroy the remnant of the Lord's chosen seed.

The 38th and 39th chapters of Ezekiel record considerable prophetic detail relative to this great war. It should be noted that it is to take place "in the latter years"; that it will be fought in the "mountains of Israel" against those who have been gathered to the land of their ancient inheritance; that the land of Israel shall be relatively unprotected, a "land of unwalled villages"; that Gog and Magog shall come "out on the north parts" in such numbers as "to cover the land" as a cloud; that the Lord will then come, and all men shall shake at his presence; that there will be such an earthquake as has never before been known, which will throw down the mountains; that there will be pestilence, blood, fire, and brimstone descend upon the armies; that the forces of Gog and Magog will be destroyed upon the mountains of Israel; that the Supper of the Great God shall then take place as the beasts and fowls eat the flesh and drink the blood of the fallen ones (Rev. 19:17-18; D. & C. 29: 18-21); and that the house of Israel will be seven months burying the dead and seven years burring the discarded weapons of war.
In light of all this and much more that is prophetically foretold abut the final great battles in the holy land, is it any wonder that those who are scripturally informed and spiritually enlightened watch world events with great interest as troubles continue to foment in Palestine, Egypt, and the Near East?

RUSSIA, WORLD WAR III & ARMAGEDDON
By Dr. Jack Van Impe's

Russia, nation in conflict. God's instrument to fulfill and end time prophecy. World War III, will it be fought with conventional armor or nuclear weapons?

Armageddon. Satan's last attempt to thwart the eternal plan of Almighty God. Russia, World War III & Armageddon!

I am going to be using the materials of some great and outstanding men. Great Scholars of the 20th Century. Dr. L Sal Harrison; Dr. DeHahn; Dr. Gableive; Dr. Schofield; Dr. Marmilow; Dr. Charles Pont; Dr. Loui Talbot; Dr. Edmann; Dr. Lackier; Dr. Bowmann; Dr. Dwight Pennycost; Dr. John Wolbert; Dr. Wilber Smith; The International Standard Bible Encyclopedia; the Encyclopedia Britannica; the ancient historian Flavious Josephus; and then of course Gibbons who penned the Fall and Decline of the Roman Empire.

If one has the Scolfield Edition of the bible and reads the footnotes on Ezekiel 38 & 39. Dr. Scolfield said this is Russia. Moscow and Tubolsk. But, when did he say it. When one turns to the front of the Scolfield Bible and reads the following, "All notes copyrighted 1909. Over 80 years ago.

Bishop Baldy, 220 years ago preached the coming war with Russia according to the Bible similarly to what I am going to say today.
First of all, let's begin with the identification of the nations [that will play an important part in this battle].

Ezekiel 38:1-2:

And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

Son of man, set thy face against Gog, the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him,

Who are these names? Where do they originate? The first one is Gog. It means nothing more or less than "End Time Ruler".

[GOG: (1) A Reubenite (1) (1 Chr. 5:1-4) [Now the sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel,... The sons... of Reuben the firstborn of Israel were, Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi. The Sons of Joel; Shemaiah his son, Gog his son Shimei his son,...] (2) King of Magog, whose invasion of Israel was prophesied by Ezekiel. (LDS BIBLE DICTIONARY)]

The other names begin to tell the story. Magog, Mesheck, Tubal, the chief prince [Rush]. Where do they originate?

Genesis 10:1-3:

Now these are the generations of the sons of Noah, Shem, Ham and Japeth: and unto them were sons born after the flood.

The Sons of Japeth; Gomer and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras.

These are grandsons of Noah trough the gentile Japheth. After the flood the settled in Asia Minor. Where did they go from there?

First of all Magog:

He left Asia Minor and went to the land we now call Russia settling with the Caucasus (sp) mountains was his southern boundary. The ancient historians Josephus book I chapter 6 says that the Centimes (sp) that settled there were called by the Greeks Magog or Magogates.

Next we see Mesheck:

He left Asia Minor and went to the western part of the land we now call Russia settling in what we presently call Moscow. If one were to take this term Mesheck he would find that that was the first name used to identify this place called Moscow. It was Mesheck, later changed to Moscok (sp), then to Mosketi (sp), then to Moscov (sp), hence we have Moscovites and finally, as you and I know it Moscow. That's why Scolfield in 1909 in the footnotes said Moscow for Mesheck.

Next Tubal:

He left to Asia Minor and went to the Eastern part of the land we call Russia settling in the Siberian area. This is interesting. Get a world map. Run your finger over to Siberia, then South-West of Siberia is Tubalsk. We say in the bible it's Tubal and on the Map we Tubalsk. Why, because the Russian suffix "sk" has been added to the end of the word. And it may interest you to not that when the Bulsivisks (sp) marched into Russia, they took Zar Nicholas and his family and assassinated them, murdered them. In Tubal, right there in your bible Ezekiel 38:2.

Next "the chief prince:

There is a special name here and in our English version [of the Bible Ezek. 38:2] it says "chief prince". If I had the Hebrew Bible for the Old Testament that was written in Hebrew. I would have the word A uosh Rush (sp). Well, why does it say "chief prince" in the English version, because they put the meaning of the name rather than the name. For instance, a man's name can be Bill. But a bill is also something someone pays. My name is Jack. A jack also hold up a car while changing a tire. What they did was put the meaning of the name Rush, the head of state, a chief, rather than the name Rush. But Rush was the tribe dwelling in the area of Avolda (sp) according to the scholar Josineus. Now the Greek is Rucia eventually changed to the Russia of the present.

Dr. Wilber Smith, delved into this subject and he got the materials from the Soviet Union on how the Russians got their modern name Russia. This is unbelievable! It's the eleventh Century, and the Northern Barbarian Hordes are attacking Constantinople. The Emperor said "who are these Northern Barbarians? They seem to have to have no name. And he came across Ezekiel 38:2, Rush in the Hebrew Bible [the "chief prince" in the English as previously explained]. Ladies and Gentleman, do you know that for the next 800 years, the people from that time until the nineteenth century called these folks "Rush" or "Rucians", as we now call them Russians. But there is more.

They come from the north: Now if you were to get a map and put your finger on Israel and go directly north, you will run your finger up to the USSR, because Russia is north of Israel.

Over and over this book [the bible] it says that when this battle takes place they're going to come from the north against Israel. For instance:

Ezekiel 38:15

And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts,

Ezekiel 39:2

And I will turn you back, and leave but the sixth part of thee, and will cause thee to come up from the north parts,

Daniel 11:13

For the king of the north shall [invade]

Daniel 11:44

[Is] tidings our of the east [there we have the Orient, China and her hordes] and the north shall trouble him [who is him. This Antichrist, this world dictator who will be setting in a temple in Jerusalem, 2 Thess. 2:4:

Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as god sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God.

So we see them coming from the north against "him". But, this is amazing. Dr. Hahn said over 60 years ago, "I challenge anyone to debate me on Joel 2:20. There is no doubt about it this is Russia. Why? Because the Geographical circumstances demand this to be so. In Joel chapter 2:20 talking about this hour in history when they are going to come from the north against Israel it says:

I will remove far off from you the northern army and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face toward the east sea, and his hinder part toward the utmost sea,

The only place north of Israel with a barren area "Siberia" with two oceans surrounding it is the USSR. We are living in tremendous times as we see these things all coming to pass.

Now, Who is going to Unite with the Soviet Union:

Is this in the bible? Yes.Ezekiel Chapter 38 verse 5:

Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya with them; all of them with shield and helmet:

Gomer, and all his bands; the house of Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands: and many people with thee.

Persia:

Remember the old Persian empire? They changed their name to Iran in 1932. Bible prophecy was beginning to be fulfilled.

Next we see Ethiopia:

When these people were starving to death, just a few years ago, that the food couldn't get through was because of communist control not allowing the food to get through. They became communistic.

Next we see Libya:

Kadafy (sp).

Then we see Gomer and all his bands:

Gibbons in his writings the Fall and Decline of the Roman Empire, Vol 1:page 204, says, Gomer is modern Germany. The oldest maps of the world where Germany is now located, had on them Gomer, Gomerlot, Gomeria, and Aushkenez (sp) his son. In fact, many of the Jews that came out of came out of Germany to Kessler Aushletch (sp) and other places were called the Aushkenauzies (sp), because of their German influence in their lives.

I have been astounded as to what has been happen in Germany over the last few months. And I believe it, and I have been saying it for 37 years that their will be a unification, because it says, "Gomer and all of his bands" uniting with the nation called Russia as they come from the north against Israel.

The next term is Togarmah of the north quarters, and all of his bands:

Dr. Ramond Edmand said, I have spent hundreds of hours on research on one term in the Bible, Togarmah, and have concluded that it is Turkey, and Turkey of course is north of Israel.

There is more. Togarmah fathered Haik who settled Ceria. And right in our day we find the Ceria is even preparing for attach on the future on Israel, but they will only be united under the label, "The great northern Bear".

We find in Daniel 11:40-44: Egypt will be involved with all their Arabs. But verse 44: "tidings out of the east [China] and out of the north [Russia] shall trouble him [this Antichrist that sits in that temple in Jerusalem; 2 Thess. 2:4; [Jerusalem as shown in the Book of Mormon, when it says that Christ would be born in Jerusalem shows that the people of this time looked at the whole region as Jerusalem, not just what we call Jerusalem today---Perhaps this could be a King like King Hussain of Jordan who sets in a temple or palace in Jordan???]:"

We will show you the other side. Now, who is going to oppose them? Ezekiel 38:13:

Sheba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions thereof...

Sheba and Dedan:

According to the Encyclopedia Britannica are in the Arabian Panniculi. They are oil rich lands such Sadia Arabia. They will probably want to remain with the western democracies because of the wealth and the income that they are getting from their oil.

And then we see Tarshish:

Every time that we see Tarshish in the Bible it is always the land fartherest west of Israel or Britain. Notice that it says "merchants of Tarshish", this nation had to get its goods around the world. And the only way to do it when the Bible was written and the centuries to come was through ships. I think all of you remember the slogans of history, "Britain rules the waves" and "England the mistress of the seas".

The merchants got all of their tin from Tarshish. Britannia means the land of tin. This is interesting, it says "Tarshish, with all the young lions". Now their are some who say, well we think that it is Spain, because there was a Tarisa (sp), but that was an outpost for Britain.

The Symbol on the American flag is the Eagle. But the Symbol on the English flag is the Mother Lyon. It is Tarshish. "Tarshish, with all the young lions", and that of course speaks of all of her colonization. That includes America, because we came forth from England. That includes much of the western block of nations now under common market. And we are going to see this side taking the opposite position against the Soviet Union. When they come from the North against Israel.

This next part is interesting, and I am going to slow down on this part, because it is so deep and yet so powerful and so potent, moving and so dynamic, that when we get through with this we are going to know how near all of these events are, and how near the coming of Jesus Christ is for his Church. For his blood bought children.

Now, this is really interesting. In Daniel chapter 2:27-41, a story is recorded about Nebuchdnezzar's the king. He had a dream and couldn't remember what the dream was. Daniel when to the Lord in prayer and do you know what? The Lord reveled to Daniel the plan of history right to the end.

So Daniel came to the King and said, here is your dream. You saw this great image with a head of gold. It had a chest and arms of silver. It had a stomach and thighs of brass. It had two legs of iron and ten toes.

Daniel told the king that the head of gold was Nebuchdnezzar. The head of the Babylonian empire. But soon you are going to be crushed by the chest and arms of silver. The Meads and the Persians.

Then he said, the stomach and thighs of brass represent Alexander the Great of Greece, and he'll smash the kingdom of the Meads and the Persians.

Then their will be two legs of iron smashing Alexander the Great's Empire. Greece. Why two legs? Because at one time the Roman Empire had two headquarters. One at Rome and the other at Constantinople.

Now you notice that some powers always smash the preceding power. But not so with Rome. It was never defeated. Rome fell through internal corruption. Gibbons talks all about it in his writings "The Fall and Decline of the Roman Empire". We see no breaks in the legs, meaning that Rome will come back at the end time. For this whole prophecy Daniel 11:30, is for the end time. In a deteriorated form, it will still be iron mixed with clay as the 10 toes, 10, will work their way back into life.

This coincides with the beast of Revelation 13:1: I want to share this with you right now, because this is the beast with that infamous number 666 written in the forehead. Verse 1 says:

...[I] saw a beast rise up out of the sea [the sea of nations], having seven heads and ten horns,

Now Daniel speaks about the 10 toes in Daniel Chapter 2 and the horns in Chapter 7.

Daniel 7:24: "...the ten horns...are ten kings that shall arise:" Not who are in existence. But shall arise. Future tense. When? Daniel 11:30, the end time.

In the year 57 B.C., the Roman Empire annexed Belgian, Holland, and Lexingburg. 2000 years pass and now the toes are beginning revive in our area. A group of nations come into existence led by Belgian, Holland, and Lexingburg. The same ones the beginning of the old Roman Empire. The toes are beginning to move. That was 1948.

Then, in 1957, three other nations joined. Remember we are counting the ten now. West Germany, France, and Italy became members of what we now call Common Market. So we have six.

Then, 1973, another three joined. England, Ireland, and Denmark. We are almost to ten. In January, 1981, Greece became number ten and bible student's and Christians said, this is it. But it wasn't. We needed a few more calculations.

Watch Daniel 7:24 again, "the ten horns...are ten kings that shall arise [1981 completed that. But the rest of the prophecy couldn't happen until there were ten.]:" The rest, and their shall arise another and he shall subdue three. Literally excommunicate or boot out three.

In Daniel 7:8 we read the same thing. The prophet says: "I considered the horns, there came up among them another little horn [eleven], before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots". Now logical deduction tells us that if three are going to be booted out you have to have thirteen. And with three booted out you end up with 10 again, because we must end up with ten.

In the last two years, Spain and Portugal became numbers eleven and twelve. And now Austria has applied to become number thirteen. The Bible says when there are ten others would join. In fact, you could end up with sisteen or seventeen. But when the finally comes, then their must be thirteen. One takes charge out of the final three and eliminates three of the originals, which could be Denmark, and Ireland.

Remember those terms earlier in the message Gomer, Gomerlot, Gomeria, Aushkenz, Ezekiel 38:5: "Gomer and all his bands" joins with Russia to invade Israel. If they join with Russia to invade Israel, then they can't be part of Western Community at that time, so this could be the third.

So we would have Ireland, Denmark, who were part of the original Roman Empire, and Germany voluntarily pulling out. Some have not wanted to go in anyway. Now their could be more as I said, because Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Ugosolvia, Albania, were all part of the Roman Empire. So their could be maybe sixteen or seventeen, but when it all comes to the final head, and I believe soon, some could drop out and we could end up these thirteen, and then one of those final three out of Portugal, Spain, Austria could say, I am going to eliminate three more. And we have our final ten.

What is so important about that. Remember that Prayer that we have prayed so long for in our Churches. Matthew 6:9-10:

Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.

He is going to come. He comes as King of kings and Lord of lords in Revelation 19:16. But When! When! Daniel 2:44 gives ut the answer. This is the answer we talked about the ten toes. In Chapter 7 he talked about the ten horns. Now he says, here is when the King comes to set up his kingdom, "in the days of these [ten] kings" the final ten. After there have been thirteen or reduced to thirteen or just thirteen as completed fact, and then one arises out of the final three and eliminates three and we are down to the last ten. In the "in the days of these [ten] kings shall the lord God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed:" We are in the last moments of putting the pieces of the puzzle together. It all here and in our generation.

And here are the two apposing groups: Russia and her hordes. The Western Democracies along with Sheba, Dedan and of course Tarshish is already covered even within the ten toes.

Ezekiel 38:13:

Sheba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions thereof..

So we see two mighty powers marching against one another, battling. Not the battle of Armageddon, but the battle that leads to Armageddon, Revelation 16:16.

Now, where is it going to take place? Israel. This is one of the most important parts of the message you are going to here. For 2500 years. Imaging 25 Centuries there was no place on earth called Israel. They had been dispersed.

God said I am going to bring you back from among the nations. Ezekiel 36:24:

For I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.

The bones would come to life. Who are they? Ezekiel 37:11: "... these bones are the whole house of Israel: Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost: we are cut off for our parts." They would come out of their graves, the Gentile nations of the world and come back to their land. They would come from 120 nation's now speaking three languages. 50,000 are about to come from the Soviet Union. It's all coming to pass in your time, in our generation.

Could Russia invade Israel in 1745, 1826, 1947, no! There was no Israel. But in 1948 the Jewish people pulled up their flag, the six pointed star of David and said, "We call ourselves Israel. And that is important, because in Ezek. 38 and 39 where they come from the North against Israel, 17 times the battle field of the world is Israel. And there could be no invasion of Israel for 2500 years. Until you era of time. Since 1948 and onward.

Let me prove that. Ezekiel 38:8: "against the mountains of Israel..." Verse 16: "thou shalt come up against my people of Israel" Verse 19: "Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel" Chapter 39:2: "I will turn thee back, ... and will cause thee to come up from the north parts, and will bring the upon the mountains of Israel" Chapter 39:4: "Thou shalt fall upon the mountains of Israel" Verse 12: "seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them". Israel!!! Israel!!! It's for now folks! It's our generation! It's happening! Now do you see why I am so excited! Not because of this war, but because it indicates that the return of Jesus Christ is so near.

Now why is the Russian Bear going move against Israel? Well there are many reasons. 1st of all, there is a thousand mile oil line from Abkra (sp) to Hiffa (sp). 2nd the Dead Sea and all its minerals is worth 2 trillion dollars. I believe that the main reason will be that it will be the greatest anti-semantic push in history. Satan has always hated the Jewish people. Why because they gave us every book in the Bible with the exception of the book of Luke and Acts written by a Greek. The Lord sent his Son to us through the Jewish nation.

When Adolph Hitler came into power the maniac of history. He did away with 6 million Jewish people. This will be Satan's last attempt to obliterate the Jews. They are going to hated of all nations. In Ezek. 38:16 it says, "thou shalt come up against my people Israel." Why do you call Israel Gods people? Because 17 times in the text it says Israel, and now He says "they are my people", and the World and Russia leading will come up against the Jews. Read Revelation 12 when you have time.

Every nation is going to be against Israel except that I mentioned earlier will side with her. [Insert. I believe the reason that these countries and all the young lions side with the Jews is because they are the other ten tribes of Israel or possibly the blood of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob or Israel mixed with the ten toes or kingdoms. Also, possibly God gathered this latest great Army to the Persian Gulf partly because they are also the children of Israel.]

This is going to be a tremendous, horrendous time in history. Something like we have never known in the past, nor will we ever know anything again in the future. But they come against Israel. Why? To take spoil and to take pray, captives. To torture them, slaughter them. It is called a "time of Jacob's trouble", Jeremiah 30:7, and Jacob is Israel. All you have to do is look at Roman's 11:26 and onward to find out that Jacob is Israel and it is the "time of Jacob's trouble".

Now we are going to get into the future. Let's 1st of all consider that the largest armies in the history of the world are going to converge in the Middle East. Ezekiel 38:16: "thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the land" swarms of troops. Revelation 9:16 says, "the number of the army... were two hundred thousand thousand", 200 Million. They had 40 million in uniform during WWI from all nations. They had 88 Million in uniform from all nations in the second World War. Now we are talking about 200 Million. 2 1/2 times of that of past wars of the 2nd war.

Many Bible Scholars say that that is just the beginning because Revelation 9:16 featuring that army of 200 Million just the Orient as they come out of the east. For tidings out of the East and out of the North, China and Russia shall trouble him. That Anti-Christ that is setting on that temple in Jerusalem, 2 Thessalonians 2:4 as mentioned earlier.

What armies? We are talking now about this armament. That has to happen for what we are about to describe at the conclusion of the message.

Secondly, the deadliest weapons in history are going to be used. Listen to 2 Peter 3:10: How up to date:

The day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

Can you imaging the Apostle Peter 1900 years ago prediction something like this and using the very terminology that scientists in our day would use concerning an "A" and "H" bomb. 1st of all he says that "the heavens would pass away with a great noise". That's the blast of an Atomic weapon, and the mushrooming clouds.
Secondly he says, "the elements shall melt with fervent heat". If you were to go to the library and ask the librarian, I want to study the "A" or "H" bomb, they would take you the the letter "E" the word elements for our modern day scientist have classified these bombs under the terms elements. 19 Centuries ago the Spirit said Peter write it. Elements. Why, because the because the Holy Spirit is a member of the Godhead, and known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world to the end, Acts 15:18.

Thirdly, "the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned". In New Mexico where we were testing the "A" bomb. The desert became a sea of glass from the burning effects. Deadly weapons. Some people say 2 Peter 3:10 is the end of the world. This is God administering his judgments, it has nothing to do "A" bombs. Alright lets forget that part of the text. But when we come to the word elements we can tie it in with "A" and "H" bombs.

But lets other texts. When God put that rainbow in the sky, it was a promise to Noah that the world would not end in the judgement of another flood after the one that Noah experienced.
But the finale judgement would be a fire. Listen to these texts: Psalm 97:3, "A fire goeth before him"; Isaiah 66:15, "the Lord will come with fire"; Ezekiel 20:47, "the flaming flame shall not be quenched"; Now watch this one, Joel 2:3, "A fire devoureth before them"; Joel 2:20, they are pushed back; Joel 2:30-31, "And I will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke [the mushrooming clouds of an atomic blast]; Zephaniah 1:18, "The whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy"; Malachi 4:1, "the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven.

What I am about to tell you is literally the most shocking thing I've said in this point of the message. In Revelation 8:7, it says, "the third part of the trees was burnt up"; Revelation 9:18, it says, "By these three was the third part of men killed, by the fire and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths"; In Rev. 8:7 a third part of earth is burned, in Rev. 9:18, one third of the population of the earth is destroyed.

I took the Life Pictorial Atlas, one of the latest geographical books. It gives us the land area of every nation on earth as far as square milage is concerned, as well as the latest population figures. I took all the nations that I have outlined in this message. The ones that are going to join with Russia, under Gog, Magog, the chief prince [Rush], and then the ones that are joining with, the chief prince [Rush], Iran and Ethiopia, Libya, Gomer, Gomerlot, Togarmah, Turkey, his son Haik, Ceria, the hordes out of the Orient, Daniel 11:44. Those who appose the Soviet Union. Tarshish, and all the young lions. The English speaking nations of the world plus the Western World through confederacy. The 10 final nations of common market.

I looked it all up [in the Pictorial Atlas] and with a calculator figured it all out. And these nations for and against, posing one another, totalled 1/3 of the earth's land surface to the exact mile. Then, I again re-figured it for population figures and it came out to 1/3 of the worlds population.

Folks, we are living in the last days. This is the beginning of the end. We see the largest armies converging. The deadliest weapons being used. And folks it is going to be the bloodiest battle in history.

The prophet Jeremiah said in Chapter 30:7, Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but he shall be saved out of it". God is going to protect his ancient people. We will see this in a moment.

Daniel another great Jewish prophet said in Chapter 12:1, "there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time". Daniel says there was never anything like this in the past and there will never be anything like it again in the future. This is the ultimate as far as a blood bath is concerned of the nations.

It is over Jerusalem. Think of it. I will make a burdensome stone. I will make Jerusalem a cup of trembling, Zach 12:2-3.

Remember that northern army that strutted back to Siberia. I mentioned twice or more in this message. Watch what happens when they move down. Joel 2:1,

"let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of the Lord cometh, for it is nigh at hand; A day of darkness and of and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness". And as this northern army Russia marches to Israel, verse 10 says, "the earth shall quake before them". Then they are driven back and the prophet sees fire and pillars of smoke.

Jesus said in Matthew 24:21, "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no nor ever shall be." One half of the earth population will be annihilated, whipped out, obliterated through this war.

I never could quite understand where they got those figures, but I put it all together the other day through Revelation 9:18, and through Revelation 6. And folks it comes out to exactly 1 out of every 2.
We always use that text in Matthew 24:40-41, Two shall be in the bed, one shall be taken up and one left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill, one shall be taken one shall be left. We think that is the rapture when the Lord comes for the Church, it doesn't. Because that would mean that the 50% of the population of the earth believes in the Lord Jesus Christ. No, No only 2% believe in Jesus Christ. 1 out of every 50. Not 1 out of every 2.

If you will study Matthew 24 again it is talking at the tribulation now and its talking about the judgments that are going to fall. And one shall be taken in death [war], and one shall be left alive to go into the millennium. Two women shall be grinding in the mill, one shall be taken in death, the other shall be left alive to go into the millennium. That's what it teaches. 50% of the earth and inhabitants desolated, destroyed, the bloodiest battle in the history of the world. And then the greatest defeat militarily in history, as God Almighty wipes out the Soviet Armies or the better term the Russian Armies with all their allies. That's Ezekiel 39:1-2, and I am going to quote it like I interpreted it in the early part of the sermon because they are the same names: "Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the Rush, Rocian, Russian prince of Moscow and Tubalsk:

And I will turn thee back, and leave but the sixth part of thee, [5/6th of the armies will fall 1/6th will be driven back to Siberia". Remember? Here's the text again Joel 2:20: "I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate [Siberia], with his face toward the east sea, and hindinder part toward the utmost sea".

Ezekiel 39:12 says, "seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them, that they may cleanse the land." It is going to take every available Israelite, every Jew working around the clock, seven months, day and night, no rest just to bury the bodies, the deceased.

The end is coming and is coming soon. Let me begin to wind up this message. When is it going to happen. Ezekiel 38:8 and 16, "in the latter years" and "in the latter days". And Daniel 11:30, "the end time".

Lets reclose. What is going to happen in the latter years and latter days. There is going to be a powerful nation called Rush, Rucia, Russia. Through the tribal names, Magog, Meshack, Tubal, we now have Moscow and Tubulsk. All these nations will align themselves and now with the unification of Germany we see all the pieces coming to pass.

Then we see common market. We see the flags flying. There are twelve and there are going to be thirteen soon when Austria is ratified. And then one arises and throws out three and then there will be ten. "And in the days of shall the God of heaven set up his Kingdom". But there could be more and they could pull out on their own while three would be booted out. We are not dogmatic. All we know is God says there are going to be thirteen at some point in history three will be booted out and that will bring us to our final ten, and it is when we have our final ten the Christ returns. But Christ only returns after that battle is fought.

So here we have the alignment of the nations. We have everything scripturally to tell us that this is the hour. That it could happen at any moment.

I personally believe that this great battle will take place in the middle of the seven year's of tribulation. I personally believe that some world leader is going to come into power on a peace platform, just when it looks like all of these things are about to happen and commotions of war are going to let loose planet.

Someone will arise and say peace, peace. And he is going to come out of thirteen nation confederacy and it will be reduced to 10. He makes a peace pact, a peace covenant with Israel and other nations in Daniel 9:27, "He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week [the Hebrew is Heptad for seven years. Heptad means seven years]: and in the midst of the week [seven years, half way into it, three and one half years into it] he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease". He breaks his covenants. He breaks his promises. He breaks his treaties. And then Russia marches.

You say, why do you believe that in this text. Because of Ezekiel 38:11, "[Gog] says, I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; I will go to them that are at rest, that dwell safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates". A walled village in bible times meant a tremendous defensive system. They put up their walls to defend themselves against the invaders.

Here there are no walls. Unwalled villages. Why? They have lay aside their armaments. I will go to them that dwell safely. Israel has been there since 1948, but war after war has transpired and there setting their tanks, jets, and atomic weapons. There has been no peace for Israel. But this is a time of peace, because this world leader has come to power says peace, peace. And the world thinks this is utopia, but this is the infamous Anti-Christ and 42 months later the covenants are broken. When they say peace and safety, sudden destruction, 1 Thes. 5:3.

And I have said all that to say this, to comfort your heart in the midst of a message like this. Since it happens in the middle of the seven years of tribulation. The seven year period of time is called the tribulation hour.

He talks about the rapture after this....

ARMAGEDDON

By Duane S. Crowther

Armageddon, the word strikes terror in the hearts of many. The News media use it to conger up images tumultuous conflict and ultimate disaster. Religionists us it to represent the climax of last day events. The sumation of the end time struggle between the forces of good and evil.

But where does the word come from and what does it really mean. It appears only once in the bible in Chapter 16 of the book of Revelation. In verses 14-16 of that Chapter, John foresees a great end time event when spirits of devels working miricals go forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them unto the battle of that great day of God Almighty. And then John adds that He gathered them together to a place called in the Hebrew tounge Armageddon.

That's it. That is the only scriptural reference that uses the word Armageddon. But the image that John rases of the whole world gathered together to battle has caught the imagination of millions who see it as a reference to a final confruntation, a eppic struggle for world survival of epic porportions.

What does the word Armageddon mean. The term Har Megeddon is a Greek transliteration of the Hebrew for the mountain of Megedow. A single mountain located in northwest Israel near the town of Nazereth about 50 miles north of Jerusalem. It's there, according to John the Revelator that this great last days conflict will be centered.

The battle of Arageddon is a war which neighboring nations with support and mercenaries from around the world will wage against the nation of Israel. It is the most prophecied future event in all scripture and is come to represent the ultimate struggle between the House of Israel, God's covenant people, and the forces of evil.

Standing as the leader of Israel's host will be a ruler known as David the Prince. While the enemy army Magog, will be led by a gerneral the bible refers to a Gog.

Also prominate in the scinero will be two prophets who will administer in Jerusalem for three and one half years durring the war. With God given power, they will withhold the rain and control the elemints, bringing a sevier droubt upon the entire Middle East.

Now with that brief synopsis and a review of the cast of charcters to guide our understanding, lets take a more in depth look at this great last day even which has intregued the Christian world for almost two millennia. Many prophets fortell important aspects of Israel's future in the last days, but four porphets inparticular provide the keys to our understanding of the great battle of Armagddon. Ezekiel describes in in Chapters 38 and 39 of his prophecy. The entire book of Joel is devoted to describing this tramatic climax of Israel's history. Chapter 12-14 of Zechariah tell of the great conflict. And Chapter 11 of the Revelation written by the Apostle John provides important details also.

The writings from these four prophets with supplimentry insights from other prophetic writings will form the basis for this discussion. But befor describing the war, it is important to discuss many of the events that will lead up to it. And also the conditions in Israel and throughout the world which will prevail at that time.

Let's begin with the gathering of Israel. With more detail than any ancient seer, the prophet Ezekiel describes the conditions that will exist in Israel in the last days. In Ezekiel 36, he tell us of gathering of scattered Israel to their promised land and sight the pledge to the House of Israel which says:

Ezekiel 36:24, 26-28:

I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.

A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I pur within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.

And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.

Ezekiel records the Lord's promises of temprel blessings to his people in the same chapter. Focusing on an adiquate food supply. In Ezekiel 36:29-30, the Lord says that:

I will also save you from all your uncleannesses: and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you.

And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more reproach of famine among the heathen.

He also relates the Lord's promises to gathering Israel of significant building and growth saying: Ezekiel 36:33-34:

...I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the wastes shall be builded.

And the desolate land shall be tilled, ...

And he relates the promise in Ezekiel 36:36:

... that I the LORD build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate.

But many other prophets besides Ezekiel fortell the return of the ancient house of Israel to their promised land. They speak of the two ancient nations of Juda and Israel being united in the land of Israel in the Last days.

Jerimiah, for instance, in Chapter 3:18 says:

In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for and inheritance unto your fathers.

And Zecheriah also speaks of the decendants of Judah and of Joseph, the two ancient branches of the house of Israel being united in the land of Israel in the last days. Zexheriah 10:6 says:

And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them.

So implicite in our understanding of Israel's future prior to the battle of Armagddon, is the realization that both branches of the House of Israel, the decendants of both Joseph and Judah will be restored and gathered to their land of promise in the Middle East.

The decendants of Joseph, of corse, are the decendants of the lost 10 tribes which comprise the northern kingdom of Israel in ancient times. They were conquered by Asseria and carried away into captivity somewhere in the north, back about 721 B. C. Since that time they have been known as the lost tribes or the lost 10 tribes of Israel.

An important aspect of LDS theology as stated in the 10th Article of Faith is that, "We believe in the litteral gathering of Israel and the restoration of the ten tribes." We anticipate that the 10 tribes will come as a group from the north to the New Jerusalem area in the United States area of Missoria, and then will find their aloted area there two confining so they will move to their promised land in Israel in the Middle East. But the scriptural support for that understanding is another subject and to lengthly for this context.

Chapter 47 of Ezekiel describes Israels boundries in the last days defining them as much larger than the nations present day borders. They will include much of Sothern Seria, including the city of Damascus, the Western portion of Jordan and all or at least part of Lebanon.

The prophecies don't tell us the process by which Israels boundries will be enlarged from their present dimentions to the much larger areas described by Ezekiel. But if current Middle East conditions are any indication, expantion of Israel's present limits would be fearcly apposed by the nearby Arrab States and would only be gained through extreemly bitter conflict. And if such boundry gains are wone by Israel, either in battle or by negotiation, the losses suffered by surronding nations will be regarded and remembered with bitterness and may well be a major cause of the battle of Armagddon.

It's Ezekiel who defines the geographical areas in which the tribes of Israel will be situated. In Ezekiel Chapters 47 and 48 he reports the vision in which he sees that the Jerusalem area is to be a holy zone, with an inheritance area for the Levites just north of the city. The land to the east and the west of the this holy area all the way to the boders will be set aside for the prince the ruler who will be governing Israel at that time. Seven of the tribes will be situated north of the Jewish Lameria and paralell strips accross the country, running from the eastern to the western boders.

From north to south these tribes will be Dan, Asher, Naphtali, Manasseh, Ephraim, Reuben and Judah. The othere five tribes will be settled south of the Jerusalem area from north to south they are Benjamin, Simeon, Issacar Zebulun and Gad.

Ezekiel prophecies that when the tribes will return to their Middle East home land, they wont be devided any more into the two nations of Israel and Judah. They will be united into a single nation.

In his prophecy in Chapter 37:21 he records the Lord's promise that:

I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land:

And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all:

There are numerous prophecies which allud to the king who will rule over Israel in the area in which the battle of Aramagddon will occure. Ezekiel is one of the prophets who tells us about the man who will rule over Israel in eventful period. He reports the Lord's pledge [in Ezekiel 37:24, 26] that "David my servant shall be king over them" [and] "my servant David shall be their prince for ever.

Joseph Smith wrote on one occasion a letter in which he commented on this future leader. He wrote:

The throne and kingdom of David is to be taken from him and given to another by the name of David in the last days. Raised up out of his linage.

And Joseph Smith Prophecied that:

He shall build the temple of the Lord and he shall bear the glory and shall sit and rule upon his throne. And he shall be a priest upon his throne.

The Prophet in this instance was commenting on Zecheriah's prophecy in Zechariah 6:12-13 about an indivudual in the last days who will be known as the BRANCH.

Joseph Smith obviously believed that the prince and the Branch will be one and the same person. Zechariah's prophecy on which Joseph Smith's comments were based said:

...Behold the man whose name is The BRANCH; and he shall grow up out of his place, and he shall build the temple of the LORD:

Even he shall build the temple of the LORD; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne: and the counsel of peace shall be between them both.

Jeremiah also prophied about this important last days ruler. In Jerimiah 23:5-6 says:

Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will raise unto David a righteoul Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth.

In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

And the prophet Hosea also fortold the reign of this important latter day David. Hosea 3:4-5 says:

For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an ephod, and without teraphim:

Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the LORD their God, and David their king; and shall fear the LORD and his goodness in the latter days.

In Isaiah 55:3-5, Isaiah prophecied directly to David the great last days leader. He said:

...I will make an everlasting covenant with, enen the sure mercies of David.

Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people.

Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto ther because of the LORD thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee.

Thou the scriptures don't address the issue we need to recognize the implications of Israel's being ruled by a king at that day as apposed to its present form of government. Obviously major changes in the nations govermental structure are implied. We don't know how or when they will take place, but the changes one of a long list of important items which must transpire before the worlds setting is ready for the battle of Aramagddon is ready to be waged.

Now lets change the subject and refer to other geo-political events prophecied for Israel's future but prior to the battle of Armagddon. Several biblical prophecies alude to the strenth and political affairs of the Isralies in that window of time after the ten tribes are to have returned to Israel but before the battle of Armagddon.

Isaiah 11:10-16, for instance, gives important details for Israel's future affairs. It speaks of a future individual called the root of Jesse. Many people believe that this is another title besides David the prince and the BRANCH for the future leader who will build the Jerusalem temple and who rule Israel durring the battle of Armagddon. This passage depicts him in the future role of setting up an ensign and gathering and uniting scattered Israel.

And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for and ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea.

And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth.

The envy also of Ephraim shall depart, and the adversaries of Judah shall be cut off: Ephraim shall noy envy Judah, and Judah shall not vex Ephraim.

But they shall fly upon the shoulders of the Philistiens toward the west; they shall spoil them of the east together: they shall lay their hand upon Edom and Moab; and the children of Ammon shall obey them.

An the LORD shall utterly destroy the toungue of the Egyptian sea; and with his mighty wind shall he shake his hand over the river, and shall smite it in the seven streams, and make men go over dryshod.

And there shall be an highway for the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria; like as it was to Israel in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt.

This passage is better understood if we identify the localities it speaks about with modern names. It talks about people being gathered from six places. From Assyria, Egypt, Pathros, Cush, Elam, and Shinar. Three lie south of Israel. The other three to the North.

Egypt, Cush and Pathros are the three South of Israel. They're all situated in northeastern Afraca. Pathros is the upper Nile River area of southern area of Egypt. Cush is Etheopia, located southeast of Egypt along the southwestern cost of the Red Sea.

The other three lie northeast of Israel. Ancient Assyria is modern Iraq. Ancient Shinar is located in the Tigrus Euphraties valley of southeastern Iraq. Ancient Elam is located just northwest of the northern tip of the Pursian Gulf, in what is now southwest corner of Eran.

So Isahia's prophecy speaks of gathering people from Eran, Iraq, Egypt, and from Etheopia and from the Islands in the Meditranian Sea. But it also refers to a tax agains the Phyilistiens to the west. That's the Guasa Strip area which for years has been a festering center of Aarob discontent.

And Isaiah refers to scermishes in the east and south against Edom, Moab, and Ammon. In modern terms that represent warfare against the kingdom of Jordan.

Isaiah also refers to events in Egypt and Assyria with intense doubt also coming on the Nile River, which apparently drys up the Nile delta.

When seen in light of the next prophecy we will discuss made by Zechariah his allusion seems to imply Israelie defeets of both Egypt and modern Iraq.

Zechariah prophecies both defeet for Egypt and Assyaria in that future area. In Zechariah 10:3-12 he reports the Lord's promise that:

Mine anger was kindled against the shepherds, and I punished the goats: for the LORD of hosts hath visited his flock the house of Judah, and hath made them as his goodly horse in the battle.

Out of him came forth the corner, out of him the nail, out of him the battle bow, out of him every oppressor together.

And they shall be as mighty men, which tread down their enemies in the mire of the streets in the battle: and they shall fight, because the LORD is with them, and the riders on horses shall be confounded.

And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upn them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them.

And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as though wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the LORD.

I Will hiss for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them: and they shall increase as they have increased.

And I will sow them among the people: and they shall remember me in far countries: and they shall live with their children, and turn again.

I will bring them again also out of the land of Egypt, and gather them out of Assyria; and I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon; and place shall not be found for them.

And he shall pass through the sea with affiction, and shall smite the waves in the sea, and all the deeps of the river shall dry up: and the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart away.

And I will strengthen them in the LORD; and they shall walk up and down in his name, saith the LORD.

So Zechariah's prophecy indicates defeets for Iraq and Egypt, as he foresees that Assyria, meaning Iraq's, pride shall be brought down. And Egypt shall loose its power or sceptre. And Zechariah like Isaiah indicates that the deeps of a river will dry up, though its not clear whether its the Nile or the Tigrus or the Euphraties River he is prophesying about. Which ever river it is, it still implies a major droubt for the entire eastern Miditrainen area.

Other prophecies also allud to the same events. Chapter 10 of Isaiah is a prophecy againt ancient Assyria which also looks forward to the last days. In the latter day contect of the gathering of Israel, the Lord reveils these words against Assyria, which would be modern day Iraq, in Isaiah 10:16-21:

Therefore shall the Lord, the Lord of hosts, send among his fat ones leanness; and under his glory he shall kindle a burning like the burning of a fire.

And the light of Isreal shall be for a fire, and his Holy One for a flame: and it shall burn and devour his thorns and his briesr in one day;

And shall consume the glory of his forest, and of his fruitful field, both soul and body: and they shall be as when a standardbearer fainteth.
And the rest of the trees of his forest shall be few, that a child may write them.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the remnant of Israel, and such as are excaped of the house of Jacob, shall no more again stay upon him that smote them; but shall stay upon the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, in truth.

The remnant shall return, even the remnant of Jacob, unto the mighty God.

It is this prophecy that tells of Iraq's loss of its forest fruitful fields and even its briers and thorns which brings leanness to the people. This is another indication of a prolonged droubt or is the burning anctual fire.

Another passage Isaiah 19 is a burden pronounced against ancient Egypt, which also has last days insights concerning both modern Egypt and modern Assyria which is Iraq. Isaiah 19:17-25 says:

And the land of Judah shall be a terror unto Egypt, every one that maketh mention thereof shall be afraid in himself, because of the counsel of the LORD of hosts, which he hath determined against it.

In that day shall five cities in the land of Egypt speak the language of Canaan, and swear to the LORD of hosts; one shall be called, The city of destruction.

In that day shall there be an altar to the LORD in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the LORD.

And it shall be for a sign and for a witness unto the LORD of hosts in the land of Egypt: for they shall cry unto the LORD because of the oppressors, and he shall send them a saviour, and a great one, and he shall deliver them.

And the LORD shall be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians shall do sacrifice and oblation; yea, they shall vow a vow unto the LORD, and perform it.

And the LORD shall smite Egypt: he shall smite and heal it: and they shall retrun event to the LORD, and he shall be intreated of them, and shall heal them.

In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian shall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians shall serve with the Assyrians.

In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, even a blessing in the midst of the land:

Whom the LORD of hosts shall bless, saying, Blessed of Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands, and Israel mine inheritance.

So here is another prophecy that says the Lord will smite Egypt in the last days, smite it and then heal it and cause the Egyptian people to believe in the Lord.

And here is another prophecy like Isaiah 11:16 that fortells the establishment of a major highway which will connect Egypt with Iraq and presumiably will pass through Israel. What we don't know for sure is the cronological order of these events in comparison to the events reported in other prophecies. Whether they happen before, durring or after the battle of Armagddon.

Joel's prophecy in Joel 3:19 provides the same chronoligical challenge. We don't understand the exact time of its fulfullment. But Joel prophecies in a last days context that:

Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land.

The prophet Obadiah also foresees that latter day Israel will possess the lands of its neighbors. He says that in some future day that Israel will conquer and possess the area controled by the ancient descendents of Esau. That area was Edom just south by southeast of the dead sea, an area which is presently under the control of Jordan.

According to Obadiah, Israel will also control the plains of the Philistines which is Israel's Guasa strip. And Israel will control Zarephath a sight located between the ancient Tyra and Sidon, which is now modern Lebinon.

Again we don't know the full chronilogical relationship, whether this expansion will occure before the battle of Armagddon or as a result of that war. This is his prophecy as recorded in Obadiah verses 15-21:

Fro the day of the LORD is near upon all the heathen: as thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee: thy reward shall return upon thine own head.

For as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the heathen drink continually, yea, they shall drink, and they shall swallow down, and they shall be as though they had not been.

But upon mount Zion shall be deliverance, and there shall be holiness; and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions.

And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble, and they shall kindle in them, and devour them; and there shall not be any remaining of the house of Esau; for the LORD hath spoken it.

And they of the south shall possess the mount of Esau; and they of the plain the Philistines: and they shall possess the fields of Ephraim, and the fields of Samaria: and Benjamin shall possess Gilead.

And the captivity of this host of the children of Israel shall possess that of the Canaanites, even unto Zarephath; and the captivity of Jerusalem, which is in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the south.

And saviours shall come up on mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau; and the kingdom shall be the LORD's.

So there are a number of scriptural prophecies which describs Israel's political affairs in the general last days period arround the battle of Armagddon. That time after the lost ten tribes have come forth and all the tribes of Israel are situated in the land of Israel. As I have commented all the cronoligical relationships arn't fully defined in the scriptures, so at present, we are unsure whether they take place before Armagddon or as a result of the battle itself. But the prophecies are significant and they clearly depect Israel as expanding her borders and gaining assendency over her neighbors.

Also significant among the prophecies are those which describe the last days construction of Temple in Jerusalem prior to the battle of Armagddon. One of the best known of those passages is Isaiah Chapter 2:1-4 which links the establishing of the temple with the great battle of Armagddon in which the Lord would judge among the nations and rebuke many people. The prophecy says:

The word the Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the LORD's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it.
And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks:

nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

The most significant sceries of prophecies concerning the building of the temple in the last days in Jerusalem is found in seven chapters of Ezekiel Chapters 40-46, which report Ezekiel's vision of the temple construction. His vision carfully defines its demensions, its layout and its acts of worship which will be preformed there. It's obvious that the constuction of this temple will be a significant last day's event.

Ezekiel 47 prophecies that fresh water will be found in large quantities at the temple sight and will flow eastward as a river, eventually reaching the Dead Sea and healing its salty water.

Revelation Chapter 11 makes it clear that the Jerusalem temple will have been constructed prior to the battle of Armagddon because it indicates that a protion of that temple will be overrun by Israel's enemys durring the battle.

But to better understand the battle of Armageddon we need to atleast summerize other prophecies and world conditions at that time, and prophecies of preceeding events of worldwide importance must be must also be reviewed. Much must come to pass before the great battle occures. Prior to that time there will be third world war, with Russia and her allies aligned against U.S. and its allies. Those who have received inspired insights concerning the war indicate that Russia will go down to defeat never to regain its present status as a major world power.

The worldwide economy will have been erreprably damaged durring the conflict, appearntly, and the world will go into worldwide caos with many nations including the United States experincing internal wars and anarchy. This great conflict is vividly described in a tape by this auther entitled "World War Three, God's judgements upon the nations", which includes many explainations of many significant prophecies.

Durring the period following the third World War the saints will return Missouri and establish the New Jerusalem. There will be a major period of conversion among the Lamanites and many of them will gather to Missouri. The lost ten tribes will come from the north and will settle temporalily in the Jackson County area. Christ will appear in the New Jerusalem temple. Presures exerted by the great and abominable church will cause sever persecutions of church members at that time and will eventually lead to a forth World War in which the New Jerusalem in Missouri will be worlds area of peace and stability. This universal conflict will result in the defeat or collapse of many of the nations of Europe.

Durring this turblent area, the great council at Adam-ondi-Ahman will held and the Savior will once again appear. This forth world war with the many events associated with the actions of that and abominable organization which will persecute the saints is described in another tape by this auther entitled, "The great and abominable church in prophecy".

After the fourth world war a major period of missionary labor and gathering of Israel will begin. 144,000 high priests will be chosen and given protection to withstand the great last days pleagues and judgements. Many of the ten tribes will move from the New Jerusalem to the area of Israel in the Middle East, while others of Israel are gathered from among the nations.

Its in this area of international conflict that the chronoligical setting for the great battle of Armageddon is finally accomplished. David the prince will come to power. The Jerusalem temple will be built. And Israel will exprnd its geo-political boders. This takes place while the plegues and distruction of the opening of the seventh seal described in Revelation Chapters 8-11 transpire.

What will be the causes of the great battle of Armageddon. Both history and prophecy give clues. We can already see the great antagnasim which exists between the people of Israel and the Aarob palistiniens who have been displaced newly formed nation. Both clame ties to the land dating back almost 4000 years. The deeply ingraned hatered between Moslems and Jews is a second possible motive. We have already discussed a third potential reason for the future atatck on Israel, a desire for revenge felt by surrounding counteries because of Israel's successful geographical expansion obtained at their expense.

The prophet Ezekiel foresaw a forth reason, greed. The growth and prosperity experienced by Israel will tempt other nations and try to spoil Palastine. Ezekile 38:9-12 is his prophecy to those covetous nations of the future in which he describes the enemies attatck and their motivies saying:

Thou shalt ascend and come like a storm, thou shalt be like a cloud to cover the land, thou, and all thy bands, and many peole with thee.
Thus saith the Lord GOD; It shall also come to pass, that at the same time shall things come into they mind, and thou shalt think an evil thought:

And thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; I will go to tem that are at rest, that dwell safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates,

To take a spoil, and to take a prey; to trun thine hand upon the desolate places that are now inhabited, and upon the people that are gathered out of the nations, which have gotten cattle and goods, that dwell in the midst of the land.

Ezekiel, then, sees that the enemy forces motives will be to come and to take a spoil. This will be seen as easily accomplished as Israel be regarded as a land of unwalled villages.

A prophecy by John the Revelator warns of a 5th reason for the war. Interference in anti-Isralie adgitation by last days individuals who will have been involved with the activities with the great and abominable church. In Revelation 16:12-16 he makes reference to the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet and speakes of unclean spirits which will come from them to the kings of the earth, enticing those political leaders to take part in a war against Israel. The passage says:

And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet.

For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.

Notice that in the first verse of that passage there is a prophecy similar to the passages already sighted from Isaiah 11 and Zecheriah 10 which deal with the drying up of a great body of water. Link that concept together with what John the Revelator says about the two prophets who will function in Jerusalem for 3 1/2 years. He forsees that these have power to shut the heaven that it rain not in the days of their prophecy. And have power over waters to turn them to blood and to smite the earth with all plagues as offten as they will.

It is very possible that the very deeds of these two individuals will be known and recognized by other nations. And that their activities will be preceeved as bringing major harm to the surrounding countries who will be experienceing major droubt. Which they will regard as a lagitimate reason for waging war. That's a possible sixth motive. And notice that the prophecy in Revelation 16:12 forsees another significant body of water, the great river Euphraties being completely dried up.

And seventh, John the Revelator describes the worldwide antagism generated against the House of Israel at that day as being the work of spirits of deviles. Certanily it will still be satans desire attempt to twart the work of the Lord. That has been his effort throughout the history of the world. So he will play a part in it.

But the eighth reason and most important motive of all is that the Lord will use this great conflict to vindicate Himself, His work, His power, and His people in the sight of all mankind. The Lord repedidely asserts, in the scriptures that his ultimate purpose for the great battle of Armageddon will be to make his tremendous power known to all the nations. Ezekiel 38:16 for instance, records the words to Gog the future general:

...I will bring thee against my land, that the heathen may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

And again in Ezekiel 28:23:

There will I magnify myself and sanctify myself, and I will be known in the eyes of many nations and they shall know that I am the Lord.

And coupled for the Lords desire for vindication of his people and accnowledgement by the heathen of his all incumpusing power. It will be God's intent to punish the wickod and pour out his anger upon him. Zephaniah 3:8 records the Lord's indication that:

...my determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy.

All of these eight reasons and perhaps others motives which will become apparent as the times draws near may play a significant part in causing the terrible conflict. Now lets focus on the actual battle. Joel foretold the proclamation calling the nations to wage war against Israel. Joel 3:9-14 says:

Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up:

Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruninghooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong.

Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together around about: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O LORD.

Let the heathen be wakened and come up to the valley of Jehosaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about.

Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great.

Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the LORD is near in the valey of decision.

Who are the nations who will come to battle against Israel? Notice that John said that the evil messengers would go forth unto the kings of the earth and unto the whole world. Joel's prophecy spoke of the prepare war proclimation being made among the gentiles. A term sometimes interpreted as refering to the last days cocasion or christian nations. But Joel's prophecy also refers to the awakening of the heathen or non christian nations. As Zecheriah tell of the great conflict, he says in Zecheriah 14:2:

For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle:

But other prophecies are much more specific in identifing Israel's future advasaries. Ezekiel prophecied about the general of the opposing army. A man named Gog and also speakes of various nations who will send troops to participate in the battle. In doing so he uses ancient names, names from way back at the time of Noah to identify places of importance. These are his words found in Ezekiel 38:2-6:

Son of man, set thy face against Gog, the land of Magog, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal, and prophesy against him, And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal:

And I will turn thee back, and put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth, and all thine army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed with all sorts of armour, even a great company with bucklers and shields, all of them handling swords:

Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya with them; all of them with shield and helment:

Gomer, and all his bands; the house of Togarmah of teh north quarters, and all his bands: and many people with thee.

It seems that Ezekiel's statement actually is refering to the decendants of the grandchildren of Noah who spread out on the face of the land after the flood. Genisis Chapter 10 is known as the table of nations and furnishes us some knowledge concerning these ancient ethnic groups. Magog, Tubal, Mesheck and Gomer were all sons of Japheth and Togarmah was the grandson of Japheth through Gomer.

Ezekiel also mentions the land of Persia which was also settled decendants to Japheth or what is classified as Endo Europiean people. Etheopia and Lybia two countries settled by decendants of ham are included in the list too. If you compare these names with tipical table of nations map based on Genesis 10 you'll find that Ezekiel's list actually includes people who live in the present six nations of Turkey, Eran, Iraq, Etheopia, Lybia and the southern tip of Russia just above the Caspian Sea.

Gog, the leader of the invaders is identified as "the chief prince" of Mesheck and Tubal. These are teritories of the southeastern area of Turkey just north of eastern tip of the Meditrainen Sea. The same general facinity that Paul visited in his first missionary journey.

Many interpreters have assumed that Gog would be a Russian not knowing the prophecies of the fall of Russia durring the third world war. By the time the world will have gone through two world conflicts with an intervening period of international anarchy and chos, who knows if there will even be nations called Russia or Turkey at that time.

It should be recalled that most of the nations of Europe are expected to be in a colapsed condition after the fourth world war. And that the American Continutes will largely be under the control of the kingdom of God at that time.
The prophet Joel adds another prospective to the list. After seeing in Joel Chapter 3:1-4 that the Lord will gather all nations to conflict, he asserts that the cities of Tyra and Sidon and also the coast of Palistine itself will be involved against Israel. These are areas that Ezekiel prophecied would be within Israel's lastday boundries. Perhaps this inclusion of these areas as oppisition forces reflects a continuation of the present Aarob - Israelie conflict which continues to fester within Israel's borders. Joel's prophecy says:

For, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,

I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.

And they have cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for an harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink.

Yea, and what have ye to do with me, O Tyre, and Zidon, and all the coasts fo Palestine? will ye render me a recompence? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompence upon your own head;

John the Revelator named the pivital sight for what he called the battle of that great day of God Almighty. When he forsaw that God gathered into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon. The term Har Megiddonis a Greek transliteration of Hebrew for the Mountian of Megiddo.

This Mountian stands alone rising up to command a protective position in the plain of Esdraelon a fertil plain about 50 miles northwest of Jerusalem. The mount is just a few miles southwest of Nazereth the home of Jesus.

Great battles have been fought in this area in biblical times.....

[Armageddon] is a strong position militarily, but the battle won't be confined to just that area. It apparently will rage throughout the mountains and vallies of Israel and will also spread through city of Jerusalem, with that city partially being overcome by the invaders.

In prophecing about the conflict Joel makes reference to the valley of Jehoshaphat. The valley east of Jerusalem situated between city and the Mount of Olives. He calles it the valley of decision and says that there is where God will judge the heathen during the battle.

Both Ezekiel and Joel prophecy concerning the advance of the enemy army as it attatcks from the north. But it is Ezekiel who calles the enemy leader by name addressing him as Gog. Ezekiel is shown that the advancing army will swoop down from beyond Israel's northern borders. There will be many and they will be mounted on horseback. Ezekiel 38:14-16 says:

Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say unto God, Thus saith the Lord GOD; In that day when my people of Israel dwelleth safely, shalt thou not know it?

And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army:

And thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the land; it shall be in the latter days, and I will bring thee against my land, that the heathen may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

Joel describes the attatacking forces, a well disiplined army which will follow a scorched earth policy, destroying everything in its path. Joel 2:2-10 describes it vividly depicting its appearance and sounds of the enemys horses and chariots. He also describes the strict disipline of the advancing foot soldiers and protrayes their advance in the cities as they move from house to house. This is his prophecy:

A day of darkness and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness, as the morning spread upon the mountains: a great people and a strong; there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after it, even to the years of many generations.

A fire devoureth before them; and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.

The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses; and as horsemen, so shall they run.

Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap, like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble, as a strong people set in battle array. Before their face the people shall be much pained: all faces shall gather blackness.

They shall run like mighty men; they shall climb the wall like men of war; and they shall march every one on his ways, and they shall not break their ranks:

Neither shall one thurst another; they shall walk every one in his path: and when they fall upon the sword, they shall not be wonded.

They shall run to and fro in the city; they shall run upon the wall, they shall climb up upon the houses; they shall enter in at the windows like a thief.

The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble: the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining.

The defencive preparations to be made in Israel as Gog and his army Magog advance are also described by several prophets. Ezekiel 38:21 says:

And I will call for a sword agains him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord GOD:

In Joel Chapter 2:1 the prophet Joel says:

Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain: let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh at hand;

It will be a time of fasting and prayer in Israel. In Joel 1:14-15 that prophet speaks directly to the people in Israel in that future day saying:

Sanctify ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitants of the land into the house of the LORD your God, and cry unto the LORD,

Alas for the day! for the day of the LORD is at hand, and as a destruction from the Almighty shall it come.

And also in Joel 2:15-18 the prophet Joel says:

Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly:

Gather the people, sanctify the congregation, assemble the elders, gather the children, and those that suck the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet.

Let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, Spare thy people, O LORD, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?

Then, the LORD be jealous for his land, and pity his people.

God will use the threat and aniliation of the people of Israel as a reason to humble and chasten them. In Joel 2:12-14 the Lord speaks to the people in that day telling them what they must do:

Therefore also now, saith the LORD, turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning:

And rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the LORD your God: for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil.

Who knoweth if he will retrun and repent, and leave a blessing behind him; even a meat offering and a drink offering unto the LORD your God?

Yet the invading army will take a terrible toll upon the people of Israel destroying their crops and their land as it passes through. And the prophets give no indication of strong or successful Israelie resistance during enemies initial onslot. Joel foretold the great devistation the advancing army will inflict in Joel 1:6-12:

For a nation is come up upon my land, strong, and without number, whose teeth are the teeth of a lion, and he hath the cheek teeth of a great lion.

He hath laid my vine waste, and barked my fig tree: he hath made it clean bare, and cast it away; the branches thereof are made white.

Lament like a virgin girded with sackcloth for the husband of her youth.

The meat offering and the drink offering is cut off from the house of the LORD; the priests, the LORD'S ministers, mourn. The field is wasted, the land mourneth; for the corn is wasted: the new wine is dried up, the oil languisheth.

Be ye ashamed, O ye husbandmen; howl, O ye vinedressers, for the wheat and for the barley; because the harvest of the field is perished.

The vine is dried up, and the fig tree languisheth; the pomegranate tree, the palm tree also, and the apple tree, even all the trees of the field, are withered: because joy is withered away from the sons of men.

After devestating the outling areas, Gog and his army will the battle to Jerusalem. It is Zecheriah who gives details of this portion of the battle in Zecheriah 12:2-3 describing a siege which will be laid against the city:

Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of trembling unto all the people round about, when they shall be in the siege both against Judah and against Jerusalem.

And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it.

Zecheriah prophecies even more describing the agoney which the people of Jerusalem must indure in Zecheriah 14:1-2. He sees that half of the city will fall and that there will be looting and pilliging and raping by the enemy troups:

Behold, the day of the LORD cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee.

For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city.

John the Revelaton also prophecies of this portion of the great conflict. He sees that Gog's army will even penetrate to the outer courts of the Jerusalem Temple. And it is he who tells us the length of the conflict, that it will last 42 months which is 3 1/2 years.

John tells us also of the two prophets who will be laboring in Jerusalem at this time. They will have and use priesthood power to withhold the rain, which may explain why so many of the prophecies about this period speak of droubt and barronness and lack of water.

John tells us the two prophets will be slain and then maraculously return to life. Revelation 11:1-12 says:

And there was given me a reed like unto a rod: and the angel stood, saying, Rise, and measure the temple of God, and he altar, and them that worship therein.

But the court which is without the temple leave out, and measure it not; for it is given unto the Gentiles: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty and two months.

And I will give power unto my two witnesses, and ty shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days, clothed in sackcloth.

These are the two olive trees, and the two candlesticks standing before the God of the earth.

And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them, he must in this manner be killed.

These have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and have power over waters to turn them to blood and to smite the earth with all plagues, as often as they will.

And when they shall have finished their testimony, the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit shall make war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them.

And their dead bodies shall lie in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified.

And they of the people and kindreds and tongues and nations shall see their dead bodies three days and an half, and shll not suffer their dead bodies to be put in graves.

And they tat dwell upn the earth shall rejoice over them, and make merry, and shall send gifts one to another; because these two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth.

And after three days and an half the Spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon them which saw them.

And they heard a great voice from heaven saying unto them, Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies beheld them.

These events in the Jerusalem siege coupled with the repentance and humbling of the people will prove to be the turning point at which the Lord enters the battle and begins to trun the tide against Gog and his bands of merciners. The Lord will speaks to Israel's armies as it rallies and persues the battle with renued courage. Joel 2:11 says:

And the LORD shall utter his voice before his army: for his camp is very great: for his is strong that executeth his word: for the day of the LORD is great and very terrible; and who can abide it?

As the Israelies percieve that the Lord is suddenly with them and helping them, they will take fresh courage. Zechariah 12:8 describes the change by saying:

In that day shall the LORD defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and he that is feeble among them at the day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of the LORD before them.

And Zechariah also says in Zechariah 10:5-7:

And they shall be as mighty men, which tread down their enemies in the mire of the streets in the battle: and they shall fight, because the LORD is with them, and the riders on horses shall be confounded.

And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them.

And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the LORD.

Zechariah prophecies that the Lord will save the outlining areas, the tents of Judah first before moving to protect the Jerusalem area. And his supernatural powers will be manifested as he blinds the enimies horses and suddenly causes the riders be astonished and to be stricken with madness. Zechariah 12:3-7 says:
And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it.

In that day, saith the LORD, I will smite every horse with astonishment, and his rider with madness: and I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah, and will smite every horse of the people with blindness.

And the governors of Judah shall say in their heart, The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be my strength in the LORD of hosts their God.

In that day will I make the governors of Judah like an hearth of fire among the wood, and like a torch of fire in the sheaf; and they shall devour all the people round about, on the right hand and on the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem.

The Lord also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem do not magnify themselves againt Judah.

But the Lord will do even more than blind the enemys animales. Through Ezekiel he prophicies against Gog warning that when the Lord enters the fray he will pour out pestalance upon Gog's army and smite it with great hailstones, overflowing rain, fire and brimstones. Ezekiel 38:22 contains the Lord's promise that:

And I will plead against him with pestilence and with blood; and I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire, and brimstone.

John the Revelator prophisied of these same judgements in Revelation 16:21 saying:

And there fell upn men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

When you relize that a tallent of silver weighs about one hundred pounds and a tallent of gold weighs about two hundred pounds you reconize that these hailstones weighing a tallent will be gigantic. Hailstones of these dementions would certanily indicate the likelyhood of great atmospheric disterbances during the battle of Armageddon.

Zecheriah tells of yet another judgement which will be poored out against the invading armies. In Zecheriah 14:12, 15 he describes a terrible plegue which will consume the enemies flesh saying:

And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in the holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.

And so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that shall be in these tents, as this plague.

Coupled with all of the distructions of nature which will rain down on Gog and his army, will be a great earthquake in the Middle East. The greatest earthquake the world has ever experienced. Ezekiel 38:18-20 records the Lord's promise that:

And it shall come to pass at the same time when Gog shall come against the land of Israel, saith the Lord GOD, that my fury shall come up in my face.

For in my jealousy and in th fire of my wrath have I spoken, Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel;

So that the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the field, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, and all the man that are upon the face of the earth, shall shake at my presence, and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.

Joel also fortells the great earthquake after describing the enemys advance. Joel 2:10 says:

The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble: the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining:

John the Revelator is another who prophecies about the great earthquake, showing in revelation 16 that it extends far beyond the Middle East, even as fare east as the city of Rome, which he calls Babolone and in the two chapters of Revelation which follow. He relates this earthquake to the fall of the capatol of the great and abominable church, the great mother of harlots, in Revelation Chapters 17 and 18. But that's the subject for another discussion and cant be covered in this context.

Revelation 16:16-21 describes the earthquake as the greatest to occure durring mans time on the earth. Aparently its epacenter is outside of Israel because it only divides Jerusalem, while it levels great cities in other nations. It is accompanied by a tremendous hailstrom. John says:

And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.

And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying, It is done.

And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great.

And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found.

And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weitht of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

A significant passage in the Doctrine and Covenants speaks of these same combination of events. Describing events which are to occure shortly before the Lord's coming in glory. It refers to the sun and the moon being darkened. The often used scriptural description of an earthquake. It also describes the great hailstorm, the same plague that Zechariah prophecied which will strip the flesh from mens bones and the final colapse of the great and abominal church. All are linked together in the Doctrine and Covenants passage. Just as they are in this series of biblical prophecies concerning the great battle of Armageddon. It isn't a pleasant prophecy, but it's highly significant. Doctrine and Covenants Section 29 verses 14-21 says:

But, behold, I say unto you that before this great day shall come the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall be truned into blood, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and there shall be greater signs in heaven above and in the earth beneath;
And there shall be weeping and wailing among the hosts of men;

And there shall be a great hailstorm sent forth to destroy the crops of the earth.

And it shall come to pass, because of the wickedness of the world, that I will take vengenance upon the wicked, for they will not repent; for the cop of mine indignation is full; for behold, my blood shall not cleanse them if they hear me not.

Wherefore, I the Lord God will send forth flies upon the face of the earth, which shall take hold of the inhabitants thereof, and shall eat their flesh, and shall cause maggots to come in upon them;

And their tongues shall be stayed that they shall not utter against me; and their flesh shall fail from off their bones, and their eyes from their sockets;

And it shall come to pass that the beast of the forest and the fowls of the air shall devour them up.

And the great and abominable church, which is the whore of all the earth, shall be cast down by devouring fire, according as it is spoken by the mouth of Ezekiel the prophet, who spoke of these things, which have not come to pass but surely must, as I live, for abominations shall not reign.

But are more significant details about the great earthquake during the battle of Armageddon which must be considered. Zechariah prophecies in Chapter 14:10 that:

All the land shall be turned as a plain from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem:

This area from Geba, 6 miles north of Jerusalem, to Rimmon, 28 miles south of Jerusalem is now extreemly mountainous yet it appears that it will be leveled during the earthquake. Even more intreging is Zecheriah prophecy in 14:4-5 that:

And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south.
And ye shall flee to the valley of the mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal: yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah: and the LORD my God shall come, and all the saints with thee.

So Zechariah decsribes the great earthquake as the turning point of the battle. Just as Jerusalem is about to fall to Gog and his army, the Lord will cause this great earthquake to provide an avenue to escape for the prople of Jerusalem. The mount of Olives which runs north and south along the east side of the city of Jerusalem will be ruptured by the earthquake. Leaving a new valley running toward the east from the city of Jerusalem.

The earthquake will also cause water from Jerusalem to flow through the new valley, which will eventually make its way to the Salt Sea about 25 miles to the east. Zecheriah, Joel, and Ezekiel all describe it and it becomes clear that the water will have a profound affect upon Israel's future. Joel 3:18 says:

...a fountain shall come forth of the house of the LORD,

Zechariah describes the water as flowing year round, with half flowing toward the Dead Sea and half toward the Meditrainian. But Ezekiel devotes half a chapter to describing it. Describing its eastward flow and explaining how it will increase in debth as it flows until it becomes a river so deep it can't be easily crossed. And he tells how its fresh water will flow into the Dead Sea and eventually heal seas waters so that fish can survive there.

But back to the earthquake, what will cause the great earthquake to occure. Zechariah tell us it take place as the Lord comes and appears to his people on the Mount of Olives. Zechariah 14:3-4 says:

Then shall the LORD go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle.

And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof...

The Doctrine and Covenants also speaks of Christ's appearance in the mount of Olives in D&C 45:47-50 saying:

Then shall the arm of the Lord fall upon the nations.

And then shall the Lord set his foot upon this mount, and it shall cleave in twain, and the earth shall tremble, and reel to and fro, and the heavens also shall shake.

And the Lord shall utter his voice, and all the ends of the earth shall hear it; and the nations of the earth shall mourn, and they that have laughed shall see their folly.

And calamity shall cover the mocker, and the scorner shall be consumed: and they that have watched for iniquity shall be hewn down and cast into the fire.

The scriptures porvide pognient descriptions of what will transpire as the Lord makes his identy known to the people of Israel in the midst of the termoil from the earthquake and the battle which will still be raging. Doctrine and Covenants 45:51-53 reports the Lord's promise that:

And then shall the Jews look upon me and say: what are these wounds in thine hands and in thy feet?

Then shall they know that I am the Lord; for I will say unto them: These wounds are the wounds with which I was wounded int he house of my friends. I am he who was lifted up. I am Jesus that was crucified. I am the Son of God.

And then shall they weep because of their iniquities; then shall they lament because they persecuted the king.

Zechariah records the Lord's promis in Zechariah 12:10 that:

And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of fupplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn.

And Zechariah also fortells of the Lords appearance on the Mount in his own words observing in Chapter 13:6 that:

And one shall say unto him, What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

According to biblical prophecies appearance does not bring an abrupt end to the battle. The conflict will continue to rage, but his sudden appearance and his powering out of great judgement, by earthquakes, fire and hail and rain will give added strenght to the Israelie armies. The war will come to its climax and conclusion on two different fronts. On the mountains of Israel and in the vallies to the east of Jerusalem.

Gog, the enemy general and but 1/6 of his legions will die through battles throughout the mountains of Israel. This is according the Lord's words revield in Ezekiel 39:1-7. Ezekiel describes the sceen in detail, even telling how Gog will be smitten while wilding bow and arows. And he tells how fire will be sent on Magog, Gog's great army.

Ezekiel forcefully points out too that Gog's defeat sign that the Lord will no longer allow his holy name to be poluted and taken in vain, and that from that day on all the heathens will know that there is a God that is protecting Israel. Ezekiel says:

Therefore, thou son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am a gainst thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal:

And I will trune thee back, and leave but the sixth part of thee, and will cause thee to come up from the north parts, and will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel:

And I will smite they bow out of thy left hand, and will cause thine arrows to fall out of thy right hand.

Thou shalt fall upon the mounatins of Israel, thou, and all thy bands, and the people that is with thee: I will give thee unto the ravenous birds of every sort, and to the beasts fo the field to be devoured.

Thou shalt fall upon the open field: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

And I will send a fire on Magog, and among them that dwell carelessly in the isles: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

So will I make my holy name known in the midst of my people Israel; and I will not let them polute my holy name any more: and the heathen shall know that I am the LORD, the Holy One in Israel.

The third chapter of Joel records the Lords prophetic words about the other area where the conflict will climax. The valley of Jehoshaphat just east of Jerusalem, between that great city and the mount of Olives. Joel 3:2, 12, 14-16 says:
I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my peop;e and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.

Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about.

Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the LORD is near in the valley of decision.

The sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining.

The LORD also shall roar out of Zion,a nd utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but the LORD will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children fo Israel.

Joel reports that he will draw the attacking army into a desolate area near the Dead Sea, which he calls the east sea, and they will meet there demise there. Perhaps this means that invaders will follow the Israelites who will escape from Jerusulem through the new valley, through the mount of Olives which the great earthquake will open. Joel 2:20-21 says:

But I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face toward the east sea, and his hinder part toward the utmost sea, and his stink shall come up, and his ill savour shall come up, because he hath done great things.

Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the LORD will go great things.

Zecharia adds more about what will happen to the invading army in the Jerusalem area as it is defeated. He sees that as the suddenly stricken with a terrible plague, its soldures will trun one another and fight among themselves. Zechariah 14:12-14 says:

And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great tumult from the LORD shall be among them; and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall rise up agains the hand of his neighbor.

And Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem; and the wealth of all the heathen round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance.

With Gog and 5/6th of his hosts slain on the mountains and the remaining portion stricken in the area east of Jerusalem, the great battle of Armageddon will end. But the casualty toll for Israel will be huge and devestating, with 2/3rds of the Israelie population destroyed. The Lord's word through Zechariah 13:8-9 is that:

And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith the LORD, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein.

And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried: they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my prople: and they shall say, The LORD is my God.

And though Israel will rejoice in their victory there will be great sorrow poored out for those who will have been slain. This will occure in both areas where the fierce battles took place in Jerusalem and at Megiddo. Zechariah 12:11-14 says:

In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon.

And the land shall mourn, every family apart; the family of the house of David apart, and theri wives apart; the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart;

The family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family of Shimei apart, and their wives apart;

All the families that remain, every family apart, and their wives apart.

The task of recovery and of removing the debree of the war will be a major challenge. Ezekiel prophecies that it will take the Israelies 7 months just to bury the dead and seven years to burn up the weapons of war which will litter the countryside and remain as a grim reminder of the great destructing.

Since many of the enemy army will be slain near the read sea, the Israelies will use the area east of the Dead Sea as a burial ground to dispose of the bodies of the invadors. It will take months to retrieve them and transport them to that area. And a major clean up program will be undertaken involving an ongoing effort to burn the weapons left by the contending armies on the battle fields. Ezekiel 39:9-16 says:

And they that dwell in the cities of Israel shall go forth, and shall set on fire and burn the weapons, both the shields and the bucklers, the staves, and the spears, and they shall burn them with fire seven years:

So that they shall take no wood out of the field, neither cut down any out of the forests; for they shall burn the weapons with fire: and they shall spoil those that spoiled them, and rob those that robbed them, saith the Lord GOD.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give unto Gog a place there of graves in Israel, the valley of the passengers on the east of the sea: and it shall stop the noses of the passengers: and there shall they bury Gog and all his multitude: and they shall call it The valley of Hamon-gog.

And seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them, that they may cleanse the land.

Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be to them a renown the day that I shall be glorified, saith the Lord GOD.

And they shall sever out men of continual employment, passing through the land to bury with the passengers those that remain upon the face of the earth, to cleanse it: after the end of seven months shall they search.

And the passengers that pass through the land, when any seeth a man's bone, then shall he set up a sing by it, till the buriers have buried it in the valley of Hamon-gog.

And also the name of the city shall be Hamonah. Thus shall they cleanse the land.

But during the recovery period, the wild beast and fouls of will pray on the bodies of the dead. So much so that Ezekiel recorded the Lord's words spoken to him in prophecy in this manner in Ezekiel 39:17-20:

And, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD; Speak unto every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field, Assemble yourselves, and come; gather yourselves on every side to my sacrifice that I do sacrifice for you, even a great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel, that ye may eat flesh, and drink blood.

Ye shall eat the flesh of the mighty, and drink the blood of the princes of the earth, of rams, of lambs, and of goats, of bullocks, all of them fatlings of Bashan.

And ye shall eat fat till ye be full, and drink blood till ye be drunken, of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you.

Thus ye shall be filled at my table with horses and chariots, with mighty men, and with all men of war, saith the Lord GOD.

What will be the fate of other nations which will have sent their troops against Israel. Little specific information is found in the scriptures. A few clues are given however. As previously reported Joel says: "That Egypt shall be a desolation and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness for the vilonce against the children of Judah, because they have shed inocent blood in their land."

And Zechariah also upon Egypt and upon other nations in the form of plague and droubt. If those nations fail to come Jerusalem to worship the Lord Jehoviah. Zechariah 14:16-19 says:

And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles.

And it shall be, that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, even upon them shall be no rain.

And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, that have no rain; there shall be the plague, wherewith the LORD will smite the heathen that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.
 This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

Ezekiel stresses the Lord's assertion that the battle will serve to teach both the heathen nations and the people of Israel once and for all that Jehovah is Israel's God and that Israel has paid in full the price for its past iniquity.

Now the Lord has gathered them and sanctified them in the conflict and he is now with Israel and blessing them. Ezekiel 39:21-29 says:

And I will set my glory among the heathen, and all the heathen shall see my judgment that I have executed, and my hand that I have laid upon them.

So the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God from that day and forward.

And the heathen shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity: because they trespassed aginst me, therefore hid I my face from them, and gave them into the hand of their enemies: so fell they all by the sword.

According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions have I done unto them, and hid my face from them.

Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Now will I bring again the captivity of Jacob, and have mercy upon the whole house of Israel, and will be jealous for my holy name;

After that they have borne their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid.

When I have brought them again from the people, and gathered them out of their enemies' lands, and am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations;

Then shall they know that I am the LORD their God, which caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen: but I have gathered them unto their own land, and have left none of them any more there.

Neither will I hide my face any more from them: for I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord GOD. The Lord through his prophet Joel promises both temprol and spiritual blessings upon Israel. He promises great revelations and that Jerusalem will be a place of safety in the time that remains before the great and terrible day of the Lord, his final comming in glory occures. Joel 2:21-32 records the promise:

Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the LORD will do great things.

Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field: for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth her fruit, the fig tree and the vine do yield their strength.

Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the LORD your God: for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month.

And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the fats shall overflow with wine and oil.

And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the cankerworm, and the catepiller, and the palmerworm, my great army which I sent among you.

And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the LORD your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed.

And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions:

And also upn the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my spirit.

And I will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke.

The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the LORD come.

And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the LORD shall be delivered: for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the LORD hath said, and in the remnant whom the LORD shall call.

Zechariah prophecies that reverece for the Lord will be the accepted standard among Israel's population throughout both Jerusalem and the entire nation at that time. Saying in the last two verses of Zechariah 14:20-21:

In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD; and the pots of the LORD's house shall be like the bowles before the altar.

Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holiness unto the LORD of hosts: and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and seethe therein: and in that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the house of the LORD of hosts.

And Ezekiel alludes to the Lord's future visit to Jerusalem Temple and of the continued functing of David the prince there. Ezekiel 44:1-3 records that:

Then he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary which looketh toward the east; and it was shut.

Then said the LORD unto me; This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; because the LORD, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut.

It is for the prince; the prince, he shall sit in it to eat bread before the LORD; he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.

Zechariah records the difference between the former times when Israel and Judah were a curse among the heathen. Contrasting that with the era after the battle of Armageddon when they will be a blessing to others. The people other nations will come up to Jerusalem because they know that God is with Israel. Zechariah 8:12-15, 20-23 says:

For the seed shall be prosperous; the vine shall give her fruit, and the ground shall give her increase, and the heavens shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things.

And it shall come to pass, that as ye were a curse among the heathen, O house of Judah, and house of Israel; so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing: frar not, but let your hands be strong.
For thus saith the LORD of hosts; as I thought to punish you, when your fathers provoked me to wrath, saith the LORD of hosts, and I repented not:

So again have I thought in these days to do well unto Jerusalem and to the house of Judah: fear ye not.

Thus saith the LORD of hosts; It shall yet come to pass, that there shall come people, and the inhabitants of many cities:

And the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I will go also.

Yea, many people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD.

Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you.

But it is the prophet Isaiah who best describes the glory of Israel after the battle of Armegeddon. During the intervul of that between that great war and the final coming and glory of the Savior, he speaks of another generation after the Armegeddon conflict, when the sons of those who fought against Israel in the great battle will come bending to Israel.

And he tells how those of the next generation come acknowledging that Jerusalem is trully Zion of the holy one of Israel. And that in the next generation the sons of strangers will come to build up there walls eventhough darkness and wickodness will still cover the earth, people will come to Israels light and the riches and good things of the earth will flow to her. And Israel will be a land of peace. The last three verses of Isaiah 59 allude to the battle of Armageddon and then continue into Isaiah 60 which records the Lords great promises for Israel for the generation after that conflict. And what glorious promises they are. This is the passage:

So shall they fear the name of the LORD form the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the LORD shall lift up a standard against him.

And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that trun from transgression in Jacob, saith the LORD.
As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the LORD; My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the LORD, from henceforth and for ever.

Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

For, behold, the darkness shall coverthe earth, and gross darkness the prople: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: all they gather themselves together, they come to thee: thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side.

Then thou shalt see, and flow together, and thine heart shall fear, and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come unto thee.

The multitudes of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come: they shall bring gold and incense; and they shall shew forth the praises of the LORd.

All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory.

Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?

Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships to Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the LORD thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee.

And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

Therefore thy gates shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the forces of the Gentiles, and that their kings may be brought.

For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.

The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious.

The sons also of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee, The city of the LORD, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations.

Thou shalt also suck the milk of the Gentiles, and shalt suck the breast of kings: and thou shalt know that I the LORD am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob.

A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation: I the LORD will hasten it in his time.

Now when will this great prophecy of Isaiah be fulfilled. Isaiah's coments contain several important clues. Note that this era shall be a time when darkness shall cover the earth and gross darkness the people. And he referrs to a continued gathering during the period when some will fly as a cloud and as the doves to their windows. And others will come by the ships of Tarshish. Focus on his allution to nations to which yet shall be utterly wasted. And that a small one shall be a strong nation. These coments would seem to indicate that this is an area which still proceeds the final apparence of the Savior. They take place prior to the time when world wide peace will be ignaguarted by the cleansing and purging out of the wickod of the earth by fire at the Lords final coming in glory.

Yet this passage definatly speaks of a time after the battle of Armageddon when the Savior will have come and redeemed the people of Israel, "When the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light and the kings to the brightness of thy rising." When "violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders;" And "Thy people also shall be all righteous"

This passage then seems to be an indication between the appearance of the Lord on the mount of Olives and His final coming in glory.

Now let me address one more issue before concluding this presentation. There is some confusion within the Church regarding the question of the whether the Lords appearance on the mount of Olives during the battle of Armageddon constitues His final coming in glory.

Though the recent LDS edition of the Bible lables some of the passages which speak of that mount of Olives appearance as his second comming in the Chapter headings, a comparison with major passages describing the Saviors second coming, His final advent in glory clearly shows that the mount of Olives appearance is a preliminary coming.

It is an important even certanly but it is on the same level as his coming to the New Jerusalem and to the councel at Adam-ondi-Ahman. These will be local appearances. They are highly significant, but they are not of the same scope and magnitude of his final coming in glory.

Lets quickly review some of the key passages which describe his final advent to make it obvious that the mount of Olives visit will not Lords great coming in full glory. D&C 88:95-110 is a key passage which describes the Lords final coming in glory.
These verses show that his coming in glory will preceeded by a half hour of scilence in heaven. That the curtian of heaven will be unfolded before he appears and that his second advent will be introduced by litteral trumpet blasts sounded by seven angles. The saints who are alive on the earth will be caught up into the air to decend with the Savior as he comes and other saints will be resurrected as he arrives on earth.

After he comes the seven angels will again sound their trumps and reveal the secreat acts of men and then the saints will be filled with his glory, receive eternal inheritances and will be made equal to Christ. None of these events are charchteristic of the Lords appearance on the mount of Olives.

Revelation 19:11-16 is another important description of the Lord's second comming, his final advent in glory. It describes the as returning as mounted on a white horse with many crowns on his head and clothed in a vesture dipped in blood. The armies of heaven are to accompany him. They will also be mounted on white horses and they will be clothed in fine linnen white and clean. Agiain this desgription does not match that which will take place on the mount of Olives. D&C 101:23, Revelation 1:7 and Isaiah 40:5 all are infatic in the teaching that every eye shall whitness his advent when he comes in glory and that all flesh shall see it together. But that isn't charteristic of his appearance on the mount of Olives when he will only be seen by the jews who happen to be on the mount at that moment.

Other passages describe great changes in the configeration of the earth which are to take place when he comes in glory. Changes which will not occure when he appears on the mount of Olives. Thou a great earthquake will take place as he makes his appearance on the mount, these propheecied changes are of far greater magnitude.

Mormon 9:2-5 says that the earth shall be rolled together as a scroll and the elements shall melt with fervant heat. Isaiah 40:3-4 proclaim that every valley shall be exalted and every mountian and hill shall be made low. And D&C 133:21-25 telles us that he shall command the great deap and it shall be driven back into the north countries. None of these things will happen with conection of the mount of Olives appearance.

D&C 101:24-25 and Isaiah 24:5-6 tell us that when the Lord comes in glroy the earth will be clensed by fire and the wickod inhabitantce of the earth are burned when he appears. That dosen't happen when he comes on the mount of Olives.

Revelation 19:6-9 tells us that when the Lord comes in glory, he will be united with his Church who will all be arrayed in white linnen and they will be called into the marage supper of the Lamb. That event isn't characteristic of the mount of Olives appearance of the Savior.

And D&C 133:46-52 prophecy specific statements which the Savior will make when he comes in glory. Statements like "I have trodden the winepress alone." And "The year of my Redeemed has come." Again these statements are not typical of the mount of Olive appearance.

Matthew 24:36-34 tell us that the day and hour of his final coming and glory is not known by any man, but the scriptures tells us very explicitely when he will come to the mount of Olives. Linking that appearance to flow of the battle in Jerusalem.

There are other contrasts which could be easily drawn, but this should be sufficient to show that the Lord's appearance on the mount of Olives is not his Second Coming in Glory, but is a prior even of less magnitude, though it will be of major importance.

For further proof that the mount of Olives appearance is not Lord's final advent in glory look at what the prophecies we have considered will happen after he comes to the mount of Olives:

1.The opposing armies will continu to fight. The Israelie army will come off victorious while the army of Gog will trun on one another and fight among themselves.

2. The wickod won't be suddenly destroyed by fire and the earth won't cleansed when the Savor comes on the Mount of Olives. On the contrary the wickod will be slain in battle and their bodies will lie on the mountains to be eaten by the birds and beasts. The victors will robe and spoil the bodies of the vanquished. The dead bodies will stink and burning of the dead will take seven months.

3.The weapons of war will litter the hills of Israel and will be used for fuel for seven years rather than being destroyed by the cleansing brightness of Lord's coming.

4. Converts will still be made and be gathered out from among the wickod after the Lord has come.

ARMAGEDDON
By Duane S. Crowther

Armageddon, the word strikes terror in the hearts of many. The News media use it to conger up images tumultuous conflict and ultimate disaster. Religionists us it to represent the climax of last day events. The sumation of the end time struggle between the forces of good and evil.

But where does the word come from and what does it really mean. It appears only once in the bible in Chapter 16 of the book of Revelation. In verses 14-16 of that Chapter, John foresees a great end time event when spirits of devels working miricals go forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them unto the battle of that great day of God Almighty. And then John adds that He gathered them together to a place called in the Hebrew tounge Armageddon.

That's it. That is the only scriptural reference that uses the word Armageddon. But the image that John rases of the whole world gathered together to battle has caught the imagination of millions who see it as a reference to a final confruntation, a eppic struggle for world survival of epic porportions.

What does the word Armageddon mean. The term Har Megeddon is a Greek transliteration of the Hebrew for the mountain of Megedow. A single mountain located in northwest Israel near the town of Nazereth about 50 miles north of Jerusalem. It's there, according to John the Revelator that this great last days conflict will be centered.

The battle of Arageddon is a war which neighboring nations with support and mercenaries from around the world will wage against the nation of Israel. It is the most prophecied future event in all scripture and is come to represent the ultimate struggle between the House of Israel, God's covenant people, and the forces of evil.

Standing as the leader of Israel's host will be a ruler known as David the Prince. While the enemy army Magog, will be led by a gerneral the bible refers to a Gog.

Also prominate in the scinero will be two prophets who will administer in Jerusalem for three and one half years durring the war. With God given power, they will withhold the rain and control the elemints, bringing a sevier droubt upon the entire Middle East.

Now with that brief synopsis and a review of the cast of charcters to guide our understanding, lets take a more in depth look at this great last day even which has intregued the Christian world for almost two millennia. Many prophets fortell important aspects of Israel's future in the last days, but four porphets inparticular provide the keys to our understanding of the great battle of Armagddon. Ezekiel describes in in Chapters 38 and 39 of his prophecy. The entire book of Joel is devoted to describing this tramatic climax of Israel's history. Chapter 12-14 of Zechariah tell of the great conflict. And Chapter 11 of the Revelation written by the Apostle John provides important details also.

The writings from these four prophets with supplimentry insights from other prophetic writings will form the basis for this discussion. But befor describing the war, it is important to discuss many of the events that will lead up to it. And also the conditions in Israel and throughout the world which will prevail at that time.

Let's begin with the gathering of Israel. With more detail than any ancient seer, the prophet Ezekiel describes the conditions that will exist in Israel in the last days. In Ezekiel 36, he tell us of gathering of scattered Israel to their promised land and sight the pledge to the House of Israel which says:

Ezekiel 36:24, 26-28:

I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.

A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I pur within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.

And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.

Ezekiel records the Lord's promises of temprel blessings to his people in the same chapter. Focusing on an adiquate food supply. In Ezekiel 36:29-30, the Lord says that:

I will also save you from all your uncleannesses: and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you.

And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more reproach of famine among the heathen.

He also relates the Lord's promises to gathering Israel of significant building and growth saying: Ezekiel 36:33-34:

...I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the wastes shall be builded.

And the desolate land shall be tilled, ...

And he relates the promise in Ezekiel 36:36:

... that I the LORD build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate.

But many other prophets besides Ezekiel fortell the return of the ancient house of Israel to their promised land. They speak of the two ancient nations of Juda and Israel being united in the land of Israel in the Last days.

Jerimiah, for instance, in Chapter 3:18 says:

In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for and inheritance unto your fathers.

And Zecheriah also speaks of the decendants of Judah and of Joseph, the two ancient branches of the house of Israel being united in the land of Israel in the last days. Zexheriah 10:6 says:

And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them.

So implicite in our understanding of Israel's future prior to the battle of Armagddon, is the realization that both branches of the House of Israel, the decendants of both Joseph and Judah will be restored and gathered to their land of promise in the Middle East.

The decendants of Joseph, of corse, are the decendants of the lost 10 tribes which comprise the northern kingdom of Israel in ancient times. They were conquered by Asseria and carried away into captivity somewhere in the north, back about 721 B. C. Since that time they have been known as the lost tribes or the lost 10 tribes of Israel.

An important aspect of LDS theology as stated in the 10th Article of Faith is that, "We believe in the litteral gathering of Israel and the restoration of the ten tribes." We anticipate that the 10 tribes will come as a group from the north to the New Jerusalem area in the United States area of Missoria, and then will find their aloted area there two confining so they will move to their promised land in Israel in the Middle East. But the scriptural support for that understanding is another subject and to lengthly for this context.

Chapter 47 of Ezekiel describes Israels boundries in the last days defining them as much larger than the nations present day borders. They will include much of Sothern Seria, including the city of Damascus, the Western portion of Jordan and all or at least part of Lebanon.

The prophecies don't tell us the process by which Israels boundries will be enlarged from their present dimentions to the much larger areas described by Ezekiel. But if current Middle East conditions are any indication, expantion of Israel's present limits would be fearcly apposed by the nearby Arrab States and would only be gained through extreemly bitter conflict. And if such boundry gains are wone by Israel, either in battle or by negotiation, the losses suffered by surronding nations will be regarded and remembered with bitterness and may well be a major cause of the battle of Armagddon.

It's Ezekiel who defines the geographical areas in which the tribes of Israel will be situated. In Ezekiel Chapters 47 and 48 he reports the vision in which he sees that the Jerusalem area is to be a holy zone, with an inheritance area for the Levites just north of the city. The land to the east and the west of the this holy area all the way to the boders will be set aside for the prince the ruler who will be governing Israel at that time. Seven of the tribes will be situated north of the Jewish Lameria and paralell strips accross the country, running from the eastern to the western boders.

From north to south these tribes will be Dan, Asher, Naphtali, Manasseh, Ephraim, Reuben and Judah. The othere five tribes will be settled south of the Jerusalem area from north to south they are Benjamin, Simeon, Issacar Zebulun and Gad.

Ezekiel prophecies that when the tribes will return to their Middle East home land, they wont be devided any more into the two nations of Israel and Judah. They will be united into a single nation.

In his prophecy in Chapter 37:21 he records the Lord's promise that:

I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land:

And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all:

There are numerous prophecies which allud to the king who will rule over Israel in the area in which the battle of Aramagddon will occure. Ezekiel is one of the prophets who tells us about the man who will rule over Israel in eventful period. He reports the Lord's pledge [in Ezekiel 37:24, 26] that "David my servant shall be king over them" [and] "my servant David shall be their prince for ever.

Joseph Smith wrote on one occasion a letter in which he commented on this future leader. He wrote:

The throne and kingdom of David is to be taken from him and given to another by the name of David in the last days. Raised up out of his linage.

And Joseph Smith Prophecied that:

He shall build the temple of the Lord and he shall bear the glory and shall sit and rule upon his throne. And he shall be a priest upon his throne.

The Prophet in this instance was commenting on Zecheriah's prophecy in Zechariah 6:12-13 about an indivudual in the last days who will be known as the BRANCH.

Joseph Smith obviously believed that the prince and the Branch will be one and the same person. Zechariah's prophecy on which Joseph Smith's comments were based said:

...Behold the man whose name is The BRANCH; and he shall grow up out of his place, and he shall build the temple of the LORD:

Even he shall build the temple of the LORD; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne: and the counsel of peace shall be between them both.

Jeremiah also prophied about this important last days ruler. In Jerimiah 23:5-6 says:

Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will raise unto David a righteoul Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth.

In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

And the prophet Hosea also fortold the reign of this important latter day David. Hosea 3:4-5 says:

For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an ephod, and without teraphim:

Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the LORD their God, and David their king; and shall fear the LORD and his goodness in the latter days.

In Isaiah 55:3-5, Isaiah prophecied directly to David the great last days leader. He said:

...I will make an everlasting covenant with, enen the sure mercies of David.

Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people.

Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto ther because of the LORD thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee.

Thou the scriptures don't address the issue we need to recognize the implications of Israel's being ruled by a king at that day as apposed to its present form of government. Obviously major changes in the nations govermental structure are implied. We don't know how or when they will take place, but the changes one of a long list of important items which must transpire before the worlds setting is ready for the battle of Aramagddon is ready to be waged.

Now lets change the subject and refer to other geo-political events prophecied for Israel's future but prior to the battle of Armagddon. Several biblical prophecies alude to the strenth and political affairs of the Isralies in that window of time after the ten tribes are to have returned to Israel but before the battle of Armagddon.

Isaiah 11:10-16, for instance, gives important details for Israel's future affairs. It speaks of a future individual called the root of Jesse. Many people believe that this is another title besides David the prince and the BRANCH for the future leader who will build the Jerusalem temple and who rule Israel durring the battle of Armagddon. This passage depicts him in the future role of setting up an ensign and gathering and uniting scattered Israel.

And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for and ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea.

And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth.

The envy also of Ephraim shall depart, and the adversaries of Judah shall be cut off: Ephraim shall noy envy Judah, and Judah shall not vex Ephraim.

But they shall fly upon the shoulders of the Philistiens toward the west; they shall spoil them of the east together: they shall lay their hand upon Edom and Moab; and the children of Ammon shall obey them.

An the LORD shall utterly destroy the toungue of the Egyptian sea; and with his mighty wind shall he shake his hand over the river, and shall smite it in the seven streams, and make men go over dryshod.

And there shall be an highway for the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria; like as it was to Israel in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt.

This passage is better understood if we identify the localities it speaks about with modern names. It talks about people being gathered from six places. From Assyria, Egypt, Pathros, Cush, Elam, and Shinar. Three lie south of Israel. The other three to the North.

Egypt, Cush and Pathros are the three South of Israel. They're all situated in northeastern Afraca. Pathros is the upper Nile River area of southern area of Egypt. Cush is Etheopia, located southeast of Egypt along the southwestern cost of the Red Sea.

The other three lie northeast of Israel. Ancient Assyria is modern Iraq. Ancient Shinar is located in the Tigrus Euphraties valley of southeastern Iraq. Ancient Elam is located just northwest of the northern tip of the Pursian Gulf, in what is now southwest corner of Eran.

So Isahia's prophecy speaks of gathering people from Eran, Iraq, Egypt, and from Etheopia and from the Islands in the Meditranian Sea. But it also refers to a tax agains the Phyilistiens to the west. That's the Guasa Strip area which for years has been a festering center of Aarob discontent.

And Isaiah refers to scermishes in the east and south against Edom, Moab, and Ammon. In modern terms that represent warfare against the kingdom of Jordan.

Isaiah also refers to events in Egypt and Assyria with intense doubt also coming on the Nile River, which apparently drys up the Nile delta.

When seen in light of the next prophecy we will discuss made by Zechariah his allusion seems to imply Israelie defeets of both Egypt and modern Iraq.

Zechariah prophecies both defeet for Egypt and Assyaria in that future area. In Zechariah 10:3-12 he reports the Lord's promise that:

Mine anger was kindled against the shepherds, and I punished the goats: for the LORD of hosts hath visited his flock the house of Judah, and hath made them as his goodly horse in the battle.

Out of him came forth the corner, out of him the nail, out of him the battle bow, out of him every oppressor together.

And they shall be as mighty men, which tread down their enemies in the mire of the streets in the battle: and they shall fight, because the LORD is with them, and the riders on horses shall be confounded.

And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upn them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them.

And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as though wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the LORD.

I Will hiss for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them: and they shall increase as they have increased.

And I will sow them among the people: and they shall remember me in far countries: and they shall live with their children, and turn again.

I will bring them again also out of the land of Egypt, and gather them out of Assyria; and I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon; and place shall not be found for them.

And he shall pass through the sea with affiction, and shall smite the waves in the sea, and all the deeps of the river shall dry up: and the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart away.

And I will strengthen them in the LORD; and they shall walk up and down in his name, saith the LORD.

So Zechariah's prophecy indicates defeets for Iraq and Egypt, as he foresees that Assyria, meaning Iraq's, pride shall be brought down. And Egypt shall loose its power or sceptre. And Zechariah like Isaiah indicates that the deeps of a river will dry up, though its not clear whether its the Nile or the Tigrus or the Euphraties River he is prophesying about. Which ever river it is, it still implies a major droubt for the entire eastern Miditrainen area.

Other prophecies also allud to the same events. Chapter 10 of Isaiah is a prophecy againt ancient Assyria which also looks forward to the last days. In the latter day contect of the gathering of Israel, the Lord reveils these words against Assyria, which would be modern day Iraq, in Isaiah 10:16-21:

Therefore shall the Lord, the Lord of hosts, send among his fat ones leanness; and under his glory he shall kindle a burning like the burning of a fire.

And the light of Isreal shall be for a fire, and his Holy One for a flame: and it shall burn and devour his thorns and his briesr in one day;

And shall consume the glory of his forest, and of his fruitful field, both soul and body: and they shall be as when a standardbearer fainteth. And the rest of the trees of his forest shall be few, that a child may write them.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the remnant of Israel, and such as are excaped of the house of Jacob, shall no more again stay upon him that smote them; but shall stay upon the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, in truth.

The remnant shall return, even the remnant of Jacob, unto the mighty God.

It is this prophecy that tells of Iraq's loss of its forest fruitful fields and even its briers and thorns which brings leanness to the people. This is another indication of a prolonged droubt or is the burning anctual fire.

Another passage Isaiah 19 is a burden pronounced against ancient Egypt, which also has last days insights concerning both modern Egypt and modern Assyria which is Iraq. Isaiah 19:17-25 says:

And the land of Judah shall be a terror unto Egypt, every one that maketh mention thereof shall be afraid in himself, because of the counsel of the LORD of hosts, which he hath determined against it.

In that day shall five cities in the land of Egypt speak the language of Canaan, and swear to the LORD of hosts; one shall be called, The city of destruction.

In that day shall there be an altar to the LORD in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the LORD.

And it shall be for a sign and for a witness unto the LORD of hosts in the land of Egypt: for they shall cry unto the LORD because of the oppressors, and he shall send them a saviour, and a great one, and he shall deliver them.

And the LORD shall be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians shall do sacrifice and oblation; yea, they shall vow a vow unto the LORD, and perform it.

And the LORD shall smite Egypt: he shall smite and heal it: and they shall retrun event to the LORD, and he shall be intreated of them, and shall heal them.

In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian shall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians shall serve with the Assyrians.

In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, even a blessing in the midst of the land:

Whom the LORD of hosts shall bless, saying, Blessed of Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands, and Israel mine inheritance.

So here is another prophecy that says the Lord will smite Egypt in the last days, smite it and then heal it and cause the Egyptian people to believe in the Lord.

And here is another prophecy like Isaiah 11:16 that fortells the establishment of a major highway which will connect Egypt with Iraq and presumiably will pass through Israel. What we don't know for sure is the cronological order of these events in comparison to the events reported in other prophecies. Whether they happen before, durring or after the battle of Armagddon.

Joel's prophecy in Joel 3:19 provides the same chronoligical challenge. We don't understand the exact time of its fulfullment. But Joel prophecies in a last days context that:

Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land.

The prophet Obadiah also foresees that latter day Israel will possess the lands of its neighbors. He says that in some future day that Israel will conquer and possess the area controled by the ancient descendents of Esau. That area was Edom just south by southeast of the dead sea, an area which is presently under the control of Jordan.

According to Obadiah, Israel will also control the plains of the Philistines which is Israel's Guasa strip. And Israel will control Zarephath a sight located between the ancient Tyra and Sidon, which is now modern Lebinon. Again we don't know the full chronilogical relationship, whether this expansion will occure before the battle of Armagddon or as a result of that war. This is his prophecy as recorded in Obadiah verses 15-21:

Fro the day of the LORD is near upon all the heathen: as thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee: thy reward shall return upon thine own head.

For as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the heathen drink continually, yea, they shall drink, and they shall swallow down, and they shall be as though they had not been.

But upon mount Zion shall be deliverance, and there shall be holiness; and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions.

And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble, and they shall kindle in them, and devour them; and there shall not be any remaining of the house of Esau; for the LORD hath spoken it.

And they of the south shall possess the mount of Esau; and they of the plain the Philistines: and they shall possess the fields of Ephraim, and the fields of Samaria: and Benjamin shall possess Gilead.

And the captivity of this host of the children of Israel shall possess that of the Canaanites, even unto Zarephath; and the captivity of Jerusalem, which is in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the south.

And saviours shall come up on mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau; and the kingdom shall be the LORD's.

So there are a number of scriptural prophecies which describs Israel's political affairs in the general last days period arround the battle of Armagddon. That time after the lost ten tribes have come forth and all the tribes of Israel are situated in the land of Israel. As I have commented all the cronoligical relationships arn't fully defined in the scriptures, so at present, we are unsure whether they take place before Armagddon or as a result of the battle itself. But the prophecies are significant and they clearly depect Israel as expanding her borders and gaining assendency over her neighbors.

Also significant among the prophecies are those which describe the last days construction of Temple in Jerusalem prior to the battle of Armagddon. One of the best known of those passages is Isaiah Chapter 2:1-4 which links the establishing of the temple with the great battle of Armagddon in which the Lord would judge among the nations and rebuke many people. The prophecy says:

The word the Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the LORD's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it.
And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

The most significant sceries of prophecies concerning the building of the temple in the last days in Jerusalem is found in seven chapters of Ezekiel Chapters 40-46, which report Ezekiel's vision of the temple construction. His vision carfully defines its demensions, its layout and its acts of worship which will be preformed there. It's obvious that the constuction of this temple will be a significant last day's event.

Ezekiel 47 prophecies that fresh water will be found in large quantities at the temple sight and will flow eastward as a river, eventually reaching the Dead Sea and healing its salty water.

Revelation Chapter 11 makes it clear that the Jerusalem temple will have been constructed prior to the battle of Armagddon because it indicates that a protion of that temple will be overrun by Israel's enemys durring the battle.

But to better understand the battle of Armageddon we need to atleast summerize other prophecies and world conditions at that time, and prophecies of preceeding events of worldwide importance must be must also be reviewed. Much must come to pass before the great battle occures. Prior to that time there will be third world war, with Russia and her allies aligned against U.S. and its allies. Those who have received inspired insights concerning the war indicate that Russia will go down to defeat never to regain its present status as a major world power.

The worldwide economy will have been errepably damaged durring the conflict, appearntly, and the world will go into worldwide caos with many nations including the United States experincing internal wars and anarchy. This great conflict is vividly described in a tape by this auther entitled "World War Three, God's judgements upon the nations", which includes many explainations of many significant prophecies.

Durring the period following the third World War the saints will return Missouri and establish the New Jerusalem. There will be a major period of conversion among the Lamanites and many of them will gather to Missouri. The lost ten tribes will come from the north and will settle temporalily in the Jackson County area. Christ will appear in the New Jerusalem temple. Presures exerted by the great and abominable church will cause sever persecutions of church members at that time and will eventually lead to a forth World War in which the New Jerusalem in Missouri will be worlds area of peace and stability. This universal conflict will result in the defeat or collapse of many of the nations of Europe.

Durring this turblent area, the great council at Adam-ondi-Ahman will held and the Savior will once again appear. This forth world war with the many events associated with the actions of that and abominable organization which will persecute the saints is described in another tape by this auther entitled, "The great and abominable church in prophecy".

After the fourth world war a major period of missionary labor and gathering of Israel will begin. 144,000 high priests will be chosen and given protection to withstand the great last days pleagues and judgements. Many of the ten tribes will move from the New Jerusalem to the area of Israel in the Middle East, while others of Israel are gathered from among the nations.

Its in this area of international conflict that the chronoligical setting for the great battle of Armageddon is finally accomplished. David the prince will come to power. The Jerusalem temple will be built. And Israel will exprnd its geo-political boders. This takes place while the plegues and distruction of the opening of the seventh seal described in Revelation Chapters 8-11 transpire.

What will be the causes of the great battle of Armageddon. Both history and prophecy give clues. We can already see the great antagnasim which exists between the people of Israel and the Aarob palistiniens who have been displaced newly formed nation. Both clame ties to the land dating back almost 4000 years. The deeply ingraned hatered between Moslems and Jews is a second possible motive. We have already discussed a third potential reason for the future atatck on Israel, a desire for revenge felt by surrounding counteries because of Israel's successful geographical expansion obtained at their expense.

The prophet Ezekiel foresaw a forth reason, greed. The growth and prosperity experienced by Israel will tempt other nations and try to spoil Palastine. Ezekile 38:9-12 is his prophecy to those covetous nations of the future in which he describes the enemies attatck and their motivies saying:

Thou shalt ascend and come like a storm, thou shalt be like a cloud to cover the land, thou, and all thy bands, and many peole with thee.
Thus saith the Lord GOD; It shall also come to pass, that at the same time shall things come into they mind, and thou shalt think an evil thought:

And thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; I will go to tem that are at rest, that dwell safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates,

To take a spoil, and to take a prey; to trun thine hand upon the desolate places that are now inhabited, and upon the people that are gathered out of the nations, which have gotten cattle and goods, that dwell in the midst of the land.

Ezekiel, then, sees that the enemy forces motives will be to come and to take a spoil. This will be seen as easily accomplished as Israel be regarded as a land of unwalled villages.

A prophecy by John the Revelator warns of a 5th reason for the war. Interference in anti-Isralie adgitation by last days individuals who will have been involved with the activities with the great and abominable church. In Revelation 16:12-16 he makes reference to the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet and speakes of unclean spirits which will come from them to the kings of the earth, enticing those political leaders to take part in a war against Israel. The passage says:

And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet.

For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.

Notice that in the first verse of that passage there is a prophecy similar to the passages already sighted from Isaiah 11 and Zecheriah 10 which deal with the drying up of a great body of water. Link that concept together with what John the Revelator says about the two prophets who will function in Jerusalem for 3 1/2 years. He forsees that these have power to shut the heaven that it rain not in the days of their prophecy. And have power over waters to turn them to blood and to smite the earth with all plagues as offten as they will.

It is very possible that the very deeds of these two individuals will be known and recognized by other nations. And that their activities will be preceeved as bringing major harm to the surrounding countries who will be experienceing major droubt. Which they will regard as a lagitimate reason for waging war. That's a possible sixth motive. And notice that the prophecy in Revelation 16:12 forsees another significant body of water, the great river Euphraties being completely dried up.

And seventh, John the Revelator describes the worldwide antagism generated against the House of Israel at that day as being the work of spirits of deviles. Certanily it will still be satans desire attempt to twart the work of the Lord. That has been his effort throughout the history of the world. So he will play a part in it.

But the eighth reason and most important motive of all is that the Lord will use this great conflict to vindicate Himself, His work, His power, and His people in the sight of all mankind. The Lord repedidely asserts, in the scriptures that his ultimate purpose for the great battle of Armageddon will be to make his tremendous power known to all the nations. Ezekiel 38:16 for instance, records the words to Gog the future general:

...I will bring thee against my land, that the heathen may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

And again in Ezekiel 28:23:

There will I magnify myself and sanctify myself, and I will be known in the eyes of many nations and they shall know that I am the Lord.

And coupled for the Lords desire for vindication of his people and accnowledgement by the heathen of his all incumpusing power. It will be God's intent to punish the wickod and pour out his anger upon him. Zephaniah 3:8 records the Lord's indication that:

...my determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy.

All of these eight reasons and perhaps others motives which will become apparent as the times draws near may play a significant part in causing the terrible conflict. Now lets focus on the actual battle. Joel foretold the proclamation calling the nations to wage war against Israel. Joel 3:9-14 says:

Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up:

Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruninghooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong.

Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together around about: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O LORD.

Let the heathen be wakened and come up to the valley of Jehosaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about.

Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great.

Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the LORD is near in the valey of decision.

Who are the nations who will come to battle against Israel? Notice that John said that the evil messengers would go forth unto the kings of the earth and unto the whole world. Joel's prophecy spoke of the prepare war proclimation being made among the gentiles. A term sometimes interpreted as refering to the last days cocasion or christian nations. But Joel's prophecy also refers to the awakening of the heathen or non christian nations. As Zecheriah tell of the great conflict, he says in Zecheriah 14:2:

For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle:

But other prophecies are much more specific in identifing Israel's future advasaries. Ezekiel prophecied about the general of the opposing army. A man named Gog and also speakes of various nations who will send troops to participate in the battle. In doing so he uses ancient names, names from way back at the time of Noah to identify places of importance. These are his words found in Ezekiel 38:2-6:

Son of man, set thy face against Gog, the land of Magog, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal, and prophesy against him, And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal:

And I will turn thee back, and put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth, and all thine army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed with all sorts of armour, even a great company with bucklers and shields, all of them handling swords:

Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya with them; all of them with shield and helment:

Gomer, and all his bands; the house of Togarmah of teh north quarters, and all his bands: and many people with thee.

It seems that Ezekiel's statement actually is refering to the decendants of the grandchildren of Noah who spread out on the face of the land after the flood. Genisis Chapter 10 is known as the table of nations and furnishes us some knowledge concerning these ancient ethnic groups. Magog, Tubal, Mesheck and Gomer were all sons of Japheth and Togarmah was the grandson of Japheth through Gomer.

Ezekiel also mentions the land of Persia which was also settled decendants to Japheth or what is classified as Endo Europiean people. Etheopia and Lybia two countries settled by decendants of ham are included in the list too. If you compare these names with tipical table of nations map based on Genesis 10 you'll find that Ezekiel's list actually includes people who live in the present six nations of Turkey, Eran, Iraq, Etheopia, Lybia and the southern tip of Russia just above the Caspian Sea.

Gog, the leader of the invaders is identified as "the chief prince" of Mesheck and Tubal. These are teritories of the southeastern area of Turkey just north of eastern tip of the Meditrainen Sea. The same general facinity that Paul visited in his first missionary journey.

Many interpreters have assumed that Gog would be a Russian not knowing the prophecies of the fall of Russia durring the third world war. By the time the world will have gone through two world conflicts with an intervening period of international anarchy and chos, who knows if there will even be nations called Russia or Turkey at that time.

It should be recalled that most of the nations of Europe are expected to be in a colapsed condition after the fourth world war. And that the American Continutes will largely be under the control of the kingdom of God at that time.
The prophet Joel adds another prospective to the list. After seeing in Joel Chapter 3:1-4 that the Lord will gather all nations to conflict, he asserts that the cities of Tyra and Sidon and also the coast of Palistine itself will be involved against Israel. These are areas that Ezekiel prophecied would be within Israel's lastday boundries. Perhaps this inclusion of these areas as oppisition forces reflects a continuation of the present Aarob - Israelie conflict which continues to fester within Israel's borders. Joel's prophecy says:

For, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,

I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.

And they have cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for an harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink.

Yea, and what have ye to do with me, O Tyre, and Zidon, and all the coasts fo Palestine? will ye render me a recompence? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompence upon your own head;

John the Revelator named the pivital sight for what he called the battle of that great day of God Almighty. When he forsaw that God gathered into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon. The term Har Megiddonis a Greek transliteration of Hebrew for the Mountian of Megiddo.

This Mountian stands alone rising up to command a protective position in the plain of Esdraelon a fertil plain about 50 miles northwest of Jerusalem. The mount is just a few miles southwest of Nazereth the home of Jesus.

Great battles have been fought in this area in biblical times.....

[Armageddon] is a strong position militarily, but the battle won't be confined to just that area. It apparently will rage throughout the mountains and vallies of Israel and will also spread through city of Jerusalem, with that city partially being overcome by the invaders.

In prophecing about the conflict Joel makes reference to the valley of Jehoshaphat. The valley east of Jerusalem situated between city and the Mount of Olives. He calles it the valley of decision and says that there is where God will judge the heathen during the battle.

Both Ezekiel and Joel prophecy concerning the advance of the enemy army as it attatcks from the north. But it is Ezekiel who calles the enemy leader by name addressing him as Gog. Ezekiel is shown that the advancing army will swoop down from beyond Israel's northern borders. There will be many and they will be mounted on horseback. Ezekiel 38:14-16 says:

Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say unto God, Thus saith the Lord GOD; In that day when my people of Israel dwelleth safely, shalt thou not know it?

And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army:

And thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the land; it shall be in the latter days, and I will bring thee against my land, that the heathen may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

Joel describes the attatacking forces, a well disiplined army which will follow a scorched earth policy, destroying everything in its path. Joel 2:2-10 describes it vividly depicting its appearance and sounds of the enemys horses and chariots. He also describes the strict disipline of the advancing foot soldiers and protrayes their advance in the cities as they move from house to house. This is his prophecy:

A day of darkness and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness, as the morning spread upon the mountains: a great people and a strong; there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after it, even to the years of many generations.

A fire devoureth before them; and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.

The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses; and as horsemen, so shall they run.

Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap, like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble, as a strong people set in battle array. Before their face the people shall be much pained: all faces shall gather blackness.

They shall run like mighty men; they shall climb the wall like men of war; and they shall march every one on his ways, and they shall not break their ranks:

Neither shall one thurst another; they shall walk every one in his path: and when they fall upon the sword, they shall not be wonded.

They shall run to and fro in the city; they shall run upon the wall, they shall climb up upon the houses; they shall enter in at the windows like a thief.

The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble: the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining.

The defencive preparations to be made in Israel as Gog and his army Magog advance are also described by several prophets. Ezekiel 38:21 says:

And I will call for a sword agains him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord GOD:

In Joel Chapter 2:1 the prophet Joel says:

Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain: let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh at hand;

It will be a time of fasting and prayer in Israel. In Joel 1:14-15 that prophet speaks directly to the people in Israel in that future day saying:

Sanctify ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitants of the land into the house of the LORD your God, and cry unto the LORD,

Alas for the day! for the day of the LORD is at hand, and as a destruction from the Almighty shall it come.

And also in Joel 2:15-18 the prophet Joel says:

Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly:

Gather the people, sanctify the congregation, assemble the elders, gather the children, and those that suck the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet.

Let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, Spare thy people, O LORD, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?

Then, the LORD be jealous for his land, and pity his people.

God will use the threat and aniliation of the people of Israel as a reason to humble and chasten them. In Joel 2:12-14 the Lord speaks to the people in that day telling them what they must do:

Therefore also now, saith the LORD, turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning:

And rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the LORD your God: for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil.

Who knoweth if he will retrun and repent, and leave a blessing behind him; even a meat offering and a drink offering unto the LORD your God?

Yet the invading army will take a terrible toll upon the people of Israel destroying their crops and their land as it passes through. And the prophets give no indication of strong or successful Israelie resistance during enemies initial onslot. Joel foretold the great devistation the advancing army will inflict in Joel 1:6-12:

For a nation is come up upon my land, strong, and without number, whose teeth are the teeth of a lion, and he hath the cheek teeth of a great lion.

He hath laid my vine waste, and barked my fig tree: he hath made it clean bare, and cast it away; the branches thereof are made white.

Lament like a virgin girded with sackcloth for the husband of her youth.

The meat offering and the drink offering is cut off from the house of the LORD; the priests, the LORD'S ministers, mourn. The field is wasted, the land mourneth; for the corn is wasted: the new wine is dried up, the oil languisheth.

Be ye ashamed, O ye husbandmen; howl, O ye vinedressers, for the wheat and for the barley; because the harvest of the field is perished.

The vine is dried up, and the fig tree languisheth; the pomegranate tree, the palm tree also, and the apple tree, even all the trees of the field, are withered: because joy is withered away from the sons of men.

After devestating the outling areas, Gog and his army will the battle to Jerusalem. It is Zecheriah who gives details of this portion of the battle in Zecheriah 12:2-3 describing a siege which will be laid against the city:

Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of trembling unto all the people round about, when they shall be in the siege both against Judah and against Jerusalem.

And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it.

Zecheriah prophecies even more describing the agoney which the people of Jerusalem must indure in Zecheriah 14:1-2. He sees that half of the city will fall and that there will be looting and pilliging and raping by the enemy troups:

Behold, the day of the LORD cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee.

For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city.

John the Revelaton also prophecies of this portion of the great conflict. He sees that Gog's army will even penetrate to the outer courts of the Jerusalem Temple. And it is he who tells us the length of the conflict, that it will last 42 months which is 3 1/2 years.

John tells us also of the two prophets who will be laboring in Jerusalem at this time. They will have and use priesthood power to withhold the rain, which may explain why so many of the prophecies about this period speak of droubt and barronness and lack of water.

John tells us the two prophets will be slain and then maraculously return to life. Revelation 11:1-12 says:

And there was given me a reed like unto a rod: and the angel stood, saying, Rise, and measure the temple of God, and he altar, and them that worship therein.

But the court which is without the temple leave out, and measure it not; for it is given unto the Gentiles: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty and two months.

And I will give power unto my two witnesses, and ty shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days, clothed in sackcloth.

These are the two olive trees, and the two candlesticks standing before the God of the earth.

And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them, he must in this manner be killed.

These have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and have power over waters to turn them to blood and to smite the earth with all plagues, as often as they will.

And when they shall have finished their testimony, the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit shall make war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them.

And their dead bodies shall lie in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified.

And they of the people and kindreds and tongues and nations shall see their dead bodies three days and an half, and shll not suffer their dead bodies to be put in graves.

And they tat dwell upn the earth shall rejoice over them, and make merry, and shall send gifts one to another; because these two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth.

And after three days and an half the Spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon them which saw them.

And they heard a great voice from heaven saying unto them, Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies beheld them.

These events in the Jerusalem siege coupled with the repentance and humbling of the people will prove to be the turning point at which the Lord enters the battle and begins to trun the tide against Gog and his bands of merciners. The Lord will speaks to Israel's armies as it rallies and persues the battle with renued courage. Joel 2:11 says:

And the LORD shall utter his voice before his army: for his camp is very great: for his is strong that executeth his word: for the day of the LORD is great and very terrible; and who can abide it?

As the Israelies percieve that the Lord is suddenly with them and helping them, they will take fresh courage. Zechariah 12:8 describes the change by saying:

In that day shall the LORD defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and he that is feeble among them at the day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of the LORD before them.

And Zechariah also says in Zechariah 10:5-7:

And they shall be as mighty men, which tread down their enemies in the mire of the streets in the battle: and they shall fight, because the LORD is with them, and the riders on horses shall be confounded.

And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them.

And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the LORD.

Zechariah prophecies that the Lord will save the outlining areas, the tents of Judah first before moving to protect the Jerusalem area. And his supernatural powers will be manifested as he blinds the enimies horses and suddenly causes the riders be astonished and to be stricken with madness. Zechariah 12:3-7 says:
And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it.

In that day, saith the LORD, I will smite every horse with astonishment, and his rider with madness: and I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah, and will smite every horse of the people with blindness.

And the governors of Judah shall say in their heart, The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be my strength in the LORD of hosts their God.

In that day will I make the governors of Judah like an hearth of fire among the wood, and like a torch of fire in the sheaf; and they shall devour all the people round about, on the right hand and on the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem.

The Lord also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem do not magnify themselves againt Judah.

But the Lord will do even more than blind the enemys animales. Through Ezekiel he prophicies against Gog warning that when the Lord enters the fray he will pour out pestalance upon Gog's army and smite it with great hailstones, overflowing rain, fire and brimstones. Ezekiel 38:22 contains the Lord's promise that:

And I will plead against him with pestilence and with blood; and I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire, and brimstone.

John the Revelator prophisied of these same judgements in Revelation 16:21 saying:

And there fell upn men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

When you relize that a tallent of silver weighs about one hundred pounds and a tallent of gold weighs about two hundred pounds you reconize that these hailstones weighing a tallent will be gigantic. Hailstones of these dementions would certanily indicate the likelyhood of great atmospheric disterbances during the battle of Armageddon.

Zecheriah tells of yet another judgement which will be poored out against the invading armies. In Zecheriah 14:12, 15 he describes a terrible plegue which will consume the enemies flesh saying:

And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in the holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.

And so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that shall be in these tents, as this plague.

Coupled with all of the distructions of nature which will rain down on Gog and his army, will be a great earthquake in the Middle East. The greatest earthquake the world has ever experienced. Ezekiel 38:18-20 records the Lord's promise that:

And it shall come to pass at the same time when Gog shall come against the land of Israel, saith the Lord GOD, that my fury shall come up in my face.

For in my jealousy and in th fire of my wrath have I spoken, Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel;

So that the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the field, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, and all the man that are upon the face of the earth, shall shake at my presence, and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.

Joel also fortells the great earthquake after describing the enemys advance. Joel 2:10 says:

The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble: the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining:

John the Revelator is another who prophecies about the great earthquake, showing in revelation 16 that it extends far beyond the Middle East, even as fare east as the city of Rome, which he calls Babolone and in the two chapters of Revelation which follow. He relates this earthquake to the fall of the capatol of the great and abominable church, the great mother of harlots, in Revelation Chapters 17 and 18. But that's the subject for another discussion and cant be covered in this context.

Revelation 16:16-21 describes the earthquake as the greatest to occure durring mans time on the earth. Aparently its epacenter is outside of Israel because it only divides Jerusalem, while it levels great cities in other nations. It is accompanied by a tremendous hailstrom. John says:

And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.

And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying, It is done.

And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great.

And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found.

And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weitht of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

A significant passage in the Doctrine and Covenants speaks of these same combination of events. Describing events which are to occure shortly before the Lord's coming in glory. It refers to the sun and the moon being darkened. The often used scriptural description of an earthquake. It also describes the great hailstorm, the same plague that Zechariah prophecied which will strip the flesh from mens bones and the final colapse of the great and abominal church. All are linked together in the Doctrine and Covenants passage. Just as they are in this series of biblical prophecies concerning the great battle of Armageddon. It isn't a pleasant prophecy, but it's highly significant. Doctrine and Covenants Section 29 verses 14-21 says:

But, behold, I say unto you that before this great day shall come the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall be truned into blood, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and there shall be greater signs in heaven above and in the earth beneath;
And there shall be weeping and wailing among the hosts of men;

And there shall be a great hailstorm sent forth to destroy the crops of the earth.

And it shall come to pass, because of the wickedness of the world, that I will take vengenance upon the wicked, for they will not repent; for the cop of mine indignation is full; for behold, my blood shall not cleanse them if they hear me not.

Wherefore, I the Lord God will send forth flies upon the face of the earth, which shall take hold of the inhabitants thereof, and shall eat their flesh, and shall cause maggots to come in upon them;

And their tongues shall be stayed that they shall not utter against me; and their flesh shall fail from off their bones, and their eyes from their sockets;

And it shall come to pass that the beast of the forest and the fowls of the air shall devour them up.

And the great and abominable church, which is the whore of all the earth, shall be cast down by devouring fire, according as it is spoken by the mouth of Ezekiel the prophet, who spoke of these things, which have not come to pass but surely must, as I live, for abominations shall not reign.

But are more significant details about the great earthquake during the battle of Armageddon which must be considered. Zechariah prophecies in Chapter 14:10 that:

All the land shall be turned as a plain from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem:

This area from Geba, 6 miles north of Jerusalem, to Rimmon, 28 miles south of Jerusalem is now extreemly mountainous yet it appears that it will be leveled during the earthquake. Even more intreging is Zecheriah prophecy in 14:4-5 that:

And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south.
And ye shall flee to the valley of the mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal: yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah: and the LORD my God shall come, and all the saints with thee.

So Zechariah decsribes the great earthquake as the turning point of the battle. Just as Jerusalem is about to fall to Gog and his army, the Lord will cause this great earthquake to provide an avenue to escape for the prople of Jerusalem. The mount of Olives which runs north and south along the east side of the city of Jerusalem will be ruptured by the earthquake. Leaving a new valley running toward the east from the city of Jerusalem.

The earthquake will also cause water from Jerusalem to flow through the new valley, which will eventually make its way to the Salt Sea about 25 miles to the east. Zecheriah, Joel, and Ezekiel all describe it and it becomes clear that the water will have a profound affect upon Israel's future. Joel 3:18 says:

...a fountain shall come forth of the house of the LORD,

Zechariah describes the water as flowing year round, with half flowing toward the Dead Sea and half toward the Meditrainian. But Ezekiel devotes half a chapter to describing it. Describing its eastward flow and explaining how it will increase in debth as it flows until it becomes a river so deep it can't be easily crossed. And he tells how its fresh water will flow into the Dead Sea and eventually heal seas waters so that fish can survive there.

But back to the earthquake, what will cause the great earthquake to occure. Zechariah tell us it take place as the Lord comes and appears to his people on the Mount of Olives. Zechariah 14:3-4 says:

Then shall the LORD go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle.

And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof...

The Doctrine and Covenants also speaks of Christ's appearance in the mount of Olives in D&C 45:47-50 saying:

Then shall the arm of the Lord fall upon the nations.

And then shall the Lord set his foot upon this mount, and it shall cleave in twain, and the earth shall tremble, and reel to and fro, and the heavens also shall shake.

And the Lord shall utter his voice, and all the ends of the earth shall hear it; and the nations of the earth shall mourn, and they that have laughed shall see their folly.

And calamity shall cover the mocker, and the scorner shall be consumed: and they that have watched for iniquity shall be hewn down and cast into the fire.

The scriptures porvide pognient descriptions of what will transpire as the Lord makes his identy known to the people of Israel in the midst of the termoil from the earthquake and the battle which will still be raging. Doctrine and Covenants 45:51-53 reports the Lord's promise that:

And then shall the Jews look upon me and say: what are these wounds in thine hands and in thy feet?

Then shall they know that I am the Lord; for I will say unto them: These wounds are the wounds with which I was wounded int he house of my friends. I am he who was lifted up. I am Jesus that was crucified. I am the Son of God.

And then shall they weep because of their iniquities; then shall they lament because they persecuted the king.

Zechariah records the Lord's promis in Zechariah 12:10 that:

And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of fupplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn.

And Zechariah also fortells of the Lords appearance on the Mount in his own words observing in Chapter 13:6 that:

And one shall say unto him, What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

According to biblical prophecies appearance does not bring an abrupt end to the battle. The conflict will continue to rage, but his sudden appearance and his powering out of great judgement, by earthquakes, fire and hail and rain will give added strenght to the Israelie armies. The war will come to its climax and conclusion on two different fronts. On the mountains of Israel and in the vallies to the east of Jerusalem.

Gog, the enemy general and but 1/6 of his legions will die through battles throughout the mountains of Israel. This is according the Lord's words revield in Ezekiel 39:1-7. Ezekiel describes the sceen in detail, even telling how Gog will be smitten while wilding bow and arows. And he tells how fire will be sent on Magog, Gog's great army.

Ezekiel forcefully points out too that Gog's defeat sign that the Lord will no longer allow his holy name to be poluted and taken in vain, and that from that day on all the heathens will know that there is a God that is protecting Israel. Ezekiel says:

Therefore, thou son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am a gainst thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal:

And I will trune thee back, and leave but the sixth part of thee, and will cause thee to come up from the north parts, and will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel:

And I will smite they bow out of thy left hand, and will cause thine arrows to fall out of thy right hand.

Thou shalt fall upon the mounatins of Israel, thou, and all thy bands, and the people that is with thee: I will give thee unto the ravenous birds of every sort, and to the beasts fo the field to be devoured.

Thou shalt fall upon the open field: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

And I will send a fire on Magog, and among them that dwell carelessly in the isles: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

So will I make my holy name known in the midst of my people Israel; and I will not let them polute my holy name any more: and the heathen shall know that I am the LORD, the Holy One in Israel.

The third chapter of Joel records the Lords prophetic words about the other area where the conflict will climax. The valley of Jehoshaphat just east of Jerusalem, between that great city and the mount of Olives. Joel 3:2, 12, 14-16 says:
I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my peop;e and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.

Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about.

Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the LORD is near in the valley of decision.

The sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining.

The LORD also shall roar out of Zion,a nd utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but the LORD will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children fo Israel.

Joel reports that he will draw the attacking army into a desolate area near the Dead Sea, which he calls the east sea, and they will meet there demise there. Perhaps this means that invaders will follow the Israelites who will escape from Jerusulem through the new valley, through the mount of Olives which the great earthquake will open. Joel 2:20-21 says:

But I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face toward the east sea, and his hinder part toward the utmost sea, and his stink shall come up, and his ill savour shall come up, because he hath done great things.

Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the LORD will go great things.

Zecharia adds more about what will happen to the invading army in the Jerusalem area as it is defeated. He sees that as the suddenly stricken with a terrible plague, its soldures will trun one another and fight among themselves. Zechariah 14:12-14 says:

And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great tumult from the LORD shall be among them; and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall rise up agains the hand of his neighbor.

And Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem; and the wealth of all the heathen round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance.

With Gog and 5/6th of his hosts slain on the mountains and the remaining portion stricken in the area east of Jerusalem, the great battle of Armageddon will end. But the casualty toll for Israel will be huge and devestating, with 2/3rds of the Israelie population destroyed. The Lord's word through Zechariah 13:8-9 is that:

And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith the LORD, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein.

And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried: they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my prople: and they shall say, The LORD is my God.

And though Israel will rejoice in their victory there will be great sorrow poored out for those who will have been slain. This will occure in both areas where the fierce battles took place in Jerusalem and at Megiddo. Zechariah 12:11-14 says:

In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon.

And the land shall mourn, every family apart; the family of the house of David apart, and theri wives apart; the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart;

The family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family of Shimei apart, and their wives apart;

All the families that remain, every family apart, and their wives apart.

The task of recovery and of removing the debree of the war will be a major challenge. Ezekiel prophecies that it will take the Israelies 7 months just to bury the dead and seven years to burn up the weapons of war which will litter the countryside and remain as a grim reminder of the great destructing.

Since many of the enemy army will be slain near the read sea, the Israelies will use the area east of the Dead Sea as a burial ground to dispose of the bodies of the invadors. It will take months to retrieve them and transport them to that area. And a major clean up program will be undertaken involving an ongoing effort to burn the weapons left by the contending armies on the battle fields. Ezekiel 39:9-16 says:

And they that dwell in the cities of Israel shall go forth, and shall set on fire and burn the weapons, both the shields and the bucklers, the staves, and the spears, and they shall burn them with fire seven years:

So that they shall take no wood out of the field, neither cut down any out of the forests; for they shall burn the weapons with fire: and they shall spoil those that spoiled them, and rob those that robbed them, saith the Lord GOD.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give unto Gog a place there of graves in Israel, the valley of the passengers on the east of the sea: and it shall stop the noses of the passengers: and there shall they bury Gog and all his multitude: and they shall call it The valley of Hamon-gog.

And seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them, that they may cleanse the land.

Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be to them a renown the day that I shall be glorified, saith the Lord GOD.

And they shall sever out men of continual employment, passing through the land to bury with the passengers those that remain upon the face of the earth, to cleanse it: after the end of seven months shall they search.

And the passengers that pass through the land, when any seeth a man's bone, then shall he set up a sing by it, till the buriers have buried it in the valley of Hamon-gog.

And also the name of the city shall be Hamonah. Thus shall they cleanse the land.

But during the recovery period, the wild beast and fouls of will pray on the bodies of the dead. So much so that Ezekiel recorded the Lord's words spoken to him in prophecy in this manner in Ezekiel 39:17-20:

And, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD; Speak unto every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field, Assemble yourselves, and come; gather yourselves on every side to my sacrifice that I do sacrifice for you, even a great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel, that ye may eat flesh, and drink blood.

Ye shall eat the flesh of the mighty, and drink the blood of the princes of the earth, of rams, of lambs, and of goats, of bullocks, all of them fatlings of Bashan.

And ye shall eat fat till ye be full, and drink blood till ye be drunken, of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you.

Thus ye shall be filled at my table with horses and chariots, with mighty men, and with all men of war, saith the Lord GOD.

What will be the fate of other nations which will have sent their troops against Israel. Little specific information is found in the scriptures. A few clues are given however. As previously reported Joel says: "That Egypt shall be a desolation and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness for the vilonce against the children of Judah, because they have shed inocent blood in their land."

And Zechariah also upon Egypt and upon other nations in the form of plague and droubt. If those nations fail to come Jerusalem to worship the Lord Jehoviah. Zechariah 14:16-19 says:

And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles.

And it shall be, that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, even upon them shall be no rain.

And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, that have no rain; there shall be the plague, wherewith the LORD will smite the heathen that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.
This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

Ezekiel stresses the Lord's assertion that the battle will serve to teach both the heathen nations and the people of Israel once and for all that Jehovah is Israel's God and that Israel has paid in full the price for its past iniquity.

Now the Lord has gathered them and sanctified them in the conflict and he is now with Israel and blessing them. Ezekiel 39:21-29 says:

And I will set my glory among the heathen, and all the heathen shall see my judgment that I have executed, and my hand that I have laid upon them.

So the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God from that day and forward.

And the heathen shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity: because they trespassed aginst me, therefore hid I my face from them, and gave them into the hand of their enemies: so fell they all by the sword.

According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions have I done unto them, and hid my face from them.

Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Now will I bring again the captivity of Jacob, and have mercy upon the whole house of Israel, and will be jealous for my holy name;

After that they have borne their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid.

When I have brought them again from the people, and gathered them out of their enemies' lands, and am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations;

Then shall they know that I am the LORD their God, which caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen: but I have gathered them unto their own land, and have left none of them any more there.

Neither will I hide my face any more from them: for I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord GOD. The Lord through his prophet Joel promises both temprol and spiritual blessings upon Israel. He promises great revelations and that Jerusalem will be a place of safety in the time that remains before the great and terrible day of the Lord, his final comming in glory occures. Joel 2:21-32 records the promise:

Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the LORD will do great things.

Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field: for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth her fruit, the fig tree and the vine do yield their strength.

Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the LORD your God: for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month.

And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the fats shall overflow with wine and oil.

And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the cankerworm, and the catepiller, and the palmerworm, my great army which I sent among you.

And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the LORD your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed.

And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions:

And also upn the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my spirit.

And I will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke.

The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the LORD come.

And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the LORD shall be delivered: for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the LORD hath said, and in the remnant whom the LORD shall call.

Zechariah prophecies that reverece for the Lord will be the accepted standard among Israel's population throughout both Jerusalem and the entire nation at that time. Saying in the last two verses of Zechariah 14:20-21:

In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD; and the pots of the LORD's house shall be like the bowles before the altar.

Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holiness unto the LORD of hosts: and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and seethe therein: and in that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the house of the LORD of hosts.

And Ezekiel alludes to the Lord's future visit to Jerusalem Temple and of the continued functing of David the prince there. Ezekiel 44:1-3 records that:

Then he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary which looketh toward the east; and it was shut.

Then said the LORD unto me; This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; because the LORD, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut.

It is for the prince; the prince, he shall sit in it to eat bread before the LORD; he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.

Zechariah records the difference between the former times when Israel and Judah were a curse among the heathen. Contrasting that with the era after the battle of Armageddon when they will be a blessing to others. The people other nations will come up to Jerusalem because they know that God is with Israel. Zechariah 8:12-15, 20-23 says:

For the seed shall be prosperous; the vine shall give her fruit, and the ground shall give her increase, and the heavens shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things.

And it shall come to pass, that as ye were a curse among the heathen, O house of Judah, and house of Israel; so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing:

frar not, but let your hands be strong.
For thus saith the LORD of hosts; as I thought to punish you, when your fathers provoked me to wrath, saith the LORD of hosts, and I repented not:

So again have I thought in these days to do well unto Jerusalem and to the house of Judah: fear ye not.

Thus saith the LORD of hosts; It shall yet come to pass, that there shall come people, and the inhabitants of many cities:

And the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I will go also.

Yea, many people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD.

Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you.

But it is the prophet Isaiah who best describes the glory of Israel after the battle of Armegeddon. During the intervul of that between that great war and the final coming and glory of the Savior, he speaks of another generation after the Armegeddon conflict, when the sons of those who fought against Israel in the great battle will come bending to Israel.

And he tells how those of the next generation come acknowledging that Jerusalem is trully Zion of the holy one of Israel. And that in the next generation the sons of strangers will come to build up there walls eventhough darkness and wickodness will still cover the earth, people will come to Israels light and the riches and good things of the earth will flow to her. And Israel will be a land of peace. The last three verses of Isaiah 59 allude to the battle of Armageddon and then continue into Isaiah 60 which records the Lords great promises for Israel for the generation after that conflict. And what glorious promises they are. This is the passage:

So shall they fear the name of the LORD form the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the LORD shall lift up a standard against him.

And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that trun from transgression in Jacob, saith the LORD.
As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the LORD; My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the LORD, from henceforth and for ever.

Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

For, behold, the darkness shall coverthe earth, and gross darkness the prople: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: all they gather themselves together, they come to thee: thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side.

Then thou shalt see, and flow together, and thine heart shall fear, and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come unto thee.

The multitudes of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come: they shall bring gold and incense; and they shall shew forth the praises of the LORd.

All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory.

Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?

Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships to Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the LORD thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee.

And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

Therefore thy gates shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the forces of the Gentiles, and that their kings may be brought.

For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.

The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious.

The sons also of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee, The city of the LORD, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations.

Thou shalt also suck the milk of the Gentiles, and shalt suck the breast of kings: and thou shalt know that I the LORD am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob.

A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation: I the LORD will hasten it in his time.

Now when will this great prophecy of Isaiah be fulfilled. Isaiah's coments contain several important clues. Note that this era shall be a time when darkness shall cover the earth and gross darkness the people. And he referrs to a continued gathering during the period when some will fly as a cloud and as the doves to their windows. And others will come by the ships of Tarshish. Focus on his allution to nations to which yet shall be utterly wasted. And that a small one shall be a strong nation. These coments would seem to indicate that this is an area which still proceeds the final apparence of the Savior. They take place prior to the time when world wide peace will be ignaguarted by the cleansing and purging out of the wickod of the earth by fire at the Lords final coming in glory.

Yet this passage definatly speaks of a time after the battle of Armageddon when the Savior will have come and redeemed the people of Israel, "When the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light and the kings to the brightness of thy rising." When "violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders;" And "Thy people also shall be all righteous"

This passage then seems to be an indication between the appearance of the Lord on the mount of Olives and His final coming in glory.

Now let me address one more issue before concluding this presentation. There is some confusion within the Church regarding the question of the whether the Lords appearance on the mount of Olives during the battle of Armageddon constitues His final coming in glory.

Though the recent LDS edition of the Bible lables some of the passages which speak of that mount of Olives appearance as his second comming in the Chapter headings, a comparison with major passages describing the Saviors second coming, His final advent in glory clearly shows that the mount of Olives appearance is a preliminary coming.

It is an important even certanly but it is on the same level as his coming to the New Jerusalem and to the councel at Adam-ondi-Ahman. These will be local appearances. They are highly significant, but they are not of the same scope and magnitude of his final coming in glory.

Lets quickly review some of the key passages which describe his final advent to make it obvious that the mount of Olives visit will not Lords great coming in full glory. D&C 88:95-110 is a key passage which describes the Lords final coming in glory.
These verses show that his coming in glory will preceeded by a half hour of scilence in heaven. That the curtian of heaven will be unfolded before he appears and that his second advent will be introduced by litteral trumpet blasts sounded by seven angles. The saints who are alive on the earth will be caught up into the air to decend with the Savior as he comes and other saints will be resurrected as he arrives on earth.

After he comes the seven angels will again sound their trumps and reveal the secreat acts of men and then the saints will be filled with his glory, receive eternal inheritances and will be made equal to Christ. None of these events are charchteristic of the Lords appearance on the mount of Olives.

Revelation 19:11-16 is another important description of the Lord's second comming, his final advent in glory. It describes the as returning as mounted on a white horse with many crowns on his head and clothed in a vesture dipped in blood. The armies of heaven are to accompany him. They will also be mounted on white horses and they will be clothed in fine linnen white and clean. Agiain this desgription does not match that which will take place on the mount of Olives. D&C 101:23, Revelation 1:7 and Isaiah 40:5 all are infatic in the teaching that every eye shall whitness his advent when he comes in glory and that all flesh shall see it together. But that isn't charteristic of his appearance on the mount of Olives when he will only be seen by the jews who happen to be on the mount at that moment.

Other passages describe great changes in the configeration of the earth which are to take place when he comes in glory. Changes which will not occure when he appears on the mount of Olives. Thou a great earthquake will take place as he makes his appearance on the mount, these propheecied changes are of far greater magnitude.

Mormon 9:2-5 says that the earth shall be rolled together as a scroll and the elements shall melt with fervant heat. Isaiah 40:3-4 proclaim that every valley shall be exalted and every mountian and hill shall be made low. And D&C 133:21-25 telles us that he shall command the great deap and it shall be driven back into the north countries. None of these things will happen with conection of the mount of Olives appearance.

D&C 101:24-25 and Isaiah 24:5-6 tell us that when the Lord comes in glroy the earth will be clensed by fire and the wickod inhabitantce of the earth are burned when he appears. That dosen't happen when he comes on the mount of Olives.

Revelation 19:6-9 tells us that when the Lord comes in glory, he will be united with his Church who will all be arrayed in white linnen and they will be called into the marage supper of the Lamb. That event isn't characteristic of the mount of Olives appearance of the Savior.

And D&C 133:46-52 prophecy specific statements which the Savior will make when he comes in glory. Statements like "I have trodden the winepress alone." And "The year of my Redeemed has come." Again these statements are not typical of the mount of Olive appearance.

Matthew 24:36-34 tell us that the day and hour of his final coming and glory is not known by any man, but the scriptures tells us very explicitely when he will come to the mount of Olives. Linking that appearance to flow of the battle in Jerusalem.

There are other contrasts which could be easily drawn, but this should be sufficient to show that the Lord's appearance on the mount of Olives is not his Second Coming in Glory, but is a prior even of less magnitude, though it will be of major importance.

For further proof that the mount of Olives appearance is not Lord's final advent in glory look at what the prophecies we have considered will happen after he comes to the mount of Olives:

1.The opposing armies will continu to fight. The Israelie army will come off victorious while the army of Gog will trun on one another and fight among themselves.

2. The wickod won't be suddenly destroyed by fire and the earth won't cleansed when the Savor comes on the Mount of Olives. On the contrary the wickod will be slain in battle and their bodies will lie on the mountains to be eaten by the birds and beasts. The victors will robe and spoil the bodies of the vanquished. The dead bodies will stink and burning of the dead will take seven months.

3.The weapons of war will litter the hills of Israel and will be used for fuel for seven years rather than being destroyed by the cleansing brightness of Lord's coming.

4. Converts will still be made and be gathered out from among the wickod after the Lord has come.

Prophetic Statements by Prophets & Apostles

Speech given by Joseph Fielding Smith
Brigham Young University March 21, 1967
"The Predicted Judgments"

Now the Lord has withdrawn His Spirit from the world. Do not let this thought become confused in your minds. The Spirit He has withdrawn from the world is not the Holy Ghost (for they never had that!), but it is the light of truth, spoken of in our scriptures as the Spirit of Christ, which is given to every man that cometh into the world, as you find recorded in Section 84 of the Doctrine and Covenants.

Now because of the wickedness of the world, that Spirit has been withdrawn, and when the Spirit of the Lord is not striving with men, the spirit of Satan is. Therefore, we may be sure that the time has come spoken of in Section 1 of the Doctrine and Covenants, wherein the Lord says:

> For I am no respecter of persons, and will that all men shall know that the day speedily cometh: the hour is not yet, but is nigh at hand, when peace shall be taken from the earth, and the devil shall have power over his own dominion. (D&C 1:35)

Peace has been taken from the earth. The devil has power over his own dominion. The Spirit of the Lord has been withdrawn. Not because the Lord desires to withdraw that Spirit, but because of the wickedness of mankind, it becomes necessary that this Spirit of the Lord be withdrawn.

Then in Section 63 the Lord goes on to say:

These things are the things that ye must look for: and, speaking after the manner of the Lord, they are now nigh at hand, and in a time to come, even in the day of the coming of the Son of Man.
And until that hour there will be foolish virgins among the wise; and at that hour cometh an entire separation of the righteous and the wicked; and in that day will I send mine angels to pluck out the wicked and cast them into unquenchable fire.

Those days are here!

APPENDIX I

Apostle Ballard

In February of 1939 we had our Uintah State quarterly conference. Our visiting General Authority was Melvin J. Ballard and another man which I can't remember his name. Even though it was very cold the building was filled to capacity as many had come to hear Apostle Ballard speak.

Gospel Mysteries

We had located seats in the balcony, as we always did for conferences, because we liked to look into the faces of the speakers and also see the people on the main floor. First, all of the stake business was taken care of and then the Stake Presidency spoke. After they finished it was time for Apostle Ballard to address us. He was giving a very good talk and everyone was enjoying it as it was very still and quiet.

Then all at once he stopped talking and looked into the Heavens up above our heads and gazed there for a long time. After a while he began to speak saying, "I prophesy in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, that the drought is about to be over and so is the depression for war is just around the corner and prosperity and industry will be coming to Utah. Many people will have work once again and you will not believe the wages that will be paid. Our children will not work for small wages and soon our people will be spoiled. With that a black cloud of immorality will come from the east covering the land to the west. And even our own Latter-day Saints will participate. Another depression will also come in time, only it will be much worse then the one we have just gone through for it will make this depression look like good times. We should all prepare and get ourselves out of debt."

Then he looked back in the heavens for some length of time. When he looked back at us he was crying and he said, "I would give all of my earthly possession if I could to be in the presence of Jesus Christ once more for a small moment. For I have met him face to face in the Logan Temple and I fell to my knees and the tears in my eyes dropped in the nail prints in his feet and I washed his feet with the tears from my eyes."

This was a powerful and moving experience to hear words of prophesy from an apostle of the Lord. We will never forget his words.

President Wilford Woodruff
Address Given to Weber Stake Conference, Ogden
Monday, October 19, 1896
Deseret News Weekly, Vol 53:642-643

I am pleased to meet with so many of our friends this morning, and I feel desirous to talk to you upon a principle that I very seldom dwell upon before the congregations of the Saints. I have had my mind somewhat exercised of late on various things, perhaps for purposes known to the Lord better than myself, though they are principles we are all more or less acquainted with.

One of the Apostles said to me years ago, "Brother Woodruff. I have prayed for a long time for the Lord to send me the administration of an angel. I have had a great desire for this, but I have never had my prayers answered." I said to him that if he were to pray a thousand years to the God of Israel for that gift, it would not be granted, unless the Lord had a motive in sending an angel to him. I told him that the Lord never did nor never will send an angel to anybody merely to gratify the desire of the individual to see an angel. If the Lord sends an angel to anyone, He sends him to perform a work that cannot be performed only by the administration of an angel. I said to him that those were my views. The Lord had sent angels to men from the creation of the world, at different times, but always with a message or with something to perform that could not be performed without. I rehearsed to him different times when angels appeared to men. Of course, I referred to the angel visiting Joseph Smith. The Revelator John said that in the last days an angel would fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting Gospel to preach to them that dwelt on the earth. The reason it required an angel to do this work was, the Gospel was not on the earth. The Gospel and the Priesthood had been taken from among men. Hence God had to restore it again.

Now, I have always said, and I want to say it to you, that the Holy Ghost is what every Saint of God needs. It is far more important that a man should have that gift than he should have the ministration of an angel, unless it is necessary for an angel to teach him something that he has not been taught.

I am going to refer to some of my own experiences with regard to the ministration of angels and the operations of the Holy Ghost. I have never prayed for the visitations of an angel, but I have had the ministration of angels several times in my life.

One visitation I received in Kentucky, at the house of A.O. Smoot's mother, while on my first mission. I went through Jackson County into Arkansas Territory, and from Little Rock waded the Mississippi swamp 180 miles to get across into Tennessee. I arrived in Henry County, Tennessee, on the west, at the same time that David Patten and Warren Parrish landed in the region on the north. We met and labored together for a while and built up some churches there. I then held the office of a Priest. I travelled thousands of miles and preached the Gospel as a Priest, and, as I have said to congregations before, the Lord sustained me and made manifest His power in the defense of my life as much while I held that office as He has done while I have held the office of an Apostle. The Lord sustains any man that holds a portion of the Priesthood, whether he is a Priest, an Elder, a Seventy, or an Apostle, if he magnifies his calling and does his duty.

I will give you an instance of the Lord's protecting care over me while I was a Priest. I had this experience while in Arkansas with my companion, who was an Elder. There was a man in that country who with his wife and five sons had been in Jackson County. His wife died there. He was driven out, the same as the rest of the Saints were, and some of his sons were whipped with hickory gads in the persecution there. I knew he was in this Arkansas country and I anxious to go and see him, as he was the only Latter-day saint that we knew anything about in the region. The night before I got there I had a peculiar dream. I dreamed that an angel appeared to us and pointed out a certain path that we must follow, and that the blessings of God would attend us in following that path. As we went along this path we came to a log cabin with a wall on each side ten or fifteen feet high. This road led right through that building. When I went to the door and opened it, it was full of large serpents. My companion said he was not going into that room for anybody or anything. "Well," says I, "I am, or I'll die trying, The Lord told us to follow that path and I am going to walk in it, unless I am stopped by some power that I know not of." I stepped into the door. These serpents all arose up ready to jump on me, and there was a very large one in the middle of the floor that made a pass at me. It appeared to me as though I would be destroyed, but when the serpent reached near to me it dropped dead; in fact, they all dropped dead, and they turned black and burst open, after which they took fire and burned up, and both of us went through safely. The morning after we arrived at this man's house. His name was Akeman. It was Sunday morning and we went into the house. Mr. Akeman and his daughter were at Breakfast. His sons were settled in cabins around him. We sat down, but there seemed to be a peculiar spirit in the place. I finally stepped up to the mantlepiece on which I saw a Book of Mormon. I picked it up and said. "Brother Akeman, you've got a very good book here." He said, "lt's a book that came from hell." I then began to understand a little of what lay before us. He had apostatized. He cursed everything and everybody--Joseph Smith, Lyman Wight, the Apostles, and a good many others whom he named. He was very angry. I inquired about his sons. He said they were settled around him there. Well, we took up our valises and left. I looked up one of his sons--the youngest, I believe, and the only one that was in the faith, and he was like a drowning man; but by praying with him we got the Spirit of the Lord in him and we had a pretty good time with him. We told him of our experience at his father's, and I said we were desirous to have some meetings there if we could. He said he did not know: his father had apostatized and was at war against everything that was Mormon. He told us, however, where an old gentleman lived close by to whom he had loaned the Book of Mormon. He was an aged man his wife was an aged woman. Their name was Hubbard. We went to see them and they were very glad to receive us. In the morning my companion said he was going to leave the place. Of course, he was an Elder, and I was only a Priest, and we generally suppose that the lesser should obey the greater: but I said to him, calling him by name. "You are not going to leave here, not I either: we shall both of us stay here till I see the fulfillment of my dream. It is here, and I am going to stay and see it, and you will, too." It is not natural for me to take a stand of that kind, but I felt led to do it upon that occasion. We stopped there three weeks, and cleared land for father Hubbard, while he fed and housed us. Three times while we were there I was warned of the Lord to go and warn this Mr. Akeman. The last warning I received from the Lord to go and warn him was on Saturday night on the third week. I went up to his house which was about three quarters of a mile distant, and when I got there his daughter was standing in the doorway. I walked in and saluted him. He was walking the room, but did not say anything to me. I told him the Lord had sent me to pay him a visit. Then he made some exclamation that was rather profane. I sat down and commenced warning him. I told him that he had apostatized from the Gospel of Christ; he had had the Priesthood and he was pursuing a course that would send him to destruction, and the judgments of God would overtake him. Well he raged like a demon. That is about all I said to him. I certainly did not stay long, but I delivered my message. When I left the house he followed me, and when he came to where I was he fell dead at my feet as though he had been struck with a thunderbolt from heaven. He was a very large man and he turned as black as an African, and his skin seemed almost to burst open. The next day I attended his funeral. But he had raised a mob and had sent word for them to come and drive us out of the country or hang us, and they had sent warnings to us to leave. The consequence was, there were some fifteen or twenty deaths during my stay there. Men were taken with what was called pleurisy. Doctors came in and opened a vein, and they died in five minutes. One of these men sent for me, and I went and saw him. Two men were holding him. He said to me, "I wish you would cut open my side; I have a pain here and it is skin deep: you can cut it out and save my life". I looked at him, but did not say anything to him. I said to myself, "If your eyes were open, you would see the angel of death standing by your side." He died while I was there. After this my partner left me, and I went alone to Memphis, Tennessee, and met with Brothers Patten and Parrish.

After laboring in that part for a length of time, I received a letter from Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, in which they requested me to stay in that country and take charge of the churches that we had build up there. The Prophet promised me many things, and said I should lose no blessings by tarrying in that country and doing as he wished me, and letting the other brethren go and get their endowments. I was then at the house of Brother Abraham 0. Smoot's mother. I received this about sundown. I went into a little room where there was a sofa, to pray alone. I felt full of joy and rejoicing at the promises God had made to me through the Prophet. While I was upon my knees praying, my room was filled with light. I looked and a messenger stood by my side. I arose, and this personage told me he had come to see with my eyes and understand with my mind what was coming to pass in the earth before the coming of the Son of Man. He commenced with what the revelations say about the sun being turned to darkness, the moon to blood, and the stars falling from heaven. Those things were all presented to me one after another, as they will be, I suppose, when they are manifest before the coming of the Son of Man. Then he showed me the resurrection of the dead - what is termed the first and second resurrection. In the first resurrection I saw no graves nor anyone raised from the grave. I saw legions of celestial beings, men and women who had received the Gospel all clothed in white robes. In the form they were presented to me, they had already been raised from the grave. After this he showed me what is termed the second resurrection. Vast fields of graves were before me and the Spirit of God rested upon the earth like a shower of gentle rain, and when that fell upon the graves, they were opened, and an immense host of human beings came forth. They were just as diversified in their dress as we are here, or as they were laid down. This personage taught me with regard to these things. Among other things, he showed me, there were seven lions like burning brass placed in the heavens. I asked the messenger what they were for. He said they were representative of the different dispensations of the Gospel of Christ to men, and they would all be seen in the heavens among the signs that would be shown. After this passed by me, he disappeared. Now, if I had been a painter I could have drawn everything that I saw. It made an impression upon me that has never left me from that day to this. The next day we had a meeting in the academy. Brother Smoot and some others went with me; but I was a lost man. I hardly knew where I was, so enveloped was I in that which I had seen.

The other instance I want to refer to is what I spoke about at the recent General Conference. I need not dwell particularly upon this now; but I had a motive in laying it before the people on that occasion. The history of Brother Kimball's operations with those evil spirits in England is before the Church. And while on this point I want to correct a mistake that I made in referring to this matter at our General Conference. I got the names of Brother Kimball and Brother Hyde confused in my mind, and made it appear that Brother Kimball rebuked those evil spirits from Brother Hyde, when in fact it was Brother Kimball who was afflicted with those spirits and Brother Hyde administered to him. As this is a matter of history I wish to state it correctly, and therefore make this explanation. When Brother Kimball, Brother George A. Smith and myself went to London, we encountered these evil spirits. They sought to destroy us. The very first house that was opened to us was filled with devils. They had gathered there for our destruction, so that we should not plant the Gospel in that great city. Brother Kimball went to Manchester on some business, and left Brother George A. Smith and myself there. One night we sat up until 11 o'clock, talking Mormonism, and then we went to bed. We had only just laid down when these spirits rested upon us, and we were in a very fair way of losing our lives. It was as if a strong man had me by the throat, trying to choke me to death. In the midst of this a spirit told me to pray. I did so, and while praying, the door opened, the room was filled with light, and three messengers came in. Who they were I know not. They came and laid their hands upon us, and rebuked those powers, and thereby saved our lives. Not only so, but by the power they held they rebuked the whole army of devils that were in that great city, and bound them so that they have never troubled any Elder from that day to this.

Now, those messengers were sent to us because it was necessary. We would have lost our lives if somebody had not delivered us. We needed help, and we could not get it anywhere else.

This is all I want to say with regard to the administration of angels to myself. This Apostle that I refer to told me he had prayed and prayed for the administration of angels. Well, if it had been necessary to save his life, as it was in my case, he would have had the administration of angels. But he had access to the gift of the Holy Ghost as all of have. And that, brethren and sisters, is what I want to talk to you about.

One morning, while we were at Winter Quarters, Brother Brigham Young said to me and the brethren that he had had a visitation the night previous from Joseph Smith. I asked him what he said to him. He replied that Joseph had told him to tell the people to labor to obtain the Spirit of God; that they needed that to sustain them and to give them power to go through their work in the earth.

Now I will give you a little of my experience in this line. Joseph Smith visited me a great deal after his death, and taught me many important principles. The last time he visited me was while I was in a storm at sea. I was going on my last mission to preside in England. My companions were Brother Leonard W. Hardy, Brother Milton Holmes, Brother Dan Jones, and another brother and my wife and two other women. We had been traveling three days and nights in a heavy gale, and were being driven backwards. Finally I asked my companions to come into the cabin with me, and I told them to pray that the Lord would change the wind. I had no fears of being lost; but I did not like the idea of being driven back to New York, as I wanted to go on my journey. We all offered the same prayer, both men and women; and when we got through we stepped on to the deck and in less than a minute it was as though a man had taken a sword and cut the gale through, and you might have thrown a muslin handkerchief out and it would not have moved it. The night following this Joseph and Hyrum visited me, and the Prophet laid before me a great many things. Among other things, he told me to get the Spirit of God; that all of us needed it. He also told me what the Twelve Apostles would be called to go through on the earth before the coming of the Son of Man, and what the reward of their labors would be; but all that was taken from me, for some reason. Nevertheless I know it was most glorious, although much would be required at our hands.

Joseph Smith continued visiting myself and others up to a certain time, and then it stopped. The last time I saw him was in heaven. In the night vision I saw him at the door of the temple in heaven. He came and spoke to me. He said he could not stop to talk with me because he was in a hurry. The next man I met was Father Smith; he could not talk with me because he was in a hurry. I met half a dozen brethren who had held high positions on earth, and none of them could stop to talk with me because they were in a hurry. I was much astonished. By and by I saw the Prophet again, and I got the privilege to ask him a question. "Now," said I, "I want to know why you are in a hurry. I have been in a hurry all through my life, but I expected my hurry would be over when I got into the kingdom of heaven, if I ever did." Joseph said: "I will tell you, Brother Woodruff. Every dispensation that has had the Priesthood on the earth and has gone into the celestial kingdom, has had a certain amount of work to do to prepare to go to the earth with the Savior when He goes to reign on the earth. Each dispensation has had ample time to do this work. We have not; we are the last dispensation, and so much work has to be done, and we need to be in a hurry in order to accomplish it." Of course, that was satisfactory to me, but it was new doctrine to me.

Brigham Young also visited me after his death. One occasion he and Brother Heber C. Kimball came in a splendid chariot, with fine white horses, and accompanied me to a conference that I was going to attend. When I got there I asked Brother Brigham if he would take charge of the conference. "No," he said, "I have done my work here. I have come to see what you are doing and what you are teaching the people." And he told me what Joseph Smith had taught him in Winter Quarters to teach the people to get the Spirit of God. He said, "I want you to teach the people to get the Spirit of God. You cannot build up the Kingdom of God without that."

That is what I want to say to the brethren and sisters here today. Every man and woman in this Church should labor to get that Spirit. We are surrounded by these evil spirits that are at war against God and against everything looking to the building up of the kingdom of God: and we need this Holy Spirit to enable us to overcome these influences. I have had the Holy Ghost in my travels. Every man has that has gone out into the vineyard and labored faithfully for the cause of God. I have referred to the administration of angels to myself. What did these angels do? One of them taught me some things relating to the signs that should precede the coming of the Son of Man. Others came and saved my life. What then? They turned and left me. But how is it with the Holy Ghost? The Holy Ghost does not leave me if I do my duty. It does not leave any man who does his duty. We have known this all the way through. Joseph Smith told Brother John Taylor on one occasion to labor to get the Spirit of God, and to follow its dictation, and it would become a principle of revelation within him. God has blessed me with that, and everything I have done since I have been in this Church has been done upon that principle. The Spirit of God has told me what to do, and I have had to follow that.

In the time of the apostasy in Kirtland, Joseph Smith hardly knew when he met a man, unless the Spirit of God revealed it to him, whether he was friend or foe. Most of the leading men were fighting him. Right in the midst of that darkness the Spirit of God said to me, "you choose a partner and go straight to Fox Islands." Well, I knew no more what was on Fox Islands than what was on Kolob. But the Lord told me to go, and I went. I chose Jonathan H. Hale, and he went with me. We cast out some devils there, preached the Gospel and performed some miracles. I crossed Lake Ontario and went into Connecticut, where my father lived. I had not seen one of my relatives from the time I embraced the Gospel. I preached the Gospel there, and baptized my father, my stepmother, and sister, and uncles and aunts, and organized a branch there. Every member of that branch was a relative of mine, excepting one, and he was a Methodist class leader who boarded at my father's house. This was all promised to me by old father Smith when he blessed me. I got to Fox Islands, and did a good work there. Through the blessings of God I brought nearly a hundred from there up to Zion, at the time the saints were driven out of Missouri into Illinois.

So it has been all through my life. If I have undertaken to do anything, and the Lord has wanted me to do something else, He has had to tell me. When we were sent to England, we were sent by revelation. I went into the Staffordshire potteries with Brother Alfred Cordon. We were doing a splendid work, baptizing almost every night, and I thought it was the finest mission I ever was on. I went into the town of Hanley one night, and attended a meeting in a large hall, which was filled to overflowing. The Spirit of God came upon me and said that that was the last meeting I should hold with that people for many days. I told the people that that was the last meeting I should be with them. After the meeting, they asked me where I was going. I told them I did not know. In the morning I asked the Lord what He wanted of me. He merely said, "Go to the south." I got into the stage and rode eighty miles. The first man's house I stopped at was John Benbow's in Herefordshire. In half an hour after I entered the house I know exactly why the Lord had sent me. There was a people there who had been praying for the ancient order of things. They were waiting for the Gospel as it was taught by Christ and His Apostles. The consequence was, the first thirty days after I got there I baptized six hundred of those people. In eight month's labor in that country I brought eighteen hundred into the Church. Why? Because there was a people prepared for the Gospel, and the Lord sent me there to do that work. I have always had to give God the glory for everything good that has happened to me; for I have realized by what power it came.

When I got back to Winter Quarters from the pioneer journey, President Young said to me, "Brother Woodruff, I want you to take your wife and children and go to Boston, and stay there until you can gather every Saint of God in New England and Canada and send them up to Zion." I did as he told me. It took me two years to gather up everybody, and I brought up the rear with a company. When I got into Pittsburgh with this company it was dusk, and I saw a steamer just preparing to go out. I walked right up to the captain and asked him if he was ready to go out. He said he was. "How many passengers have you?" "Two hundred and fifty." "Can you take another hundred?" "I can." "Then," said I, "I would like to go aboard with you." The words were hardly out of my mouth when the Holy Ghost said to me. "Don't you, nor your company go aboard that steamer." That was enough; I had learned the voice of the Spirit. I turned and told the captain that I had made up my mind not to go at present. The steamer started out. It was dark night, and before the steamer had gone far she took fire, and all on board was lost. We should probably have shared the same fate, had it not been for that monitor within me.

I refer to these things because I want you to get the same Spirit. All the Elders of Israel, whether abroad or at home, need that Spirit. When I was on my way east at one time I drove into a man's yard in Indiana. Brother Orson Hyde had driven in and set his wagon in the dooryard, and I set mine by the side of it.

I turned my mules and tied them to the oak tree. I had my wife and two children with me in my carriage. We went to lie down, and the Holy Spirit told me to get up and move my carriage. I got right up. My wife asked me what I was going to do. I said I was going to move the carriage. She wanted to know what for. I told her I did not know. I moved the carriage about fifteen rods, looked around, and then went to bed again. The Spirit told me to get up again and move my mules. I did so. In twenty minutes there came up a whirlwind that blew that oak tree down and laid it right across where my carriage had been. By listening to that Spirit our lives were saved.

Now it was not an angel that pointed out these things to me; it was the Holy Ghost. This is the Spirit that we must have to carry out the purposes of God on the earth. We need that more than any other gift. I felt impressed yesterday to teach this principle to the Latter-day Saints. We are in the midst of enemies, in the midst of darkness and temptation, and we need to be guided by the Spirit of God. We should pray when we are baptized. It is the spirit of light, of truth, and of revelation, and can be with all of us at the same time.

Brethren and sisters, God bless you. I am glad to meet with you. There are very few of you as old as I am. How long I shall tarry in this country I do not know; but while I do stay I want to do what good I can. These are principles that have rested a great deal upon my mind. If we labor for this Spirit, we will have no quarreling, and no difficulty, so long as that is dwelling within us. God bless you. Amen.

Letter of Amanda Hillman Wilcox,
Church Historians Office, Ms/d/875
June, 1860

To Sister Susie Young Gates, City Creek Canyon,
In June 1860.

President Brigham Young with Brother Heber C. Kimball came to my house this Tuesday morning and told me they would like to take dinner with the men that worked in the mill. I told them all right. Then they asked me to give them a drink of water from the Northfork stream for they were in the buggy and did not wish to get out, which I did from a tin cup. I had no other glasses; they thanked me and went on their way up the canyon. I going back to the house; this was 9 o'clock; they were back at 11 o'clock. Bro. Young looking at his watch. I had my work done and was preparing dinner; they sat down and talked of the trials that the Saints had gone through, and the persecutions, and the endurance the Saints for the Gospel; then Bro. Kimball said, we are in the tops of the mountains safe from their violence, and can take a rest for a while, when Bro. Young said the nation is on the eve of a great war, the freeing of the slaves, and we shall be at peace a while, as long as that way lasts. Bro. Kimball was glad that we are away from them. They could not make our sons go to war, as we are a territory, and their hands must not be stained with blood. Bro. Young when the Lord wanted our sons He would take care of them if they were faithful, but we should be a peace a little while. Bro. Young turned to me and said do you wish you had been with the Saints in persecutions and I said no sir. Did your father and mother not wish they had been with them. I never heard them say so sir; he then said that was strange, what did he say and then I told him, my parents believed the gospel with all their hearts, and my father said for us to live our religion, and you will have all the trials you can bear, without grieving over that which is past, and could not. Onward is his word. He said all who strived to serve the Lord would bless as well as he would try. Bro. Young said your father was right for the time will come when the Saints will be tried harder than they were when driven from Nauvoo. I said it does not look possible, he said it will be so. In their conversation about us people progressing, and what we as a great people would be, Bro. Kimball turned to me and said you pray we may always remain a territory. Bro. Young said Bro. Heber you know we have to learn: we are a big school. We must learn to govern ourselves then a city and cities, and then a territory then a state then states and then a nation and nations for this Gospel will go to all Nations and the spirit of the Lord will fill all the earth, we must learn our children to be true and rightness. I saw these two Brethren that day so full of the spirit of the lord that is shone among them I had no stove. They ate their dinner of tin plates and poor knives and forks, but they told me my dinner was good and worth waiting for, I cannot begin to tell all they said first one and then the other for they talked of that great war as if they could see it, and Bro. Young said when that is over it will be out turn again as we will have a time of it and the saints will be tried as never before. It was 2 o'clock when they left my house.

Old printed copy of prophetic sayings of
Heber C. Kimball

He (HCK) then went on to say: "an army of Elders will be sent to the four quarters of the earth, to search out the righteous and warn the wicked of what is coming. All kinds of religions will be started and miracles performed that will deceive the very elect if such a thing were possible. Our sons and daughters must live pure lives so as to be prepared for what is coming. After awhile the Gentiles will gather to this place by the thousands, and Salt Lake will be classed among the wicked cities of the world. A spirit of speculation and extravagance will take possession of the Saints, and the result will be financial bondage.
Persecution comes next and all true Latter-day Saints will be tested to the limit. Many will apostatize and others will stand still not knowing what to do. Darkness will cover the earth and gross darkness the minds of the people. The judgments of God will be poured out upon the wicked to the extent that our Elders from far and near will be called home, or in other words the gospel will be taken from the Gentiles and later on will be carried to the Jews. The western boundaries of the State of Missouri will be swept so clean of its inhabitants that as President Young tells us, when we return to that place, 'there will not be left so much as a yellow dog to wag his tail.' Before that day comes, however, the Saints will be put to a test that will try the integrity of the best of them. The pressure will become so great that the more righteous among them will cry unto the Lord day and night until deliverance comes.

Then the prophet Joseph and others will make their appearance and those who have remained faithful will be selected to return to Jackson County, Missouri, and take part in the upbuilding of that beautiful city, the New Jerusalem.

Prophetic Sayings of Heber C. Kimball to Amanda H. Wilcox
Mor/M270.1/BYU Library, Special Collections.

"This in part is what Sister Wilcox has to say: During the latter part of May 1868, President Heber C. Kimball and I were standing in front of his place on North Main. (His property extended on the east side of Main from North Temple, north to include at least the present Kimball Apartments. He is buried at the rear of the apartments.) After a few moments conversation he turned to me and said. "Now Sister Amanda, I am going to tell you something." Looking south he observed, "What do you see?" I told him that I did not know any of the places on Main Street except Brother Wells',Bishop Hunter's, William Jennings', Walker Brothers', and the Tithing Office. (The Daniel Wells home stood on the southeast corner of South Temple and Main where the Templeton Building was located and where the new Kennecott Building will be built. Bishop Hunter's home was on the east side of Main perhaps where the Uptown Theater is now located. The William Jenning's store was located on the northeast corner of First South and Main where the Deseret Building is now standing. The Walker Brothers store was located on the southwest corner of Third South ad Main where Darling Building is now located. The Tithing Office was located on the northeast corner of South Temple and Main where the Hotel Utah now stands). He then remarked "I will begin with Brother Well's place. It will be torn down and a six story building will be erected on that corner. All of the houses south of that place will be removed to make room for buildings that will average from three to six stories high.
Now we will come back from Fourth Street to the Council House corner. (On the southwest corner of South Temple and Main where the building will be erected with an addition to it on the west. Where the Tithing Office now stands will be constructed a building that will be a credit and honor to the inhabitants of this whole inter-mountain region. The land around the Temple Block will be owned by the Saints and this will become a city of beautiful buildings.
Next comes the Temple. What do you expect to see there?" I told him that I expected to see the Savior, Joseph, Hyrum, and others. He said, "Have you seen the Temple picture?" I said that I had not. He then put his hand on my shoulder and said, "Now look." Oh, how beautiful," I exclaimed. He then removed his hand and the vision was gone. He then asked me if I knew where the Prophets Joseph and Hyrum were. I told him that I knew, and he said, "This must be kept a secret".
He told me the trials of the Saints would be hard to bear until the square of the Temple was reached. Before that time, however our brethren would be imprisoned until the penitentiary shall be full, and some of them would be removed to other places. Mothers would weep for their husbands, and children would cry for their fathers. Some would die and sorrow would fill the hearts of every Latter-day Saint.
Continuing, he said, "When the Temple roof is on, it will be better but when the building is completed the Evil One will be shut out. The prayers of the Saints will be heard and the sick will be taken there to be healed. The spirit of God will rest upon His people and work for the dead will be continued night and day. You will attend the dedicatory services on the third day and if you will come to this very spot, after the meeting is dismissed, you will hear a mighty voice cry out, "all is well!".

I attended the services on the third day and went to the designated spot and heard the voice, as he said I would, repeated three times.
He then went on to say, "An army of elders will be sent to the four quarters of the earth to search out the righteous and warn the wicked of what is coming. All kinds of religions will be started and miracles performed that will deceive the very elect if such a thing were possible. Our sons and daughters must live pure lives so as to be prepared for what is coming.
After a while the Gentiles will gather to this place by the thousands and Salt Lake will be classed among the wicked cities of the world. A spirit of speculation and extravagance will take possession of the Saints and the result will be financial bondage.
Persecution comes next and all true Latter-day Saints will be tested to the limit. Many will apostatize and others will stand still, not knowing what to do. Darkness will cover the earth and gross darkness the minds of the people.
The judgments of God will be poured out upon the wicked to the extent that our elders from far and near will be called home. Or in other words, the gospel will be taken from the Gentiles and later on will be carried to the Jews.
Before that day comes, however the Saints will be put to a test that will try the integrity of the best of them. The pressure will become so great that the more righteous among them will cry unto the Lord day and night until deliverance comes.
"Now, Sister Amanda," he continued, "a few words to you in relation to your children. Do you know who they are? They are Joseph and Ephraim combined. The Evil One will make an effort to darken their minds in relation the Gospel, but they will come through all right."

Sister Wilcox closes her narrative with the following statement: "As soon as I reached home, I made a record of what Brother Kimball had told me as I know that every work of it would come true. I did not see him again until the next Sunday. After meeting he bade me good by and that was the last time I ever saw him."

Document in file in Church Historians Office

In 1836, soon after the dedication of the Kirtland Temple, and while the brethren were holding meetings from house to house, breaking bread, consecrating and drinking wine and prophesying, I attended one of the meetings where Joseph Smith, Martin Harris, and John Smith were present. Martin said there would not be a living Gentile on the earth in four years. Joseph removed him and said, "Brother Martin, you are too fast. After messages were sent with lightning speed from the east to the west sea and an iron track from one side of the world to the other, with iron carriages drawn by iron horses snorting fire and smoke, with less speed than the messages are carried, then it may do to talk about the time for the destruction of the Gentiles. But before that takes place they will make wonderful machinery of every kind, especially implements of husbandry for the work of the land and raising grain, saving a great deal of labor to the saints in building up the kingdom. The Lord will inspire the Gentiles to do this, but they will not acknowledge his hand in it, nor give him the glory, but will take the glory to themselves, and when the destruction comes, the wicked will slay the wicked: the saints will not destroy the Gentiles, they will be divided among themselves and destroy one another. But the time is with the Lord. The benefits of all the ingenuity and invention will be the means of advancing the building up of Zion with greater speed. The Lord will have the glory."

Prophecy by President John Taylor, July 21, 1885 CHO
Prophecy recorded by Edward Lunt on Jan. 1951.

A prophetic incident of President John Taylor, by Edward Lunt who was born at Nephi, Utah, July 21, 1885. My parents names were Henry Lunt and Sarah Ann Lunt.

The following incident occurred at my father's home at Cedar City, Utah, at the time a conference was being held there, at which President John Taylor and George Albert Smith were present. Elder George Albert Smith was asked to conduct the morning session of the conference as President Taylor wished to rest as he had held meetings so President Taylor did not attend the morning session of the conference but remained at our home to rest in order that he might attend the afternoon session. He with all of the authorities stayed at my father's home during the conference.

President Taylor wished to go to his room and lie down and rest and asked my mother to call him if he should oversleep by the time the morning session was over. My mother was busy preparing dinner for the visitors and was surprised then President Taylor came walking into the kitchen. She asked him if he was not able to rest as he hadn't been gone long, whereupon he related a vision that he had in his room. He saw Salt Lake City become a great and beautiful city, with cement streets and roads and the people had become wealthy. Great Beautiful homes covered the city and he said that the city was extended to almost the point of the Mountain (south of the now, 1951, state prison.) The people had become indifferent to the counsel and advice of the authorities of the Church and were more interested in the accumulating of wealth than they were in living their religion, and at this time there began to be war and bloodshed. He saw blood running down the gutters of Salt Lake City as though it were water. People were fighting among themselves until it became so serious that the entire Church records were all taken across the Colorado River. President Taylor said to her: If you are alive at that time, be sure that you are not far behind the records, because after the Church records leave and are secure the very powers of hell will be turned loose, and there will be such destruction that but very little life will remain. Not only Salt Lake but other adjoining cities will be destroyed, and in the east, in Missouri, in Jackson County civilization will become entirely extinct. All means of transportation such as railroads and highways will be destroyed, the only means of travel will be on foot, and all manufacturing of all kinds will be entirely destroyed. By sure when you see these things come, see that you have buttons, needles and things to work with in order to make yourself clothing, thread and cloth as far as possible because all tools and every kind of machinery will be destroyed. It will become such a destructive war that the sufferings and drivings of the people from Nauvoo will only be as a drop in the bucket as compared with the suffering that will take place at this time, until one-half of the people will not follow the leaders and one-half of the others will die and turn because of the sufferings they will have to go thur, but the Lord will bless those who stay with the authorities and they shall not all be destroyed. They will travel south and will finally form a circle something like a horseshoe before they return to Jackson County, Missouri. Those who will be privileged to help build Jackson County will be those who are willing and glad to obey the counsel and advice of the authorities placed over them, and they will not only be willing to listen to their counsel and advice but will ask that they might receive it in order to be guided and protected out of this great time of want and distress. The saints will be taxed so heavily that they will cry to the Lord day and night for deliverance.

He said also that we would be few in numbers and would assist the Lamanites in building the New Jerusalem in Jackson County. The vision was so terrible that he asked the Lord to close it but he saw that those who would keep the commandments and adhere to the authorities of the Church would survive and he would protect them as He did the children of Israel. After telling of this vision he said to me mother: Sister Lunt, see that you always listen and obey the counsel of the authorities and stay with them. The above experience my mother told me many, many times and she held this experience sacred.
In witness that the above is true, I hereunto sign my name this 9th day of January, 1951, at Mesa, Arizona.

I want to bear testimony to this congregation, and to the heavens and the earth, that the day is come when those angels are privileged to go forth and commence their work. They are laboring in the United States of America; they are laboring among the nations of the earth; and they will continue. We need not marvel or wonder at anything that is transpiring in the earth. The world does not comprehend the revelations of God. They did not in the days of the Jews: yet all that the prophets had spoken concerning them came to pass. So in our day these things will come to pass. I heard the Prophet Joseph bear his testimony to these events that would transpire in the earth.

Many of you will be living in Jackson County and there you will be assisting in building the temple; and if you will not have seen the Lord Jesus at that time you may expect Him very soon, to see Him, to eat and drink with Him, to shake hands with Him, and to invite him to your houses aa He was invited when He was here before. I am saying things to you now of which I know something of the truth of them.

Sister Susa Gates:

To fulfill my promise to you I will tell you what your father said to me in company with brother Heber C. Kimball in City Creek canyon, in the year 1861. In the latter part of July Brothers Brigham and Heber came into my house and were talking of the war of races meaning the blacks and whites. Your father said at the time, "They are giving us a rest, but it will not be long." Turning to me, he asked, "Sister Amanda, did you ever wish you had been with the Saints in their drivings from Nauvoo?" I said, "No Sir." They both looked surprised, and said I was the first of the English Saints they ever heard say so and asked why. I said, "I believe with all my heart that to live a good Saint it will require as great courage as it did in the drivings from Nauvoo before we get through." Then he said, "Yes, and more, for the trials of the Saints will be harder to bear." He further said, "When our brethren, the Twelve, should be called to the courts of Washington, then look out: for the world will be in commotion and the Lord will have something to work upon. The Lord will hear the prayers of His children. It will be after that, when our Savior with Joseph and Hyrum and hosts of others will come to earth. After the people have been tried, yes, tried, then will Joseph and Prophet lead this people to Jackson county, and then the glorious Temple will be built: for at that time there will be many called but few chosen, for they will be pure in heart that build the Temple. It will be pure and preserved from the eyes of the wicked."

Your living sister,

Amanda H. Wilcox

Sister A. H. Wilcox was the daughter of Abraham Bastow Hillman and Hannah Helliwall-born Feb. lOth, 1843, Bradford, Yourshire, England. She was baptized July 9, 1859, by William Arwood: married to Walter Eli Wilcox, May 9, 1860: came to Utah in 1859 ox-term: had three children, nine boys and four girls: nine children still living and all remain true to the Mormon faith.

...I appeal to you to keep current on this Correlation Program and help your students to understand it, that it may grow rapidly and take hold in the Church. It is a great task to change direction, even a little, in a great organization, and many people suffer greatly from it. You can tell a man's age by the amount he suffers when he hears a new idea. I hope you people do not suffer too much, that you find you in keeping current and helping us in this development You know, when we finally come to see clearly how the Lord would do it, it will be very, very simple. The Lord is never frantic, He is never mixed up...And then remains the most difficult thing there is to do--make Latter-day Saints out of Mormons.

My mind has been filled with the realization that in 1964 and the year just preceding, we have been receiving as pertinent and important divine direction as has ever been given to the Church in any similar period in its history through the prophet and leader who now presides as the President of this Church. You may recognize it in some of the developments we know as the correlation program. You have been seeing it unraveled bit by bit, and you will see and hear more of it.

The only safety and security there is in this Church is in listening to the words that come from the prophets of the Lord, as if from the mouth of the Lord himself. And they have spoken: they have told us to prepare, and it is not for us to argue whether we should or whether we should not. We have the prophets today telling us what our responsibility is here and now...God help us not to turn deaf ears, but go out while the harvest is yet possible and build on a blow, and beat on the house, our house will have stone walls.

Before the second coming, then, certain signs and wonders are to take place, and these, sometimes known as the signs of the times, will give those who worthily await his coming some assurance of the approximate time of his return.
May revelations summarize the signs to be noted before the coming of the Master. There will be wars commotions, calamities, plagues, pestilence, famine, and disease such as have not been known before, wars, carnage, bloodshed, and desolation which will overshadow anything of past ages.
Frequent visits to the temple will encourage us to watch and be ready for his coming as the day and hour are not known to anyone, but they who do watch and prepare for that day will be able to read the signs of the times and approximate the time of the second coming...
For the presence of the Lord shall be as the melting fire that burneth and as the fire which causeth the waters to boil.
But to the righteous who have waited faithfully and kept his laws, the second coming will be a day devoutly to be desired, when injustice will cease and wickedness be banished....
His coming will be a surprise to those who have ignored his warnings and have failed to watch. To them he will come as a thief in the night.....

But today we are being tested and tried by another kind of tent that I might call the "test of gold"--the test of plenty, affluence, ease--more than perhaps the youth of any generation have passed through, at least in this Church.
President John Taylor said, "I heard the Prophet Joseph Smith say, in speaking to the Twelve on one occasion. "You will have all kinds of trials to pass through. And it is quite as necessary for you to be tried as it was for Abraham and other men of God, and he said, "God will feel after you and He will take hold of you and wrench your very heart strings, and if you cannot stand it you will not be fit for an inheritance in the Celestial Kingdom of God."
May the Latter-day Saint youth, youth of the noble birthright, whose parents have passed through the rigors of trial and testing, consider now the trials through which they are passing today--ease and luxury and perhaps to easy ways to learning and education. Theirs may be the most severe test of any age.
God grant that they will not fail, that they will develop the faith that can keep them true when they are in the darkness and humble when they are in the spotlight.

Prophecy by Elder Hugh B. Brown
Osaka, Taipai April 21, 1967

And now I want to tell you people here tonight something that I have not said before.
Some of you who are listening to me tonight will live to see the day when there will be a Japanese man in the Council of the Twelve Apostles of the Church. I do not know when it will be. I will not live to see it. But some of you young people will see it and then you will realize that God loves the Japanese people.

And you will join with other nations in forming a great United Church all over the world. And some of you Japanese people will be among the leaders of the Church. I feel this in my heart tonight. And I dare to make this prediction in the name of the Lord.

Improvement Era Dec. 1967 pp. 92-93

It seems to me that of all the signs of the times (and they are ominous and on every side) this is one of the significant signs of the times that the church of Jesus Christ, the kingdom of God, is massing its forces, getting ready for that which is to follow.....
I hope that every young man under the sound of my voice will resolve tonight. "I am going to keep myself clean. I am going to serve the Lord. I am going to prepare every way I can for future service, because I want to be prepared when the final battle shall come."
And some of you young men are going to engage in that battle. Some of you are going to engage in the final testing time, which in coming and which is closer to us than we know.
...There is a spirit hovering over this group and reaching out to the various groups who are listening in, and it is a yearning spirit. It is the Spirit of the Holy Ghost calling upon all men who have been baptized into the Church and have received some order of Priesthood to stand up and be counted, for the time will come when those who are not for him will be found to be against him....

[The following revelation was given to President John Taylor since he studied French, not Wilford Woodruff. Elder Woodruff merely copied this journal entry into his own journal, failing to mention who it had been given to. Elder Woodruff states:]

15 I wrote 28 d spent most of the day in the Office I had a very strange vision Copied in the office to day of a desolating sickness which coverd the whole land

A Vision

Salt Lake City, Night of Dec 16, 1877

I [John Taylor], went to bed at my usual hour half past nine oclok I had been reading the Revelations in the French language, my mind was Calm, more so than usual if possible to be so. I composed myself for sleep but could not sleep. I felt a strange stupor come over me and apparantly became partially unconscious, still I was not asleep, nor awake With a strange far away dream & feeling the first I recognized was that I was in the Tabernacle at Ogden sitting on the back seat in the Corner for fear they would call upon me to Preach which after singing the second time, they did by calling me to the stand.
I arose to speak and said I did not know that I had any thing special to say Except to bear my Testimony to the Truth of the Latter Day work. When all at once it seemed as though I was lifted out of myself, and I said "yes I have something to say, it is this"--some of my brethren presant have been asking me what is coming to pass, what is the wind blowing up. I will answer you right here what coming to pass shortly. I was immediately in Salt [p.2] Lake City wandering about the streets in all parts of the City and on the door of every house I found a badge of mourning I passed my own house and saw the same sign there and asked, "Is that me that is dead" sumthing gave me answer "No youll live through it all" It seemed strange to me that I saw no person the street in my wandering about through the City they seemed to be in their houses with their sick and Dead. I saw no funeral possission, or anything of the kind, but the City looked vary still and quieet though the people were praying and had Controll of the desease what even it was I then looked in all directions even the Tarritory East West North and South, and I found the same mourning in every place throughout the Land. The next I knew I was just this side of Omaha- it seemed as though I was above the Earth, looking down to it as I passed along on my way East and I saw the roads full of people principally woman with just what they could carry in bundles on their backs travelling to the mountains on foot and I wondered how they could get there,with nothing but a small pack upon their backs. It was remarkable to me that there were so few men among them it did not seem as though the Cars were running the rails lookd rusty, and the roads abandoned and I have conception how I propelled myself [p. 3] As I looked down upon the people I continued East ward through Omaha and Council Bluffs which were full of disease and women every where The states of Missouri and Illinois were in turmoil and strife Men killing each other, and women joining in the fight, family against family cutting each other in pieces in the most horrid manner. The next I saw was Washington, and I found the City a Desolation. The white House Empty, the Halls of Congress the same every thing in ruins. the people seemed to have fled from the City and left it to teke care of itself. I was next in the City of Baltimore and in the square where the Monument of 1812 stands in front at St Charles and other Hotels I saw the Dead piled up so as to fill the square I saw Mothers cut the throats of their own Children for the sake of their blood, which they drank from their veins to quench their thirst and then lie down and die. The waters of the Chesapeake and of the city were so stagnant and such a stench arose from them on account of the putrification of Dead bodies that the very smell caused death. and that was singular again I saw no men except they were dead, dying in the streets. and very few women and theywere crazy mad, and in a dying condition. Every where I went I beheld the same all over the City, and it was horrible beyond description [p. 4] to look at I thought this must be the End. But No I was seemingly in Philadelphia and there every thing was still no living soul was to be seen to greet me. and it seemed as though the whole City was without and inhabitant. In [unreadable word] and Chestnut street and in fact Every where I went the putrification of the Dead bodies caused such a stench that it was impossible for any creature to exhist alive, nor did I see any living thing in the City. I next found myyself in Broadway New York and here it seemed the people had done their best to overcome the disease. But in wandering down Broadway I saw the bodies of Beautiful women lying stone dead, and others in a dying condition on the sidewalk. I saw men crawl out of the cellars and rob the dead bodies of the valuables they had on and before they could return to their covers in the cellars they themselves would roll over a time or two and die in agony. On some of the back streets I saw Mothers kill their won Children and eat raw flesh and then in a few minutes die themselves. Wherever I went I saw the same scenes of Horror and Desolations rapine and Death No Horses of Carriages. No busses or Street Cars, but Death and Desolation everywhere I then went Grand Central Park and looking back up I saw a fire start and just at moment a mighty east wind sprang up and carried the flames [p. 5] west over the City, and it burned untill there was not a single building left standing whole even down to the wharfs, and the shiping all seemed to be burnd and swallowed up in the Common destruction and left nothing but a Desolation where the great City was a short time before. The stench from the bodies that were burning was so great that it was carried a great distance across the Hudson River and bay, and thus spread disease and death whereever the flames penetrated. I cannot paint in words the Horror that seemed to encompass me around It was beyond description or thought of man to conceive I supposed this was to end but I was here given to understand,that the same horror was being enacted all over the Country, North South East and West,that few were left alive Still there some. Immediately after I seemed to be standing on the west bank of the Missouri River opposite the City of Independence but I saw no City I saw the whole states of Missouri and Illinois and part of Iowa were a complete wilderness with no living human being in them. I then saw a short distance from the river Twelve men dressed in the robes of the Temple standing in a square or nearly so. I understood it represented the Twelve gates of the New Jerrusalem and they were with hands uplifted Consecratig the ground and laying the Corner Stones. I saw myriads [p. 6] of Angels hovering over them and around about them and also an immens pillar of a cloud over them and I heard the singing of the most beautif music the words "Now is established the Kingdom of our God and his Christand He shall reign forever and Ever, and the Kingdom shall never be Thrown down for the Saints have overcome" and I saw people coming from the river and different places a long way off to help build the Temple; and it seemed that the Hosts of the angels also helped to get the making to build theTemple and I saw some come who wore their Temple Clothing robs to help build the Temple and the City and all the time I saw the great pillar of Cloud hovering over the place Instantly I found I was in the Tabernacle at Ogden yet I could see the buildig going on and yhet quite animated in calling to the people in the Tabernacle to listen to the beautiful music that the Angels were Making I called to them to look at the Angels as the House seemed to be full of them and they were saying the same words that I heard Before "Now is the Kingdom of Our God Established forever & Ever. and then a voice said "Now shall come to pass that which was spoken by Isaiah the Prophet "That seven women shall take hold of one man saying &c At this time I seemed to stagger back from the pulpit & F D Richards and some one els caught me and preventd me from fallig when I requested Broth Richard to [p. 7] apologize to the audience for me because I stoped so abruptly and tell them I had not fainted but was exhausted I rolled over in my bed and heard the City Hall Clock strike Twelve.

ADDRESS GIVEN BY SPENCER W. kIMBALL

PRESIDENT OF THE QUORUM OF THE TWELVE APOSTLES
SANTA MONICA STAKE FIRESIDE

This great congregation tonight is near overwhelming. The beautiful music we've heard in solo and in chorus adds to it and the picture makes us feel that we are with our Lord. We've just heard the beautiful song, "Still, Still With Thee--I Am With Thee"...and brings to our remembrance that as has been said in the poem, we are not just something that happened. Each of us has a destiny. Each of us is born with a future--with a glorious future. And as the father of the son who left his home and went away--he said to the older son who remained and who had been faithful all his days, "All that I have is thine." And that promise is made to you and to me: "All that I have is thine."

This brings to our mind the couplet by President Snow which gives us another angle of this thing and that is: "As man is, God once was. As God is, man may become." As I see the picture of these heavens revolving and rotating, I see the greatness of His glory. "This is My glory." I think as I watch the television and see men walk on the moon, that we are small--we are tiny. But after all, each one of us has a destiny. each one of us is greater than the ocean, bigger than the mountain. Each one of us. We can destroy it or we can magnify it and make it great.

Within the past decade, Sister Kimball and I were in Assyria. We were down in Ur of the Chaldees where Abraham was born, where Abraham grew up, where Abraham courted Sarah and married Sarah. We were in that land which is now being excavated and found again--where the Egyptians, having come to Assyria in their religious rites, had offered up as sacrifices upon these great pyramids that climb into the heavens--they offered the daughters, the children of their leaders, to appease a God they didn't know. Then they got Abraham and put him on the table and the priests were ready to sacrifice his life and were stopped by intervention of the angels of God, who stopped them--took their lives--and Abraham was saved.

We traveled for many hours along the Euphrates River where Abraham and his small group, his father and others (a very small group), went these long miles on foot--I suppose perhaps with camel--way up to the fertile crescent--what is now in Turkey. And there they lived a long time until there were seventy of them in the group. And then they went down south, westerly down through Palestine. And when he got in [the] vicinity of what later became Jerusalem, he built an altar and there he offered sacrifices to the Lord. And he prayed to the Lord and the Lord came and visited him. And He walked and talked with this great man Abraham--who was like any of us--who was born to greatness, who was born to leadership. He was born to be a King. He was born to be a God. And there, at this place--this altar that Abraham built--the Lord gave him visions of things that few men ever see. Even few men--no men perhaps--even in the great laboratories of Houston and elsewhere. He saw the end from the beginning. He saw what you and I can see. Every soul in this building can see these things. Every soul in this building can see God. One God. Everyone.

Here's a quotation from the 94rd section of the Doctrine and Covenants. The Lord speaking says: "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass..." That phrase we get tired of reading sometimes, but it is powerful. It means very simply this: "What I'm going to tell you is true. It's true, it's basic. You can depend upon it. It will never fail." That's what He means when He says: "Verily, verily, I say unto you..." "I'm going to tell you something. Listen, and don't let it slip out of your minds." Then He says: "It shall come to pass that every soul..." Now that means you, and you, and you, and me--"every soul" who is born in this earth is destined to have this great privilege. Every soul. And then I go to the end of that verse: "...shal know, he was millionaire. And then one day some little trick happened. He couldn't get credit. He lost this one and this one and this one and was reduced almost to poverty again, all in the period of a few years. He hadn't depended on the Spirit of the Lord. He had been totally sufficient in and of himself, and "himself' wasn't a very strong person.

And then we come to number four: "... and obeyeth my voice..." Let's read down to there again. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins, who cometh unto me and who calleth on my name; who obeyeth my voice...shall see my face and know that I am." The Lord doesn't need to lock any doors and say, "Well, I'm going to see these that are the stake presidents, and these that are in the bishoprics, and these that are in the high places. He doesn't say that. He says, "every soul" of every nation, of every race -- every soul, without exception. "I'll come to see him. I'll talk to him. I'll give him these blessings." Every soul who doeth these five things, only four of which we've mentioned so far. This last one was: "...who obeyeth my voice..." What is His voice? Here is HIs voice -- the four standard works --the Holy Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Doctrine and Covenants, the Pearl of Great Price. Is there any one here tonight that hasn't read those four books? I hope there's not a soul here that hasn't read them, all those books.

When I was 14 years old, I remember I came to a big conference, about like this, down in Arizona. And as I sat way back in the audience, about two-thirds of the way back, I heard the speaker challenge that congregation to read the Holy Bible. I remember she said -- she had told how wonderful scriptures are and how basic they are and how needed they are -- and then she said: "How many in this congregation have read the Bible?" And I wa a little shame-faced because I hadn't and here I was 14 years old. I was reading a lot of books at this time and was a little shame-faced, and I looked around to see if I was the only one who hadn't read the Bible. And I saw about five or six hands go up that said they had read the Bible. I wonder how many of you, if I asked you (and I'm not going to) would raise your hands high and say, "I have read the Holy Bible because it is the word of God." "It is my voice..." "...who obeyeth my voice..." How in heaven's name are we ever going to obey God's voice if we don't know what it is? We don't get it in Sacrament Meeting all the time -- just a little bit. How are we going to obey His voice if we never hear it? Yet here it is in the most eloquent terms and tones and words that man can utter. The most eloquent and beautiful are the words of the scriptures. How many of us have read magazines that are crude and ugly and weak? How many of us have read other things--newspapers--every day? It's alright. There are parts of it that are good. But why don't we read the word of God? I could have read the Bible two or three years younger than I did. I got home that night after that conference. I lit the coal oil lamp. It was my only light. I sat down by this little flickering coal oil light and I opened the Bible and I started to read in Genesis that night, because the challenge had just come to me that night. I read several chapters and I got sleepy and went to bed. And every night in January, February, March, in April, May, June, July, August, September, October, November, and December. I read every night, every day, something of the word of God. Wasn't all interesting--pages and pages of names that I couldn't remember--but there is everything in that Holy Bible--practically everything, with the supplement from the Doctrine and Covenants, Book of Mormon, Pearl of Great Price--there is everything in this whole world a person needs. There isn't a thing left out--not one single thing. Salvation, exaltation, eternal life, and all the things in this world that are possible to man, are in those books. And yet we'll read cheap and sometimes very good books in lieu of that. Now there isn't time for everything, and I wouldn't think anybody would want to spend very much time reading novels, literature or anything else, until he read this literature.

Let's go on to the fifth one: "And it shall come to pass that every soul..." who does those things--A, B, C, and D--and who "...keepeth my commandments..." How do you know what the commandments are if you don't read the scriptures? If you don't read Exodus where it ways, "Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal." Now that wasn't something of bygone days. That was true in 1973 and it will be true in 1975. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain. Honor the sabbath day and keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor..." and do all thy work and the seventh is the sabbath of the Lord thy God. And in it "...thou shalt not do any work. Thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, thy maidservant, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea and all that in them is, and rested on the seventh day. Wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath day and hallowed it." Oh, He must get discouraged when He sees everybody having fun on Sunday. Everybody selling goods--the servants, the employees. Yet He says, "Thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, thy maidservant." These are employees. Sometimes we kid ourselves by saying, "Well, I'll hire people to wait on tables. I'll hire someone to sell the fruit on the way stand." The Lord said, "...thy servant, thy manservant, thy maid servant..." Still we don't know...we don't know the scriptures. We don't know the commandments of God.

Now let me put it all together again, and listen to the power of this one thing. Did you realize that the Lord may have stopped for a few minutes to think of just what He wanted to say that would be comprehensive. And can you think of any scripture of eight lines in all literature that is so comprehensive as this? "...Every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am."

Who has seen the Christ and knows that He is? in our time you may have known people who have. They don't go around boasting about it. They don't write it in pamphlets and hand them out as they go along. Anybody who would do that isn't worthy of the blessing. This isn't a spectacular thing that should be announced and made cheap and weak. When one of us had the blessing of being introduced to his Heavenly Father, to the Lord Jesus Christ for [sic] whom he would know--the one who wrote this Bible, the one who wrote this Doctrine and Covenants as Jesus Christ through His servants--He built those books and inspired them from the beginning. You can, you can, and you, and you, and you--every on of you.

Now I remind you again, it isn't going to come...it isn't going to come thought wishing--wishful thinking. It'll come only by performance. It can't come by, oh, a few days, or weeks, or months of service. Here is a Relief Society sister who's just near perfect during this short period she's president of Relief Society. Then when she's released, she gets a little careless. She doesn't pray all the time. She doesn't do the things she should. She misses some to her meetings. Here's a man, who while he was a great leader, while everyone was watching--he lives a righteously. But when he is released, he slips into the paths that are casual and that many people find.

This is perfection: remember the Beatitudes where the Lord says, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in Heaven is perfect"? Now He was talking to you again. To every soul again. To every man, woman, youth and child "Be ye perfect." That's how we become "still, still with thee." Now if that doesn't mean anything to require working...well just go ahead, headlong into disaster. But if it does have a meaning, then let it sink deep in our hearts and a realization of it. We don't need to become sober-faced to the point that we are pious without natural and proper living. The Lord has arranged so that we can live a very normal life with joy and laughter and peace and happiness and associations of family, fatherhood, motherhood, childhood--family life. All these things are a part of this gaining perfection. The Lord has required it of us. Now we have to start by forsaking our sins--forsaking the temptations.

There again comes to my mind the experience of Joseph--Joseph who was sold by his own brethren. First they were going to kill him because he had in some way disturbed them, and they were somewhat revengeful. He told some stories, some dreams he'd had which sounded to them very arrogant, as though he was going to rule over them. And so they promised to kill him. Then Reuben, dear soul, persuaded them not to kill him but to throw him down in a pit where he couldn't get out, and to send his coat covered with animal blood back to his father--to convince the father that it was only animals that had destroyed his son Joseph. But the travelers came along on camels and put up thirty pieces of silver and bought this human being. He could have been a roustabout. He could have been a "no-one", a nobody. But he was born like you were born and I was born--to greatness. Born to Godhood. Born to eternal life, and he didn't waste himself.

And then there's to remind us again that he had experiences that many people had. He had temptations. He had a chance probably to embezzle everything in Egypt that was put into his hands. I suppose he could have stolen, he could have embezzled. And there are tens of thousands of people today who would have embezzled in the first minute that nobody was watching. He didn't embezzle. I can imagine that he grew up praying even though he grew up in Potiphar's home. He was raised so he knew that immorality was destructive. He knew that he couldn't yield to the temptations of the flesh. He knew he had to be above all reproach.

And so when this wife of Potiphar found herself alone in the house with him, and put on all her paints and powders, and all her cosmetics...when she put on her finest dress--perhaps the smallest dress she had that covered her the least, like thousands of our sweet girls who don't know what they're doing. They just don't know what they're doing when they leave their limbs uncovered. And that isn't just a matter of fashion. It's a matter of being right and wrong and no girl is justified in leaving her body uncovered, no matter what the styles are. And I can say that a thousand times and still feel good about it. This woman. Here she lay. Here she tempted him. And she tempted him in every way a woman can tempt a man. But he wouldn't yield. He said, "Why, how could I do a thing like that? How could I do a thing like that when your husband, my master, has confidence in me?" And she dragged him and she would have pulled him down into her bed with here, but he jumped and ran away. He left in her hands a part of his garment which she grabbed and then used as evidence against him to get him thrown into prison. He probably knew that he would be in prison. He undoubtedly knew that he would. And so he was thrown down into the dungeons because this woman bore false witness against him. She told her husband that he tried to take advantage of her. But here he stood, this great man. He didn't succumb. He ran away and left her. And then we followed him into the dungeon--happy to serve in a dungeon, a dark and dismal place, rather than give of himself...rather than to break a commandment of the Lord.

He knew. He knew, though Moses hadn't come yet and though the Ten Commandments hadn't been given yet on Mt. Sinai, but he knew they had been given to Adam. The Ten Commandments were given to Adam and to Enos and to Noah and to all the patriarchs. Abraham knew the Ten Commandments. They weren't given first on Mt. Sinai--they were put into a physical situation at that time. But Joseph remained faithful and true. That's what the Lord is talking about here. That means every time a temptation comes along, every tendency to be ugly, to be unsociable, to do the things that are wrong, that we all know are wrong--that's when we resist and put on our armor of righteousness and helmet of truth.

Now let me read this once more and let you go home with this beautiful scripture. Remember, it's the 93rd section and it's the first verse, so you can't miss it. Read it over and over. Memorize it. Write it, you young girls, on a piece of paper and put it in your bedroom where you can see it. Paste it onto your mirror. You boys put it on your mirror where you shave. Remember, "Every soul who forsaketh his sins, who cometh unto me, who calleth upon my name, who obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am."

God bless you my brothers and sisters. Sometimes we just get so busy doing so many things, we forget to stop and think, to memorize, anHow Can I Know What the Lord Want's Me To Do!

A N D

If I do it, Will I Prosper...

Not long ago, a friend of mine, named Gregg, came to me and told me a incredible story about how he had struggled for many years over a question. A remarkable question that each of us ask and struggle with many times over the course of our lives and only few find the answer.

As Gregg commenced telling me his experience, my interest hieghtened and I focused all my attention on what he was saying because this was something I had also wanted to know.... Could this also be an answer for me.... Did Gregg have the answer, would it work for me, and better yet, could it work for everyone. Was it a perfect formula which if pluged into would work for anyone any time...

My heart raced as Gregg commenced telling his story. His enthusiasm was like an unquencable fire. His eyes burned deep into my soul as he leaned forward staring right at me. His whole countence shown as he spoke and I knew that I was to about to receive a truth that was going to change my life if I would chose to let it.

The question was simple, yet if answered it could transform a persons life like a catapiller changing into a wonderous buterfly. The question was this:

"How can I know what the Lord want's me to do and if I do it will I prosper?"

Gregg said that one Fast Sunday he had fasted and prayed about this question. A question with which he had patitioned the Lord many times before. The following tuesday he was awakened by the Spirit at 4 a.m. with this unending question on his mind.

He said it was like the Lord was guiding him through the scriptures. He said; "I turned in my scriptures to D&C 11:25 and read":

> Deny not the spirit of revelation, nor the spirit of prophecy, for wo unto him that denieth these things;
> When he read these words my mind recalled the words of Alma which declares:
> ...contend no more against the Holy Ghost, but that ye receive it... [and] humble yourselves..., and worship [follow] God, in whatsoever place ye may be in, in spirit and in truth;(BofM:Alma 34:38)
> Gregg then said, "My mind mind raced to Section 8 verses 3-5 which says"
> Yea, behold, I will tell you in your mind and in your heart, by the Holy Ghost, which shall come upon you and which shall dwell in your heart.
> Now, behold, this is the spirit of revelation; behold, this is the spirit by which Moses brought the children of Israel through the Red Sea on dry ground.

Then he said, "I was giuded to 2 Nephi 32:3-5 which told me, the words of Christ will tell me all things what I should do and the Holy Ghost will show me all things which I should do.

He said, "I realized that these, then, are personal commands or divine authoritative directions from the Lord. To direct means to point in the way or to guide, lead, or steer.

Gregg said to me, David, do you know what the word commandment means. It means that someone is sitting in a stratigics opened by singing and prayer offered up by the head of each quorum, and closed by singing and invoking the benediction of heaven with uplifted hands, and retired between one and 2. oclock in the morning. (Kirtland Elders' Quorum Record, 21 January 1836, footnotes)

The "holy anointing" was part of a complex of sanctifying ordiances intended to prepare the brethern to receive a spiritual outpouring known in Kirtland as "an endowment of power."
Purification" was one of the ordiances which prepared the brethren for the "endowment." It consisted of having one's body washed and bathed with cinnamon-perfumed whiskey and later washing one's own body with pure water and perfume. Cf. D&C 89:7. (Kirtland Elders' Quorum Record, 25 January 1836, footnotes.)

The "sealing power" had reference to the early Mormon practice of "electing" certain members of the Church to be candidates to the celestial kingdom by the power of the priesthood. Beqinning in 1831, High Priest were given the authority to seal up individuals that were identified to them by revelation (D&C 68:12, and Far West Record: Minutes of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1830-1844 Donald Q. Cannon and Lyndon W. Cook, eds, [Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Company, 1983], pp. 20-21: "Br. Joseph Smith Jr. said that the order of the Highpriesthood is that they have power given them to seal up the Saints unto eternal life. And said it was the privilege of every Elder present to be ordained to the Highpriesthood"). This practice was discontinued sometine in 1835 not resumed until the Nauvoo period, and then only by express permission and direction of the Prophet. The Mormon doctrine of election differend form that of other religious groups in that the Saints believed that a person could fall from grace (by sin) after achieving grace (D&C 20:32) even though he might have been elected or "sealed" up unto eternal life. Such wilful sin would result in being delivered over to the buffetings of Satan.
Note that the use of the word "seal" as it relates to the anointings mentioned above meant that the promises or ordiances were being bound by the holy priesthood, not that these brethren were being sealed up unto eternal lifs. (Kirtland Elders' Quorum Record, 19 March 1836, footnotes.)

The Prophet's remarks refer to a second solemn assembly planned for the 6th of April, 1837. Worthy brethren who were unable to attend to solemn assembly the previous year were invited to participate in certain purifying ordinances preparatory to receiving a spiritual endowment of power. These ordinances consisted of (1) washing "head to foot" in soap and water, (2) washing in clear water and perfumed whiskey, (3) having one's head anointed with consecrated oil and receiving a blessing by the spirit of prophecy, (4) having the anointing blessing sealed with uplifted hands (solemn prayer, a sealing prayer, and the hosannah shout), and (5) washing of faces and feet and partaking of the Lord's Supper. (26 Jan 1836, footnote.)

1. John 14:23; John the Revelator speaking.

Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

2. D&C 130:3; April 2, 1843; Revelation to Joseph Smith.

John 14:23---The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance; and the idea that the Father and the Son dwell in a man's heart is an old sectarian notion, and is false.

3. Revelations 3:20-21; Revelation to John the Revelator.

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne.

4. Matthew 11:27-29

. . .neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him. Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

5. 1 John 2:25, 27-28

And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life. But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him. And now, little children, abide in him; that, when she shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

6. 1 John 3:1-3

Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.

7. Moses 6:61

Therefore it is given to abide in you; the record of heaven; the Comforter; the peaceable things of immortal glory; the truth of all things; that which quickeneth all things, which maketh alive all things; that which knoweth all things, and hath all power according to wisdom, mercy, truth, justice, and judgment.

8. D&C 76:114-118; February 16, 1832; Revelation to Joseph Smith.

But great and marvelous are the works of the Lord, and the mysteries of his kingdom which he showed unto us, which surpass all understanding in glory, and in might, and in dominion; Which he commanded us we should not write while we were yet in the Spirit, and are not lawful for man to utter; Neither is man capable to make them known, for they are only to be seen and understood by the power of the Holy Spirit, which God bestows on those who love him, and purify themselves before him; To whom he grants this privilege of seeing and knowing for themselves; That through the power and manifestation of the Spirit, while in the flesh, they may be able to bear his presence in the world of glory.

9. D&C 93:1-2; May 6, 1833; Kirtland, Ohio; Revelation to Joseph Smith.

Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am; that I am the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

10. D&C 88:67-68; December 27, 1832; Revelation to Joseph Smith.
And if your eye be single to my glory, your whole bodies shall be filled with light, and there shall be no darkness in you; and that body which is filled with light comprehendeth all things. Therefore, sanctify yourselves that your minds become single to God, and the days will come that you shall see him; for he will unveil his face unto you, and it shall be in his own time, and in his own way, and according to his own will.

11. D&C 67:10; November, 1831; Hiram, Ohio; Revelation to Joseph Smith.

And again, verily I say unto you that it is your privilege, and a promise I give unto you that have been ordained unto this ministry, that inasmuch as you strip yourselves from jealousies and fears, and humble yourselves before me, for ye are not sufficiently humble, the veil shall be rent and you shall see me and know that I am---not with the carnal neither natural mind, but with the spiritual.

12. 2 Nephi 2:2-4; Lehi speaking to Jacob.

Gospel Mysteries

. . .thou knowest the greatness of God. . .wherefore, I know that thou art redeemed. . .thou hast beheld in thy youth his glory; wherefore thou art blessed even as they unto whom he shall minister in the flesh.

13. 2 Nephi 11:2-3; Nephi speaking.

. . .for he [Isaiah] verily saw my Redeemer, even as I have seen him and my brother, Jacob, also has seen him as I have seen him.

14. Ether 3:13, 17-18; Experience of the Brother of Jared.

And when he had said these words, behold, the Lord showed himself unto him, and said: Because thou knowest these things ye are redeemed from the fall; therefore ye are brought back into my presence; therefore I show myself unto you.
And now, as I, Moroni, said I could not make a full account of these things which are written therefore it sufficeth me to say that Jesus showed himself unto this man in the spirit, even after the manner and in the likeness of the same body even as he showed himself unto the Nephites.
And he ministered unto him even as he ministered unto the Nephites; and all this, that this man might know that he was God, because of the many great works which the Lord had showed unto him.

15. Ether 12:39, 41; Moroni speaking.

And then shall ye know that I have seen Jesus, and that he hath talked with me face to face, and that he told me in plain humility, even as a man telleth another in mine own language, concerning these things.

16. Mormon 1:15, 19; Mormon speaking.

And I, being fifteen years of age and being somewhat of a sober mind, therefore I was visited of the Lord. and tasted and knew of the goodness of Jesus. . . .I know that I shall be lifted up at the last day.

17. Abraham 2:12; 3:11-12

Now. after the Lord had withdrawn from speaking to me. and withdrawn his face from me, I said in my heart: Thy servant has sought thee earnestly; now I have found thee. . . .Thus I, Abraham, talked with the Lord, face to face, as one man talketh with another; and he told me of the works which his hands had made; and he said unto me: My son, my son (and his hand was stretched out), behold I will show you all things.

18. Moses 1:1-2

The words of God, which he spake unto Moses at a time when Moses was caught up into an exceedingly high mountain. And he saw God face to face, and he talked with him, and the glory of God was upon Moses; therefore Moses could endure his presence.

19. Moses 7:69

And Enoch and all his people walked with God, and he dwelt in the midst of Zion; and it came to pass that Zion was not, for God received it up into his own bosom; and from thence went forth the saying, Zion is Fled.

By each small victory, he grows precept on precept, and line on line, until he wins the precious prize of making his calling and election sure–the most glorious and crowning achievement of all.

I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. (Philip. 3:14)

"Brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall." (2 Peter 1:10)

Parley P. Pratt defined the pre-existent nature of some of these God-given "callings":

> I do not take up the subject in the middle of it, like the natural man who knows little of the past or future, and who judges by the things present before his eyes. Such a one might suppose that it so happened that Abraham came along, and was picked up without any particular reference to the past, or to eternal principles, and was elected to office: that it might just as well have been somebody else instead of him. But instead of this, he was chosen before the world was, and came into the world for the very purpose which he fulfilled. But, notwithstanding this pre-election in passing the veil, and entering a tabernacle of flesh, he became a little child, forgot all he had once known in the heavens, and commenced anew to receive intelligence in this world, as is the case with all. He therefore was necessitated to come up by degrees, receive an experience, be tried and proved. And when he had been sufficiently proved according to the flesh, the Lord manifested to him the election before exercised towards him in the eternal world. He then renewed that election and covenant, and blessed him, and his seed after him. (J. D. 1:258–59)

The Apostle Peter also referred to this "Pre-election" when he wrote to the "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God...." (1 Peter 1:2) Alma also said that priests who were after the holy order were "called and prepared from the foundation of the world according to the foreknowledge of God." (Alma 13:3)

The "fulness of the gospel" refers to all of the laws and commandments of God. The Lord said that the scriptures were given for "the salvation of mine own elect; for they will hear my voice, and shall see me...." (D & C 35:20–21)

The gospel serves as a test by which the Lord can appoint man to the resurrection of the just or resurrection of the unjust. all men will be appointed unto one or the other of these two resurrections. some will be "appointed angels in heaven, which angels are ministering servants, to minister for those who are worthy of a far more, and an exceeding, and an eternal weight of glory," (D & C 132:16) or to be among the elect who will be appointed or elected to be "Gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D & C 132:20)

The Apostle Orson Hyde describes the course these elect must follow to become Gods:

> The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the time of god on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, and have not been anointed an ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom. (Mill. Star 9:23-24)

> He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. (John 14:21) > to have the heavens opened and become a witness of the Savior of the world is the final proof of al man's love for God. This is one of the great promises the Lord made to His disciples. But it is not just a privilege, as we will learn; it is a goal, a requirement, an obligation, and a necessity for God's elected sons.

> Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. (Paul, I Cor. 2:9)

But before men can obtain a perfect love for God, they must learn who He is, what kind of person He is, and how they can approach Him--subject covered in the following chapter.

Commenting on the verse in John 14:23, the Prophet Joseph Smith said:

> The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance; and the idea that the Father and the son dwell in a man's heart is an old sectarian notion, and is false.
> Also, D. & C. 130:1 says, "When the Savior shall appear, we shall see him as he is. We shall see that he is a man like ourselves."

When the Prophet Joseph Smith announced the appearance of heavenly beings, such as those recorded in the Bible, he proclaimed a whole new concept of God to our generation. He explained:

> What is the object of our coming into existence, then dying and falling away, to be here no more? It is but reasonable to suppose that God would reveal something in reference to the matter, and it is a subject we ought to study more than any other. We ought to study it day and night, for the world is ignorant in reference to their true condition and relation. If we have any claim on our > Heavenly Father for anything, it is for knowledge on this important subject. Could we read and comprehend all that has been written from the days of Adam, on the relation of man to God and angels in a future state, we should know very little about it. reading the experience of others, or the revelation given to them, can never give us a comprehensive view of our condition and true relation to God. Knowledge of these things can only be obtained by experience through the ordinances of God set forth for that purpose. Could you gaze into heaven five minutes, you would know more that you would by reading all that ever was written on the subject. (TPJS, p. 324)

> In the beginning, the head of the Gods called a council of the Gods; and they came together and concocted a plan to create the world and people it. When we begin to learn this way, we begin to learn the only true God, and what kind of being we have got to worship. Having a knowledge of god we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. When we understand the character of God, and know how to come to Him, he begins to unfold the heavens to us, and to tell us all about it. (TPJS, p. 350)

> These are incomprehensible ideas to some, but they are simple. It is the first principle of the Gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with Him as one man converses with another, and that He was once a man like us; yea, that God Himself, the Father of us all, dwelt on an earth, the same as Jesus Christ Himself did; and I will show it from the Bible. (TPJS, p. 345-346)

And, as soon a s this modern Prophet proclaimed that he had received a vision of the Father and son, he was denounced. although similar wonderful manifestations had occurred throughout the Bible, and upon which the whole Judeo-Christian religions were predicated, it was denounced as impossible. god had appeared to men anciently and all Christians admit that such appearances did occur, but they consider such an occurrence a preposterous in our time. Joseph then warned them: "I say to all those who disposed to set up stakes for the Almighty, you will come short of the glory of God." (TPJS, p. 321) All men assume that they will see God or Christ in heaven, but they have put up stakes that god cannot reveal Himself to man in this day and age. The ancient prophet Alma also said that--

> For behold, this life is the time for men to prepare to meet God; yea, behold the day of this life is the day for men to perform their labors. (Alma 43:42)

> He was saying that men not only can but should prepare to meet God while in mortality.

Joseph Smith was not alone in obtaining this actual knowledge of God. Others were able to receive heavenly manifestations and revelations for a testimony of their own. The Lord also instructed the Saints that they should seek for this assurance by saying:

> Therefore, care not for the body, neither the life of the body; but care for the soul, and for life of the soul. And seek the face of the Lord always, that in patience ye may possess your souls, and ye shall have eternal life." (D. & C. 101:37-38)

Many revelations were given to encourage the people to obtain this certainty for themselves. The Prophet Joseph promised men that it could be done, and gave them Priesthood, ordinances, and teachings so they could accomplish it.

It is obvious that righteousness is the cornerstone of the gospel of Christ and the foundation upon which all blessings are predicated. It is a theme upon which all the prophets have expounded, and the Prophet Joseph Smith was no exception. In one of his sermons he gives the following counsel:

> Most assuredly it is, however, that the ancients, though persecuted and afflicted by men, obtained from God promises of such weight and glory, that our hearts are often filled with gratitude that we are even permitted to look upon them while we contemplate that there is no respect of persons in His sight, and that in every nation, he that feareth God and worketh righteousness, is acceptable with Him. But from the few items previously quoted we can draw the conclusion that there is to be a day when all will be judged of their works, and rewarded according to the same; that those who have kept the faith will be crowned with a crown of righteousness; be clothed in white raiment; be admitted to the marriage feast; be free from every affliction, and reign with Christ on the earth, where, according to the ancients promise, they will partake of the fruit of the vine new in the glorious kingdom with Him; at least we find that such promises were made to the ancient Saints.
> And though we cannot claim these promises which were made to the ancients for they are not our property, merely because they were made to the ancient Saints, yet if we are the children of the Most High, and are called with the same calling with which they were called, and embrace the same covenant that they embraced, and are faithful to the testimony of our Lord as they were, we can approach the Father in the name of Christ as they approached Him, and for ourselves obtain the same promises. (TPJS, p. 65-66)
> From this portion of his sermon we can summarize the following pertinent facts:

1. God is no respecter of persons.

2. Those who work righteousness are favored of God.

3. We will be judged by our works.

4. If we are faithful, we will be admitted to the marriage feast.

5. We may reign with Christ on the earth.

6. We will drink of the fruit of the vine with Christ personally in the new Kingdom.

7. We cannot claim the same promises that the ancients did unless we are called with the same calling and embrace the same covenants they did.

8. When we have proved faithful to the testimony of the Lord, we can approach the Father.

9.We may expect to be persecuted by others as the ancient prophets were.

10.We can obtain and enjoy the very same blessings that all the other true prophets had achieved.
These glorious privileges are not easily obtained, as the Prophet Joseph continues to explain:

> When you climb up a ladder, you must begin at the bottom, and ascend step by step, until you arrive at the top; and so it is with the principles of the Gospel--you must begin with the first, and go on until you learn all the principles of exaltation. But it will be a great while after you have passed through the veil before you will have learned them. It is not all to be comprehended in this world; it will be a great work to learn our salvation and exaltation even beyond the grave. (TPJS, p. 348)
> The righteous may enjoy many blessings in mortality just as they will in heaven. One of the great promises made by the Lord, found in the Beatitudes, was--"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." (Matt. 5:8) The Lord did not specify that this event was restricted only in heaven. Clarification of this promise in our own dispensation came in a revelation to Joseph Smith in which it is revealed:
> ...inasmuch as you strip yourselves form jealousies and fears, and humble yourselves before me, for ye are not sufficiently humble, the veil shall be rent and you shall see me and know that I am--not with the carnal neither natural mind, but with the spiritual.
> For no man has seen God at any time in the flesh, except quickened by the Spirit of God. Neither can any natural man abide the presence of God, neither after the carnal mind. Ye are not able to abide the presence of God now, neither the ministering of angels; wherefore, continue in patience until ye are perfected.
> Let not your minds turn back; and when ye are worthy, in mine own due time, ye shall see and know that which was conferred upon you by the hands of my servant Joseph Smith, Jun. (D. & C. 67:10-14)
> Therefore, men, quickened by the spirit of God, can see God providing they have a "spiritual mind". This was a promise to men in mortality.

But the promise that the "veil" would be rent, was predicated on certain rules of conduct, which the Lord also revealed. He gave these five stepping stones leading to the fulfillment of this great promise:

> Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who <1> forsaketh his sins and <2> cometh unto me, and <3> calleth on my name, and <4> obeyeth my voice, and <5> keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am. (D. & C. 93:1)
> Joseph Smith was a prophet, just as ancient prophets who saw God; but he did not discourage others from striving to attain the same blessings for themselves. Said he:
> God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what He will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least Saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them! (TPJS, p. 149)

On another occasion the Prophet reinforced this idea by stating:

Fellow sojourners upon earth, it is your privilege to purify yourselves and come up to the same glory, and see for yourselves, and know for yourselves. Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (DHC 1:284)

The Prophet Joseph clearly pointed out the constant and diligent labor required by men to keep all the commandments that were necessary for obtaining these blessings:

...the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with Him. But we consider that this is a station to which no man ever arrived in a moment; he must have been instructed in the government and laws of that kingdom by proper degrees,his mind is capable in some measure of comprehending the propriety, justice, equality, and consistency of the same. (TPJS, p. 51)

And again:

Thus have no new commandment to give, but admonish elders and members to live by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, lest they come short of the glory that is reserved for the faithful. (TPJS, p. 306)

Any man today who proves faithful through this maze of spiritually dark obstacles, will deserve the greatest right to inherit all those promised blessings. The Lord confirms this by saying:
And if your eye be single to my glory, your whole bodies shall be filled with light, and there will be no darkness in you; and that body which is filled with light comprehendeth all things.
Therefore, sanctify yourselves that your minds become single to god, and the days will come that you shall see him; for he will unveil his face unto you, and it shall be in his own time, and in his own way, and according to his own will. (D. & C. 88:67-68)

And the Prophet Joseph added:

...but, trusting in that god who has said that these things are hid from the wise and prudent and revealed unto babes, I step forth into the field to tell you what the Lord is doing, and what you must do, to enjoy the smiles of your Savior in these last days. (TPJS, p. 14)

To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he was crucified for the sins of the world. (D .& C. 46:13)

The Prophet Joseph adds:

It is not wisdom that we should have all knowledge at once presented before us; but that we should have a little at a time; then we can comprehend it.

> The principle of knowledge is the principle of salvation. This principle can be comprehended by the faithful and diligent; and every one that does not obtain knowledge sufficient to be saved will be condemned. (TPJS, p. 297)
> Then on another occasion he said:

I want to ask this congregation, every man, woman and child, to answer the question in their own heart, what kind of a being God is? Ask yourselves; turn your thoughts into your hearts, and say if any of you have seen heard, or communed with him. This is a question that may occupy your attention for a long time. I again repeat the question--What kind of a being is God? Does any man or woman know? Have any of you seen him, heard him, or communed with him? Here is the question that will, peradventure, from this time henceforth occupy your attention. The scriptures inform us that "This is life eternal that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." If any man does not know God, and inquires what kind of a being he is,--if he will search diligently his own heart--if the declaration of Jesus and the apostles be true, he will realize that he has not eternal life; for there can be eternal life on no other principle. (TPJS, pp. 343-344)

The Lord has said,"this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. (John 17:3)

> ...no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and they to whom the Son will reveal himself; they shall see the father also. (Matt. 11:28, Insp. Ver.)
> Hence, if men do not receive this revelation, or knowledge, they may not be worthy of eternal life because of their ignorance.

Again, the Lord gave the parable of the bridegroom which pertained only to the children of His kingdom. Part of them came to meet the Savior and said, "Lord, Lord, open up unto us," but he rejected them by saying, "Ye Know me not." (Matt. 25:11, Insp. Ver.)

To "know" the Lord means one has proven worthy to receive this knowledge of God. The Prophet adds:

> Here, then, is eternal life--to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to God, the same as all Gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another, and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation to exaltation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting burnings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power. (TPJS, pp. 346-347)
> In our own dispensation the lord revealed to the Saints that "unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom, but unto the world it is not given to know them." (D. & C. 42:65) Also--
> The power and authority of the higher, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of > heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18-19)

> And therefore, he that will harden his heart, the same receiveth the lesser portion of the word; and he that will not harden his heart, to him is given the greater portion of the word, until it is given unto him to know the mysteries of God until he know them in full. And they that will harden their hearts, to them is given the lesser portion of the word until they know nothing concerning his mysteries; and then they are taken captive by the devil, and led by his will down to destruction. Now this is what is meant by the chains of hell. (Alma 12:10-11)

The Prophet promises:

> Having a knowledge of God, we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. (TPJS, p. 350)

Hence, those who add knowledge to their faith, and continue to learn the principles of truth, will finally gain eternal life with the full knowledge of God. The brother of Jared had gained this great principle of knowledge.

> ...because of the knowledge of this man he could not be kept from beholding within the veil; and he saw the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting.
> Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; AND HE DID MINISTER UNTO HIM. (Ether 3:19-20)

> There are a great many wise men and women too in our midst who are too wise to be taught; therefore they must die in their ignorance, and in the resurrection they will find their mistake. (TPJS, p. 309)

> I have tried for a number of years to get the minds of the Saints prepared to receive the things of God; but we frequently see some of them after suffering all they have for the work of God, will fly to pieces like glass as soon as anything comes that is contrary to their traditions: they cannot stand the fire at all. (TPJS, p. 331)

A man can do nothing for himself unless God direct him in the right way; and the Priesthood is for that purpose. (Joseph Smith, TPJS, p. 364)

David sinned and lost his Priesthood, as the Prophet explained:

> Although David was a king, he never did obtain the spirit and power of Elijah and the fulness of the Priesthood; and the Priesthood that he received, and the throne and kingdom of David is to be taken from him and given to another by the name of David in the last days, raised up out of his lineage. (TPJS, p. 339)

> Men may be called or even elected to offices in God's kingdom, but they can still transgress His laws enough to lose their Priesthood. The Lord said:

> Behold, there are many called, but few are chosen. And why are they not chosen? Because their hearts are set so much upon the things of this world, and aspire to the honors of men, that they do not learn this one lesson--That the rights of the Priesthood are inseparably connected with the powers of heaven, and that the powers of heaven cannot be controlled nor handled only upon the principles of righteousness. That they may be conferred upon us, it is true; but when we undertake to cover our sins, or to gratify our pride, our vain ambition, or to exercise control or dominion or compulsion upon the souls of the children of men, in any degree of unrighteousness, behold, the heavens withdraw themselves; the Spirit of the Lord is grieved; and when it is withdrawn, Amen to the Priesthood or the authority of that man. Behold, ere he is aware, he is left unto himself, to kick against the pricks, to persecute the saints, and to fight against God. We have learned by sad experience that it is the nature and disposition of almost all men, as soon as they get a little authority, as they suppose, they will immediately begin to exercise unrighteous dominion. (D. & C. 121:34-39)
> [Temple in Christ's time and no celestial marriage s/a etc.]

According to this 121st Section, then, let's summarize those sins which endanger a man's Priesthood:

1. Setting their hearts on the things of this world.
2. Aspiring to the honors of men.
3. Covering or justifying their own sins.
4. Gratifying or having pleasure in pride or vain ambition.
5. Using unrighteous compulsion over men.

When these occur, then the resulting conditions follow:

1. "The heavens withdraw themselves."
2. "The Spirit of the Lord is grieved."
3. "And amen to the priesthood or the authority of that man."
4. They will fight against the true saints, God, and His laws.
5. They will rule with unrighteous dominion.

Three Grand Orders of the Priesthood

There are "three grand orders" in the Priesthood, yet "all priesthood is Melchizedek, but thee are different portions or degrees of it." (TPJS, p. 180) From the highest to lowest, the sequence of these orders is listed by the Prophet as being (1) Melchizedek, (2) Patriarchal, and (3) Levitical or Aaronic. (See TPJS, pp. 322-23) Beginning with the lowest, the Prophet explains the power and authority of each of these Priesthood orders:

1. Levitical or Aaronic Order

The Levitical or Aaronic is a lesser or preparatory Priesthood.

> The spirit of Elias is to prepare the way for a greater revelation of God, which is the Priesthood of Elias, or the Priesthood that Aaron was ordained unto. and when God sends a man in to the world to prepare for a greater work, holding the keys of the power of Elias, it was called the doctrine of Elias, even from the early ages > of the world. * * *

> That person who holds the keys of Elias hath a preparatory work. (TPJS, pp. 335-36)
> John the Baptist was limited to preaching and baptizing, but Jesus and the Apostles came with a higher Priesthood calling and gave the "fire and the Holy Ghost."

2. Patriarchal Order

The Prophet says, "The 2nd Priesthood is Patriarchal authority." (TPJS, p. 323; see also Words of Joseph Smith, 245 & 247.) When the Prophet clarified that Abraham's endowment (Abraham Facsimile Number 2, Figs. 3 & 7) was greater than Aaron's and Levi's, he also said "that the Patriarchal Priesthood was not the same as the crowning ordinances of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood." (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 303)

This second order of Priesthood comes by patriarchal descent from father to son. The Prophet indicated that it comes by right of patriarchal lineage, thus descending "form father and mother," or birthright. It is bestowed by father to son by patriarchal descent, and comes by birthright in lineage by mother.

Although this power and authority of the Priesthood includes the right to the endowment and patriarchal marriage, it does not necessarily mean it contains the fulness of the Priesthood.

> Joseph Smith administered the first ordinances of the Patriarchal Priesthood on 4 May 1842 when he gave both the Aaronic and Melchizedek portions of the endowment to nine men in his store in Nauvoo. (See History of the Church, 5:1-2, or Teachings, p. 137.) By a year later, most of the nine received the ordinances of marriage for time and eternity. * * * But the higher ordinances that confer the fulness of the priesthood had not as yet been administered. However one month and a day after this 27 August 1843 discourse, Joseph and Emma received the anointing and ordination "of the highest and holiest order of the Priesthood". (Joseph Smith Diary, 28 September 1843, Church Archives) Hence by 27 August 1843, "Abraham's patriarchal power...<was> the greatest yet experienced in <the> church." (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 303)
> On 6 August 1843, Brigham Young said, "If any in the church <have> the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood, <I do> not know it. For any person to have the fullness of that priesthood, he must be a king and priest." * * * Brigham Young said of this third order of priesthood blessings, "Those who...come in here <the Nauvoo Temple> and have received their washing & anointing will <later, if faithful> be ordained Kings & Priests, and will then have received the fullness of the Priesthood, all that can be given on earth. For Brother Joseph said he had given us all that could be given to man on the earth." (Heber C. Kimball Journal, kept by Wm. Clayton, 26 Dec. 1854, Church Archives) This is the theological and historical context for the Prophet's comments on the three orders of temple blessings outlined in this extremely important discourse. (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 304)

3. Melchizedek Order

This order represents the highest of the three orders of Priesthood. "The poser of Elijah is sufficient to make our calling and election sure;. . ." (TPJS, p. 338) This Priesthood comes "without father, without mother, without descent...," Because he who has the fulness of this Priesthood order "holds the right from the eternal God, and not by descent from father and mother;..." (TPJS, p. 323; see also Words of Joseph Smith, p. 244.)

From Joseph Smith's Inspired Translation of the Bible, we read that the fulness of the Priesthood comes "not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God." (Gen. 14:28) Willard Richards wrote in the Joseph Smith Diary that is Priesthood is for those who are--

> ...called, elected and made were without father, etc.; a priesthood which holds the priesthood by right from the Eternal Gods--and not by descent from father and mother. (words of Joseph Smith, p 244)

And again, speaking of Hebrews 7:

> Paul is here treating of three different priesthoods, namely the priesthood of Aaron <Levitical>, Abraham <patriarchal>, and Melchizedek. Abraham's priesthood was of greater power than Levi's, and Melchizedek's was of greater power than that of Abraham. (Words of Joseph Smith, p.245-246)

The Prophet Joseph stated that, "those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God,..." (TPJS, p. 322) He further explained this Priesthood order as--

> That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but of King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & law of endless life to man, & no man can attain to the joint heirship with Jesus Christ without being administered to by one having the same power & authority of Melchisedec. (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 245)

In another instance, Joseph emphasized that the spirit of "Messiah is above the spirit and power of Elijah" (TPJS, p. 340), for--

> ... this greater priesthood administereth the gospel and holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God. For without this no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live. (D. & C. 84:19 & 22)

In conclusion then, the Prophet stated that "the spirit of Elias is first, Elijah second, and Messiah last." (TPJS, p. 340) This highest power and authority of Priesthood was the kingly Priesthood which Peter referred to as the "Royal Priesthood" (I Peter 2:9), confirmed by the King of Kings-the Messiah Himself.

Those with the highest Priesthood may enjoy the following powers and privileges:

Gospel Mysteries

>
> All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (DHC 5:424)
> The power and authority of the highest, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18-19)
> The object of every man should be to obtain the Priesthood and magnify his calling in that Priesthood until he proves himself worthy of the fulness of the ordinances of God's kingdom. Only then can he possess the power to have the heavens opened to him and commune with God the Father and His Son.

In our dispensation, the Lord has said: "every man might speak in the name of God that Lord, even the Savior of the world." (D. & C. 1:20) The prophet Jeremiah prophesied:

> Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jer. 31:31-34)
> The Lord stated further:
> ...I say unto you that mine eyes are upon you. I am in your midst and ye cannot see me; but the day soon cometh that ye shall see me, and know that I am; for the veil of darkness shall soon be rent, and he that is not purified shall not abide the day. Wherefore, gird up your loins and be prepared. (D. & C. 38:7-9)

KINGS AND QUEENS IN ISRAEL

I hear some of our elders saying, sometimes, that they are going to > do great things--to be rulers in the kingdom of God, kings and priests to the Most High, and are again to exalt thousands of other to thrones, principalities, and powers, in the eternal worlds. But we cannot get them out of their nests to travel a few miles here. If they cannot do this, how will they ever learn to go from world to world? (John Taylor, Gospel Kingdom, p. 371)

Jesus gave the "keys of the kingdom" to Peter (see Matt. 16:19), which were the keys of authority announced by John the Baptist. (see Matt. 3:2) When Jesus was resurrected and appeared to His apostles, they asked, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1:6) This was one of the prophetic events that would happen in the last days, which was a part of the "restitution of all things." (see Acts 3:19-21) When that event transpired, it was announced by the Lord through the Prophet Joseph Smith, when he said "the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (D. & C. 33:10; 39:19), and acknowledged that "the keys of the kingdom have again been committed unto man on earth." (D. & C. 65:1-2; 81:1-2) When the final expansion of these keys and powers cover the earth, then will the prophecy of John the Revelator be fulfilled, wherein the "kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." (Rev.11:15)

Jesus gave the "keys of the kingdom" to Peter (see Matt. 16:19). The Lord said in our dispensation, "the keys of the kingdom have again been committed unto man on earth." (D. & C. 65:1-2; 81:1-2) The final expansion of these keys and powers cover the all of the House of the Lord not just the House of Israel but the Gentiles and the House of Ham. The Lord said the, "kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." (Rev.11:15)

Joseph said:

> But there must be a holy place prepared for that purpose,...that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God, having nothing to do with temporal things, but their whole time will be taken up with things pertaining to the house of God. (DHC 6:319)
> And again:
> There was a proclamation made during the time that the foundation of the Temple was laid to that effect, and there are provisions made until the work is completed, so that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God,... (TPJS, p. 362)
> And Joseph taught that--
> ... but one king and priest could be anointed at one meeting in a private room dedicated by permission to anoint in, and but one person could be anointed in a day, but in the Temple several could be anointed in a day. (Journal History, Dec. 18, 1857)
> Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their > endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
Joseph confirmed this by saying:

Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)

And again--

Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)

Brigham Young added:

> For any person to have the fulness of that Priesthood, he must be a king and a priest. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, Aug. 6, 1843)
> William Smith, brother to the Prophet Joseph, testified of his own ordination and also the ordination of others:
> I was present with Joseph at the last council that was held previous to the Twelve and others going on their electioneering campaign to the east and various other parts of the United States; it was at this time that I received my initiation into the highest priesthood lodge, was washed and anointed, and clad with the sacerdotal robe of pure white, and ordained to be priest and king, and invested with all the power that any man on earth ever did possess; power entitling me to preach the gospel, to bind up the Kingdom of God on earth, among all nations, and people of every tongue. In consequence of these endowments and ordination received from under the hands of Joseph, I hold as much power and as many keys to seal and bind on earth, as can possibly belong to Brigham Young; the power was conferred equally on all the Twelve, and not therefore bestowed on one. (William Smith's letter to the Warsaw Signal, Jan. 7, 1846)
> Joseph Smith bestowed these ordinations on others, as George Miller and William Smith testified:
> Many of the Apostles and Elders having returned from England, Joseph washed and anointed as Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel, the following named persons, as he said was commanded of God, viz: James Adams (of Springfield), William Law, William Marks, Willard Richards, Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Newel K. Whitney, Hyrum Smith, and myself; and conferred on us Patriarchal Priesthood. This took place on the 5th and 6th of May, 1842. (Journal of George Miller, "De Tal Palo Tal Astilla," p. 120-121)

This was also confirmed by Dan Jones:

Dan Jones heard Wilson Law...declare that while he (Mr. Smith) was once preaching from Daniel 2nd chapter, 44th verse, <he> said that the kingdom referred to was already set up, and that he was the king over it. (DHC 6:568-569)

Further evidence as to Joseph Smith's being anointed a king was given by Parley P. Pratt:

This Priesthood, including that of the Aaronic, holds the keys of revelation of the oracles of God to man upon the earth; the power and right to give laws and commandments to individuals, churches, rulers, nations and the world; to appoint, ordain, and establish constitutions and kingdoms; to anoint kings, presidents, governors or judges, and to ordain or anoint them to their several holy callings, also to instruct, warn, or reprove them by the word of the Lord. (Parley P. Pratt, Key to Theology, 1885, p. 66)

It was in this context that a man could become king of kings and lord of lords, as explained by Brigham Young:

We understand that we are to be made kings and priests unto God; now if I be made the king and lawgiver to my family, and if I have many sons, I shall become the father of many fathers, for they will have sons, and their sons will have sons, and so on, form generation to generation, and, in this way, I may become the father of many fathers, or the king of many kings. This will constitute every man a prince, king, lord, or whatever the Father sees fit to confer upon us.
In this way we can become king of kings, and lord of lords, or father of fathers, or prince of princes, and this is the only course, for another man is not going to raise up a kingdom for you. (JD 3:266)

John Taylor also revealed:

You have been ordained kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to your Lord; you have been put in possession of principles that all the kings, potentates, and power upon the earth are entirely ignorant of; they do not understand it; but you have received this form the hands of God. (JD 5:189)

Alvin R. Dyer describes the endowment and the promises connected therewith:

I call your attention now to the washing and anointing that you received in the Temple.... When you went into the washing and anointing room, where you were washed and anointed with water and oil, you were given a new name, and you were promised that some day you would be called up to be a king and priest, or a queen and priestess. (From speech "For What Propose", March 18, 1961)

Remember these things; call upon the Lord while He is near, and seek Him while He may be found, is the exhortation of your unworthy servant. (Joseph Smith, TPJS, p. 18)

Joseph Smith taught:

It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with him face to face as one man converses with another. (T.P.J.S., p. 235)

And Brigham Young said:

I wish that every man would live so that he could have communion with angels--so that Jesus would come to visit him. I wish I could see this people in such a position; but there is too much sin in our midst: our traditions cling to us so strongly, that we cannot yet break through into that liberty; but we will see the day, if faithful, in which we can converse with angels. There are persons in this congregation that will converse with angels just as freely as we converse with each other. (J.D. 5:258)

And Enoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters: (Genesis 5:22)

Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God. (Genesis 6:9)

And the LORD appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the LORD, who appeared unto him. (Genesis 12:7)

And the LORD appeared unto him [Isaac] the same night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's sake. (Genesis 26:24)

And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. (Genesis 32:30)

Then went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel: (Exodus 24:9)

The LORD appeared to Solomon the second time, as he had appeared unto him at Gibeon. (1 Kings 9:2)

In the year that king Uzziah died I [Isaiah] saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple. ***

Then said I, Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the LORD of hosts. (Isaiah 6:1, 5)

The Brother of Jared:

And because of the knowledge of this man <the brother of Jared> he could not be kept from beholding within the veil; and he saw the finger of Jesus, which, when he saw, he fell with fear; for he knew that it was the finger of the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting. Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; and he did minister unto him. (Ether 3:19–20)

Nephi

And now I, Nephi, write more of the words of Isaiah, for my soul delighteth in his words. For I will liken his words unto my people, and I will send them forth unto all my children, for he verily saw my Redeemer, even as I have seen him. (2 Nephi 11:2)

Mormon

And I, <Mormon> being fifteen years of age and being somewhat of a sober mind, therefore I was visited of the Lord, and tasted and knew of the goodness of Jesus. (Mormon 1:15)

Moroni

And then shall ye know that I <Moroni> have seen Jesus, and that he hath talked with me face to face, and that he told me in plain humility, even as a man telleth another in mine own language, concerning these things; (Ether 12:39)

Melvin J. Ballard:

Away on the Fort Peek Reservation where I was doing missionary work with some of our brethren laboring among the Indians, seeking the Lord for light to decide certain matters pertaining to our work there, and receiving a witness from Him that we were doing things according to His will, I found myself one evening in the dreams of the night in that sacred building, the temple. After a season of prayer and rejoicing I was informed that I should have the privilege of entering into one of those rooms, to meet a glorious Personage, and, as I entered the door, I saw, seated on a raised platform, the most glorious Being my eyes have ever beheld or that I ever conceived existed in all the eternal worlds. As I approached to be introduced, he arose and stepped towards me with extended arms, and he smiled as he softly spoke my name. If I shall live to be a million years old, I shall never forget that smile. He took me into his arms and kissed me, pressed me to his bosom, and blessed me, until the marrow of my bones seemed to melt! When he had finished, I fell at his feet, and, as I bathed them with my tears and kisses, I saw the prints of the nails in the feet of the Redeemer of the world. The feeling that I had in the presence of Him who hath all things in His hands, to have His love, His affection, and His blessing was such that if I ever can receive that which I had but a foretaste, I would give all that I am, and that I ever hope to be, to feel what I then felt! (Sermons and Missionary Services of Melvin Joseph Ballard, by Bryant S. Hinckley, p. 156; also recorded in his diary for May 14, 1917)

[Dave: the thought just popped into my mind which should be transferee to the section on second anointings. Some people begin to think that we earn our blessings by our talents our service, being a bishop, stake president, temple president, working all day gives us special rights in the sight of the Father. Refer to flower and Solomon. Refer to the parable of the men working for a penny, all receive the same. Not because of our talents but because of our heirship.
The only requirements the Lord puts on any blessing is that we come to him with a pure heart and broken spirit and that we act in the talents or purposes which he has sent us down here for. Expand]

> I <Orson Whitney> thought I was in the garden of Gethsemane, a witness of the Savior's agony, I seemed to be standing behind a tree in the foreground of the picture, from which point I could see without being seen. The Savior, with the Apostles Peter, James and John, entered the garden through a little wicket gate at my right, where he stationed them in a group, telling them to pray. He then passed over to my left, but still in front of me, where he knelt and prayed also. His face, which was towards me, streamed with tears, as he besought the Father to let the cup pass, and added, "not my will but thine be done." Having finished his prayer, he arose and crossed to where the Apostles were kneeling fast asleep. He shook them gently; they awoke and he reproved them for their apathy. Again he bade them pray, and again crossed to his place and prayed, returning as before to find them sleeping. This happened three times, until I was perfectly familiar with his face, form, and movements.
> He was much taller than ordinary men, and though meek, far more dignified than any being I had ever beheld; and he wore a look of ineffable tenderness and compassion, even while reproving His disciples. My heart went out to him as never before to anybody or anything; I loved him with all my soul. I wept at seeing him weep, and felt for him the deepest sympathy.
> Then all of a sudden the circumstances changed, though the scene remained the same. Instead of before the crucifixion, it was after. The Savior and the three Apostles, whom he had beckoned to him, now stood in a group at the left, and were about to take their departure, ascending into heaven. I could endure it no longer, but rushed out from behind the tree, fell at his feet, clasped him around the knees and begged him to take me also. With a look of infinite tenderness, as of a father or an elder brother, he stooped, lifted me up and embraced me, saying as he did so in the kindest and gentlest manner possible, while slowly shaking his head and sweetly smiling, "No, my son, these can go with me; for they have finished their work; but you must stay and finish yours!" Still I clung to him and the contact was so real that I felt the warmth of his bosom as I rested upon it. Gazing up into his face, I once more besought him, "Well promise me that I will come to you at the last." Again he smiled sweetly, and there was a look as if he would have gladly granted my request had it been wise to do so. He then said, "That will depend entirely upon yourself."

I awoke with a sob, and it was morning. This dream made a wonderful impression upon me, paving the way to my thorough conversion, which soon followed. Among the things it taught me was not to sleep at my post, and to regard first the duties of my mission, and not to allow anything to interfere with them. (Jensen's Biographical Encyclopedia 1:660-661)

The following accounts are records of men in our dispensation who experienced the actual presence of Jesus Christ. Beginning with Joseph Smith--

Joseph Smith

It  no sooner appeared than I found myself delivered from the enemy which held me bound. When the light rested upon me I saw two Personages, whose brightness and glory defy all description, standing above me in the air. One of them spake unto me, calling me by name and said, pointing to the other--This is My Beloved Son. Hear Him! (PoGP:J Smith-History 1:17)

At the first meeting of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in a little log cabin, the Lord was there and Joseph Smith was a witness to it. From the testimony of Mary Lightner came this account:

After prayer and singing, Joseph began talking. He began very solemnly and very earnestly. Suddenly his countenance changed, and he stood mute. He seemed almost transfixed. He looked ahead--he was looking ahead and his face outshone the candle which was on the shelf just behind him. I thought I could almost see his cheekbones. He looked as though a searchlight was inside his face. I never saw anything like it on earth. I could not take my eyes away from him. I shall remember him as he looked then as long as I live. After a short time he looked at us very solemnly as if to pierce each heart, and then said, "Brothers and Sisters, do you know who has been in your midst this night?" One of the Smith family said, "An angel of the Lord?" Joseph did not answer. Martin Harris was seated at the Prophet's feet on a box; he slid to his knees, clasped his arms around the Prophet's knees and said, "I know--it was our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." Joseph put his hand on Martin Harris' head and answered, "Martin, God revealed that to you. Brothers and sisters, the Savior has been in our midst this night. I want you to remember it. He cast a veil over your eyes, for you could not endure to look upon him. You must be fed milk and not meat. I want you to remember this if it were the last thing that escaped my lips. He has given you all to me and commanded me to seal you up unto eternal life, that where he is you may be also, and if you are tempted of Satan, say, "Get thee behind me, Satan; my salvation is secure." (Journals and Memoirs of Mary Elizabeth Rollins Lightner, pp, 2-3)

Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, and Others

After having performed this service to my brethren, I retired to the pulpit, the veils being dropped, and bowed myself, with Oliver Cowdery, in solemn and silent prayer. After rising from prayer, the following vision was opened to both of us--

"The veil was taken from our minds, and the eyes of our understanding were opened.
We saw the Lord standing upon the breastwork of the pulpit, before us, and under His feet was a paved work of pure gold in color like amber. His eyes were as a flame of fire, the hair of His head was white like the pure snow, His countenance shone above the brightness of the sun and His voice was as the sound of the rushing of great waters, even the voice of Jehovah, saying-- for behold, I have accepted this house, and my name shall be here, and I will manifest myself to my people in mercy in this House.
Yea, I will appear unto my servants, and speak unto them with mine own voice, if my people will keep my commandments, and do not pollute this holy house." (D.H.C. 2:435)

The brethren continued exhorting, prophesying, and speaking in tongues until five o"clock in the morning. The Savior made His appearance to some, while angels ministered to others, and it was a Pentecost and an endowment indeed, long to be remembered. (March 30, 1836, D.H.C. 2:432-433)

Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon

Of whom we bear record; and the record which we bear is the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ, who is the Son, whom we saw and with whom we conversed in the heavenly vision. ***
And we beheld the glory of the Son, on the right hand of the Father, and received of his fulness; And saw the holy angels, and them who are sanctified before his throne, worshiping God, and the Lamb, who worship him forever and ever. And now, after the many testimonies which have been given of him, this is the testimony, last of all, which we give of him: That he lives! For we saw him, even on the right hand of God; and we heard the voice bearing record that he is the Only Begotten of the Father.(D. & C. 76:14, 20-23)

Newel Knight

Much exhortation and instruction was given, and the Holy Ghost was poured out upon us in a miraculous manner--many of our number prophesied, whilst others had the heavens opened to their view, and were so overcome that we had to lay them on beds or other convenient places: among the rest was Brother Newel Knight, who had to be placed on a bed, being unable to help himself. By his own account of the transaction, he could not understand why we should lay him on the bed, as he felt no sense of weakness. He felt his heart filled with love, with glory, and pleasure unspeakable, and could discern all that was going on in the room; when all of a sudden a vision of the future burst upon him. He saw there represented the great work which through my <Joseph Smith> instrumentality was yet to be accomplished. He saw heavens opened, and beheld the Lord Jesus Christ, seated at the right hand of the majesty on high, and had it made plain to his understanding that the time would come when he would be admitted into His presence to enjoy His society for ever and ever. (D.H. C. 1:84-85)

John Taylor

When President Taylor came out of his room about eight o'clock on the morning of September 27, 1886, we could scarcely look at him on account of the brightness of his personage.
He stated, "Brethren, I have had a very pleasant conversation with Brother Joseph." I said, "Boss, who is the man that was there until midnight?" He asked, "What do you know about it, Loren?" I told him all about my experience. He said, "Brother Lorin, that was your Lord." (Statement of Lorin C. Wooley, Sept. 22, 1929)

Lorenzo Snow

One evening when I was visiting Grandpa Snow in his room in the Salt Lake Temple, I remained until the doorkeepers had gone and the night watchman had not yet come in, so Grandpa said he would take me to the main, front entrance and let me out that way. He got his bunch of keys from his dresser.
After we left his room and while we were still in the large corridor, leading into the celestial room, I was walking several steps ahead of Grandpa when he stopped me, saying: "Wait a moment, Alice. I want to tell you something. It was right here that the Lord Jesus appeared to me at the time of the death of President woodruff. He instructed me to go right ahead and reorganize the First Presidency of the Church at once and not wait as had been done after the death of the previous presidents, and that I was to succeed President Woodruff."
Then Grandpa came a step nearer and held out his left hand and said: "He stood right here, about three feet above the floor. It looked as though he stood on a plate of solid gold."
Grandpa told me what a glorious personage the Savior is and described his hands, feet, countenance, and beautiful white robes, all of which were of such a glory of whiteness and brightness that he could hardly gaze upon Him.
Then Grandpa came another step nearer me and put his right hand on my head and said: "Now granddaughter, I want you to remember that this is the testimony of your grandfather, that he told you with his own lips that he actually saw the Savior here in the temple and talked with Him Face to face.
Then we went on and Grandpa led me out of the main, front door of the temple. (Des. News, April 2, 1938)

John W. Taylor

I know our Savior lives because I have seen Him Face to face!
(Family Kingdom, Sam Taylor, p. 121)

When the time came for him <John W. Taylor> to die, he knew his life and mission in mortality was nearly finished. He asked his wife, ellen, to wash his face, comb his hair, smooth his mustache--now he was ready.
"John..." (spoke Ellen).
"Hush," he whispered.
He needn't have spoken, for the change in his face had taken her voice away. The gray and wasted countenance was transformed with the light of the Spirit, as it had been in the old days upon the rostrum. Ellen had heard so many people tell of times when John's countenance came alight, and now at last the wife who had known him only during the years of the shadow saw this brilliance and felt the awesome warmth of the Spirit emanating from him.

"Hush," he whispered. "The Savior is passing."
And the light died away as he followed Him. (Ibid., pp. 298-299)

George Q. Cannon

I rejoiced exceedingly in the testimonies that have been borne during this conference. I know that this is the work of God. I know that God lives. I know that Jesus lives; for I have seen him! I know that this is the Church of God, and that It is founded on Jesus Christ, our Redeemer. I testify to you of these things as one that KNOWS--as one of the Apostles of the Lord that He lives and that He will live, and will come to reign on the earth, to sway an undisputed sceptre. (The Deseret Weekly, Vo. LII, No. 20, Oct. 31, 1896, p. 610)
[Dave: Bare my witness as an Apostle, not of the Church but as an Apostle or witness of Jesus Christ see Mormon Doctrine; Apostle...]

L. John Nuttal

President George Q. Cannon and I have seen the Savior Jesus Christ and conversed with Him face to face and He has talked with me. (L. John Nuttal Diary, April 20, 1893)
Alexander Neibaur

Shortly before his (Alexander Neibar's) death, his son said to him: "Father, you have been telling us of your long and hard experience and we have listened with intense affection and interest. But let me ask you, is it worth it all? Wouldn't you have been better off if you had remained with you people? Is the Gospel worth all this sacrifice?"
The glow of testimony and of truth lit up the torches in the dimming eyes of that ancient Hebrew prophet and poet and he lifted up his voice in firm and lofty assurance as he said:
"Yes, yes! and more! I have seen my Savior! I have seen the prints in His hands. I know that Jesus is the Son of God. I know that this work is true, and that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God. I would suffer it all and more, far more than I have suffered for that knowledge, even to the laying down of my body on the plains for the wolves to devour!" (From Judaism to Americanism, by Wenonal Shirley; see also J.D. 11:279)
[Dave: bear my testimony...D&C 14: this is what the lord want's is for a standing witness that means one who is alive still. pretty scary. I'll have to think this over and pray for the proper approach on my experiences as per D&C 14 and what the Father tells me through the Holy Ghost that should be said... Amen.]

Brigham H. Roberts

"Make your calling and election sure. This is more important than plural marriage or any other principle of the Gospel--make your calling and election sure! See to it that you KNOW the Savior while in this life. You must know Jesus Christ, perorally, while in this probation."
Carl Jentzsch, a friend of John and Lorin Wolley, reported the above and also mentioned that at one time he had a discussion with B. H. Roberts, who was then head of the Quorum of the Seventy in the Church. He says:

...I spoke to, or had a long conversation for about four hours with, B. H. Roberts. He was then head of the Quorum of the Seventy in the Church. For two or three hours he skirted around things and didn't come quite to the point until finally he said, "Well, I am very discouraged with the Church, the officials and the way things are going, and they know it because I have told them. But I want to say this to you--I have gone into Certerville Canyon, and I've fasted many days by a little stream of water." Now I know what he means, because I've been lost in Centerville Canyon, in the middle of the night. And the brush at the time was very thick, and the only way to get up there at the time was to find deer trails.
Brother roberts went on, "After many days, when I was so discouraged and felt like I just couldn't go another day, I started out of that canyon. The Savior appeared to me, and He laid His hands upon my head, and he said, 'Brother Roberts, thou shalt have a part and a lot in my kingdom.'"
So, I just want to witness these things to you because it is the truth. He (B. H. Roberts) said, "Every man in this Church who does not receive this confirmation, has not obtained anything in this kingdom whatsoever: he must obtain this. It is one of the most necessary things in the whole Gospel of Jesus Christ!"
(Reminiscences of John W. Woolley and Lorin C. Woolley, Vol. 1, Rhea Knuz, p. 6)

John W. Woolley

I <Harold Allred> want to mention that Ianthus W. Barlow went with us that day to visit with this pioneer <John W. Woolley>, whom he knew well. the most outstanding thing John told us was this: "Brethren, I have shaken hands with my Savior. It was here in this room." That room was in John W. Woolley's home where the monumental meetings of September 27, 1886, took place. (Statement by Harold Allred, Dec. 1972, as recorded in Vol. 4, p. 1, of Reminiscences of John and Lorin Woolley, Rhea Knuz)

Lorin C. Woolley

March 31, 1930. About 4 p.m. met my dear friend and brother Lorin C. woolley on the street. He had been to see me and finding me out of the office had left. As I was driving in my car I saw him and felt impressed to stop. We repaired to the office, and he, under the influence of the Spirit of the Lord, told me many wonderful things, some of which I record here: He had met the Savior, Brigham Young and John Taylor, since the death of the two latter, also Joseph Smith, and had heard the voice of his father since his death. Joseph Smith and John Taylor had visited him at his father's home before his father's death and after he had been "handled" by the Church, and he was comforted and instructed to "carry on". He has a special mission. (Joseph Musser Journal, p. 55)

* * * * *

These were some of the experiences and testimonies of "the elect". This was the fulfillment of a promise by the Lord, when He declared that--

he with me. (Revelation 3:20) * [See also President Kimball's talk on D&C 93]

He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him...And we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. (John 14:21, 23)

...the scriptures shall be given, even as they are in mine own bosom, to the salvation of mine own elect; for they will hear my voice, and shall see me, and shall not be asleep, and shall abide the day of my coming;... [for they shall be purified, even as I am pure.] (D. & C. 35:20-21)

President Heber J. Grant understood clearly the reasons why so many men never experience the fulfillment of this promise:

If we keep the commandments of God, He will love us, and the Savior will manifest Himself unto us. If we fail to keep the commandments of God, there is no promise made to us....(Gospel Standards, pp. 36-37;

Joseph Fielding Smith also added more to this explanation by saying:

So being ordained an elder, or a high priest, or an apostle, or even president of the Church, is not the thing that brings the exaltation, but obedience to the laws and the ordinances and the covenants required of those who desire to become members of the Chruch of the Firstborn as these are administered in the House of the Lord. To become a member of the Church of the Firstborn, as I understand it, is to become one of the inner circle. We are all members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by being baptized and confirmed, and there are many who seem to be content to remain such without obtaining the privileges of exaltation. the Lord has made it possible for us to become members of the Church of the Firstborn by receiving the blessings of the House of the Lord, and "overcoming all things." Thus we become heirs, "priests and kings, who have received a fulness, and of his glory," who shall "dwell in the presence of God and His Christ forever and ever," with full exaltation. (Take Heed to Yourselves, see pp. 112-114.)

Joseph Fielding Smith commented:

What is the difference, if there is a difference, between the Church of the Firstborn and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, or of any day saints? Well, the members of the Church of the Firstborn are members of the Chruch of Jesus Christ, but not all those who are members of the Church of Jesus Christ become members of the Church of the Firstborn. (Seek Ye Earnestly, J. F. Smith, p. 63)

Joseph Fielding Smith probably wrote more on this subject that did any other present-day leader. in his book The Way to Perfection, he wrote:

Each person baptized into the Church is under obligation to keep the commandments of the Lord. He is under covenant, for baptism in a "new and an everlasting covenant." (D. & C. 22:1) When he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him, then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the "Church of the Firstborn". Into his hands "the Father has given all things." He will be a priest and a king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of His glory. (Way to Perfection, p. 208)

Thus we see that those who receive the "higher" order of ordinances, and become ordained kings and queens, can become members of the Church of the Firstborn.

Elder Bruce R. McConkie also acknowledged this when he wrote:

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who so devote themselves to righteousness that they receive the higher ordinances of exaltation become members of the Church of the Firstborn. Baptism is the gate to the Church itself, but celestial marriage is the gate to membership in the Church of the Firstborn, the inner circle of faithful saints who are heirs of exaltation and the fulness of the Father's kingdom.
The Church of the Firstborn is made up of the sons of God, those who have been adopted into the family of the Lord, those who are destined to be joint-heirs with Christ in receiving all that the Father hath. "If you keep my commandments you shall receive of his fulness, and be glorified in me as I am in the Father;... And all those who are begotten through me are partakers of the glory of the same, and are the church of the Firstborn." (Mormon Doctrine, p. 131)

Joseph Smith said:

Behold, it is my will, that all they who call on my name, and worship me according to mine everlasting gospel, should gather together, and stand in holy places; And prepare for the revelation which is to come, when the veil of the covering of my temple, in my tabernacle, which hideth the earth, shall be taken off, and all flesh shall see me together.
And every corruptible thing, both of man, or of the beasts of the field, or of the fowls of the heavens, or of the fish of the sea, that dwells upon all the face of the earth, shall be consumed; And also that of element shall melt with fervent heat; and all things shall become new, that my knowledge and glory may dwell upon all the earth.
And in that day the enmity of man, and the enmity of beasts, yea, the enmity of all flesh, shall cease from before my face.
And in that day whatsoever any man shall ask, it shall be given unto him. And in that day Satan shall not have power to tempt any man.
And there shall be no sorrow because there is no death. In that day an infant shall not die until he is old; and his life shall be as the age of a tree; And when he dies he shall not sleep, that is to say in the earth, but shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye, and shall be caught up, and his rest shall be glorious. [Shall have all ordinances. Dave]
Yea, verily I say unto you, in that day when the Lord shall come, he shall reveal all things-- Things which have passed, and hidden things which no man knew, things of the earth, by which it was made, and the purpose and the end thereof--Things most precious, things that are above, and things that are beneath, things that are in the earth, and upon the earth, and in heaven. (D. & C. 101:22-34; see also 63:47-54.)

[He that is faithful and endureth shall overcome the world.
He that sendeth up treasures unto the land of Zion shall receive an inheritance in this world, and his works shall follow him, and also a reward in the world to come. Yea, and blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, from henceforth, when the Lord shall come, and old things shall pass away, and all things become new, they shall rise from the dead and shall not die after, and shall receive an inheritance before the Lord, in the holy city. And he that liveth when the Lord shall come, and hath kept the faith, blessed is he; nevertheless, it is appointed to him to die at the age of man. Wherefore, children shall grow up until they become old; old men shall die; but they shall not sleep in the dust, but they shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye. Wherefore, for this cause preached the apostles unto the world the resurrection of the dead. These things are the things that ye must look for; and, speaking after the manner of the Lord, they are now nigh at hand, and in a time to come, even in the day of the coming of the Son of Man. And until that hour there will be foolish virgins among the wise; and at that hour cometh an entire separation of the righteous and the wicked; and in that day will I send mine angels to pluck out the wicked and cast them into unquenchable fire.
(D&C: Section 63:47-54)]

Pratt said:

Do we not expect that the Lord will, by and by, come and visit us and stay a little while, about a thousand years? Yes, and then we shall be made glad with the joy of the countenance of our Lord. He will be among us, and will be our King, and he will reign as a King of kings and Lord of lords. He will have a throne in Zion, and another in the Temple at Jerusalem, and he will have with him the twelve disciples who were with him during his ministry at Jerusalem; and they will eat and drink with him at his table; and all the people of this globe who are counted worthy to be called Zion, the pure in heart, will be made glad by the countenance of their Lord for a thousand years, during which the earth will rest. (O. Pratt, J.D. 17:332)

Brigham Young:

When I get a revelation that some of my progenitors lived and died without the blessings of the Gospel, or even hearing it preached, but were as honest as I am as upright as I am, or as any man or woman could be upon the earth; as righteous, so far as they knew how, as any Apostle or Prophet that ever lived, I will go and be baptized, confirmed, washed, and anointed, and go through all the ordinances and endowments [plural, first anointing for 1st endowment and second anointing for second endowment] for them, that their way may be opened to the celestial kingdom.
As I have frequently told you, that is the work of the Millennium. It is the work that has to be performed by the seed of Abraham, the chosen seed, the royal seed, the blessed of the Lord, those the Lord made covenants with. They will step forth, and save every son and daughter of Adam who will receive salvation here on the earth; and all the spirits in the spirit world will be preached to, conversed with, and the principles of salvation carried to them, that they may have the privilege of receiving the Gospel; and they will have plenty of children here on the earth to officiate for them in those ordinances of the gospel that pertain to the flesh. THE NEW AND EVERLASTING COVENANT OF MARRIAGE

It is sealed unto them (husband and wife, jointly or not at all) by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power and the keys of this priesthood;

1. It is sealed:

The Lord told Peter, I give you the power that whatsoever you shall bind [seal] on earth shall be sealed in heaven... This is indeed a literal sealing, something is to be sealed which cannot be broken, so special, so joyus, so inexpressible, so glorious, that the blessings which are contained in the "New and Everlasting Covant of Marriage and sealed upon us, fulfill the measure greatest of all expectations which mankind can conceive unto the fulness of Father which He has prepared to bestow upon us from before the foundations of the world and it was unto this virtue that we were born into this world.....

2.It is sealed unto them:

...the highest ordiances in the house of the Lord they receive together and equally, or not at all.

I could not possibly not possibly express the depth and the intensity of love and gratitude that I feel toward my wife, the mother of our children.

Without her, I could not have the highest and most endering blessings of this "priesthood after the holiest order of God" (D&C 84:18), this "holy priesthood after the order of the son of God" (D&C 107:3). For, "in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage]; And if he does not, he cannot obtain it." (D&C 131:1-4). (A Tribute to Women; Priesthood Restoration Fireside; Elder Boyd K. Packer; May 7, 1989)

They are one, the man receives unto himself that part which he by himself is not, and the woman receives unto herself that part which she is not. Thus the blessings are given to one entity which can creat offspring together or not at all.

When there is a devorce this is why they are not unsealed because they would lose all the blessings which are sealed upon them jointly. Therefore, they remain sealed until they are given to another as King Davids wifes were so that they can enjoy all the blessings which were sealed upon them and their posterity. These blessings are sealed upon them and should remain upon them forever. Therefore until they are given leagal and lawfully to another they retain these sealings until they can be unsealed and sealed to another with the same blessings.

3. The Holy Spirit of Promise:

Bible Dictionary p. 601-602
Abraham:
Abraham is always regared in the O.T. as founder of the covenant race, which is personified int eh house of Israel. He is the "father of the faithful." ...We also learn from latter-day revelation that because of Abraham's faithfulness he is now exalted and sits upon a throne in eternity (D&C 132:29, 37).

Abraham, Covenant of.

Abraham [and Sarah] first received the gospel by baptism (which is the covenant of salvation). Then he had conferred upon him the higher priesthood, and he entered into celestial marriage (which is the covenant [and seal by the priesthood and by the Holy Ghost] of exaltation) [according to our faithfulness], gaining assurance thereby that he [and his wives jointly] would have eternal increase. Finally he received a promise that all of these blessings would be offered to all of his mortal posterity [including the crowning ordiance of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage that of being anointed and sealed kings and queens, priests and priestesses to the most God, to rule and reighn in the house of Israel forever. (D&C 132:29-50; Abr. 2:6-11). (Abraham, Covenant of.; Bible Dictionary p. 602)
...This covenant was renewed with Isaac (Gen. 24:60; 26:1-4, 24) and again with Jacob. (Gen. 28; 35:9-13; 48:3-4.) Those portions of it which pertain to personal exaltation and eternal increase are renewed with each member who enters to order of celestial marriage; through that order the participating parties become inheritors of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. (D & C 132; Rom. 9:4; Gal. 3; 4.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 13)

Adam-God Theory:
All exalted beings become joint heirs with Christ and inherit the fulness of the Father's kingdom. Having entered in at the gate of celestial marriage, and having pressed forward in righteousness, overcoming all things, they pass by the angels and the gods "to their exaltation and glory in all things. ...Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) Of all these Adam is the chief, presiding (under Christ and the Father) in the patrarchal order over all the rest. There is no mystery about this doctrine except that which persons ignorant of the great principles of exaltation and unfriendly to the cause of righteousness have attempted to make. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 19) [This is to help explain exaltation as the picture of orson hyde drew, also each one of us falls inder this chart. Also, this is important to show that the patarchal order is sealed upon us in the New and everlasting covenant of marriage to fall in this order.]

Adoption:

Gospel Mysteries

...Those who magnify their callings in the Melchizedek Priesthood are promised that they will be "sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies. They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed to Abraham." (D. & C. 84:33-34.)
Indeed, the faithful are adopted into the family of Christ; they become "the children of Christ, his sons, and his daughters"; they are "spirituall begotten,: for their "hearts are changed through faith on his name," thus being "born of him," becoming "his sons and his daughters. (Mosiah 5:7.) Paul explained the doctrine of adoption by saying, "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God," because they receive "the Spirit of adoption," being or becoming Israelites, "to whom pertaineth the adoption." (Rom. 8:14-24; 9:4; Gal. 4:5; Eph. 1:5.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 23)

Fathfulness:
Full of faith...

Anointed One.
Jesus is spoken of as the Christ and the Messiah, which means he is the one anointed of the Father to be his personal representative in all things pertaining to the salvation of mankind. The English word Christ is from a Greek word meaning Anointed, and is the equivalent of Messiah, which is from a Hebrew and Aramaic term meaning Anointed. See Ps. 2:2; Isa. 61:1-3; Luke 4:16-32; Acts 4:23-30; 10:38. (Bible Dictionary, p. 609)

D&C 132:23-24
But if ye receive me in the world, then shall ye know me, and shall receive your exaltation; that where I am ye shall be also.
This is eternal lives-to know theonly wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent. I am he. Receive ye, therefore, my law.

Apostles: [Apostles of God to our eternal families as per blessing in D&C 132: 23-24]

An apostle is a special witness of the name of Christ who is sent to teach the principles of salvation to others. [The mission of the holy Ghost is God the Testator He is the Chief Apostle of the Lord Jesus Christ and the Father, because this member of the GodHead dwell in the faithful baptized members of the chruch they also are Testators and Apostles of the Lamb and the Father particulary to theri families of eternity] He is one who knows ot the divinity of the Savior by personal revelation and who is appointed to bear testimony to the world to what the Lord has revealed to him. Every elder in the Church is or should be an apostle; [because he should be in the celestial marrage and should bear to his own world as adam, noah and abraham did to teach his children to know the lord even as Abraham taught Isaac and Isaac taught Jacob to know the Lord.....Mothers quotation.] that is, as a minister of the Lord and as a recipient of personal revelation from the Holy Ghost, every elder has the call to bear witness of the truth on all proper occasions. Indeed, every member of the Chruch should have apostolic insight and revelation, and is under obligation to raise the warning voice (D. & C. 88:81; Mosiah 18:9.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 46-47)
This is not over the church but one sent forth to reveal the light and truth to the eternal family..... There is also an ordained office over the church....

"The duty of the Twelve Apostles of the Church," President Joseph F. Smith said, "is to preach the gospel to the world, to send it to the inhabitants of the earth and to bear testimony of Jesus Christ of Son of God, as living witnesses of his divine mission. That is their special calling, and they are always under the direction of the Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints when that presidency is intact, and there is never at the same time two equal heads in the Church-never. (Mormon Doctrine p. 50) [This is scimotaineously done in connection with Eph 4;11-14 JST.]

Sons and Daughters of God:
And now, after the many testimonies which have been given of him, this is the testimony, last of all, which we give of him: That he lives! For we saw him, even on the right hand of God; and we heard the voice bearing record that he is the Only Begotten of the Father-That by him, and through him, and of him, the worlds are and were created, and the inhabitants thereof are begotten sons and daughters unto God." (D&C 76:20-24.)

President Kimballs talk on seeing the lord.....

Baptism
Baptism by immersion under the hands of a legal addministrator, one empoweded to bind on earth and seal in heaven, is the initiatory ordiance into the Church on earth and the celestial kingdom in the world to come. (D. & C. 20:68-74; 2 Ne. 9:23-24.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 70-71)

Baptism symbolizes death, burial, and resurrection, and can only be done by immersion. Baptism by water is the priesthood ordiance and also the gift of the Holy Ghost but receiving the holy ghost is the ratifing or seal of the Holy spirit of promise of that or any other ordiance.

Baptism is not optional if one wishes the fulness of salvation. Jesus said a person must be born of water and of the Spirit. (Bible Dictionary p. 619)
Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. (John 3:5)
And it is with all ordiance of the Gospel even the crowning ordiance we receive the promises and sealings of the Priesthood (Jesus Christ) and the Holy Ghost one sealing and one ratifing or testifing thus it is the priesthood (Christ and the Holy Ghost who presents you to the Father for his acceptance. And as baptism points out it is You who bear witness of yourself, it is the priesthood or one acting in the power and name of christ, and the holy ghost who bear witness to the father that you are worthly to enter his kingdom then the third member of the Godhead ratifies what you, Christ and Holy Ghost have said by saying you may enter. Then all is compleate you become a joint error of Salvation through 4 points.

1. You bear witness of yourself that you are willing to let christ atone for your sins and that you have faith in him and through him you are washed clean then through your faithfulness you become or remain clean from this world and overcome it. You yourself in the end bear witness of your worthiness to the Father.

2. Christ, the second member of the Godhead seals your salvation upon you and presents you to the Father as worthy to enter his presence and kingdom: The priesthood who seals or binds all ordiances necessary of salvation bear witness to you. Christ holds these keys of binding and sealing and he gave them to Peter, James and John to act in his name as if he were present preforming the ordiance and through them we have them on the earth binding and sealing in the name and power of Jesus Christ which is called the priesthood. In essesance Christ seals us up to salvation by his power as the second member of the Godhead as God the Savior.

3. The Holy Ghost seals us up:

Gospel Mysteries

The Holy Ghost is the third God in the Godhead and his designed function it to bear witness of the Father and the Son and to Put his ratifing seal upon the our covenant, Christ or the priesthood seal that it is true. For the holy Ghost is a true witness and cannot be lied to therefore when you bear witness of yourself and the priesthood seals your Salvation upon you through the ordiance of baptism when the Holy ghost puts his ratifing seal upon them it is in essence bearing witness as God the Testator and testifing to the father that you are indeed worthly to receive his presience of the blessings of the ordiance which you have received.
Thus Christs words.... Except a a man be born of the water [plus] the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. Both these sealing must be present it matters not which occurs first only that both the piesthood who is Christ and the Holy Ghost must put their seals upon you.

4. Finally, The Father must seal you up. Whether by my own voice or the voice of my servants it is the same. When we become his servant and bare testimony that we are worthy of his ordiances, Christ has born withness to the Father that we are worthy, through the priesthood or those who he has given the keys of that priesthood, and we have been born of the Spirit or the Holy Ghost has born witness of us to the Father and put his ratifing seal upon us. You, Christ, and the Holy Ghost stand at the judgement bar of God and present you to the Father and he puts his Seal upon you as The Father Creator and 1st member of the Godhead and his arm is revieled and He brings you into his presence.

|v6 It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance.
(D&C: Section 131:Heading-6)

Gospel Mysteries

Book of Life

In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is "the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world." (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. [When they receive the New and everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage they are written in the book, to come forth in the morning of the first reserrection or the next. Buffetings of Saintan...](Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the event of wickedness. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.) (Mormon Doctrine p. 97)

Bright and Morning Star

...those who gain eternal life shall be joint-heirs with Christ, it is interesting to note that such exalted persons are promised that they shall receive the morning star, that is, reach a state of pre-eminence and perfection themselves. (Rev. 2:26-28.) "And they that be wise whall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." [Posterity, same as Abrahams blessing] (Dan. 12:3.) Peter's statement about the day star arising in the hearts of certain of the saints, has reference also to those who shall inherit the fulness of all things. (2 Pet. 1:19.)

Calling And Election

Those members of the Church who devote themselves wholly to righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, making their calling and election sure. That is, they receive the more sure word of prophecy, which means that the Lord seals their exaltation upon them while they are yet in this life. Peter summarized the course of righteousness which the saints must pursue to make their calling and election sure and then (referring to his experience on the Mount of Transfiguration with James and John) said that those three had received this more sure word of prophecy. (2 Pet. 1.)

Joseph Smith taught: "After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and election made sure, then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter." To receive the other Comforter is to have Christ appear to him and to see the visions of eternity. (Teachings, pp. 149-151.)

Thus, as the Prophet also said, "The more sure word of prophecy means a man's knowing that his is sealed up unto eternal life, by revelation and the spirit of prophecy, through the power of the Holy Priesthood." (D. & C. 131:5.) Those so favored of the Lord are sealed up against all manner of sin and blasphemy except the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost and the shedding of innocent blood. That is, their exaltation is assured; their calling and election is made sure, because they have obeyed the fulness of God's laws and have overcome the world. Though such persons "shall commit any sin or transgression of the new and everlasting covenant whatever, and all manner of blasphemies, and if they commit no murder wherein they shed innocent blood, yet they shall come forth in the first resurrection, and enter in to their exaltation." (D. & C. 132:26.)

Gospel Mysteries

The Lord says to them: "Ye shall come forth in the first resurrection; . . . and shall inherit thrones, kingdome, principalities, and powers, dominions, all hights and depths." (D. & C. 132:19.) The Prophet, for one, had this seal placed upon him. That is, he knew "by revelation and the spirit of prophecy, through the power of the Holy Priesthood," that he would attain godhood in the world to come. To him Deity said: "I am the Lord thy God, and will be with thee even unto the end of the world, and through all eternity; for verily I seal upon you your exaltation, and prepare a throne for you in the kingdom of my Father, with Abraham your father." (D. & C. 132:49.)
It should be clearly understood that these high blessings are not part of celestial marriage. "Blessings pronounced upon couples in connection with celestial marriage are conditioned upon the subsequent faithfulness of the participating parties." (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 46-47.) (Mormon Doctrine, p 109-110)

Celestial Glory
Those who finally attain it are celestial, persons "shose bodies are celestial, whose glory is that of the sun, even the glory of God, the highest of all, whose glory the sun of the firmament is written of as being typical." (D. & C. 76:70; 1 Cor. 15:40-42.)
Exaltation consists in gaining a fulness of celestial glory. (D. & C. 132:19-20.) Those so attaining will receive "a fulness of the glory of the Father: and be glorified in Christ as he is in the Father. (D. & C. 93:16-20.)
The prophet said that in the resurrection the righteous "shall rise again to dwell in everlasting burnings in immortal glory, not to sorrow, suffer, or die any more; but they shall be heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ." (Teachings p. 347.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 116)

Celestial Kingdom
An inheritance in this glorious kingdom is gained by complete obedience to gospel or celestial law. (D. & C. 88:16-32.) By entering the gate of repentance and baptism candidates find themselves on the strait and narrow path leading to the celestaial kingdom. By devotion and faithfulness, by enduring to the end in righteousness and obedience, it is then possible to merit a celestial reward. (2 Ne. 31:17-21.)
No unclean thing can enter this kingdom, and the plan of salvation is the system whereby men are washed and cleansed, whereby they are "sanctified by the reception of the Holy Ghost," and thus enabled to stand spotless before the Lord. (3 Ne. 27:19-21.) "The sanctified" are "them of the celestial world." (D. & C. 88:2)
"In the celestial glory there are three heavens or degrees," and in the same sense that baptism starts a person out toward an entrance into the celestial world, so celestial marriage puts a couple on the path leading to an exaltation in the highest heaven of that world. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 116-117)

Marriage
Latter-day revelation tells us that marriage under the law of the gospel and the holy priesthood is for eternity, and that men and women thus sealed in marriage continue to have children throughout eternity. (Bible Dictionary, p. 729)

Celestial Marriage
Marriages performed in the temples for time and eternity, by virtue of the sealing keys restored by elijah, are called celestial marriages. The participating parties become husband and wife in this mortal life, and if after their marriage they keep all the terms and conditions of this order of the priesthood, they continue on as husband and wife in the celestial kingdom of God.

If the family unit continues, then by virtue of that fact the members of the family have gained eternal life (exaltation), the greatest of all the gifts of God, for by definition exaltation consists in the continuation of the family unit in eternity. Those so inheriting are the sons and daughters of God, the members of his family, those who have made their callings and elections sure. They are joint-heirs with Christ to all that the Father hath, and they receive the fulness of the glory of the Father, becoming gods in their own right. (D. & C. 132; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 58-99.)
Baptism is the gate to the celestial kingdom; celestial marriage is the gate to an exaltation in the highest heaven within the celestial world. (D. & C. 131:1-4.) To gain salvation after baptism it is necessary to keep the commandments of God and endure to the end (2 Ne. 31:17-21; to gain exaltation after celestial marriage the same continued devotion and righteousness is required. Those who have been married in the temples for eternity know that the ceremony itself expressly conditions the recept of all promised blessings upon the subsequent faithfulness of the husband and wife.
Making one's calling and election sure is in addition to celestial marriage and results from undeviating and perfect devotion to the cause of righteousness. Those married in the temple can never under any circumstances gain exaltation unless they keep the commandments of God and abide in the covenant of marriage which they have taken upon themselves. [This is true with all blessing conditional or unconditional for no unclean thing can enter the presence of God. Even those who receive their calling and election made sure and the fulness of the priesthood. William Clatons blessing all must be purged and clean and will come forth in the morning of the first resurrection or the next...]
Celestial marriage is a holy and an eternal ordiance; as an order of the priesthood, it has the name the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. Adam was the first one one this earth to enter into this type of union, and it has been the Lord's order in all ages when the fulness of the gospel has been on earth. Its importance in the plan of salvation and exaltation cannot be over estimated. The most important things that any member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints ever does in this world are: 1. To marry the right person, in the right place, by the right aughtoriy; and 2. To keep the covenant made in connection with this holy and perfect order of matrimony-thus assuring the obedient persons of an inheritance of exaltation in the celestial kingdom. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 117-118.)

Celibacy
In this connection it is interesting to note that it is to Paul that advocates of celibacy turn in a fruitless search to find scripture justifying their unnatural mode of living. Paul himself was married. Of this there is not question. He had the sure promise of eternal life; his calling and election had been made sure (Teachings, p. 151)-Which, according to God's eternal laws, could not have been unless he had first entered into the order of celestial marriage. (D. & C. 131; 132.) [The same principle would hold true for the Savior, who says this is my law...] Mormon Doctrine p, 119.)

Children of the covenant
According to the terms of the covenant which God made with Abraham, all of the literal seed of that great prophet are entitled to receive the gospel, the priesthood, and all the ordiances [even the crowning ordinaces] of salvation and exaltation. (Abra. 2:9-11; D. & C. 86:8-11.) When any of those descendants do receive all of these things, "They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, adn the church and kingdom, and the elect of God." (D. & C. 84:34.) [1. This means they are called and elected through priesthood ordiances, 2. They then need to make this calling and election sure with the seal of the Holy Ghost.....] They are then children of the covenant, that is, they are inheritors of the fulness of the blessings appertaining to the new and everlasting covenant which is the gospel. [This means that they receive all the fulness of the priesthood and have received all even the ordince, anointing, election, sealing of kings and queens, priests and priestesses and have the crowning blessings of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage sealed upon them.] "Ye are the children fo the covenant" (3 Ne. 20:24-27), our Lord told the Nephites among whom he ministered, a distinction which the faithful saints of this dispensation also enjoy. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 126.)

Christ
...with the righteous saints, he shall reign to all eternity as King of Kings, Lord of Lords, and God of Gods. To his holy name, both now and forever, be ascribed glory and honor, power, riches, and dominion, and an eternal fulness of all things for endless ages. [Again Christ being a God of Gods designates him as living in the highest degree of the celestial kingdon. Which is the law of the celestial marriage.] [Also which makes us Gods my work on Gods by the prophets....] (Mormon Doctring, p. 129.)

Church of Enoch
Their callings and elections were made sure, and they were all assured of membership in the Church of the Firstborn and of an inheritance of exaltation in the eternal worlds. Those so favored were, of course, with Christ in his resurrection. (D. & C. 133:54-56.)
[They were called and elected by the preisthood and it was made sure by 1. Priesthood ordiance (Christ) and 2. by the Holy Spirit. Then notice 3. they were then able be resurrected to there glory because they had all the fulness of the Priesthood contained in the New and everlasting Covenant or were sealed up by Ordiance and that Ordiance and Sealing was ratified and sealed by the Holy spirit of promise the Holy Ghost. then they had all and could be resurected.....] (Mormon Doctrine, p. 136.)

Church of the Firstborn:
Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who so devote themselves to righteousness that they receive the higher ordiances of exaltation [not salvation], [namily all those ordiances and sealings contained in the New and everlasting covenant: We will use the dead for example: 1. washings and anointings, 2. the endowment, 3. Celestial marriage 4. The sealing of children to parents, 5. The washing of feet and being pronounced clean every wit, 6. kings and priests, queens and priestesses] become members of the Church of the firstborn. Baptism is the gate to ... [Salvation], but celestial marriage is the gate to [exaltation or] the Church of the Firstborn, the inner circle of faithful saints who are heirs of exaltation and the fulness of the Father's kingdom. (D. & C. 76:54, 67, 71, 94, 102; 77:11; 78:21; 88:1-5; Heb. 12:23.)
The Church of the Firstborn is made up of the [Married Sons and Daughters] of God, those who have been adopted into the family of the Lord, those who are destined to be joint-heirs with Christ in receiving all that the Father hath. [This blessing is expressed in the New and everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage and therefore it is a Joint Blessing one that single people don't have..., The Angles in heaven are not members of this Church... D&C 132:19 This might nought be true I will have to study this out more....] "If you keep my commandments you shall receive of his fulness, and be glorified in me as I am in the Father; ...And all those who are begotten through me are partakers of the glory of the same, and are the Church of the Firstborn." Cleanliness
Thus through thier faithfulness the elders have power to become clean from the blood and sins of this generation. (D. & C. 88:74-75, 85; 109:42; 112:33; 135:5; Ether 12:37.) (Mormon Doctrine, p, 147.)

Second Comforter

Crowns
Those who gain exaltation in the highest heaven of the celestial world [D&C 131; 132] shall wear crowns. Perhaps literal crowns may be worn on occasion-emblematic of their victory over the world and signifying that they rule and reign as kings and queens in the eternal house of Israel. But at all times they will be "crowned with honor, and glory, and immortality, and eternal life." (D. & C. 75:5.)
In the gospel sense, a crown is the sign and symbol of eternal exaltation and dominion, of godhood in the kingdom of God. Our Lord has been seen in vision wearing "a golden crown" (Rev. 14:14; 6:2; 19:12), and those surrounding the throne of Deity have been seen similarly identified. (Rev. 4:4, 10.) Paul speaks of such persons as having "an incorruptible" crown (1 Cor. 9:25) and as inheriting "a crown of righteousness" (2 Tim. 4:8); James says they "shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (Jas. 1:12); John records a similar affirmation (Rev. 2:10); and Peter speakes of receiving "a crown of glory that fadeth not away." (1 Pet. 5:4.) The crowns so spoken of are crowns of eternal life (D. & C. 66:12), of eternal life (D. & C. 66:12), of eternal lives (D. & C. 132:55), of celestial glory. (D. & C. 101:65.)
By keeping the commandments and enduring in righteousness to the end the saints overcome the world and gain crowns of glory in eternity. Hence the counsel: "Hold fast that which thouf hast, that no man take thy crown." (Rev. 3:11.) (Mormon Doctrine, p 173-174.)

Daughters of God
All women are the daughters of God because of their pre-existent birth as female spirits. However, the designation daughters of God, as used in the revelations, has a far more pointed meaning than this. Just as men who pursue a steadfast course toward exaltation become the sons of God while in this life, so women who walk hand-in-hand in obedience with them become the daughters of God. (D. & C. 25:1; 76:24; Mosiah 5:7.)
The temple ordiances, including celestial marriage, precede attainment of that membership in the household of God which makes one a daughter. Those who are adopted as daughters in this life will, if they continue faithful, gain exaltation in the world to come. (Doctrines fo Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 64-65) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 180.)

twinkling of an eye, the spirit never having occasion to separate from the body, and in their cases this change is called death. (D. & C. 63:49-52; 3 Ne. 28.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 185.)

Dreams
An inspired dream is a vision given to a person while he sleeps. "Behold, I have dreamed a dream; or, in other words, I have seen a vision," Lehi said. (1 Ne. 8:2.) All inspired dreams are visions, but all visions are not dreams. Visions are received in hours of wakefulness or of sleep and in some cases when the recipient has passed into a trance; it is only when the vision occures during sleep that it is termed a dream. (Isa. 29:17; Dan. 2; 7; 1 Ne. 1:16; Alma 30:28.)
As with other visions, inspired dreams foretell future events (Gen. 28:10-22; 31:24; 1 Kings 3:5; 1 Ne. 2:1-2; 3:2); angels appear and minister to faithful persons in their dreams (Gen. 31:11; Matt. 1:20; 2:13, 19); prophetic warnings are given by this means (Ether 9:3); and symbolic representations portrayed in dreams teach marvelous truths. (1 Ne. 8; 9; 1; 15:21.) Inspired dreams are th fruit and faith; they are not given to apostate peoples. (1 Sam. 28:6, 15.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 208.)
Election
The elect are chosen even "before the foundation of the world,: yet no one is unconditionally elected to eternal life. Each must, for himself, harken to the gospel and receive its ordiances and covenants from the hands of the servants of the Lord in order to obtain salvation. If one is elected but does not serve, his election could be said to have been in vain, as Paul expressed in 2 Cor. 6:1.
...Those who are faithful and diligent in the gospel in mortality receive an even more desirable election in this life, and become the elect of God. These receive the promise of a fulness of God's glory in eternity (D&C 84:33-41). The concept held by many that God unconditionally elected some to be saved and some to be damned without any effort, action, or choice on their part is not correct, for the scriptures teach that it is only by faith and obedience that one's calling and election is made sure (2 Pet. 1; D&C 131:5). (Bible Dictionary, p. 662-663).

Election of Grace
...if the full blessings of salvation are to follow, the doctrine of election must operate twice. First, righteous spirits are elected or chosen to come to mortality as heirs of special blessings. Then, they must be called and elected again in this life, an occurrence which takes place when they join the true Chruch. (D. & C. 53:1.)
Finally, in order to reap eternal salvation, they must press forward in obedient devotion to the truth until they make their "calling and election sure" (2 Pet. 1), that is, are "sealed up unto eternal life." (D. & C. 131:5.) (Mormon Doctrine p. 217).

Elect Lady
An elect lady is a female member of the Church who has already received, or who through obedience is qualified to receive, the fulness of gospel blessings. This includes [1] temple endowments, [2] celestial marriage, and [3] the fulness of the sealing power. She is one who has been elected or chosen by faithfulness as a daughter of God in this life, and heir of God, a member of his household. Her position is comparable to that of the elders who magnify their callings in the preisthood and thereby receive all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:38.)
In the early days of this dispensation Emma Smith, the Prophet's wife, was in such complete harmony with the Lord's porgram that he forgave her of her sins and addressed her as an elect lady. (D. & C. 25:1-3; History of the Chruch, vol. 4, p. 552.) John the Beloved used a similar salutation to certain chosen women in his day. (2 John 1, 13.) Just as it is possible for the very elect to be deceived, and to fall from grace through disobedience, so an elect lady, by failing to endure to the end, can lose her chosen status. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 217).

Elect of God
The elect of God comprise a very select group, an inner circle of faithful members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. They are the portion of church members who are striving with all their hearts to keep the fulness of the gospel law in this life so that they can become inheritors of the fulness of gospel rewards in the life to come.
As far as a male sex is concerned, they are the ones, the Lord says, who have the Melchizedek Priesthood conferred upon them and who thereafter magnify their callings and are sanctified by the Spirit. In this way, "They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, and the chruch and kingdom, and the elect of God." [Temple Endowment] They keep "the oath and covenant which belongeth to the priesthood," and are rewarded with the fulness of the Father's kingdom. (D. & C. 84:33-41) [New and everlasting Covenant of marriage].
To gain this elect status they must [1] be endowed in the temple of the Lord (D. & C. 95:8), [2] enter that "order of the priesthood" named "the new and everlasting covenant of marriage" (D. & C. 131:1-4), and [3] overcome by faith until, as the sons of God, they merit membership in the Church of the Firstborn. (D. & C. 76:50-70, 94-96.) [becoming a member of the Church of the Firsborn in this statement would sugest two things, [1] those who are members have received the new and everlasting coventant of marriage, that there are no mememberss in this Chruch who are single, and [2] this is another sealing and promise in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage which comes in the the ordiance of the fulness of the Priesthood.] The elect of God are the chosen of God; and he has said: "There are many who have been ordained among you, whom I have called but few of them are chosen." (D. & C. 95:5; 121:34-40.) This is the day in which the Lord is gathering his elect, those who hear his voice and harden not their hearts (D. & C. 29:7), from the four quarters of the earth (D. & C. 33:6), so that if they continue to abide in his word, they shall have an eventual salvation in his presence. This is the day of which the Lord spoke: "I will bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains: and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands" (Isa. 65:22), for the earth and the fulness thereof shall then be theirs. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 217-218).

Elijah the Prophet
His latter-day mission was to "restore the authority and deliver the keys of the priesthood, in order that all the ordances may be attended to in righteousness.... Why send Elijah? Because he holds the keys of the authority to administer in all the ordinances of the priesthood; and without the authority is given, the ordinances could not be administered in righteousness." (Teachings, p. 172.)
"The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is," the Prophet also taught, "that ye have power to hold the key of the revelations, ordiances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God, even unto the turning of the hearts of the fathers unto the children, and the hearts of the children unto the fathers, even those who are in heaven....

"This is the spirit of Elijah, [1] that we redeem our dead, and [2] connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven, and [3] seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection; and here is the power of Elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven. This is the power of Elijah and the keys of the kingdom of Jehovah." (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)
"How shall God come to the rescue of this generation?" the Prophet asked. "He will send Elijah the Prophet....Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers. The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called, [2] elected, and [3] made sure." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224-225).

3. We learn that it is the power in the to seal up our dead [and ourselves to come forth in the first resurrection which is a joint sealing contained in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial mariage. (D & C 132:19.)

4."It is to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers." (Teachings, p. 323.)
This is contained as part of the joint blessing that husband and wife receive together or not at all; That of sealing children to parents all the way back to Adam and Eve and from them to Our heavenly Father and Mother for this is a Joint blessing or not at all.
5. The Power of Elijah which is fulfilled within the New and Everlasting Covenant contains the following:
" The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called [to join the church and receive the fulness of the priesthood], [2] elected [to receive the Melchizedek Priesthood and the New and everlasting covenant of Celestial Marriage, and [3] the crowning ordinance of the Fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage is to receive the fulness of the priesthood to be annointed and made a king and priest and queen and preistess and become a member of the Church of the Firstborn and all these are then to be sealed] and made sure [by 1. the sealing power of the Priesthood and 2. the ratifing seal of the Holy Ghost..." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224).

Equality
1. Under conditions of full gospel equality, perfect fainess and equity would prevail in every sphere of life. All persons similarly situated would be treated exactly the same as all other such persons; all would enjoy and possess the same things. Perfect impartiality would reign, for "there should be an equality among all men." (Mosiah 27:3; Alma 1:26.) By way of illustration, the gospel message itself is and should be freely availabe to all men. (Third Article of Faith.) The Lord "inviteth them all [this is a prophetic statement for the black race] to come unto him and partake of his goodness; and he denieth none that come unto him, black and white, bond and free, male and female; and he remambereth the heathen; and all are alike unto God, both Jew and Gentile." (2 Ne. 26:33.)

Perfect equality does not now prevail, either in the world or in the Church. But when life is perfected among the saints and when the highest gospel law is lived, then both temporal and spiritual equality will prevail. Temporal adjustments under the principles of consecration will make "every man qual accordin to his circumstances and his wants and needs." (D. & C. 51:3; 82:17.) "In your temporal things you shall be qual, and this not grudgingly, otherwise the abundance of the manifestations of the Spirit shall be withheld." (E. & C. 70:14.) "For if ye are not equal in earthly things ye cannot be equal in obtaining heavenly things." (D. & C. 70:14.) "For if ye are not equal in earthly things ye cannto be equal in obtaining heavenly things." (D. & C. 78:3-7.)
2. Exalted beings will enjoy eternal equality in their high celestial status. "And he makes them equal in power, and in might, and in dominion." (D. & C. 76:95.) [This takes place in the Fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage.] "And then shall the angels be crowned with the glory of his might, and the saints shall be filled with his glory, and receive their inheritances and be made equal with him." (D. & C. 88:107.) [How can a married person be made equal with a person who is not. Eternal God
Both the Father and the Son carry the exalted name-title, Eternal God. Both are exalted Beings and as such are Eternal; both are from everlasting to everlasting, with all that this phrase connotates;

> Everlasting to Everlasting: by gaining exaltation-which includes the fulness of the Father and "a continuation of seeds forever and ever"-men [and women jointly] become "gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) That is, those who gain eternal increase, who have unending spirit children in the resurrection, have thereby become from everlasting to everlasting. Because of their eternal progeny they continue everlastingly without end; from eternity to eternity they are the same; and being perfected and exalted beings, their course never varies, nor is there shadow of turning to the right or the left.
> Our Eternal Father, of course, now has this kind of and existence. "There is a God in heaven," the revelation says, of him "who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting the same unchangeable God." (D. & C. 20:17; 109:77.) Christ also describes himself as being "from everlasting to everlasting." (D. & C. 61:1; Ps. 90:2; Docrtines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 244.)

both are beyond finite comprehension in power, dominion, godly attributes, and eternal glory. (D. & C. 121:32.) By their eternal grace men have been [1] created [by the Father], [2] redeemed [by the Son], and placed as possible heirs of all things. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 236-237.)

Eternal life
As used in the scriptures, eternal life is the name given to the kind of life that our Eternal Father lives. The word eternal, as used in the name eternal life, is a noun and not an adjective. It is one of the formal names of Deity. (Moses 1:3; 7:35; D. & C. 19:11) and has been chosen by him as the particular name to identify the kind of life that he lives. He being God, the life he lives is God's life; and his name (in the noun sense) being Eternal, the kind of life he lives is eternal life. Thus: God's life is eternal life; eternal life is God's live-the expressions are synonymous.
Accordingly, eternal life is not a name that has reference only to the unending duration of a future life; immortality is to live forever in the resurrected state, and by the grace of God all men will gain this unending continuace of life. But only those who obey the fulness of the gospel law will inherit eternal life. (D. & C. 29:43-44.) It is "the greatest of all the gifts of God" (D. & C. 14:7), for it is the kind, status, type, and quality of life that God himself enjoys. Thus those who gain eternal life receive exaltation; they are sons of God, joint-heirs with Christ, members of the Chruch of the Firstborn [again it is hinted that members of the Church of the Firstborn receive the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage and that their are no single people who are members of this Church]; they overcome all things, have all power, and receive the fulness of the Father. They are gods. [All these things are part of the seal of the new and everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage]
1. Sealed to overcome all things and come forth in the morning of the first resurrection or the next after they have been buffeted by satan and overcome all which suffering caused even God to tremble...
2. Sealed with all power.
3. Sealed to receive a fulness of the Father.
4. Sealed up to be as the father and where his title gods and godesses. D&C 132 Abraham, Isaac and Jacob have already received this and sit on their thrones...
(Mormon Doctrine, p. 237.)

Eternal lives
Those who gain eternal life (exaltation) also gain eternal lives, meaning that in the resurrection thy have eternal "increase," a "continuation of the seeds," a "continuation of the lives." Their spirit progeny will "continue as innumerable as the stars; or, if ye were to count the sand upon the seashore ye could not number them." (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132:19-25, 30, 55.)
"Except a man and his wife enter into an everlasting covenant and be married for eternity, while in this probation, by the power and authority of the holy priesthood,: the Prophet says, "they will cease to increase when they die; that is, they will not have any children after the resurrection." Then with reference to those who have been properly sealed in marriage and who have thereafter endured in righteousness until their callings and elections were made sure by revelation he adds: "But those who are married by the power and authority of the priesthood in this life, and continue without committing the sin agains the Holy Ghost, [their callings and elections having been made sure through perfect devotion to the truth, they] [Dave: Sure by the hand of the holy priesthood and ratified and made sure by the Holy Ghost] will continue to increase and have children in the celestial glory." (Teachings, pp. 300-301.)

The opposite of eternal lives is eternal deaths. Those who come up separately and singly in the resurrection and who therefore do not have spirit children eternally are said to inherit "the deaths." (D. & C. 132:16-17, 25.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 237-238.)

Eternal progression

...In the full sense, eternal progression is enjoyed only by those who receive exaltation. Exalted persons have all power, all knowledge, and all wisdom; they gain a fulness of truth, becoming one with the Father Those who gain exaltation, having thus enjoyed the fulness of eternal progression, become like God. It should be realized that God is not progressing in knowledge, truth, virtue, wisdom, or any of the attributes of godliness. He has already gained these things in their fulness. But he is progressing in the sense that his creations increase, his dominions expand, his spirit offspring multiply, and more kingdoms are added to his domains. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 5-10.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 238-239.)

Eternity to eternity.

Those who become gods will then be from eternity to eternity, everlastingly the same, always possessing the fulness of all things and multiplying their race without end. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Momon Doctrine, p. 240.)

Everlasting to Everlasting

By gaining exaltation-which includes the fulness of the Father and "a continuation of seeds forever and ever"-men [and women jointly] become "gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) That is, those who gain eternal increase, who have unending spirit children in the resurrection, have thereby become from everlasting to everlasting. Because of their eternal progeny they continue everlastingly without end; from eternity to eternity they are the same; and being perfected and exalted beings, their course never varies, nor is there shadow of turning to the right or the left.

Our Eternal Father, of course, now has this kind of and existence. "There is a God in heaven," the revelation says, of him "who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting the same unchangeable God." (D. & C. 20:17; 109:77.) Christ also describes himself as being "from everlasting to everlasting." (D. & C. 61:1; Ps. 90:2; Docrtines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 242.)

Exaltation

Celestial marriage is the gate to exaltation, and exaltation consists in the continuation of the family unit in eternity. Exaltation is eternal life, the kind of life which God lives. Those who obtain it gain an inheritance in highest of three heavens within the celestial kingdom. (D. & C. 131:1-4.)

They have eternal increase, a continuation of the seeds forever and ever, a continuation of the lives, eternal lives; that is, they have spirit

children in the resurrection, in relation to which offspring they stand in the same position that God our Father stands to us. They inherit in due course the fulness of the glory of the Father, meaning that they have all power in heaven and on earth. (D. & C. 76:50-60; 93:1-40.) "Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:16-26; Docrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 35-79.)
Although salvation may be defined in many ways to mean many things, in its most pure and perfect definition it is a synonym of exaltation. This was the way in which the Prophet used it when he left us this inspired explanation: "Where shall we find a prototype into whose likeness we may be assimilated, in order that we may be made partakers of life and salvation? or, in other words, where shall we find a saved being? for if we can find a saved being, we may ascertain without much difficulty what all others must be in order to be saved. We think that it will not be a matter of dispute, that two beings who are unlike each other cannot be saved; for whatever constitutes the salvation of one will constituet the salvation of every creature which will be saved; and if we find one saved being in all existence, we may see what others must be, or else not be saved.
"We ask, then, where is the prototype? or where is the saved being? We conclude, as to the answer of this question, there will be dispute among those who believe the Bible, that it is Christ: all will agree in this, that he is the prototype or standard of salvation; or, in other words, that he is a saved being. And if we should continue our interrogation and ask how it is that he is saved, the answer would be-because he is a just and holy being; and if he were anything different from what he is, he would not be saved; for his salvation depends on his being precisely what he is and nothing else; for if it were possible for him to change, in the least degree, so sure he would fail of salvation and lose all his dominion, power, authority and glory, which constitute salvation; for salvation consists in the glory, authority, majesty, power and dominion which Jehovah possesses and in nothing else; and no being can possess it but himself or one like him."
After quoting many passages of scripture, the record of the Prophet's teachings continues: "These teachings of the Savior most clearly show unto us the nature of salvation, and what he proposed unto the human family when he proposed to save them--that he proposed to make them like unto himself, and he was like the Father, the great prototype of all saved beings; and for any portion of the human family to be assimilated into their likeness is to be saved; and to be unlike them is to be destroyed; and on this hinge truns the door of salvation." (Lectrues on Faith, pp. 63-67.) (Mormon Doctrine, p 258.)

Exemplar
With reference to "all covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations" (D. & C. 132:7)--that is, in all things--he leads the way and sets an example for his brethren. "Follow thou me," is the cry. (2 Ne. 31:10.) "What manner of men ought ye to be?" he asked; and then answered: "Verily I say unto you, even as I am." (3 Ne. 27:27.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 259).

Faith
...where faith is, there will the knowledge of God be also, with all things which pertain thereto-revelations, visions, and dreams, as well as every necessary thing, in order that the possessors of faith may be perfected, and obtain salvation; for God must change, otherwise faith will prevail with him. And he who possesses it will, through it, obtain all necessary knowledge and wisdom, until he shall know God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, whom he has sent--whom to know is eternal life." (Lectrues on Faith, pp. 70-71.)

"And there were many whose faith was so exceeding strond, evern before Christ came, who could not be kept from within the veil, but truly saw with their eyes the things which they had beheld with an eye of faith, and they were glad." (Ether 12:19.) Today as anciently the same effects flow from faith. "It is the privilege of every elder to speak of the things of God," the Prophet said, "and could we all come together with one heart and one mind in perfect faith the veil might as well be rent today as next week, or any other time." (Teachings, p. 9; D. & C. 93:1.) [Presiden Kimball's talk on seeing the Lord; Also, see God in Bible Dictionary...]. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 266-267.)

Family
Eternal families have their beginning in celestial marriage here in mortality. Faithful members of them continue in the family unit in eternity, in the highest heaven of the celestial world, where they have eternal increase. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132:16-32.) Perfect peace and a full endowment of all good graces attend such eternal families. By obedience to the laws of the gospel (which are celestial laws), Latter-day Saint families begin here and now to enjoy much of that peace, joy, love, and charity which will be enjoyed in eternal fulness in the exalted family unit. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 273.)

Fire
Indeed the power of God is so abundantly manifest through fiery demonstrations that Paul wrote, "Our God is a consuming fire." (Heb. 12:29; Deut. 4:24.) And the Prophet taught that God dwells in everlasting burnings, as will all righteous who gain exaltation. (teachings, p. 347; Isa. 33:14-16.)

First Vision
Our knowledge of God's dealings with his children from the days of Adam to the present leads us to believe that bothe the Father and the Son have been manifested to other prophets in other ages. Joseph Smith, himself, on at least two other occasions saw these heavenly Beings in vision (D. & C. 76:22-24; Teachings, p. 107), and Stephen beheld them as the murderous mob stoned him to death. (Acts 7:54-60.) Indee, it is the privilege of those who attain the Second Comforter to have the Son "manifest the Father" unto them. (Teachings, pp. 149-151; John 14:23; D. & C. 130:3.)
Fulness of the Father
The express fulness of the Father has reference to his position of power, glory, perfection, and godhood, The "fulness of the glory of the Father" consists in the possession of "all power, both in heaven and on earth [D&C 132:19]." (D. & C. 93: 16-17.) God is an exalted Man, and exaltation consists in having the fulness of all powers, all attributes, and all perfections. (D. & C. 76; 93; 132.) [No one can have this singly but needs their complementry part to hold and have all power, the power to creat life...]
The plan of exaltation is one whereunder those who fill the full measure of their creation are able to progress to that state wherein they will gain the fulness of the Father. Christ is the Examplar; he went from grace to grace until finally after the resurrection he gained the fulness of all things, including the fulness of truth, knowledge, and power. (Matt. 28:18; D. & C. 93:6-30.)

Gospel Mysteries

Obedience to the whole law of crowning ordiance of celestial marriage, is the way whereby the fulness of the Father may be gained. Those so married, who keep their covenants, shall go on " to their exaltation and glory in all things,...which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:6, 19-20; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 24, 44-45, 62-63.)
Joseph Smith taught: "All those who keep his [the Father's] commandments shall grow up from grace to grace, and become heirs of the heavenly kingdom, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ; possessing the same mind, being transformed into the same image or likeness, even the express image of him who fills all in all; being filled with the fulness of his glory, and become one in him, even as the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are one.... As the son partakes of the fulness of the Father through the Spirit so the saints are, byt eh same Spirit, to be partakers of the same fulness, to enjoy the same glory; for as the Father and the Son are one, so, in like manner, the saints are to be one in them. Through the love of the Father, the mediation of Jesus Christ, and the gift of the Holy Spirit, they are to be heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ." (Lectures on Faith, pp. 50-52; 3 Ne. 28:10-11.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 300-301.)

Explained to my dear sweet bride the principle of calling and election made sure.
1. We are called to join the church and keep all the commandments.
2. We are elected together, jointly, when we receive the preisthood and the New and everlasting covenant of marriage
3. We then press forward in faithfulness until we become king and queen, priest and priestess and calling and election is sealed upon us or made sure by the priesthood.
4. As in all higher priesthood ordiances of the gospel the Crowning one in Celestial marriage is held jointly by the bride and bridegroom together neither trully hold it separatle it is a joint sealing as with all the sealings in the New and ever lasting covenant of Celestial Marriage...

These are the priesthood ordiances or Christ puting his priesthood seal apon us and presenting us to the Father. And then the Holy Ghost putting his ratifing Seal (the holy seal of promise upon the priesthood sealing that it is in force.)

God
Man's purpose in life is to learn the nature and kind of being that God is, and then, by conformity to his laws and ordiances, to progress to that high state of exaltation wherein man becomes perfect as the Father is perfect. (Matt. 5:48; Teachings, pp. 342-362.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 318.)

God
God can be known only by revelation. He must be revealed, or remain forever unknown (cf. Mosiah 4:9). God first revealed himself to Adam (Moses 5; 6) and has repetedly made himself known by revelation to chosen patriarchs and prophets since that time. The present translation of John 1:18 and 1Jn. 4:12 is misleading, for these say that no man has ever seen God. However, the scriptures state that there have been many who have seen him. The JST [Joseph Smith Translation] corrects these items to show that no sinful man has ever seen God, and also that Jesus Christ is the only Way to God. God the Father and his son have been manifested by voice, sight, or otherwise at various times, as at the baptism of Jesus (Matt. 3:16-17); the Transfiguration (Matt. 17:1-8); to Stephen (Acts 7:55-56); and to the Nephites 3 Ne. 11:7). The Father and the Son personally visited Joseph Smith in the Sacred Grove, in the spring of 1820, near Manchester, New York, in the opening of the dispensation of the fulness of times (JS-H 1:11-20).

Latter-day revelation confirms the biblical account of God as the literal father of the human family; as a being who is concerned fro the welfare of mankind, and a Personage who hears and answers prayers. (Bible Dictionary, p. 682).
Although God created all things and is the ruler of the universe, being omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent (through his Spirit), mankind has a special relationship to him that differentiates man from all other created things: man is leterly God's offspring, made in his image, whereas all other things are but the work of his hands (cf. Acts 17:28-29.) (Bible Dictionary, p. 681-682.)

|v28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring.
|v29 Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device.
(NewT:Acts 17:28-29)
|v38 Which was the son of Enos, which was the son of Seth, which was the son of Adam, which was the son of God.
(NewT:Luke 3:38)

|v22 And this is the genealogy of the sons of Adam, who was the son of God, with whom God, himself, conversed.
(PoGP:Moses 6:22)

Parable of the Marriage of the King's Son:

|v1 And Jesus answered and spake unto them again by parables, and said,
|v2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son,
|v3 And when the marriage was ready, he sent forth his servants to call them which were bidden to the wedding: and they would not come.
|v4 Again, he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my my oxen and my fatlings have been killed, and my dinner is ready: therefore come unto the marriage.
|v5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise:
|v6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.
|v7 But when the king heard that his servants were dead, he was wroth: and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.
|v8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy.
|v9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.
|v10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.
|v11 And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment:

|v13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
|v14 For many are called, but few are chosen; wherefore all do not have on the wedding garment.

11. Had not on a wedding garment] He had accepted the invitation (the gospel); joined with the true worshipers (come into the true Church); but had not put on the robs of righteousness (that is, had not worked out his salvation after baptism).

I.V. Matt. 22:14. 'Many are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb, to the Church and kingdom of God on earth, but few are chosed for salvation in the kingdom of god in heaven, because they do not keep the commandments.' See Matt. 20:16. (DNTC vol. 1, p. 598-599.)
Compared to the rest of the world comparatively few are chosen. But there are still many even a multitude that cannot be numbered and of those who are whereing their temple garment

In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have tolk you. I go to prepare a place for you. (John 14:2.)
It will not do for men to sit down and see their women & children destroyed patiently,--my text is on the resurrection of the dead, which you will find in the 14 ch. of John In my Fathers house are many mansions &c is should be In my Father's Kingdom are many kingdoms--in order that ye may be heirs of--God and joint heirs with me. (WJS p. 367-368.)
John 14:2d "in my Fathers Kingdom are many Kingdoms. I go to prepare a Kingdom for you, that the exaltation that I receive you may receive also." (WJS, p. 371.)

1st We see that there are many Kingdoms prepared for the righteous so "in order that we may be heirs of --God and joint heirs with [Christ]. (WJS, p. 367-368.)

2nd it appears that in this pariable that the Lord further gives qualifications for basic enterance in the Kingdom of the Father. 1. He said a person must be born of the water and of the spirit or he cannot be permitted into the kingdom of heaven. We learn from other scriptures this is the Gate. 2. Another qualification seems to be implied that all that are at the wedding must have the wedding garment on. This would appear to be another requirement. That:
1. A person must receive his own wedding garment through the New and everlasting covenant of Marriage. Or,
2. Be a single person (angle servant) who did not receive their own but is sealed to a Kingdom through the sealing of children to parents. This seems to be another qualification that all must have the wedding garment; either thier own, or a member of a kingdom of someone who has one through the sealing. This seems to verify the importance of Elijah's mission. Behold I send you Elijah the Prophet before the comming of the lord and he shall give us the power of sealing and the seal the Children to the Parents lest the whole earth be wasted at his coming and no one is there to go to the wedding feast of the kings son.

What does it mean to be cast out because no wedding garement is worn? Hear are some possible angles of light:
1. Bruce R. McConkies explainations

2. Perhaps the wedding garment is additionaly representive of being single and not being sealed to someone's elses kingdom.
3. People have not received the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage.
4. They have received the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage but have not received the wedding garment or ratifing seal or garment the Holy Spirit of promise, the Holy Ghost.
5. In otherwords they were wedded after the order of the world, and all is lost. They are wedded after the order of the Priesthood by did not recieve the baptism of fire on that wedding or sealing and are cast out because it is not ratified....
For with all priesthood ordiances, 1st the Priesthood ordiances (baptism of water), then the ratification and seal of the Holy Ghost (the baptism of fire) both must be present or you can't receive the blessings and promises thereof.

Godhood
That exaltation which the saints of all ages have so devotly sought is godhood itself. Godhood is to have the character, possess the attributes, and enjoy the perfections which the Father has. It is to do what he does, have the powers resident in him [and his complementry companion[s] jointly], and live as he lives, having eternal increase. (D. & C. 132:17:20, 37.) It is to know him in the full and complete sense, and no one can fully know God except another exalted personage who is like him in all respects. Those attaining the supreme height are sons of God (D. & C. 76:50-60); they receive the fulness of the Father and find membership in the Church of the Firstborn (D. & C. 93:17-22); they are joint heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:14-18), inheriting with him all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:33-51) [Expand the consept of earthly parents oldest child has more tallents takes care of other children and perhaps even saves them but the Father and mother love all their children equally they appreciate the tallents of the oldest children. But they love the Children all the same not the talents-they appreciate the tallents therefore all their children inherit the same-thus we are Joint-heirs with Christ. And Christ our eldest most tallented brother and savior thought it not robery to receive the fulness of God, Expand with Lynn.] Joseph Smith said: "God himself was once as we are now, and is an exalted man, and sits enthroned in yonder heavens!... I am going to tell you how God came to be God. We have imagined and supposed that God was God from all eternity. I will refute that idea, and take away the veil, so that you may see.... It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with him as one man converses with another, and that he was once a man like us; yea, that God himself, the Father of us all, dwelt on an earth, the same as Jesus Christ himself did; and I will show it from the Bible.... "Here, then, is eternal life--to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests [and Queens and Priestesses] to God, the same as all gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another, and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation the exaltation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting brunings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power.... [Such persons are] heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. What is it? To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a god, and ascend the throne fo eternal power, the same as those who have gone before." (Teachings, pp. 345-347.) Again: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p.

374.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 321-322.)

If one has all the seals of Elijah then he has the power of Elijah as well..... expand
Also show the temple endowment in the life of Abraham and Sarah, names changed they saw God we are to converse with God as Abraham Isaac and Jacob.... This is the sealing blessing on this live that is contained in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage... (See. D&C 132:22-24).

God of Gods
"Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions," the Prophet said. (Teachings, p. 374.) Hence, the Father, who shall continue to all eternity as the God of exalted beings, is a God of Gods. Further, as the Prophet also taught, ther is a "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. [This would go well with the picture of Orson Pratts/Hyde]. ...If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suposse that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father?...Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe thathe had a Father also?" (Teachings, pp. 370, 373.) In this way both the Father and the Son, as also all exalted beings, are now or in due course will become God of Gods. (Teachings, pp. 342-376.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 321-322.)

Gospel
The fulness of the gospel consists in those laws, doctrines, ordinances, powers, and authorities needed to enable men to gain the fulness of salvation. Those who have the gospel fulness do not necessarily enjoy the fulness of gospel knowledge or understanding all of the doctrines of the plan of salvation. But they do have the fulness of the priesthood and sealing power by which men can be sealed up unto eternal life. [This occures as part of the New and everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage D&C 131, 132.] The fulness of the gospel grows out of the fulness of the sealing power and not out of the fulness of the gospel knowledge. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 333.)

Holy Spirit of Promise
The Holy Spirit of Promise is the Holy Spirit promised the saints, or in otherwords the Holy Ghost. This name-title is used in connection with the sealing and ratifying power of the Holy Ghost, that is, the power given him to ratify and approve the righteous acts of men so that those acts will be binding on earth and in heaven. "All covenants, contracts bonds, obligations, oaths vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations must be sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, if they are to have "efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead." (D. & C. 132:7.)
To seal is to ratify, to justify, or to approve. Thus an act which is sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise is one which is ratified by the Holy Ghost; [How can something be ratified or approved if it has not already occurred... It can't. It first has to be preformed by the priesthood-thus the words "by him who is anointed" then ratifing seal that its right and correct by the Holy Ghost is put on the Priesthood ordiance and sealing.]is is one which is aproved by the Lord; and the person who has taken the obligation upon himself is justified by the Spirit in the thing he has done. The ratifying seal of approval is put upon an act only if those entering the contract are worthy as a result of personal righteousness to receive the the divine approbation. [Approbation means approval] They "are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true." (D. & C. 76:53.) If they are not just and true and worthy the ratifing seal is withheld.

When any ordiance or contract [Something entered into by the authority of the Priesthood or Name of Christ] is sealed by the Spirit, it is approved with a promise of reward, provided unrighteousness does not thereafter break the seal, remove the ratifying approval, and cause loss of the promised blessing [by the Priesthood (Christ) and the Holy Spirit]. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, p. 55; vol. 2, pp 94-99.) Seals are palced on contracts through righteousness.

The operation and power of the Holy Spirit of Promise is best illustrated by teh ordinance and contract of baptism. An unworthy candidate for baptism might deceive the elders and get the ordiance performed, but no one can lie to the Holy Ghost and get by undetected. Accordingly, the baptism of an unworthy and unrepentant person whold not be sealed by the Spirit; it would not be ratified by the Holy Ghost; the unworthy person would not be justified by the Spirit in his actions. If therafter he vecame worthy through repentance and obedience, the seal would then be put in force. Somilarly, if a worthy person is baptized, with the ratifying approval of the Holy Ghost attendin the performance, yet the seal may be broken by subsequent sin.

These principles also apply to every other ordiance and performance int he Church. Thus if both parties are "just and true," if they are worthy, a ratifying seal is placed on their temple marriage; if they are unworthy, they are not justified by the Spirit and the ratification of teh Holy Ghost is withheld. Subsequent worthiness will put the seal in force, and unrighteousness will break any seal.

Even if a person progresses to the state of near-perfection in which his calling and election is made sure, in which he is "sealed up unto eternal life" (D. & C. 131: 5; 132:18-26), in which he receives "the promise...of eternal life" (D. & C. 88:3-4), in which he is "sealed up unto the day of redemption" (D. & C. 124:124; Eph. 1:13)--yet with it all, these great promises are secured only if the "performances" are sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 361-362.)

A good illistration of this is a double signiture checking system.

The check represents the ordiance or act.

The two persons singing the Check are [1] Christ (or his priesthood representitives) and [2] The Holy Ghost.

The Bank represents heaven.

The Casier represents the Father.

A person, you or me, performs some act whereby we to receive the blessings of heaven from the bank. We get the Preisthood brethren who holds the keys to fill out the check with all the limits of the ordiance and sign it. He sings it and puts his seal or name upon it and give it to us. If we took it to the bank the Cashier who represents the Father bounce the check and would say you cannot receive the blessings of the Kingdom because you don't have the ratifing seal of the other signiture. When you receive both signitures then the Cashier, the Father will say you may enter into the kingdom, he cashes the check and gives you the promised reward.

If the holy Ghost puts his seal upon you and your spouce and says you have received and accepted your calling and elections and they have been made sure, and you have a part in the kingdom of heaven. You have only one signiture on the check or the ordiance and the Father will bounce it until you receive the priesthood performance or sealing making your calling and election sure.

How does one know if they are sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise: "I will tell you in your mind and in your heart, by the Holy Ghost which shall come upon you and which shall dwell in hour heart," And then the Lord how all things will be known unto us "Now, behold, this is the spirit of revelation." (D&C 8:2-3.)

Immortality

Immortality is to live forever in the resurrected state with body and spirit inseparable connected. The Lord's work and glory is to bring to pass both the immortality and the eternal life of man (Moses 1:39): all are resurrected to a state of immortality, those who believe and obey the gospel plan go on "in immortality unto eternal life." (D. & C. 29:42-43.) Immortality is a free gift which comes by grace alone without works on man's part; eternal life, "the greatest of all the gifts of God" (D. & C. 14:7), results from "obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel." (Third Article of Faith; 1 Cor. 15:42-54; 2 Tim. 1:10; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 4-10, 24, 309-310.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 376-377.)

Joint-Heirs with Christ

As the literal Son of God--the Firstborn in the spirit, the Only Begotten in the flesh--Christ is the natural heir of the Father. It thus became his right to inherit, receive, and possess all that his Father had. (John 16:15.) And his Father is possessor of all things: the universe; all power, wisdom, and goodness; the fulness of truth and knowledge; and an infinity of all good attributes. By heirship and by obedience, going from grace to grace, the Son attained these same things. (D. & C. 93:5-17.)

By obedience to the fulness of gospel law, righteous men are adopted into the family of God so that they also become heirs, joint-heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:14-18; Gal. 3:26-29; 4:1-7), inheritors of all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:33-41.) In his famous King Follett Sermon, speakin of those who "shall be heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked what their glory should be. Answering his own query, he described joint-heirship as inheriting "the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone before." (Teachings, p. 347.)

A joint-heir is one who inherits equally with all other heirs including the Chief Heir who is the Son. Each Joint-heir has an equal and an undivided portion of the whole of everything. If one knows all things, so do all others. If one has all power, so do all those who inherit jointly with him. If the universe belongs to one, so it does equally to the total of all upon whom the joint inheritances are bestowed.

Joint-heirs are possessors of all things. (D. & C. 50:26-28.) All things are theirs for they have exaltation. (D. & C. 76:50-60.) They are made "equal" with their Lord. (D. & C. 88:107.) They gain all power both in heaven and on earth and receive the fulness of the Father, and all knowledge and truth are theirs. (D. & C. 93:15-30.) They are gods. (D. & C. 132:20.) Celestial marriage is the gate to this high state of exaltation. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 24, 35-39; D. & C. 131: 1-4; 132.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 394-395.)

Justification

What is the law of justification? It is simply this: "All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations" (D. & C. 132:7), in which men must abide to be saved and exalted, must be entered into and performed in righteousness so that the Holy Spirit can justify the canidate for salvation in what has been done. (1 Ne. 16:2; Jac. 2:13-14; Alma 41:15; D. & C. 98: 132:1, 62.) An act that is justified by the Spirit is one that is sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, or in other words, ratified and approved by the Holy Ghost. This law of justification is the provision the Lord has placed in the gospel to assure that no unrighteous performance will be binding on earth and in heaven, and that no person will add to his position or glory in the hereafter by gaining an unearned blessing. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 408.)

Keys of Salvation
The President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints holds the keys of salvation for all men now living because he is the only one by whose authorization the sealing power of the priesthood can be used to seal men up to salvation and exaltation in the kingdom of God. (D. & C. 132:7.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 132:7.)

Keys of the Kingdom
"In their fulness, the keys are held by only one person at a time, the Prophet and Presiden of the Church. He may delegate any portion of this power to another, in which case that person holds the keys of that particular labor." [D&C 132: My house is a house of order.] (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., p. 136.)

Kingdoms of Glory
Only those who are sealed in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage an who thereafter keep the terms and conditions of that covenant will attein the Highest of three heavens within the celestial Kingdom. (D. & C. 131:1-4.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 420.)

King of Kings
Christ is the King of kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11-16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King holds dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which position s they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1: 6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continues to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of Saints forever. (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 424.)

Kings
[Linked As a part of the following ordiances]
Calling and Election made sure, celestial Marriage, Endowments, Exaltation, Melchizedek Priesthood Priestesses, Priests, Queens.
Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God, magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordiances of the temple they receive the fulness of the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have [This is unconditional, man and wifes calling and election has been made sure] exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 425.)

Knowledge
"It is the knowledge of God and his laws that leads to high reward in the hearafter. (2 Ne. 9:28–29, 42.)

It is the knowledge of God that brings salvation. "And this is live eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17:3; D. & C. 93:6–28; 132:24.) When the Prophet said, "A man is saved no faster than he gets knowledge," he had reference not to the worldly knowledge flowing from research, but to the eternal knowledge coming by revelation, "for it needs revelation to assist us," he continued, "and give us knowledge of the things of God." (Teachings, p. 217.) Similarly, when he said, "It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance" (D. & C. 131:6), he meant there could be no salvation in ignorance of Jesus Christ and the saving principles of the gospel. "The principle of knowledge is the principle of salvation," he said on an other occasion. "This principle can be comprehended by the faithful and diligent; and every one that does not obtain knowledge sufficient to be saved will be condemned. The principle of salvation is given us through the knowledge of Jesus Christ." (Teachings, p. 297.)
In fact, the Melchizedek Priesthood is the key to the knowledge of God because it is in and through that priesthood that men receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. (D. & C. 84:19.) And those who grow in the knowledge of God until they gain a "perfect knowledge of God' cannot be kept within the veil and they are permitted to see the Lord. (Ether 3:19–20, 25; @. & C. 93:1.)
All men who gain exaltation eventually arrive at the status where they have all truth and know all things. (D. & c. 93:26–28.) But this is not gained in a moment; it is a long process of advancement and education. "We consider that God has created man with a mind capable of instruction, and a faculty which may be enlarged in proportion to the heed and diligence given to the light communicated from heaven to the intellect," Joseph Smith said, "and that the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with him. But we consider that this is a station to which no man ever arrived in a moment: he must have been instructed in the government and laws of that kingdom by proper degrees, until his mind is capable in some measure of comprehending the proprity, justice, equality, and consistency of the same." (Teachings, p. 51.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 428.)

Lamb of God
In honor of the Lamb, a great choir of 100,000,000 [men] voices of the redeemed shall sing this new song (Rev. 5:9–13):
[In order for there to be 100 Million men voices singing this song, who had been made kings and priests their would have to be at least another 100 million queens and priestesses who held jointly these blessings.]

Thou wast slain,
And hast redeemed us to God by thy blood
Out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;
And hast made us unto our God kings and priests:
And we shall reign on the earth....
Worthy is the Lamb that was slain
To receive power, and riches, and wisdom,
And strength, and honour, and glory, and blessings....
Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power,
Be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, And unto the Lamb for ever and ever.

(Mormon Doctrine, p. 430.)

I need to go through all of DNTC by Bruce R. McConkie and do the same thing. Also his Messiah books... Particulary the Melenial Messiah.

Godhead
"Everlasting covenant was made between three personages," the Prophet said, "before the organization of this earth, and relates to their dispensation of things to men on the earth; these personages, according to Abraham's record, are called God the first, the Creator; God the second, the Redeemer; and God the third, the witness or testator." (Teachings, p. 190.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 319.)

Witness or testimony
A testimony of the gospel is the sure knowledge received by revelation from the Holy Ghost...

...In its nature a testimony consists of knowledge that comes by revelation, "for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of porphecy" (Rev. 19:10)... (Mormon Doctrine, p. 785.)

Logic and reason lead truth seekers along the path to a testimony, and they are aids in strengthening the revealed assurances of which a testimony is composed. But the actual sure knowledge which constutes "the testimony of Jesus [and the Father]" must come by "the spirit of prophecy." This is received when the Holy Spirit speaks to the spirit within men; it comes when the whisperings of the still small voice are heard by the inner man. [An act has taken place you have learned something of spititusl value in the emperical world, now the Holy Ghost witnesses the truth of it to you by His God Given power and you know of assurity that it is true. No one else can do this for you, this is the devine function of the third member of the Godhead alone-He is the one who bares witness of the Father and the Son to you-no one else can do this....] Receipt of a testimony is accompanied by a feeling of calm, unwavering certainty.

...After citing the witnesses of other prophets to establish the truth of his teachings, Alma then bore this testimony: "And this is not all. Do ye not suppose that I know of these things myself? Behold, I testify unto you that I do know that these things whereof I have spoken are true. And how do ye suppose that I know of their surity? Behold, I say unto you they are made known unto me by the Holy Spirit of God. Behold, I have fasted and prayed many days that I might know these things of myself. And now I do know of myself that they are true; for the Lord God hath made them manifest unto me by his Holy Spirit; and this is the spirit of revelation which is in me." (Alma 5:45-46.)

Any accountable person can gain a testimony [of truth, of the Father and the Son]... This is the formula: (D&C 93:1-5; President Kimballs talk.]
1. He must desire to know....
2. He must study and learn the basic facts relative to the matter involved. "Search the scriptures." (John 5:39.) "Search these commandments." (D. & C. 1:37.) [This is why President Benson said we are under Condemnation (not being able to see God) because we are not studing the facts so we can't possible receive the seal, for there is nothing to seal up by the power of the Holy Ghost.]
3. He must practice the principles and truths learned, conforming his life to them. "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any amn will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." (John 7:16-17.) [How will we know the truth, in only one way by the seal and power of the Holy Ghost, God the witness or testator.]

4. He must pray to the Father in the name of Christ, in faith, and the truth will then be made manifest by revelation "by the power of [who] the Holy Ghost [the single person who can tell your spirit in your soul that it is true]. And by the power of the Holy Ghost [God the third, the testator or witness] ye may know the truth of all things [there is no other way to know the truth, you or know other person can make this known to you spirit.] (Moro. 10:3-5; 1 Cor. 2.)
"And this is the testimony last of all which we give you, that he lives for we saw him, the holy Ghost is a personage of spirit where it not so he could not dwell in you [and make the truth know unto you-no other God or person can do this this is the sole function of the Holy Ghost-God the third, the witness [to you personally] or the testator.]

With the receipt of a testimony comes the obligation to bear witness to the world ... but the holy ghost is the only one that can confirm and seal the truth of that testimony to you.
Testator
The Holy Ghost is the Testator, by which is meant that it is his function to testify and bear record of the Father and the Son. (2 Ne. 31:18.) In Abram's record this 3rd member of the Godhead was called "God the third, the witness or testator." (Teachings, p. 190.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 785.)

Revelator
"The Holy Ghost is a Revelator," the Prophet said. "No man can receive the Holy Ghost without receiving revelations." (Teachings, p. 328.)
Those who enjoy the companionship of the Holy Ghost have the spirit of revelation. (D. & C. 8:2-3.) A testimony of the gospel comes from the Holy Ghost. "By the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know the truth of all things." (Moro. 10:5.)

Revelation
As used in the gospel, "revelation signifies the making known of divine truth by communiction from the heavens." (Articles of Faith, pp. 296-313.) Revelation comes from God to man in various appointed ways, according to the laws ordained by the Almighty. The Lord appears personally to certain spiritually receptive persons: he speaks audibly by his own voice, on occasions, to those whose ears are attuned to the divine wave length; angels are sent from his presence to minister to deserving individuals; dreams and visions come from him to the faithful; he often speaks by the still small voice, the voice of the Spirit, the voice of prophecy and revelation;....
2. Personal Revelation.--Every devoted, obedient, and righteous person on earth has and does receive revelation from God. Revelation is the natural inheritance of all faithful. "No man can receive the Holy Ghost," the Prophet said, "without receiving revelations. The Holy Ghost is a revelator." (Teachings, p. 328.) God is no respecter of persons, meaning that the gift of the Holy Ghost, always and invariably, will be poured out upon all those who abide the law entitling them to that divine companionship. (Acts 10.) That Being "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of truning" (Jas. 1:17) always bestows the same reward for obedience to the same law.
To the faithful the Lord promises: "Assuredly as the Lord liveth, who is your God and your Redeemer, even so surely shall you receive a knowledge of whatsoever things you shall ask in faith, with an honest heart, believing that you shall receive.... Yea, behold, I will tell you in your mind and in your heart, by the Holy Ghost, which shall come upon you and which shall dwell in your heart. Now, behold, this is the spirit of revelation." (D. & C. 8:1-3; 46:7; Matt. 7:7-8; Jas. 1:5.) [This is the only way we can trully know all things is if the Lord tells us a thing in our very mind and heart by the Holy Ghost that dwells in us, and reveals, confirms, and seals this knowledge unto us personally.] This is the way testimony is gained, as in the case of Enos (Enos 1-10), and the way all men learn of the truth of the Book of Mormon. (Moro. 10:3-5.)

Missionaries are to bear record of those things which have been revealed to them. (D. & C. 121:26-32), and when they speak as moved upon by that member of the Godhead, the resultant expressions are scripture. (D. & C. 68:1-4.) "If thou shalt ask,: the Lord said to the Prophet (and it applies in principle to all the saints), "thou shalt receive revelation upon revelation, knowledge upon knowledge, that thou mayest know the mysteries and peaceable things--that which bringeth joy, that which bringeth life eternal." (D. & C. 42:61: 59:4.)
Every person who is sufficiently faithful has the categorical promise that God himself will appear to him. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeht my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 93:1.) This has reference to the personal appearance of God to mortal beings. (D. & C. 67:10-14.) Many righteous persons have complied with the law of faith involved and received this promised revelation. (Ether 3:19-26.)
With reference to their own personal affairs, the saints are expected (because they have the gift of the Holy Ghost) to gain personal revelation and guidance rather than to run to the First Presidency or some other church leaders to be told what to do. "It is a great thing to inquire at the hands of God, or to come into his presence," the Priphet said, "and we feel fearful to approach him on subjects that are of little or no consequence, to satisfy the queries of individuals, especially about things the knowledge of which men ought to obtain in all sincerity, before God, for themselves, in humility by the prayer of faith, and more especially a teacher or a high priest in the Church." (Teachings, p. 22.)

The act: apostles witness of the Lord & his ministry

The Seal of the Holy Ghost on the truth had not occured: therefore Peter Denied the Savior before the day of penticost and the Saints received revelation of the truth and the Holy Ghost.

Lynn said I have be taught by the Lord and can't tell you what I know.
1. You saw the Lord
2. Now you need the seal of the Holy Ghost to seal this knowledge upon you....
3. You can't bear witness of what you saw to others but you cannot convirm to their souls that it is unsakenably true-only the Holy Ghost can personally convey the truth of the act by speaking it to your mind and your heart because he dwells in you and is the only one who can touch spirit to spirit.
4. After Thomas saw and felt the Lord - Christ told him happy are you Thomas because you have seen and believed. More happy are they which hear your words (the act) and have the Holy Ghost bear witness that it is true.
The Act: you bear witness of what you have seen. The seal of the Holy Ghost then confirmes to your spirit that it is true. Then you know without and reserve....

5. Seeing God D&C 132:7 Expectations sealed by HG
6. You are a God-when will you know that this is true? When the act of being a god is preformed and the Holy Ghost comfirms and seals this truth upon you
7. How do you know you are exalted-you receive the act of exaltation and then the Holy Ghost Confirsm that it is true to you and you know it without a shadow of a doubt.
8. How do you know you have the power to come forth in the morning of the first resurection - the priesthood seals it upon you and then the Holy Ghost reveals and teach your mind, heart and spirit that you truly have the power - and then you know the truth of it by the power of the Holy Ghost.
9. No one else in the whole universe can reveal to your very heart and mind and spirit of the truth of all things.
Just as Jesus Christ is the only one in the universe who could save us the Holy Ghost is the only one in the universe who can reveal, comfirm and seal the truth of all things to our very being. Others may bear witness but the Holy Ghost is the only testator to you inner person of the truthfulness of the Father and the Son and their divine missions.

FILE NAME: NECM2

Life
Alma said: "this life is the time for men to prepare to meet God." (Alma 34:32) [This means they prepare to meet God by receiving all the laws and ordiances of the Gospel from the least to the Greatest in the house of the lord.... and that they receive the Holy Ghost and have sealed upon them all the acts of the ordiances and perfomances which has occured in the house of the lord and otherwise in this life... The Holy Ghost is a God and we have a God dwelling within our tabernacles...

Lord of lords
Both the Father and the Son are properly known by the title Lord of Lord's, a designation that means literally what it says. (Deut. 10:12-22; 1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:16.) The purpose of this name is not simply to reveal that Christ, for instance, is the Lord of mortal persons who are ranked as lords, but rather it is to show that he is Lord and God to others who themselves also are Lords and Gods in their own right. Thus Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (among others) "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, [What promises? The ones sealed upon us in the temple D&C 131; 132] and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) Since exalted beings themselves beocme Lords and Gods, and since they still stand in subjection to Christ their Lord and their God, it follows that he is a Lord of Lords. Whatever is true of him is also true of his Father, and in due course it will be true of all exalted beings. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 451.)

Parable of the Vineyard and the penney....

Melchizedek Priesthood
...It is the channel through which the Almighty commenced revealing his glory at the beginning of the creation of this earth, and through which he was continued to reveal himself to the children of men to the present time, and through which he will make known his purposes to the end of time." (Teachings, pp. 166-167.)

Gospel Mysteries

The power and authority of the higher, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--
[1] To have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven,

[2] to have the heavens opened unto them,

[3] to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and

[4] to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant." (D. & C. 107:5, 8, 18-19.)

"every one being ordained after this order and calling should have power, by faith to,
[1] break mountains,

[2] to divide the seas,

[3] to dry up waters,

[4] to turn them [waters] out of their course;

[5] To put defiance the armies of nations,
[6] to divide the earth,

[7] to break every band,

[8] to stand in the presence of God;

[9] to do all things according to his will, according to his command
[10] subdue principalities and powers; and this by the will of the Son of God which was from before the foundations of the world." (Inspired Version, Gen. 14:30-31.)

Those who are faithful in their priesthood callings in this life shall continue on in their holy authorizations in eternity; they shall revain forever "priests and kings"; their destiny is to stand as "priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son." (D. & C. 76:56-57.)

This priesthood "holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God." (D. & C. 84:17-19.)

Those who are priests forever, who "are priests of teh Most High, after the order of Melchizedek,... are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:57-58.) They have become joint-heirs with Christ, having kept the same covenant and been bount by teh same oath.

|v33 For whoso is faithful unto the obtaining these two priesthoods of which I have spoken, and the magnifying their calling, are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies.
|v34 They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, and the church and kingdom, and the elect of God.
|v35 And also all they who receive this priesthood receive me, saith the Lord;
|v36 For he that receiveth my servants receiveth me;
|v37 And he that receiveth me receiveth my Father; |v38 And he that receiveth my Father receiveth my Father's kingdom; therefore all that my Father hath shall be given unto him.
|v39 And this is according to the oath and covenant which belongeth to the priesthood.

|v40 Therefore, all those who receive the priesthood, receive this oath and covenant of my Father, which he cannot break, neither can it be moved.
|v41 But whoso breaketh this covenant after he hath received it, and altogether turneth therefrom, shall not have forgiveness of sins in this world nor in the world to come.
|v42 And wo unto all those who come not unto this priesthood which ye have received, which I now confirm upon you who are present this day, by mine own voice out of the heavens; and even I have given the heavenly hosts and mine angels charge concerning you.
|v43 And I now give unto you a commandment to beware concerning yourselves, to give diligent heed to the words of eternal life.
|v44 For you shall live by every word that proceedeth forth from the mouth of God.
(D&C: Section 84:33-44)

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D. & C. 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) Theses, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communications of keys," the prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fulness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30.)
"Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordiances of the house of the Lord.... All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordiances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordiances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 474-482.)

"And thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5:10; 20:4.)
One Hundred Forty-Foru Thousand
At his Second Coming, "the Lamb shall stand upon Mount Zion, and with him a hundred and fouty-four thousand, having his Father's name written on theri foreheads." (D. & C. 133:18; Rev 14:1-5.) These 144,000 are Gods, as the name of their forheads specifies; their callings and elections have been made sure; they are exalted personages; they are "redeemed from among men,... And in their mouth was found no guile: for they were without fault before the throne of Gos." (Rev. 14:4-5.) They have attained perfection.
These brethren, 12,000 from each of the tribes of Israel--excepting for some unspecified reason the tribe of Dan (Rev. 7:2-8)--"are high priests, ordained unto the holy order of God, to adminimster the everlasting gospel; for they are they who are ordained out of every nation, kindred, toungue, and people, by the angels (Peter, James, and John; which keys now reside in the first Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints) to whom is given power over the nations of the earth, to bring as many as will come to the church of the Firstborn." [How do you become a member of any Church in the Kingdom of God? By Ordiance]. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) They are part of "a great multitude, which whom shall have membership in the Church of the Firstborn and therefore be exalted beings [Members of this Church are exalted beings]. (Rev. 7:9-17; Heb. 12:22-24.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 546.)

Patriachal Chain.
Those who shall here after urle and reign in eternity as exalted beings will form a patriarchal chain which will begin with Father Adam and spread out until every exalted person is linked in. Exaltation consists in the continuatin of the family unit in eternity, and every family which so continuation of the family unit in eternity, and every family which so continues will find its proper place in the eternal organizational framwork which the Almighty has ordained. None [of the worthy] will be forgotten. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 558)

Patriarchal Order
...Those married in the temple in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage become inheritors of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and all the patriarchs and thereby enter into the patriarchal order. [When do they enter into this order? When they are married in the temple.] If the participating parties abide in the eternal marriage covenant, they shall reap the full blessings of patriarchal heirship in eternity where the patriarchal order will be the order of government and rule. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 559.)

Priestesses
see Calling and Election Sure, Celestial Marriage, Endowments, Exaltation, Kings, Melchizedek Priesthood, Priesthood, Priests, Queens. (these things are linked with becoming a priestesses.)
...Those women who go on to thir exaltation, ruling and reigning with husbands who are kings and priests, will themselves be queens and priestes. They will hold positions of power, authority, and perferment in eternity. (Gospel Kingdom, pp. 221-222, 229.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 596.)

Priesthood
As pertaining to man's existence on this earth, priesthood is the power and authority of God delegated to man on earth to act in all things for the salvation of men. It is the power by which the gospel is preached; by which the ordiance of salvation are performed so that they will be binding on earth and in heaven; by which men are sealed up unto eternal life, being assured of the fulness of the Father's kingdom hearafter; and by wich will govern the nations of the earth an d all that pertains to them. (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., pp. 136-200.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 594.) (Here we see that the fulness of the priesthood ordiances is to

Queens
See Calling and Election Sure, Celestial Marriage, Endowments, Exaltation, Kings, Melchizedek Priesthood, Priestesses, Priests (Linked)

If righteous men have power through the gospel and its crowning ordiance of celestial marriage to become kings and priests to rule in exaltation forever, it follows that the women by their side (without whom they cannot attain exaltation) will be queens and priestesses. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10) Exaltation grows out of the eternal union of a man and his wife. Of those whose marriage endures in eternity, the Lord says "Then shall they be gods" (D. & C. 132:20); that is , each of them, the man and the woman, will be a god. As such they will rule over their dominions forever. [Explain the word Elohim.] (Mormon Doctrine, p.613.)
Restoration of the Gospel
It is only throught the ordiances of his holy house that the Lord deigns to "restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fulness of the priesthood." (D. & C. 124:28; 127:8; 128:17.) [This would be a good place to talk about the fulness and the Priesthood and show that the Lord restored this so that we would receive the full blessings.] (Mormon Doctrine, p. 637.)

Resurrection
...Those beings[s] resurrected with celestial bodies, whose destiny is to inherit a celestial kingdom, will come forth in the morning of the first resurrection. Their graves shall be opened and they shall be caught up to meet the Lord at his Second Coming. They are Christ's, the firstfruits, and they shall descend with him to reign as kings and priests durring the millennial era. (D. & C. 29:13; 43:18; 76:50-70; 88:97:98; 1 Thess. 4:16-17; Rev. 20:3-7.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 640.)

Sealing power (Priesthood side of Sealing; by Bruce R. McConkie; The Holy Seal of promise by him his who is anointed.)
Calling and Election Sure, Celestial Marriage, Elijah the Prophet, Endowments, Eternal Life, Exaltation, Keys of the Kingdom, Priesthood, Salvation for the Dead, Temples.

Whenever the fulness of the gospel is on the earth, the Lord has agents to whom he gives power to bind on earth and seal eternally in the heavens. (Matt. 16:19; 18:18; Hela. 10:3-10; D. & C. 132:46-49.) This sealing power, restored in this dispensation by Elijah the Prophet (D. & C. 2: 1-3; 110:13-16), is the means whereby "All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations" attain "efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead." (D. & C. 132:7.)
All things that are not sealed by this power have an end when men are dead. Unless baptism has this seal, it will not admit a person to the celestial kingdom; unless an eternal marriage covenant is sealed by this authority, it will not take the participating parties to an exaltation in the highest heaven within the celestial world.
All things gain enduring force and validity because of the sealing power. So comprehensive is this power that it embraces ordiances performed for the living and the dead, seals the children on earth up to their fathers who went before, and forms the enduring patriarchal chain that will exist eternally among exalted beings. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 115-128.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 684.)

D&C 132:19-24
Second Comforter
Calling and Election Sure, Comforter, Exaltation, Holy Ghost.
After a man so devotes himself to righteousness that his calling and election is made sure, "then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter," [the seal on what he has seen, Paul, Alma the younger]_the Prophet says. "Now what is this other Comforter? It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even he will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn." (Teachings, pp. 150-151; John 14:16-23; D. & C. 88:3-4; 130:3.) "The Holy Spirit of Promise is not the Second Comforter." (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, p. 55.)

Sons of God
The sons of God are members of his family and, hence, are joint-heirs with Christ, inheriting with him the fulness of the Father. (D. & C. 93:17-23.) Before gaining entrance to that glorious household, they must receive the higher priesthood (Moses 6:67-68), magnify their callings therein (D. & C. 84:33-41), enter into the new and everlasting covenant of marriage (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132), and be obedient in all things. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 8-9, 37-41, 59, 64-65.) Those who become the sons of God in this life (1 John 3:1-3) are the ones who by enduring in continued righteousness will be gods in eternity. (D. & C. 76:58.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 745.)

Temple ordiances
All of these ordiances of exaltation are performed in the temples for both the living and the dead. Their essential portions have been the same in all dispensations when the fulness of the sealing power has been exercised by the Lord's prophets. (D. & C. 124:28-41.)

Thrones
In the eternal sense, thrones are reserved for exalted persons who rule and reign as kings and queens in the highest heaven of the celestial world. It is in such a sphere that "God, even the Father, reigns upon his throne forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:92; Rev. 20:11.) After Christ has presented up the kingdom to his Father, "Then shall he be crowned with the crown of his glory, to sit on the throne of his power to reign forever and ever." (D. & C. 76:108.)
Then shall all those who are joint-heirs with him--who have been "crowned with the glory of his mighe," and "made equal with him" (D. & C. 88:107)--then shall they also sit upon their thrones and even sit down with our Lord on his throne. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am sent down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:21.) Enoch foresaw this state of exaltation and said: "Thou art God,... thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to thy throne." (Moses 7:59.)
In token of their kingship, sovereignty, and dominion, exalted beings shall sit on thrones in eternity. "All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ." (D. & C> 121:29.) "Abraham..hath entered into his exaltation and sitteth upon his throne," as also have other righteous saints of former ages. (D. & C. 132:29, 37.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 794.)

Washing of feet
...after the ordiance had been performed, our Lord said: "Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know thens things, happy are ye if ye do them." (John 13:13-17.)
December 27, 1832, this command was given to "the firs laborers in this last kingdom:: "Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75.) On that same occasion the command came to organize the school of the prophtes, with the express stipulation that "ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation; And he shall be received by the ordiance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted." [To make clean from the blood of this generation, not to enter just the school of the prophets but to enter a more exalted station even the highest of the kingdoms of the Celestial kingdom-No unclean thing can enter the kingdom of God.]

In the case of this school the ordiance is to be performed by the President of the Church. [But at other times it can be performed by those he gives this power.] In compliance with this revelation the Prophet on January 23, 1833, washed the feet of the members of the school of the prophets. "By the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation," he recorded. (History of the Church, vol. 1 pp. 322-324; vol. 2.p. 287.) [Did all of these brothern remain faithful to this ordiance?]
On Sunday, March 27, 1836, as part of the dedicatroy services of the Kirtland Temple, the congregation sang that glorious hymn, "The Spirit of God like a Fire is Burning!" One verse, as then sung, was:

We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed,
Withall not omitting the washing of feet;
For he that receiveth his penny appointed
Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat.

D. & C. 93:13. Continued form grace to grace.
From inteligence to intelligence; fro achievement to tachievement; for obedience to obedience; form glory to glory--such is the process whereby our Lord worked out his exaltation. Somilarly, as the prophet Taught: "You have got to learn how to be gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to God, the same as all gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another, and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation to exatation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead and are able to dwell in everlasting burnings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power." (Teachings, pp. 346-347.) (DNTC 1, p. 76-77

We go forward from grace:
1. We must learn how to be gods ourselves.
2. We must learn how to be kings and priests to God.
3. We go from one small degree to another then until we atain the resurrection of the dead-in otherwords all things have to be sealed upon us either in this life or proxie and then we must practice until we atain the final hurdle that of the resurrection of the dead then we will be "able to dwell in everlasting burnings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power."

D&C 132 must abide this law [plurality of wives]:
[Jesus is the Son of God, not of the Holy Ghost]
Just as Jesus is literally the Son of Mary, so he is the personal and literal offspring of God the Eternal Father, who himself is an exalted personage having a tangible body of flesh and bones. (E. & C. 130:22.) Apostate religionists--unable to distinguish between the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost--falsely suppose that the Holy Ghost was the Father of our Lord. Matthew's statement, "she was found with child of the Holy Ghost," properly translated should say, 'she was found with child by the power of the Holy Ghost.' (Matt. 1:18.) Luke's account (Luke 1:35) accurately records what took place. Alma perfectly describes out LOrd's conception and birth by prophesying: Christ "shall be born of Mary,...she being a virgin, a precious and chosen vessel, who shall be overshadowed and conceive by the power of the Holy Ghost, and bring forth a son, yea, even the Son of God." (Alma 7:10.) Nephi spoke similary when he said that at the time of her conception, Mary "was carried away in the Spirit," with the result that the child born of her was "the Lamb of God, yea, event he Son of the Eternal Father." (1 Ne. 11:19-21.) As Gabriel told luke, he was the "Son of the hIghest" (Luke 1:32), and "the Higherst" is the first member of the godhead, not the third.
[The Holy Ghost should be a part of every marriage relationship overshadowing this most devine and holy of holy relationships held in the holy of holies of a man and wife.... For the Holy Ghost is given as a constant companion..... This is a perfect relationship when overshadowed by the third member of the godhead as was Mary and the Father the Perfect pattern of the highest sacrement of all sacrements..... (DNTC 1, p. 82-83.)

Only begotten Son:
Only Begotten in the flesh, meaning in mortality. This designation of our Lord signifies that he was begotten by Man of Holiness as literally as any mortal father begets a son. The natural processes of procreation were involved; Jesus was begotten by his Father as literally as he was conceived by his mother. [Heber J. Grants talk in Brigham City.]

Luke 3:38 Adam, which was the son of God
This statement, found also in Moses 6:22, has a deep and profound significance and also means what it says. Father Adam came, as indicated, to this sphere, gaining an immortal body, because death had not yet entered the owrld. (2 Ne. 2:22.) Jesus, on the otherhand, was the Only Begotten in the flesh, meaning into a world of mortality where death already reigned. (DNTC 1, p. 95.)

Keys of the kingdom shall be delivered up again unto the Father:
The keys of the kingdom are the rights and powers of presidency; they consist of the authorization and obligation to preside over the Chruch (shich is the kingdom of God on earth) and to regulate all of its affairs. In due course these keys were given to Peter, James, and John, and then to all the Twelve of that day. They were restored to Joseph Smith and his associates in this day and are now held by the living oracles of this dispensation. When the great gathering at Adam-ondi-Ahman takes place those who have held keys on earth will make accounting of their stewareships, Christ will take back the keys, and then the millennial era shall be ushered in, an era in which the rightful King of the kingdom shall riegn personally upon the earth. Finally, there shall be a day when the salvation of man shall be completed, a day in which the keys shall be returned to the Father. Or, as Paul expresses it, "Then cometh the end, when the [Christ] shall have delivered up the kingdom ot God, event he Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all aruthority and power." (1 Cor. 15:24; Mormon Doctrine, pp. 377-379.) (DNTC 1, p. 116-117.) [Parley pratts pictrue of exaltation kingdoms] Also 8th season, baptism etc.

Equal with God
Though the Father is greater than the Son and takes precedence over him, yet the Son is equal with the Father in the sense that the Father has given all things into the hands of the Son, and that the Son has attained all power, all attributes of godliness. (D. & C. 93:6-26.) In this same sense, all men who gain exaltation shall "receive their inheritance and be made equal with" the Father and the Son. (D. & C. 88:107; 93:27-34.) (DNTC 1, p. 191.)

I. V. Matt. 5:10.
This promise is to be understood literally Every living soul who is pure in heart shall see God, literally and personally, in this life, to say nothing of the fact that he shall dwell with and see him frequently in the celestial world hereafter. (Ether 3:19-20, 26; D. & C. 67:10-14; Teachings, pp. 9, 149-151.) [Zebidy Coultrin ROJS , David Jenson, D&C 132] "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 93:1.) (DNTC 1, p. 216.)

I. V. Matthew 7:17
What man among you, haveng a son, and he shall be stant out, and shall say, Father, open thy house that I may come in and sup with thee, will not say, Come in, my son; for mine is thine, and thine is mine? [Asking for ordiances of the Gospel....Kings & Priests]

Matt. 7:13. Strait gate.

Gospel Mysteries

Not straight, but s-t-r-a-i-t, meaning narrow, restricted, limited. By entering the strait gate men ge on the path which is both strait and which leads to eternal reward hereafter. Baptism is the strait gate which puts men on the pathe leading to the celestial world; the new and everlasting covenant of marriage is athe strait gate which starts men and women out in the direction of exaltation in the highest heaven of that world. (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 694-695.) (DNTC 1, p. 250.)

Matt 7:15. Prophets
"A prophet is a person who knows by personal revelation from the Holy Ghost that Jesus is the Son of God, 'for the testimony of Jesus i the spirit of prophecy.' (Rev. 19:10; Teachings, pp. 119, 312.) Accordingly, every prophet bears record of Christ. 'To him give all the prophets witness' (Acts 10:43; Jac. 4:4), and if a professing minister of salvation is not a witness for Christ, he is not a prophet.

"Nothing more than the testimony of Jesus is needed to make a person a prophet; and if this revealed knowledge has not been received, a person is not a prophet, no matter how many other talents or gifts he may have. But when a person has received revelation from the Spirit certifying to the divinity of christ, he is then in a position to press forward in righteousness and gain other revelations including those which foretell futrue events. On this basis, should the necessity arise, those who are prophets are in a position where they 'could prophesy of all things.' (Mosiah 5:3.)...
"The mission of porphets is not alone to fortell the futrue. even more important is the witness they bear to the living of the divinity of Christ, the teachings they give of the plan od salvation, and the ordiances which they perfrm for their fellowmen. All of the great prophets are possessors of the Melchizedek Priesthood; as legal administratiors some have possessed keys enableing them to administer the fulness of gospel ordiances." (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 544-547.) (DNTC 1, p. 251-252.)
[D&C 132:19-24).
Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God
[Peter names the Christ... the Christ, the son of the living God.]
Peter spoke as the Holy Ghost gave him utterance, bearing his own personal testimony and acting as mouth for his brethren of the Twelve. But great and majestic as Peter's confession was, it brought forth no new or novel doctrine; it was not forthcoming as the climax of a long period of training and schooling which convinced the apostles that their Master was the Messiah, as some have falsely supposed. Rather, it was the spoken averment of what had long been in the hearts of each of them; it was a plain and inspired restatement of the same testimony the true disciples had been bearing from the very time of Jesus's birth.

Shepherds to whom his birth was announced (Luke 2:7-20), Simon and Anna in the temple (Luke 2:25-39), wise men from the east (Matt. 2:1-12), John the Baptist (John 1:1-36; 3:22-36; Matt. 3), Elizabeth (Luke 1:41-45), Andrew (John 1:37-42), Phillip (John 4:28-29, 39), the apostles as a group (Matt. 14:33), mortal men possessed with devils (Luke 4:33-37), the people generally (Matt. 9:27; 12:23; 15:22)--all these on previous occasions, using language having exactly the same sense and meaning as Peter's, had born testimony of our Lord's divine Sonship. and for that matter, he himself had taken frequent opportunity, both in plain language and by symbols which were clearly understood by his Jewish hearers, to bear testimony of his own divinity. (Luke 2:41-50; 4:16-32; John 2:13-22; 3:13-21; 4:4-45; 5:17-47; Matt. 12:1-8.) (DNTC 1, p. 382.)

Perfect unity and love should prevail in the Chruch and kingdom of God on earth. every member of the great brotherhood of christ is expected to fellowship every other member of the Chruch as a true brother or sister. "Let every man esteem his brother as himself,: the Lord said in our day. "I say unto you, be one; and if ye are not one ye are not mine." (D. & c. 38:24-27.) [If ye are not one ye are not mine all to become kings and priests the fulness, of the Father, Equal, least to the greatest.] (DNTC 1, p. 422.)

Though "there is none other God but one" for men on this earth to worship, yet "there be gods many and lords many" throughout the infinite expanse of eternity. (1 Cor. 8:4-7.) That is, there are many exalted, perfected, glorified personages who reign as gods over their own dominions. John saw 144,000 of them standing with Christ upon MOunt Zion, all "having his Father's name written in their foreheads" (Rev.14-1), which is to say that they were gods and were so identified by wearing crowns so stating. Indeed, to each person who overcomes and gains exaltation, Christ has promised: "I will write upon him the name of my God,: and he shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." (Rev. 3:12, 21.)
Joseph Smith said: "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a god to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) All exalted persons "are gods, even the sons of God." (D. & C. 76:58.) Through obedience to the whole gospel law, including celestial marriage, they attain the "fulness of the glory of the Father" [Even to the ataining of the Eternal Godhead themselves, they take a covenant: They themself in the eternal cycle will become God the 1st or Creator, one of their Sons will become God the Second or God the Savior and a third, God the testitator or witnessor....] (D. & C. 93:6-28.) and "a continuation of the seeds forever and ever. Then shall they be gods, because they have no ent; therefore shall they be form everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 491.)

Yet the total number who will gain salvation will be great and not small. John on one occasion saw in vision a group of exalted persons who exceeded 100,000,000 in number [men] (Rev. 5:9-11) and on another occasion he beheld a group of saved persons which formed such a great multitude that "no man could number" them. (Rev. 7:9.) (DNTC 1, p. 496.)

To have a correct understanding of the part marriage and divorce play in the divine scheme of things, at least the following principles must be known:
(1) Marriage and the family unit are the central part of the plan of progression and exaltation. All things center in and around the family unit in th eeternal perspective. Exaltation consists in the continuation of the family unit in eternity. Those for whom the family unit continues have eternal life; all others have a lesser degree of salvation in the mansions that are prepared.

(2) There was an eternal family in heaven to which all men belonged even before the creation of this earth. God himself, a personal being in whose image man is created, was and is the Eternal Father. All man are his spirit children and lived with him in the pre-existent firs estate.

(3) Celestial or eternal marriage is the gate to exaltation. To fill the full measure of his creation and obtain eternal life a man must enter into this order of matrimony and keep all of the covenants and obligations that go with it. If a couple is so sealed, the two persons become husband and wife in this life and continue in the same relationship in the world to come. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132.)

(4) There are also lessor order so marriage. Only the very elect qualify for celestial marriage. Others, even in the Church, are married by civil authority for the duration fo their mortal lives only. (DNTC 1, p. 546-547.)

John 12:45
And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me. Where is the Father; also, revelation of J.S. and Coltrin.

[Resurrection of Kings & Priests]
When the Lords comes the righteous dead shall come forth form their graves in celestial splendor and be caught up to meet him; and the righteous living, also, shall be caught up to meet him, and shall return to live and reign with him a thousand years. (1 Thess. 4:13-17.)

"The face fo the Lord shall be unveiled; And the saints that are upon the earth, who are alive, shall be quickened and be caught up to meet him. And they who have slept in their graves shall come forth, for their graves shall be opened; and they also shall be caught up to meet him in the midst of the pilar of heaven--They are chris's, the first fruits, they who shall descend with him first, and they who are on the earth and in their graves, who are first caught up to meet him." (D. & C. 88:95-98; 29:13; 133:56.) (DNTC 1, p. 680.)

D. & C. 45:55
"And because of the righteousness of his people, Satan has no power; wherefore, he cannot be loosed for the space of many years; for he hath no power over the hearts of the people, for they dwell in righteousness, and the Holy One of Israel reigneth." (1 Ne. 22:26.)

(NewT:John 13:Heading-20)
Washing of feet is a gospel ordiance; it is a holy and sacred rite, one performed by the saints in the seclusion of the temple sanctuaries. It is not done before the world or for worldly people. For this day and dispensation Jesus instituted it in the upper room at the time of the Last Supper.

"Our Lord did two things in the performance of this ordinance: 1. He fulfilled the old law given to Moses; and 2. He instituted a sacred ordinance which should be performed by legal administrators among his true disciples from that day forward.

"As part of the restoration of all things, the ordinance of washing of feet has been restored in the dispensation of the fulness of times. In keeping with the standard pattern of revealing principles and practices line upon line and precept upon precept, the Lord revealed his will concerning the washing of feet little by little until the ful knowledge of the endowment and all temple ordinances had been given.

"December 27, 1832, this command was given to 'the firs laborers in the last kingdom': 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your father, and your God and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75.) On that same occasion the command came to organize the school of the prophets, with the express stipulation that 'ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation ["is clean every whit: and ye are clean" (John 13:10); [The same would hold true to enter the Highest Degree in the Celestial Kingdom; all saints from the least to the greatest must be washed and pronounced clean ever whit that "I [Jesus Christ] may testify unto you Father, and you God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75)] And he shall be received by the ordiance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted.' (D. & C. 88:127-141.)

"In the case of this school the ordinance is to be performed by the President of the Church. [This would indicate that others would receive this ordiance from the legal administrators appointed by the President of the Church or First Presidency.] In compliance with this revelaton the Prophet on January 23, 1833, washed the feet of the members of the school of the prophets. 'By the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation," he recorded. (History of the Church, vol. 1, pp. 322-324; vol. 2, p. 287.)

"Later apostles were called and ordained, and on November 12, 1835, the Prophet addressed them, as pertaining to the washing of feet where they were concerned: 'The item to which I wish the more particularly to call your attention tonight is the ordinance of washing of feet. This we [meaning the Twelve] have not done as yet, but it is necessary now, as much as it was in the days of the Savior; and we must have a place prepared, that we may attend to this ordinance aside from the world.

"'We have not desired as much from the hand of the Lord through faith and obedience, as we ought to have done, yet we have enjoyed great blessings, and we are not so sensible of this as we should be.... We must have all things prepared, and call our solemn assembly as the Lord has commanded us, that we may be able to accomplish his great work, and it must be done in God's own way. The house of the Lord must be prepared, and the solemn assembly called and organized in it, according to the order of ht ehouse of God; and in it we mus attend to the ordance of washing of feet. It was never intended for any but official members. It is calculated to unite our hearts, that we may be one in feeling and sentiment, and that our faith may be strong, so the Satan cannot overthrow us, nor have any power over us here.

"'The endowment you are so anxious about, you cannot comprehend now, nor could Gabriel explain it to the understanding of your dark minds; but strive to be prepared in your hearts, be faithful in all things, that when we meet in the solemn assembly, that is, when such as God shall name out of all the official shall meet, we must be clean ever whit.... The order of the house of God has been, and ever will be, the same, even after Christ comes; and after the termination of the thousand years it will be the same; and we shall finally enter the celestial kingdom of God, and enjoy it forever.' (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 308-309.)

"On Sunday, March 27, 1836, as part of the dedicatory services fo the Kirtland Temple, the congregation sang the glorious hymn, 'The Spirit of God Like a Fire is Burning!' One verse, as then sung, was:

> "'We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed,
> Withal not omittin the washing of feet;
> For he that receiveth his penny appointed
> Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat.'

[In otherwords all saints who intend to enter the Lords Kingdom before he comes in glory must have this ordiance performed or done by proxie or they cannot enter the Lords Kingdom, "For no unclean thing can enter the kingdom of God", and again it must needs be that we must "not omitt the washing of feet" and "must be "clean [every whit] at the harvest of wheat." And again, the Lord has commanded 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean [every whit] from the blood of this wicked generation.' (D. & C. 88:74-75.)

"On March 29 and 30, 1836, the leading brethren, including the First Presidency, Council of the Twelve, bishoprics, and preidents of quorums, participated in the ordiance of washing of feet. (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 426, 430-431.)

"It should be remembered that the endowment given in the Kirtland Temple was only a partial endowment, and that the full endowment was not performed until the saints had established themselves in Nauvoo. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 241-242.) The full endowment--referred to in the revelation dated January 19, 1841 (D. & C. 124:36-41)--including washings and anointings except under unusual circumstances, is designed to be administered in the temples of the Lord. Thus the knowledge relative to the washing of feet has been revealed step by step in this day until a full knowledge is now in corporated in the revaled ordiances of the Lord's house. Obviously the apostate peoples of the world, being without revelation to guide them, cannot comply with our Lord's command given on the occasion of the last supper." (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 751-753.) (DNTC 1, p. 708-710.)

Joseph Smith said the meaning of Jesus' statement is: "In my Father's kingdom are many kingdoms." (Teachings, p. 366.)

I Go to prepare a place for you 'I go to prepare a place of exaltation for you, a place with me in the highest heaven of the celestial world (D. & C. 131:1-4), for "the desciple" shall "be as his master, adn the servant as his lord." (Matt. 10:25.) "Ye shall be even as I am, and I am even as the Father."' (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 1, p. 729.)

Jesus Discourses on the Two Comforters

These statements about the two Comforters climax and crown the teachings of the Son of God. We have no record of anything he ever said which can completely withdraw the curtain of eternity and open to the faithful a vision of the glories of God. Based on love, born of obedience, Jesus promises the saints that they can have, here and now in this life, the following:
(1) The gift and constant companionship of the Holy Ghost;

[a] the comfort and peace which it is the function of the Holy Spirit to bestow;

[b] the revelation and th sanctifying power which alone will prepare men for the companionship of gods and angels here after;

(2) Personal visitations from the Second Comforter, the Lord Jesus Christ himself, the resurrected and perfected being who dwells with his Father in the mansions on high; and

(3) God the Father--mark it well Phillip!--shall

[a] visit man in person,

[b] take up his abode with him, as it were, and

[c] reveal to him all the hidden mysteries of his kingdom.

Joseph Smith, as the Holy Ghost poured light and revelation into his soul, said this about the two Comforters: "There are two Comforters spoken of. One is the Holy Ghost, the same as given on the day of Pentecost, and that all Saints receive after faith, repentance, adn baptism. This first Comforter or Holy Ghost has no other effect than pure intelligence. It is more powerful in expanding the mind, enlightening the understanding, and storing the intellect with present knowledge, of a man who is of the literal seed of Abraham, than one that is a Gentile, though it may not have half as much visible effect upon the body; for as the Holy Ghost falls upon one of the literal seed of Abraham, it is calm and serene; and his whole soul and body are only exercised by the pure spirit of intelligence; while the effect of the Holy Ghost upon a Gentile, is to purge out the old blood, and make him actually of the seed of Abraham. That man that has none of the blood of Abraham (naturally) must have a new creation by the Holy Ghost. In such a case, there may be more of a powerful effect upon the body, and visible to the eye, than upon an Israelite, while the Israelite at first might be far before the Gentile in pure intelligence. "The other Comforter spoken of is a subject of great interest, and perhaps understood by few of this generation. After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and his election made sure, then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter, which the Lord hath promised the saints, as is recorded in the testimony of St. John, in the 14th chapter, from the 12th to the 27the verses. Note the 16, 17, 18, 21, 23 verses....

"Now what is this other Comforter. It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even he will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the First Born." (Teachings, pp. 149-151.) (DNTC 1, p. 735-736.)

"Therefore it is given to abide in you; the record of heaven; the Comforter; the peaceable things of immortal glory; the truth of all things; that which quickeneth all things, which maketh alive all things; that which knoweth all things, and hath all power according to wisdom, mercy, truth, justice, and judgment." (Moses 6:61.)

The Lord Jesus Christ himself, the Second Comforter, will appear personally to the faithful. Mortal men have power while in this life to see God. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 92:1.) The Brother of Jared, among others, is one who complied with this law and thereby saw the Lord. "Because of the knowledge of this man," the record says, "he could not be kept from beholding within the viel; and he saw the finger of Jesus, which, when he saw, he fell with fear; for he knew, that it was the finger of the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting. Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; and he did minister unto him." (Ether 3:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 738.)

John 14:23

Jesus here announces the supreme earthly reward for personal righteousness--a personal visitation to man of the Father and the Son. "John 14:23--The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance; and the idea that the Father and the Son dwell in a man's heart is an old sectarian notion, and is false." (D. & C. 130:3.)

He shall teach you all things

All things? yes, all things; and all things means all things. "And by the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know the truth of all things." (Moro. 10:5.) The revealed word says God knows all things and has all thruth, which means there is nothing he does not know and no truth he does not possess. Consequently, now and hereafter, in time or eternity, the Holy Ghost shall teach all things to deserving and eligible students.

[Incert Greggs disortation on the Holy Ghost...]

He shall testify of me (John 14:26)

Salvation centers in Christ. The Holy Ghost is Christ's revelator to bear witness of his divine Sonship and of the saving truths of his gospel. "The Holy Ghost," In Abraham's record this third member of the Godhead was called "God the third, the witness or Testator." (Teachings, p. 190.) As a Spirit personage, the Holy Spirit, by laws which are ordained, has power to speak to the spirit within man and to convey truth with absolute certainty. This revealed knowledge becomes a personal testimony to the recipient. By definition and testimony of the gospel is to know by personal revelation from the Holy Ghost that Jesus is the Christ through whom salvation comes; that Joseph Smith is the prophet who revealed anew to the world the saving truths of the gospel; and that the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints is the kingdom of God on earth. [He seals, approves, ratifies, confirms, sanctifies and seals all blessings, truths, and ordiances of the gospel upon you.]

He shall glorify me

The Father and the Son, through their ministries, as Jesus has just announced, glorify each other. (John 13:31-32; 14:13.) Now Jesus says the Holy Ghost shall glorify the Son--a thing which comes to pass because men believe the testimony of the Holy Ghost, so live as to gain exaltation, and thereby add dominions and kingdoms to the endless domains of the Father and the Son. See John 13:31-35.

All things that the Father hath are mine

This is true of Christ and of all exalted beings; it is the doctrine of joint-heirship. (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 361-362.) Each person who magnifies his calling in the Melchizedek Priesthood receives this promise: "All that my Father hath shall be given unto him." (D. & C. 84:38.) (DNTC 1, p. 756.)

Life eternal Also called everlasting life. "As used in the scriptures, eternal life is the name given to the kind of life that our Eternal Father lives. The word eternal, as used in the name eternal life, is a noun and not an adjective. It is one of the formal names of Deity (Moses 1:3; 7:35; D. & C. 19:11) and has been chosen by him as the particular name to identify the kind of life that he lives. He being God, the life he lives is God's life; and his name (in the noun sense) being Eternal, the kind of life he lives is eternal life. Thus: God's life is eternal life; eternal life is God's life--the expressions are synonymous. "Accordingly, eternal life is not a name that has reference only to the unending duration of a futrue life; immortality is to live forever in the resurrected state, and by the grace of God all men will gain this unending continuance of life. But only those who obey the fulness of the gospel law will inherit eternal life. (D. & C. 29:43-44.) It is 'the greatest of all the gifts of God' (D. & C. 14:7), for it is the kind, status, type, and quality of life that God himself enjoys. Thus those who gain eternal life receive exaltation; they are sons of God, joint-heirs with Christ, members of the Chruch of the Firstborn; they overcome all things, have all power, and receive the fulness of the Father. They are gods." (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 219-220.)

Included within eternal life is eternal lives meaning "a continuation of the seeds," or a "continuation of the lives" forever. which is a natural outgrowth of the doctrine of eternal marriage, the Lord taught the truth involved by paraphrasing the language of his Intercessory Prayer in this way: "This is eternal lives--to know the only wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent." (D. & C. 132:24.) [Why must we know God and Jesus Christ? We must know the Father because he is our creator. We must know his Only Begotten Son, because it is he who saves us and takes us back to the Father. And how do we know these great beings-By the Power of the Holy Ghost. So in essessence we must know all three and be like the Father and the Son to inherit exaltation-the type of life which they enjoy and live.]

Know thee the only true God
It is one thing to know about God and another to know him. We know about him when we learn that he is a personal being in whose image man is created; when we learn that the Son is in the express image of his Father's person; specified attributes and powers. But we know them, in the sense of gaining eternal life, when we enjoy and experience the same things they do. To know God is to think what he thinks, to feel what he feels, to have the power he possesses, to comprehend the truths he understands, and to do what he does. Those who know God become like him, and have his kind of life, which is eternal life. [Relate to Parents and Children...] (DNTC 1, p. 762.)

Peter failed on this occasion to testify as becometh one who is a special witness of the Lord, but so in effect had all the desciples, for thye all forsook him and fled. But Peter was not yet the man he was to be, for about fifty days hence, at Pentecost, he and all the saints were to receive the gift fo the Holy Ghost. Perhaps, then, th great lesson to be learned from this experience of the chief apostle is this: if men are to resist and overcome the world; if they are to stand valiantly in the Cause of Christ; if they are to be faithful and true in all things--they must have the gift of the Holy Ghost. (DNTC 1, p. 794.)

Types of Christ
Now, nearly every temptation that comes to you and me comes in one of those forms. Classify them, and you will find that under one of those three nearly every given temptation that makes you and me spotted, ever so little maybe, comes to us as (1) a temptation of the appetite; (2) ayielding to the pride and fashion and vanity of thise alienated from the things of God; or (3) a gratifying of the passion, or a desir for the riches of the world, or power among men. (David O. McKay, Conference Report, Oct. 1911, p. 59.)

No one ever receives the gospel until he gains a revelation from the Holy Ghost; the gospel is a spiritual matter and comes only by the power of the Spirit. (DNTC 3, p 43.)

The promise of the Father (Acts 1:4)
This promise was twofold: 1. They would receive the gift fo the Holy Ghost; and 2. They would receive a holy and sacred endowment, one reserved for the faithful, and of such a nature as to prepare them in all things to work out their salvation. (DNTC 2, p. 22.)

Three thousand souls (Acts 2:41.)
More than five hundred brethren saw the risen Lord, probably when he appeared on the mountain in Galilee. (1 Cor. 15:6.) Thus there could have been many priesthood barers available to perform these three thousand baptism. (DNTC 2, p. 43.)

Revelation is for everyone in the Church. "Thus saith the Lord"--to every member of his Church--"I, the Lord, am merciful and gracious unto those who fear me, and delight ot honor those who serve me in righteousness and in truth unto the end. Great shall be their reward and eternal shall be their glory. And to them will I reveal all mysteries, yea, all the hidden mysteries of my kingdom from days of old, and for ages to come, will I make known unto them the good pleasure of my will concerning all things pertaining to my kingdom. Yea, even the wonders of eternity shall they know, and things to come will I show them, even the things of many generations. And their wisdom shall be great, and their understanding reach to heaven; and before them the wisdom of the wise shall perish, and the understanding of the prudent shall come to naught. For by may Spirit will I enlighten them, and by my power will I make known unto them the secrets of my will--yea, even those things which eye has not seen, nor eard heard, nor yet entered into the heart of man." [The Spirit wispered these words to me, when he revealed the principle of plural wives to me.] (D. & C. 76:5-10; 121:26-28.) Joseph Smith said: "God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what he will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them." (Teachings, p. 149.) (DNTC 2, p. 320-321.)

Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost.

Two principles are here set forth: 1. Any man who has the Spirit praises Christ and testifies fo his goodness and mercy; and 2. Christ is and can be known by revelation from the Holy Ghost, and in no other way. Revelation is the sole and only sure source of knowledge about God and Christ and gospel truths. A knowledge of these things does not and cannot come by reason, research, or rationalization. God stands revealed, or he remains forever unknown. In keeping with this principle, Joseph Smith said that the latter part of verse three should read: No man can know that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." (Teachings, p. 223.) (DNTC 2, p. 365-367.)

Jesus taught that "the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things" (John 14:26), and the latter-day revelation on spiritual gifts says this about knowing of Christ's divinity by the power of the Spirit: "To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he was crucified for the sins of the world. To others it is given to believe on their words, that they also might have eternal life if they continue faithful." (D. & C. 46:13-14.) (DNTC 2, p. 367-368.)

1 Cor. 14:31
For ye may all prophesy on e by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted.

Who may prophesy? Who can receive revelation? To whom are visions and heavenly manifestations vouchsafed? Not to members of the council of the Twelve only, not to bishops and stake presidents alone, not just to the leaders of th Church. Rather, that God who is no respecter of persons and who loves all his children, speaks to every person who will head his voice. Prophecy is for all: men, women, and children, every member of the the true Chruch; and those who have the testimony of Jesus have the spirit of prophecy, "for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." (Rev. 19:10.) "Would God," said Moses, "that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his spirit upon them!" (Num. 11:29.) (DNTC 2, p. 387.)

1 Cor 14:39
Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues. [President Lemon - Do you know what the Lord told me...] What better disire can members of the Church have than this: in effect it means, Seek the Spirit, and the campanionship of the Spirit is the greatest gift men can receive in this life. (DNTC 2, p. 388.)

Ephesians 1:13-14
In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of yur salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise,
Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.

The Holy Spirit of Promise is the Holy Spirit promised the saints, or in otherwords the Holy Ghost. This name-title is used in connection with the sealing and ratifying power of the Holy Ghost, that is, the power given him to ratify and approve the righteous acts of men so that those acts will be binding on earth and in heaven. "All covenants, contracts bonds, obligations, oaths vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations must be sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, if they are to have "efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead." (D. & C. 132:7.)
To seal is to ratify, to justify, or to approve. Thus an act which is sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise is one which is ratified by the Holy Ghost; [How can something be ratified or approved if it has not already occurred... It can't. It first has to be preformed by the priesthood-thus the words "by him who is anointed" then ratifing seal that its right and correct by the Holy Ghost is put on the Priesthood ordiance and sealing.]is is one which is aproved by the Lord; and the person who has taken the obligation upon himself is justified by the Spirit in the thing he has done. The ratifying seal of approval is put upon an act only if those entering the contract are worthy as a result of personal righteousness to receive the the divine approbation. [Approbation means approval] They "are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true." (D. & C. 76:53.) If they are not just and true and worthy the ratifing seal is withheld.

When any ordiance or contract [Something entered into by the authority of the Priesthood or Name of Christ] is sealed by the Spirit, it is approved with a promise of reward, provided unrighteousness does not thereafter break the seal, remove the ratifying approval, and cause loss of the promised blessing [by the Priesthood (Christ) and the Holy Spirit]. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, p. 55; vol. 2, pp 94-99.) Seals are palced on contracts through righteousness.
The operation and power of the Holy Spirit of Promise is best illustrated by teh ordinance and contract of baptism. An unworthy candidate for baptism might deceive the elders and get the ordiance performed, but no one can lie to the Holy Ghost and get by undetected. Accordingly, the baptism of an unworthy and unrepentant person whold not be sealed by the Spirit; it would not be ratified by the Holy Ghost; the unworthy person would not be justified by the Spirit in his actions. If therafter he vecame worthy through repentance and obedience, the seal would then be put in force. Somilarly, if a worthy person is baptized, with the ratifying approval of the Holy Ghost attendin the performance, yet the seal may be broken by subsequent sin.
These principles also apply to every other ordiance and performance int he Church. Thus if both parties are "just and true," if they are worthy, a ratifying seal is placed on their temple marriage; if they are unworthy, they are not justified by the Spirit and the ratification of teh Holy Ghost is withheld. Subsequent worthiness will put the seal in force, and unrighteousness will break any seal.
Even if a person progresses to the state of near-perfection in which his calling and election is made sure, in which he is "sealed up unto eternal life" (D. & C. 131: 5; 132:18-26), in which he receives "the promise...of eternal life" (D. & C. 88:3-4), in which he is "sealed up unto the day of redemption" (D. & C. 124:124; Eph. 1:13)--yet with it all, these great promises are secured only if the "performances" are sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 361-362.)

Joseph smith said that the particular seal placed upon these Ephesians Saints was that their calling and elections had been made sure. (Teachings, pp. 149-151.) Theirs was the same promise and assurance given certain worthy persons in this dispensation to whom the Lord said: "Wherefore, I now send upon you another Comforter, even upon you my friends, that it may abide in your hearts, even the Holy Spirit of promise; which other Comforter is the same that I promised unto my disciples, as is recorded in the testimony of John. This Comforter is the promise which I give unto you of eternal life, even the glory of the celestial kingdom; Which glory is that of the church of the Firstborn, even of God, the holiest of all, through Jesus Christ his Son." (D.& C. 88:3-5)

Earnest of our inheritance
Earnest is something of value given to bind a bargain. Here God himself, by giving the ratifying seal of the Spirit, is guaranteeing campliance with his own covenant and promise, the promise of an inheritance of eternal life.

The redemption of the purchased possession
Christ has pruchased his saints, that is, those who are his have been "bought with a price" (1 Cor. 6:20), the price being his own "precious blood." (1 Pet. 1:19.) Now, these Ephesian Saints, building upon the foundation of our Loud's atoning sacrifice, having made their callings and elections sure; they have, in effect, worked out their salvation; they have pruchased, by good works, an everlasting inheritance with him who purchased them with his blood. (D. & C. 132:26.) (DNTC 2, p. 493-495.)

Colossians 3:1-4
If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.
Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth.
For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God.
When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.

Your life is hid with Christ in God
'Your calling and election has been made sure; you have been sealed up unto eternal life; the Lord has said unto you, "Son thou shalt be exalted" [did the Lord say this to Joseph Smith before or after his second annointing][good point- he said it to me before]; you have received the more sure word of prophecy.'
On May 16, 1843, Joseph Smith gave the following interpretation of Paul's phrase: "Putting my hand,: the Prophet said, "on the knee of William Clayton, I said: 'Your life is hid with Christ in God, and so are many others. Nothing but the unpardonable sin can prevent you from inheriting eternal life for you are sealed up by the power of the priesthood unto eternal life, haven taken the step necessary for that purpose. (History of the Chruch, vol. 5, p 391.) (DNTC 3, p 34-35.)

Here we see:
1. We are sealed up by the priesthood as was Clayton
2. We are sealed up by the words of the Father by the power of the Holy Ghost as was Joseph Smith and this can come one before the other..... But must have both - it is like a two signiture check...
3. Sealed up by and act from the priesthood
4. Sealed up by the power of the Holy Ghost....

Colossians 3:5-17
Holiness becometh the saints of the Lord! "Be ye holy,: saith the Lord. (Lev. 20:7.) There is no substitue for personal righteousness, for cleansing and sanctifying the human soul. Holy beings are saved beings. And so we now find Paul telling even those who are sealed up unto eternal life that they must press forward, forsaking all evil and cleaving unto all good. (DNTC 3, p. 36.)

Here we see that just because we are sealed up dosn't mean we are perfect or that we should be perfect before this is done for us.
D&C 132:19-Come forth in the next resurrection-buffitings of Saintan-it just means that we all must receive these ordiances and then through our faithfulness work to make them come forth.

Elect of God (Col 3:12)
Those foreordained persons who believe in Christ, accept his gospel, gain the blessings of the temple, and thereafter continue to walk in paths of truth and righteousness. (DNTC 3, p. 37.)

Saints Saved at Second Coming
1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 Salvation is given the saints--all of them, both the living and the dead--at the Second Coming. The living are caught up to meet their returing Lord, and with him they shall return to live on this earth, which will then be changed and received its paradisical glory. (Tenth Article of Faith.) When the living arrive at the age of a tree, 100 years, they shall be changed from mortality to immortality in the twinkling of an eye and shall then reign as kings and priests in exalted glory. (D. & C. 101:23-31.) [This means that they and their spouces have had all the ordiances available in the temple of the most high and can therefore be changed at any time as a twinkling of an eye. D&C 132:7.]

Also at our Lord's return, the righteous dead shall come forth from their graves with celestial bodies to meet their God. They, then, as kings and priests, [Meaning they are such before the resurrection, this ordiance performed either when they are alive or by proxie for them before they are raised.] (Rev. 5:10.) Thus the saints, whether they sleep in the Lord or live in the flesh until he comes, shall inherit glory and honor and salvation at his Coming. [Their Lamps are filled and one of the wise virgins and the have the Fulness of the Priesthood-all the ordiances of the New and Everlasting covenant of Marriage.] (2 Ne. 9:15-16.)

16-17.
"A trump shall sound both long and loud, even as upon Mount Sinai, and all the earth shall quake, and they shall come forth -- yea, even the dead which died in me, to receive a crown of righteousness, and be clothed upon , even as I am, to be with me, that we may be one." (D. & C. 29:13.) "And the saints that are upon the earth, who are alive, shall be quickened and be cautht up to meet him. And they who have slept in their graves shall come forth, for their graves shall be opened; and they also shall be caught up to meet him in the midst of the pillar of heaven--They are Chrit's [A Christ is one who is Annointed with the fulness of the Priesthood. Expand...] the first fruits, they who shall descend with him first, and they who are on the earth and in their graves, who are first caught up to meet him; and all this by the voice of the sounding of the trump of the angel of God." [I beheld an innumberable company of saints who had been promised by the Lord to come with the Lord in his glory--who need all the ordiances of the Gospel to make this prophecy come to pass-less the whole earth be waisted at his comming.] (D. & C. 88:96-98.) (DNTC 3, p. 52.)

Titus 1:2
As one of a host of faithful spirits in pre-existence, all of whom received a like blessing, Paul was foreordained to gain eternal life, including within which is the fact he was forordained to believe the gospel, to be baptized, to receife the Melchizedek Priesthood, to be married for eternity, and to make his calling and election sure--all of which he did. (DNTC 3, p 120.)
God is no respecter of persons, and few things are of lesser consequence thansocial casts or status. Rather, "he inviteth them all to come unto him and partake of his goodness; and he denieth none that come unto him, black and white, bond and free, male and female; and he remembereth the heathen; and all are alike unto God." (2 Ne. 26:33.) [Why.?] (DNTC 3, p 130-131.)

Hebrews 3:1
Wherefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling,...

The heavenly calling
The Melchizedek Priesthood, which is the "calling" from God through which eternal life is gained. (D. & C. 84:33-41.) (DNTC 3, p. 147.)

We which have believed do enter into rest
"True saints enter into the rest of the Lord while in this life and by abiding in the truth, they continue in tht blessed state until they rest with the Lord in heaven. (Moro. 7:3; D. & C. 84:17-25; Matt. 11:28-30; Heb. 3:7-19; 4:1-11.) The rest of the Lord, where mortals are concerned, is to gain a perfect knowledge of the divinity of the great latter-day work. 'It means entering into the knowledge and love of God, having faith in his purpose and in his plan, to such an extent that we know we are right, and that we are not hunting for something else; we are not distrubed by every wind of doctrine, or by the cunning and craftiness of men who lie in wait to deceive." It is "rest from the religious turmoil of the world; from the cry that is going forth, here and there--lo, here is Christ; lo, there is Christ." (Gospel Doctrine, 5the ed., pp. 58, 121-126.) The rest of the Lord, in eternity, is to inherit eternal life, to gain the fulness of the Lord's glory. (D. & C. 84:24.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 633.) (DNTC 3, p. 151.)

The word of God pierces the soul of man [The Holy Ghost]
The Holy Ghost is a personage of spirit, a spirit being ,a dn when he speaks to the spirit within man, knowledge and truth are conveyed with absolute surety. These wisperings of the Spirit are called the still small voice as is shown by the experience of Elijah on Mount Horeb. When the Prophet sought instructions from the Lord, "behold, the Lord passed by, and a great and strond wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the Lord; but the Lord was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake: and after the earthquake a fire; but the Lord was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voeice." (1Kings 19:11-12.) Then by the wisperings of the Spirit Elijah learned what the Lord wanted him to do. That these spiritual impressions can sink into the heart with a power transcending anything earthly is shown from Joseph Smith's statemrnt: "Thus saith the still small voice, which whispereth through and pierceth all things, and often times it maketh my bones to quake while it maketh mankfest." (D. & C. 85:6.) (DNTC 3, p. 152-153.) [This will go well Greggs Disortation-experience.]

"The priesthood is an everlasting principle, and exited with God form eternity, and will to eternity, without beginning of days or end of years.: (Teachings, p. 157.) Christ and others held the priesthood in pre-existence. Andam, the Prophet says, "obtained in in the creation, before the world was formed." (Teachings, p. 157.)
but as pertaining to his mortal ministry, Christ our Lord received the Melchizedek Priesthood here on earth, and was ordained to the office of a high priest therein, thus setting an example for others and being in all things the Prototype of salvation. With reference to the mortal receipt of the holy order which is his, and which he had afore used to create this and an infinite number of other worlds, and which he had in fact given to Melchizedek in the first instance, the Prophet says: "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtainted it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord." (Teachings, p. 308.) [Christ had to be Married and sealed up to eternal life] (DNTC 3, p. 156-157.)

God swears faithful shall be saved
Hebrews 6:12
12. The promises] The repeated promise of eternal life which God gives to his saints--when they receive his everlasting covenant (D. & C. 132:6), in connection with their baptism (2 Ne. 31:11-21), through magnifying priesthood callings (D. & C. 84:31-41), as part of celestial marriage (D. & C. 132:19), as part of patriarchal blessings (D. & C. 124:91-93, 124), and when their calling and election is made sure. (D. & C. 131:5, 132:19.) (DNTC 3, p. 163.)

Hebrews 6:10-20
He sware by himself] "By himself have I sworn, saith the Lord," was the language used by Deity in giving the promise of eternal life "unto Abraham." (Gen 22:15-16.) That is, God swore with an oath in his won name that Abraham would be saved, which divine assertation absolutely guaranteed the eventuality. Abraham's calling and election was thus made sure.
14. The Lord's oath to Abraham was: "In blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore.... And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." (Gen. 22:17-18.) By way of interpretation, the Lord said to Joseph Smith: "Abraham received promises concerning his seed, and of the fruit of his loins--from whose loins ye are, namely, my servant Joseph--which were to continue so long as they were in the world; and as touching Abraham and his seed, out of the world they should continue; both in the world and out of the world whould they continue as innumerable as the stars; or, if ye were to count the sand upon the seashore ye could not number them." (D. & C. 132:30.) 15. He obtained the promise] Abraham's seed, the house of Israel, the children of the prophets, those who are natural inheritors of the promises made to Abraham. (3 Ne. 20:25-26.) These heirs have the "right" to the priesthood. Speaking of this the Lord said to Abraham concerning his seed: "Igive unto thee a promise that this right shall continue in thee, and in thy seed after thee (that is to say, the literal seed, or the seed of the body) shall all the families of the earth be blessed, even with the blessings of th Gospel, which are the blessings of salvation, even of life eternal." (Abra. 2:11.) [Bruce R. McConkie, explained that Adam was a literal son of The Father and thus was his son--God himself possesed all the same blessings as Abraham and is bestowing them on his earthly kindom and family.....The Father is a father, grandfather and great - grandfather to all living and more importantly he is the Spirit Father of all of us.]

18 The hope set before us] Eternal life, the promise made to Abraham and his seed. (DNTC 3, p. 164-165.)

Hebrews 7:21
God swore an oath that Christ should be a priest forever; that is, though our Lord had possessed the priesthood in pre-existance, he would receive it anew in mortality and would have it forever--in time and in eternity. And this sets the pattern for all who become sons of God and joint-heirs with Christ.
"Every person upon whom the Melchizedek Priesthood is conferred receives his office and clalling in this higher priesthood with an oath and a covenant. The covenant is to this effect: 1. Man on his part solemnly agree to magnify his calling in the priesthood, to keep the commandments of God, to live by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of Deity, and to walk in paths of righteousness and virtue; and 2. God on his part agrees to give such persons an inheritance of exaltation and godhood in his everlastin presence. The oath is the solemn attestation of Deity, his sworn promise, that those who keep their part in the covenant shall come forth and inherit all things according to the promeise." [D&C 132:19.] (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p 480.) (DNTC 3, p. 173.)

Hebrews 12:14
Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lors:

Jesus said: "Blessed are the prue in heart: for they shall see God" (Matt. 5:8), meaning that every person who perfects his life shall see God, here and now, while he yet dwells in the flesh, and that if he continues in grace, he shall also see and dwell with him everlastingly in the realms of immortal glory.
As revealed to Joseph Smith, the divine law enabling man to see Deity is couched in thes words: "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who

[1] forsaketh his sins and
[2] cometh unto me, and

[3] calleth on my name, and

[4] obeyeth my voice [holy Ghost] [Greggs Disortation], and

[5] keepeth my commandments, [equalls]

[result]
[1] shall see may face and [act]

[2] know that I am [by the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know truth of all things] [seal of knowledge, comfirmation, surity, by the Holy Ghost." (D. & C. 93:1) [D&C 132:19-24]
Through Joseph Smith the Lord also said to all those who hold his holy priesthood: "It is [1] your privilege, and [2] a promise I give unto you that have been ordained unto this ministry, that inasmuch as
[1] you strip yourselves from jealousies and fears, and
[2] humble yourselves before me, for ye are not suffeciently humble,
[the result]
[1] the veil shall be rent and
[2] you shall see me and [act]
[3] know that I am [know by the Holy Ghost-seal of holy Ghost]-not with the carnal neither the natural mind [the emperical sences], but with the spiritual [the power of the Holy Ghost]. For no man has seen God at any time in the flesh, excetp quichened by the Spirit of God." (D. & C. 67:10-11.) And the revelation on priesthood says that without "the power of godliness," which is righteousness, "no man can see the face of God, even the Father, adn live." (D. & C. 84:21-22) [I think this means righteousness and the ordiances of God-we can not be in God's and Christ's presence and live as the Father lives with eternal lives....]
The Prophet also taught: "It is the priviledge of every Elder to speak of the things of God; and could we all come together with one heart oand one mind in perfect faith the veil might as well be rent today as next week, or any other time, and if we will but cleanse ourselves and covenant befoer God, to serve him, it is our privilege to have an assurance that God will protect us at all times." (Teachings, p. 9.) (DNTC 3, p. 227.)

Holy women
The Lord never sends apostles and prophets and righteous men to minister to his people without placing women of like spiritual stature at their sides. Adam stands as the great high priest, under Christ, to rule as a natural patriarch over all men of all ages, but he cannot rule alone; Eve, his wife, rules at his side, having like caliber and attainments to his own. Abraham is tested as few men have been when the Lord commands him to offer Isaac upon the altar (Gen. 22:1-19); and sarah struggles with like problems when the Lord directs that she withhold from the Egyptians her status as Abraham's widfe. (Abra. 2:21-25; Gen. 12:7-20.) Isaac gains from the Lord the promise that his seed shall "multiply as the stars of heaven" (Gen. 26:1-4); and Rebekah, his wife, receives a blessing of her own in which she is promised that she shall be "the mother of thousands of millions.: (Gen. 24:59-60.) And so it goes, in all dispensations and at all times when there are holy men there are also holy women. Neither stands alone before the Lord. The exaltation of the one is dependent upon that of the other.

Whose daughters ye are]
Brethren in the Church become "the seed of Abraham" by faith. (D. & C. 84:34.) That is, they believe what Abraham believed; they worship as Abraham worshiped; they are one with him in spiritual things--and are therefore considered to be his followers and sons, for "if ye be Christ's [Anointed ones], then are ye Abraham's see, and heirs according to the promise." (Gal. 3:29.) Thus, to identify the women in the Church as the daughters of Sarah is to testify that Sarah, and Abraham her husband, were also followers of Christ and believers in the same truths of salvation revealed anew in the Christian dispensation.

Heirs together] Neither men or women are saved alone. Salvation is a family affair. The fulness of the blessings of the gospel come to men and women together; they grow out of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. (DNTC 3, p. 302-303.) [Also, see Packers talk Tribute to Women, July 89 Ensign.)

1 John 1:3
Ye also may have fellowship with us] Fellowship connotates a community of interest, activity and feeling; it is the association enjoyed by a group of equals or friends. and in the Church, it is not the apostles only who are to see and hear and know and understand and feel and handle; it is all the saints who have fellowship with them, "for God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what he will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them, for the day must come when no man need say to his neighbor, Know ye the Lord; for all shall know him (who remain0 from the least to the greatest." (Teachings, p. 149.)
Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ]
John--himself soon to be translated--is the same state of fellowship with the Lord which was enjoyed by the three soon-to-be translated Nephite disciples, to whom the Lord said: "Ye shall have fulness of joy; and ye shall sit down in the kingdom of my Father; yea, your joy shall be full, even as the Father hath given me fulness of joy; and ye shall be even as I am, and I am even as the Father; and the Father and I are one." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Thus, John is here saying" 'Our fellowship is with the Father and the Son; we are one with them; they accept us as friends; and we shall be "equal in power, and in might, and in dominion" [D&C 132:19] (D. & C. 76:95), in that glorious day when we receive of their fulness and grace.' To have fellowship with the Lord in this life is to enjoy the companionship of his Holy Spirit, which makes us one with him; and to have fellowship with him in eternity is to be like him, having that eternal life of which he is the possessor and originator. [D&C 132:19.]

(DNTC 3, p. 374.)
1 John 2:3
And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. [Commandments are acts, after performing the acts and performances, and ordiances, then the Holy Ghost seals the truth of them upon us soul to soul and confirms to the inner man the absolute knowledge and surity of them...]

That John who recorded in his gospel account the great Intercessory Prayer, in which Jesus taught that life eternal consists of knowing the Father and the Son
[the Father 1st because he created us, and His Only Begotten Son 2nd because he saved us and brought us back to His Father and our Father...The Holy Ghost 3rd because it is he which testifies and teaches spirit to spirit the knowledge and truth of all theings.], [John] now announces how it is possible to know God. It is by obedience to the laws and ordiances of the gospel! And in no other way! Which is to say, among other things: There is not one scintilla of spiritual sense in the sectarian supposition that salvation is gained simply by saying: "I accept Jesus as my personal Savior."
Since the very fact of knowing God, in the ultimate and ful sense, consists of thinking what he thinks, saying what he says, doing what he does, and of being like him, thus having exaltation or godhood--it follows that saved souls must advance and progress until they acquire his character, perfections, and attributes, until they gian his eternal power, until they themselves become gods. (DNTC 3, p. 377.)

The elect lady
"An elect lady is a female member of the Church who has already received, or who through obedience is qualified to receive, the fulness of gospel blessings. This includes [1] temple endowments, [2] celestial marriage, and [3] the fulness of the sealing power. She is one who has been elected and chosen faithfulness as a daughter of God in this life, an heir of God, a member of his household. Her position is comparable to that of the elders who magnify their callings in the priesthood and thereby receive all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:38.) (DNTC 3, p. 410.)

Praying in the Holy Ghost
Praying by the power of the Holy Ghost, so that all requested petitions are granted, because "it shall be given you what you shall ask." (D. & C. 50:29–30; 101:27.) [I never would have gotten all this information on the fulness of the sealing blessings and the new and everlasting covenant of marriage unless I did as the Spirit directed me and asked for the blessing of being made a king and priest unto the most high god and Sheri a queen and priestess unto me.]

Revelation 1:6 Hath made us kings and priests] "Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood have power to press forward in righteousness, living by every word that proceedeth for from the mouth of God [this is mainly the wisperings of the Holy Ghost], magnifying their callings, going from grace to grace, until through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple they receive the fulness fo the priesthood and are ordained kings and priests. Those so attaining shall have exaltation and be kings, priests, rulers, and lords in their respective spheres in the eternal kingdoms of the great King who is God our Father." (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 425.) Those of whom John is here writing had already gained their rank and status as kings and priests, as have many also in the dispensation of the fulness of times. "John said he was a king." (Teachings, p. 375.)

Unto God and his Father] In one of the crowning sermons of his ministry, delivered June 16, 1844, just eleven days before his martyrdome, the Prophet Joseph Smith read as a text, Revelation 1:6, and announced: "It is altogether corrct in the translation." Then he proceeded with great power to consider the subject of a plurality of Gods. He quoted a number of Biblical passages and used his text verse to to show there was "a God above the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.: He said that all the faithful saints shall "come to dwell in unity, and in all the glory and everlasting bruning of the Gods; and then we shall see as we are seen, and be as our God and he as his Father. I want to reason a little on this subject. I learned it by translating the papyrus which is now in my house.

"I learned a testimony concerning Abraham, and he reasoned concerning the God of heaven. 'In order to do that,' said he, 'suppose we have two facts: that supposes another fact may exist--two men on the earth, one wiser than the other, would logically show that another who is wiser than the wisest may exist. Intelligences exist one above another, so that there is no end to them.'

"If Abraham reasoned thus--If Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and John discovered that God the Father of Jesus Christ had a Father, you may suppose that he had a Father also. Where was there ever a son without a father? And where was there ever a father without first being a son? Whenever did a tree or anything spring into existence without a progenitor? And everything comes in this way. Paul says that which is earthly is in the likeness of that which is heavenly. Hence if Jesus had a Father, can we not believe that he had a Father also? I dispise the idea of being scared to death at such a doctrine, for the Bible is full of it.

"I want you to pay particular attention to what I am saying. Jesus said that the Father wrought percisely in the same way as his Father had done before him. As the Father had done before? He laid down his life, and took it up the same as his Father had done before. He did as he was sent, to lay down his life and take it up agian; and then was committed unto him the keys. I know it is good reasoning." (Teachings, pp. 369-376.) (DNTC 3, p. 436-437.)

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before the angels. [One signiture on the check also need the Holy Ghost to do the same thing.]

The book of life] "In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is 'the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.' (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. (Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the even of wickedness [Non repentance-D&C 132:19 shows that they will be turned over to the buffetings of satan]. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 97.) (DNTC 3, p. 455.)

Rev 3:20-21

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. [D&C 132:19; 93:1]
To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

Sit with me in my throne] In conversation with Deity, Enoch said: "Thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to they throne." (Moses 7:59.) Thus: "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) 'Ye shall have eternal life; ye shall have exaltation; ye shall be gods; ye shall rule and reign forever on a heavenly throne.'

I...am set down with my Father in his throne] "I am even as the Father." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Speaking of those who are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked, "What is it?" and then answered: "To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone befoer. What did Jesus do? Why; I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came roling into existence. My Father workded out his kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to my Father, so that he may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take his place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of his Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all his children. It is plain beyond disputatuin, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel." (Teachings, pp. 347-348.) (DNTC 3, p. 462.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Rev. 7:3
Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)

The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted bgings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING O FKINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12-17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322-323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

Rev 22:4-5
And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

Aug 11, 1989
Gregg Christoffersen a friend, employer, and relative called me up on the phone and asked me and Tom if we would give him a blessing because he wasn't feeling good... I commenced to praying earnestly to know what the Lord wanted me tell his son Gregg. When Gregg arrived he offered a prayer of faith in which he prayed that we would be at peace and be guided to know what to bless him with in this ordiance.... These words penitrated me. The Spirit bore witness to me that we were performing a holy ordiance of God. As Tom Neff was anointing Gregg he said, "I anoint your head with this oil which has been dedicated and consecrated for the healing of the sick in the household of faith," The Spirit then pointed out to me in a flash of inspiration that Gregg had been anointed to health and that I would seal this anointing-this was the important thing his health was anointed and sealed by ordiance upon him to claim and become a reality this was the most important part of the ordiance the rest was words of prophect.....

The Lord told me to explain this to Gregg that:
[1] That we were preforming an ordiance of God which had been prepared from before the foundation of the world to heal his children in the household of faith,.
[2] He was anointed to health in the household of faith by an ambasitor acting in the stead of Jesus Christ Himself.... and
[3] This ordiance of anointing to health was Sealed by the priesthood to take place in the household of faith-The spirit taught me that if I said nothing else but I seal this anointing upon you this was all that was necessary this was the important thing...
[4] The blessing was the Prophecy part-the council from God by the power of the Holy Ghost to Gregg from his Eternal Father and Jesus whom the Father sent.
This is the same with all ordinances ie, receiveing the Holy ghost, is the sealing and anointing of the Father-the blessing is prophect and the words of the Eternal Father to us. The most important and necessary thing is the ordiance.... But all is necessary. "Men must be called of God by [1] prophecy and [2] by the laying on of hands [the ordiance]. This is the case we need the ordinance and the prophecy from the Father through the holy Ghost.
Another example is the ordiance of Naming and blessing of a baby
[1] The ordiance is naming a baby which is necessary part of progression and needed later for further ordiances in the temple of our Lord.
[2] the Blessing the prophecy and sealing of the parent

I also learned another thing while I blessed Gregg, that is that all Melchizedek priesthood barers have the power to [1] anoint and [2] seal up blessings upon the heads of others at least the anointing and sealing of the blessing of health in the household of faith.

MELCHIZEDEK WAS SHEM

1. Times & Seasons, Vol. 5:746, December 15, 1844; John Taylor.

From this definite account of driving the "nations apart, when the ancient hills did bow," all reflecting minds may judge that man was scattered over the whole face of the earth. And with the superior knowledge of men like Noah, Shem (who was Melchizedek) and Abraham, the father of the faithful. . .

2. Evidences & Reconciliations, p. 232; John A. Widtsoe.

There is an old Hebrew tradition that Melchizedek was none other than Shem, the son of Noah. As far as the age of Shem is concerned, that is possible. Shem lived five hundred two years after the flood, and Abraham was born two hundred ninety-two years after the flood. Abraham, therefore, must have known Shem.

THE THREEFOLD MISSION OF THE CHURCH
Compiled by Richard A. Ware
July, 1987

1. Program of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Chapter 16, pp. 123-124, by John A. Widtsoe of the Council of the Twelve Apostles; Supplementary Readings, Questions and problems by J. Wyley Sessions, Merrill D. Clayson; Published by The Department of Education of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1936.

The Threefold Obligation. The organized body of believers in the plan of salvation are under three heavy obligations. First, the Church must care for its members. All virtue begins at home. No organization transcends in usefulness the help it renders its members. Every member must be kept in the way to joy. lt is moreover to be remembered that holding the members of the Church in faithful service is quite as important as winning new members. How many remain true? That is a more important question than, How many are you converting? The members of the Church must receive constant, intelligent care.

Second, the Church must vigorously and incessantly spread the knowledge of the Gospel over the earth. lt is God's desire that all men be saved; the Gospel is [p. 124] for every soul. The Church as the earthly agent of the Lord must, therefore, attempt with all its might to teach the Gospel to the nations of the earth, to seek out those who may become interested in the message, and to convert those who are touched in their souls by the truth of the Gospel. Teaching, finding, converting, must be constant activities of the Church.

Third, in consonance with the doctrine of universal salvation, the ordinances of earth must be performed for the dead, who have died without knowing or accepting the Gospel. The dead retain in the spirit world the normal powers of the individual, and may at their option accept the work done vicariously for them in the temples of the Lord, so that they may travel the path that leads to the Kingdom of God. To give the dead such opportunities is a heavy responsibility of the Church.

These are three duties, carrying with them tremendous obligations which require a perfected organization for their performance.

2. A Course of Study for the Melchizedek Priesthood Quorums of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, "On Earth and ln Heaven", Lesson 13, Responsibility to the Quorum, pp. 94-96; published by the First Presidency of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1966.

PURPOSES OF THE CHURCH---
(a) Missionary Work

The scriptures reveal that there are three obligations placed upon The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The first responsibility is the preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. This charge to the leadership of the Church and to each member has been crystallized in the inspired statement of President David 0. McKay: "Every member a missionary." This responsibility was given to two brothers, David and John Whitmer, who sought through the Prophet Joseph Smith the answer to this important [p. 95] question: "What will be of most worth to me in life?" The Lord answered in these words:

And now, behold 1 say unto you, that the thing which will be of the most worth unto you will be to declare repentance unto this people, that you may bring souls unto me, that you may rest with them in the kingdom of my Father. Amen." (D&C 15:6; 16:6)

The injunction to make the message of the dispensation of the fulness of times known to the world was commanded in the "Preface" to the Doctrine and Covenants and also in the revelation known as the "Appendix." (Doctrine & Covenants 1:1718, 133:7-10.)

(b) perfect the Lives of the Members

The second obligation resting upon the Church is to perfect the lives of its members. When the Master told his ancient disciples and also the Nephite members of his Church that the goal of the Gospel Plan was perfection, he placed this obligation upon all who had accepted his plan. (Matt. 5:48; 3 Nephi 12:48). ln addition to instructions on missionary work, the revelation known as The Law includes the law of moral conduct, and the law concerning transgressors that must be heeded in order to reach the heights of salvation. (Doctrine & Covenants 42:4-29; 74-93.) The vehicle through which men and women may reach perfection is the Church. Eighteen months after the Church was organized, the Lord told his Prophet the ways in which the revelations received in 1831 had influenced the members of his Church by baptism in his true Church.

And inasmuch as they erred it might be made known; And inasmuch as they sinned they might be chastened, that they might repent;
And inasmuch as they were humble they might be made strong, and blessed from on high, and receive knowledge from time to time. (Doctrine & Covenants 1:24-28.)

lt is only through accepting the atonement of Jesus Christ that one may become perfect. (Doctrine & Covenants 20:37; 2 Nephi 31:17-21.) The Church provides opportunities for its members to enjoy the gift of the Holy Ghost whereby they may through service in the Church and a determined effort overcome weaknesses approach the goal of perfection. [p. 96]

(c) A Work For the Dead

Finally, the Church offers the person an opportunity to fulfill his commitment to his kindred dead by providing the means by which he might perform saving ordinances for the dead. Temples and genealogical resources are made available for this purpose; thus, the Church is meeting its third responsibility.

PRIESTHOOD MEMBER AND THE PURPOSES OF THE CHURCH

Gospel Mysteries

The purposes or responsibilities of the Church are also the obligations of each member of the Church. Through covenants made in baptism, the member enters a kingdom with laws, rules and regulations which become his way of life.

3. The Ensign/May 1981, p. 5; April General Conference of the Church, 1981; Address by President Spencer W. Kimball.

My brothers and sisters, as the Brethren of the First Presidency and the Twelve had meditated upon and prayed about the great latter-day work the Lord has given us to do, we are impressed that the mission of the Church is threefold:

* To proclaim the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people; * To perfect the Saints by preparing them to receive the ordinances of the gospel and by instruction and discipline to gain exaltation; * To redeem the dead by performing vicarious ordinances of the gospel for those who have lived on the earth.

All three are part of one work--to assist our Father in Heaven and His Son, Jesus Christ, in Their grand and glorious mission "to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man." (Moses 1:39)
Having these sacred principles in mind--to proclaim the gospel, to perfect the Saints, and to redeem the dead--we have endeavored these past six months to carry out our responsibilities among the Saints at home and abroad.

4. The Ensign/May 1982, p. 5; April General Conference of the Church, 1982; Address by President Spencer W. Kimball lt was exactly one year ago that 1 last attended conference here in the Tabernacle. As you may know, 1 was in the hospital at the time of the October 1981 conference. Last April 1 stated that the mission of the Church is threefold:

* First, to proclaim the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people; * Secondly, to perfect the Saints by preparing them to receive the ordinances of the gospel and by instruction and discipline to gain exaltation; * Thirdly, to redeem the dead by performing vicarious ordinances of the gospel for those who have lived on the earth.

All three are part of one work--to assist our Father in Heaven and His Son, Jesus Christ, in their grand and glorious mission "to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man." (Moses 1:39) I renew that declaration today.
Let us keep these sacred principles in mind and make them an integral part of our lives: that is, to proclaim the gospel, to perfect the saints, and to redeem the dead.

FILE:#36 NEW AND EVERLASTING COVENANT OF MARRIAGE

A promise to the faithful:

Gospel Mysteries

It is not a strong assurance or hope that the Latter-day Saints have that they will receive they blessing in the eternal worlds: but when the promise is sealed upon their heads that they shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection and be crowned with glory, immortality and eternal lives, there is a testimony from God, our Eternal Father in the heavens above, which rests down upon them and confirms the truth of these words upon the soul of a faithful man or woman. They know, when words are pronounced upon them by a man who has the authority, sealing upon them blessings, keys, thrones, principalities, powers and exaltations in the eternal Kingdoms of God our Father,... that these words are not the words of men but that they are the words of the Spirit of God inspiring that man and that God takes a record of that ordinance in the heavens and that it is sealed upon them and upon their children and that they will actually come forth in the morning of the first resurrection according to the promise. Hence, there is no fear of death in the mind of the Latter-day Saints. (July 19, 1874, JD 17:136-38; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 29.)

Power of Procreation Promised:

If I have children, if I have a wife, I shall have them in eternity. I shall preside over that family no matter how small it may be or how large it may extend. They will be my kingdom; for this is the promise of God. What is there that is more delightful in the contemplation of the future that this thought, that those with whom we are associated here, with whom our lives and happiness is entwined, who give unto us the greatest pleasure because of the love we have for them and they have for us, that that union shall be perpetuated throughout eternity and that there shall be an increase of that love and of that union and an increase also of that power, because the power of procreation is promised--the greatest power that man possesses on the earth. That is promised unto those who are faithful.
I know the world say this is materialistic, that we take wrong views of this, that we are not spiritual enough. Well, I am willing to have that charge leveled against me. I want to be materialistic in this sense. I want to enjoy that which we enjoy here, purified, exalted and increased beyond my comprehension or your comprehension at the present time; and we are to have this glory and this power; that Lord promises it unto us.
Therefore, it can be said of us as it was said of our Lord and Savior, "of the increase of His government there shall be no end." (Isaiah 9:7.) Why? Because of this principle that I spoke of--the principle of procreation. By it and through that principle the worlds are peopled. The planetary orbs which stud our heavens so gloriously are peopled by that principle--the principle of procreation. God possesses it, and we as His children inherit the power. If we do what is right, He promises to bestow it upon us. (Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 93.)

THE NEW AND EVERLASTING COVENANT OF MARRIAGE

It is sealed unto them (husband and wife, jointly or not at all) by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power and the keys of this priesthood;

1. It is sealed:

Gospel Mysteries

The Lord told Peter, I give you the power that whatsoever you shall bind [seal] on earth shall be sealed in heaven... This is indeed a literal sealing, something is to be sealed which cannot be broken, so special, so joyus, so inexpressible, so glorious, that the blessings which are contained in the "New and Everlasting Covant of Marriage and sealed upon us, fulfill the measure greatest of all expectations which mankind can conceive unto the fulness of Father which He has prepared to bestow upon us from before the foundations of the world and it was unto this virtue that we were born into this world.....

2.It is sealed unto them:

...the highest ordiances in the house of the Lord they receive together and equally, or not at all.

I could not possibly not possibly express the depth and the intensity of love and gratitude that I feel toward my wife, the mother of our children.

Without her, I could not have the highest and most endering blessings of this "priesthood after the holiest order of God" (D&C 84:18), this "holy priesthood after the order of the son of God" (D&C 107:3). For, "in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage]; And if he does not, he cannot obtain it." (D&C 131:1-4). (A Tribute to Women; Priesthood Restoration Fireside; Elder Boyd K. Packer; May 7, 1989)

They are one, the man receives unto himself that part which he by himself is not, and the woman receives unto herself that part which she is not. Thus the blessings are given to one entity which can creat offspring together or not at all.

When there is a devorce this is why they are not unsealed because they would lose all the blessings which are sealed upon them jointly. Therefore, they remain sealed until they are given to another as King Davids wifes were so that they can enjoy all the blessings which were sealed upon them and their posterity. These blessings are sealed upon them and should remain upon them forever. Therefore until they are given leagal and lawfully to another they retain these sealings until they can be unsealed and sealed to another with the same blessings.
3. The Holy Spirit of Promise:

Bible Dictionary p. 601-602
Abraham:
Abraham is always regared in the O.T. as founder of the covenant race, which is personified int eh house of Israel. He is the "father of the faithful." ...We also learn from latter-day revelation that because of Abraham's faithfulness he is now exalted and sits upon a throne in eternity (D&C 132:29, 37).

Celestial Marriage

|c131|v0 Instructions by Joseph Smith the Prophet, given at Ramus, Illinois,

Gospel Mysteries

May 16 and 17, 1843. HC 5:392-393.
1-4, Celestial marriage is essential to exaltation in the highest heaven; [Packer talk highest ordiances christ would have to be married to receive these blessings...]
5-6, How men are sealed up unto eternal life; [Same as above.....]
7-8, All spirit is matter.

|v1 In the celestial glory there are three heavens or degrees;
|v2 And in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage];
|v3 And if he does not, he cannot obtain it.
|v4 He may enter into the other, but that is the end of his kingdom; he cannot have an increase.
|v5 (May 17th, 1843.) The more sure word of prophecy means a man's knowing that he is sealed up unto eternal life, by revelation and the spirit of prophecy, through the power of the Holy Priesthood.
|v6 It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance.
(D&C: Section 131:Heading-6)

Book of Life
In a literal sense, the book of life, or Lamb's book of Life, is the record kept in heaven which contains the names of the faithful and an account of their righteous covenants and deeds. (D. & C. 128:6-7; Ps. 69:28; Rev. 3:5; 21:27.) The book of life is the book containing the names of those who shall inherit eternal life; it is the book of eternal life. (Dan. 12:1-4; Heb. 12:23; D. & C. 76:68; 132:19.) It is "the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world." (D. & C. 88:2.) Names of faithful saints are recorded in the book of life while they are yet in mortality. [When they receive the New and everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage they are written in the book, to come forth in the morning of the first reserrection or the next. Buffetings of Saintan...](Luke 10:20; Philip. 4:3; Teachings, p. 9.) But those names are blotted out in the event of wickedness. (Rev. 13:8; 17:8; 22:19.) (Mormon Doctrine p. 97)

Marriage
Latter-day revelation tells us that marriage under the law of the gospel and the holy priesthood is for eternity, and that men and women thus sealed in marriage continue to have children throughout eternity. (Bible Dictionary, p. 729)

Celestial Marriage
Marriages performed in the temples for time and eternity, by virtue of the sealing keys restored by elijah, are called celestial marriages. The participating parties become husband and wife in this mortal life, and if after their marriage they keep all the terms and conditions of this order of the priesthood, they continue on as husband and wife in the celestial kingdom of God.
If the family unit continues, then by virtue of that fact the members of the family have gained eternal life (exaltation), the greatest of all the gifts of God, for by definition exaltation consists in the continuation of the family unit in eternity. Those so inheriting are the sons and daughters of God, the members of his family, those who have made their callings and elections sure. They are joint-heirs with Christ to all that the Father hath, and they receive the fulness of the glory of the Father, becoming gods in their own right. (D. & C. 132; Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 58-99.)
Baptism is the gate to the celestial kingdom; celestial marriage is the gate to an exaltation in the highest heaven within the celestial world. (D. & C.

Gospel Mysteries

131:1-4.) To gain salvation after baptism it is necessary to keep the commandments of God and endure to the end (2 Ne. 31:17-21; to gain exaltation after celestial marriage the same continued devotion and righteousness is required. Those who have been married in the temples for eternity know that the ceremony itself expressly conditions the recept of all promised blessings upon the subsequent faithfulness of the husband and wife.
Making one's calling and election sure is in addition to celestial marriage and results from undeviating and perfect devotion to the cause of righteousness. Those married in the temple can never under any circumstances gain exaltation unless they keep the commandments of God and abide in the covenant of marriage which they have taken upon themselves. [This is true with all blessing conditional or unconditional for no unclean thing can enter the presence of God. Even those who receive their calling and election made sure and the fulness of the priesthood. William Clatons blessing all must be purged and clean and will come forth in the morning of the first resurrection or the next...]
Celestial marriage is a holy and an eternal ordiance; as an order of the priesthood, it has the name the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. Adam was the first one one this earth to enter into this type of union, and it has been the Lord's order in all ages when the fulness of the gospel has been on earth. Its importance in the plan of salvation and exaltation cannot be over estimated. The most important things that any member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints ever does in this world are: 1. To marry the right person, in the right place, by the right aughtoriy; and 2. To keep the covenant made in connection with this holy and perfect order of matrimony-thus assuring the obedient persons of an inheritance of exaltation in the celestial kingdom. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 117-118.)

Children of the covenant
According to the terms of the covenant which God made with Abraham, all of the literal seed of that great prophet are entitled to receive the gospel, the priesthood, and all the ordiances [even the crowning ordinaces] of salvation and exaltation. (Abra. 2:9-11; D. & C. 86:8-11.) When any of those descendants do receive all of these things, "They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, adn the church and kingdom, and the elect of God." (D. & C. 84:34.) [1. This means they are called and elected through priesthood ordiances, 2. They then need to make this calling and election sure with the seal of the Holy Ghost.....] They are then children of the covenant, that is, they are inheritors of the fulness of the blessings appertaining to the new and everlasting covenant which is the gospel. [This means that they receive all the fulness of the priesthood and have received all even the ordince, anointing, election, sealing of kings and queens, priests and priestesses and have the crowning blessings of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage sealed upon them.] "Ye are the children fo the covenant" (3 Ne. 20:24-27), our Lord told the Nephites among whom he ministered, a distinction which the faithful saints of this dispensation also enjoy. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 126.)

Church of the Firstborn:
Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who so devote themselves to righteousness that they receive the higher ordiances of exaltation, [namily all those ordiances and sealings contained in the New and everlasting covenant: We will use the dead for example: 1. washings and anointings, 2. the endowment, 3. Celestial marriage 4. The sealing of children to parents, 5. The washing of feet and being pronounced clean every wit, 6. kings and priests, queens and priestesses] become members of the Church of the firstborn. Baptism is the gate to ... [Salvation], but celestial marriage is the gate to [exaltation or] the Church of the Firstborn, the inner circle of faithful saints who are heirs of exaltation and the fulness of the Father's kingdom. (D. & C. 76:54, 67, 71, 94, 102; 77:11; 78:21; 88:1-5; Heb. 12:23.) The Church of the Firstborn is made up of the [Married Sons and Daughters] of God, those who have been adopted into the family of the Lord, those who are destined to be joint-heirs with Christ in receiving all that the Father hath. [This blessing is expressed in the New and everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage and therefore it is a Joint Blessing one that single people don't have..., The Angles in heaven are not members of this Church... D&C 132:19 This might nought be true I will have to study this out more....] "If you keep my commandments you shall receive of his fulness, and be glorified in me as I am in the Father; ...And all those who are begotten through me are partakers of the glory of the same, and are the Church of the Firstborn." (D. & C. 93:20-22; Doctrines of Salvation, vol, 2. pp. 9, 41-43.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 139-140.)

Cleanliness
Thus through thier faithfulness the elders have power to become clean from the blood and sins of this generation. (D. & C. 88:74-75, 85; 109:42; 112:33; 135:5; Ether 12:37.) (Mormon Doctrine, p, 147.)

Second Comforter

Crowns
Those who gain exaltation in the highest heaven of the celestial world [D&C 131; 132] shall wear crowns. Perhaps literal crowns may be worn on occasion-emblematic of their victory over the world and signifying that they rule and reign as kings and queens in the eternal house of Israel. But at all times they will be "crowned with honor, and glory, and immortality, and eternal life." (D. & C. 75:5.)
In the gospel sense, a crown is the sign and symbol of eternal exaltation and dominion, of godhood in the kingdom of God. Our Lord has been seen in vision wearing "a golden crown" (Rev. 14:14; 6:2; 19:12), and those surrounding the throne of Deity have been seen similarly identified. (Rev. 4:4, 10.) Paul speaks of such persons as having "an incorruptible" crown (1 Cor. 9:25) and as inheriting "a crown of righteousness" (2 Tim. 4:8); James says they "shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (Jas. 1:12); John records a similar affirmation (Rev. 2:10); and Peter speakes of receiving "a crown of glory that fadeth not away." (1 Pet. 5:4.) The crowns so spoken of are crowns of eternal life (D. & C. 66:12), of eternal life (D. & C. 66:12), of eternal lives (D. & C. 132:55), of celestial glory. (D. & C. 101:65.)
By keeping the commandments and enduring in righteousness to the end the saints overcome the world and gain crowns of glory in eternity. Hence the counsel: "Hold fast that which thouf hast, that no man take thy crown." (Rev. 3:11.) (Mormon Doctrine, p 173-174.)

Daughters of God
All women are the daughters of God because of their pre-existent birth as female spirits. However, the designation daughters of God, as used in the revelations, has a far more pointed meaning than this. Just as men who pursue a steadfast course toward exaltation become the sons of God while in this life, so women who walk hand-in-hand in obedience with them become the daughters of God. (D. & C. 25:1; 76:24; Mosiah 5:7.)
The temple ordiances, including celestial marriage, precede attainment of that membership in the household of God which makes one a daughter. Those who are adopted as daughters in this life will, if they continue faithful, gain exaltation in the world to come. (Doctrines fo Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 64-65) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 180.)

Death
...durring the millennial era, death and the resurrection shall take place instantaneously. They shall be cahnged from mortality to immortality in the twinkling of an eye, the spirit never having occasion to separate from the body, and in their cases this change is called death. (D. & C. 63:49-52; 3 Ne. 28.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 185.)
[How is this possile? They have all the ordiances of the gospel. D&C 132:7.]

Dreams
An inspired dream is a vision given to a person while he sleeps. "Behold, I have dreamed a dream; or, in other words, I have seen a vision," Lehi said. (1 Ne. 8:2.) All inspired dreams are visions, but all visions are not dreams. Visions are received in hours of wakefulness or of sleep and in some cases when the recipient has passed into a trance; it is only when the vision occures during sleep that it is termed a dream. (Isa. 29:17; Dan. 2; 7; 1 Ne. 1:16; Alma 30:28.)
As with other visions, inspired dreams foretell future events (Gen. 28:10-22; 31:24; 1 Kings 3:5; 1 Ne. 2:1-2; 3:2); angels appear and minister to faithful persons in their dreams (Gen. 31:11; Matt. 1:20; 2:13, 19); prophetic warnings are given by this means (Ether 9:3); and symbolic representations portrayed in dreams teach marvelous truths. (1 Ne. 8; 9; 1; 15:21.) Inspired dreams are th fruit and faith; they are not given to apostate peoples. (1 Sam. 28:6, 15.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 208.)

Eternal life
As used in the scriptures, eternal life is the name given to the kind of life that our Eternal Father lives. The word eternal, as used in the name eternal life, is a noun and not an adjective. It is one of the formal names of Deity. (Moses 1:3; 7:35; D. & C. 19:11) and has been chosen by him as the particular name to identify the kind of life that he lives. He being God, the life he lives is God's life; and his name (in the noun sense) being Eternal, the kind of life he lives is eternal life. Thus: God's life is eternal life; eternal life is God's live-the expressions are synonymous.
Accordingly, eternal life is not a name that has reference only to the unending duration of a future life; immortality is to live forever in the resurrected state, and by the grace of God all men will gain this unending continuace of life. But only those who obey the fulness of the gospel law will inherit eternal life. (D. & C. 29:43-44.) It is "the greatest of all the gifts of God" (D. & C. 14:7), for it is the kind, status, type, and quality of life that God himself enjoys. Thus those who gain eternal life receive exaltation; they are sons of God, joint-heirs with Christ, members of the Chruch of the Firstborn [again it is hinted that members of the Church of the Firstborn receive the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage and that their are no single people who are members of this Church]; they overcome all things, have all power, and receive the fulness of the Father. They are gods. [All these things are part of the seal of the new and everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage]

1. Sealed to overcome all things and come forth in the morning of the first resurrection or the next after they have been buffeted by satan and overcome all which suffering caused even God to tremble...
2. Sealed with all power.
3. Sealed to receive a fulness of the Father.
4. Sealed up to be as the father and where his title gods and godesses. D&C 132 Abraham, Isaac and Jacob have already received this and sit on their thrones...
(Mormon Doctrine, p. 237.)

Eternal lives
Those who gain eternal life (exaltation) also gain eternal lives, meaning that in the resurrection thy have eternal "increase," a "continuation of the seeds," a "continuation of the lives." Their spirit progeny will "continue as innumerable as the stars; or, if ye were to count the sand upon the seashore ye could not number them." (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132:19-25, 30, 55.)
"Except a man and his wife enter into an everlasting covenant and be married for eternity, while in this probation, by the power and authority of the holy priesthood,: the Prophet says, "they will cease to increase when they die; that is, they will not have any children after the resurrection." Then with reference to those who have been properly sealed in marriage and who have thereafter endured in righteousness until their callings and elections were made sure by revelation he adds: "But those who are married by the power and authority of the priesthood in this life, and continue without committing the sin agains the Holy Ghost, will continue to increase and have children in the celestial glory." (Teachings, pp. 300-301.)
The opposite of eternal lives is eternal deaths. Those who come up separately and singly in the resurrection and who therefore do not have spirit children eternally are said to inherit "the deaths." (D. & C. 132:16-17, 25.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 237-238.)
Eternal progression
...In the full sense, eternal progression is enjoyed only by those who receive exaltation. Exalted persons have all power, all knowledge, and all wisdom; they gain a fulness of truth, becoming one with the Father
Those who gain exaltation, having thus enjoyed the fulness of eternal progression, become like God. It should be realized that God is not progressing in knowledge, truth, virtue, wisdom, or any of the attributes of godliness. He has already gained these things in their fulness. But he is progressing in the sense that his creations increase, his dominions expand, his spirit offspring multiply, and more kingdoms are added to his domains. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 5-10.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 238-239.)
Eternity to eternity.
Those who become gods will then be from eternity to eternity, everlastingly the same, always possessing the fulness of all things and multiplying their race without end. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Momon Doctrine, p. 240.)

Everlasting to Everlasting
By gaining exaltation-which includes the fulness of the Father and "a continuation of seeds forever and ever"-men [and women jointly] become "gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue." (D. & C. 132:19-20.) That is, those who gain eternal increase, who have unending spirit children in the resurrection, have thereby become from everlasting to everlasting. Because of their eternal progeny they continue everlastingly without end; from eternity to eternity they are the same; and being perfected and exalted beings, their course never varies, nor is there shadow of turning to the right or the left.

Our Eternal Father, of course, now has this kind of and existence. "There is a God in heaven," the revelation says, of him "who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting the same unchangeable God." (D. & C. 20:17; 109:77.) Christ also describes himself as being "from everlasting to everlasting." (D. & C. 61:1; Ps. 90:2; Docrtines of Salvation, vol. 1, pp. 10-12.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 242.)

Exaltation
Celestial marriage is the gate to exaltation, and exaltation consists in the continuation of the family unit in eternity. Exaltation is eternal life, the kind of life which God lives. Those who obtain it gain an inheritance in highest of three heavens within the celestial kingdom. (D. & C. 131:1-4.) They have eternal increase, a continuation of the seeds forever and ever, a continuation of the lives, eternal lives; that is, they have spirit children in the resurrection, in relation to which offspring they stand in the same position that God our Father stands to us. They inherit in due course the fulness of the glory of the Father, meaning that they have all power in heaven and on earth. (D. & C. 76:50-60; 93:1-40.) "Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (D. & C. 132:16-26; Docrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 35-79.)
Although salvation may be defined in many ways to mean many things, in its most pure and perfect definition it is a synonym of exaltation. This was the way in which the Prophet used it when he left us this inspired explanation: "Where shall we find a prototype into whose likeness we may be assimilated, in order that we may be made partakers of life and salvation? or, in other words, where shall we find a saved being? for if we can find a saved being, we may ascertain without much difficulty what all others must be in order to be saved. We think that it will not be a matter of dispute, that two beings who are unlike each other cannot be saved; for whatever constitutes the salvation of one will constituet the salvation of every creature which will be saved; and if we find one saved being in all existence, we may see what others must be, or else not be saved.
"We ask, then, where is the prototype? or where is the saved being? We conclude, as to the answer of this question, there will be dispute among those who believe the Bible, that it is Christ: all will agree in this, that he is the prototype or standard of salvation; or, in other words, that he is a saved being. And if we should continue our interrogation and ask how it is that he is saved, the answer would be-because he is a just and holy being; and if he were anything different from what he is, he would not be saved; for his salvation depends on his being precisely what he is and nothing else; for if it were possible for him to change, in the least degree, so sure he would fail of salvation and lose all his dominion, power, authority and glory, which constitute salvation; for salvation consists in the glory, authority, majesty, power and dominion which Jehovah possesses and in nothing else; and no being can possess it but himself or one like him."
After quoting many passages of scripture, the record of the Prophet's teachings continues: "These teachings of the Savior most clearly show unto us the nature of salvation, and what he proposed unto the human family when he proposed to save them--that he proposed to make them like unto himself, and he was like the Father, the great prototype of all saved beings; and for any portion of the human family to be assimilated into their likeness is to be saved; and to be unlike them is to be destroyed; and on this hinge truns the door of salvation." (Lectrues on Faith, pp. 63-67.) (Mormon Doctrine, p 258.)

Family

Eternal families have their beginning in celestial marriage here in mortality. Faithful members of them continue in the family unit in eternity, in the highest heaven of the celestial world, where they have eternal increase. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132:16-32.) Perfect peace and a full endowment of all good graces attend such eternal families. By obedience to the laws of the gospel (which are celestial laws), Latter-day Saint families begin here and now to enjoy much of that peace, joy, love, and charity which will be enjoyed in eternal fulness in the exalted family unit. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 273.)

Parable of the Marriage of the King's Son:

|v1 And Jesus answered and spake unto them again by parables, and said,
|v2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son,
|v3 And when the marriage was ready, he sent forth his servants to call them which were bidden to the wedding: and they would not come.
|v4 Again, he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my my oxen and my fatlings have been killed, and my dinner is ready: therefore come unto the marriage.
|v5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise:
|v6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.
|v7 But when the king heard that his servants were dead, he was wroth: and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.
|v8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy.
|v9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.
|v10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.
|v11 And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment:
|v12 And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless.
|v13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
|v14 For many are called, but few are chosen; wherefore all do not have on the wedding garment.
11. Had not on a wedding garment] He had accepted the invitation (the gospel); joined with the true worshipers (come into the true Church); but had not put on the robs of righteousness (that is, had not worked out his salvation after baptism).

I.V. Matt. 22:14. 'Many are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb, to the Church and kingdom of God on earth, but few are chosed for salvation in the kingdom of god in heaven, because they do not keep the commandments.' See Matt. 20:16. (DNTC vol. 1, p. 598-599.)

Compared to the rest of the world comparatively few are chosen. But there are still many even a multitude that cannot be numbered and of those who are whereing their temple garment

In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have tolk you. I go to prepare a place for you. (John 14:2.)
It will not do for men to sit down and see their women & children destroyed patiently,--my text is on the resurrection of the dead, which you will find in the 14 ch. of John In my Fathers house are many mansions &c is should be In my Father's Kingdom are many kingdoms--in order that ye may be heirs of--God and joint heirs with me. (WJS p. 367-368.)
John 14:2d "in my Fathers Kingdom are many Kingdoms. I go to prepare a Kingdom for you, that the exaltation that I receive you may receive also." (WJS, p. 371.)

1st We see that there are many Kingdoms prepared for the righteous so "in order that we may be heirs of --God and joint heirs with [Christ]. (WJS, p. 367-368.)

2nd it appears that in this pariable that the Lord further gives qualifications for basic enterance in the Kingdom of the Father. 1. He said a person must be born of the water and of the spirit or he cannot be permitted into the kingdom of heaven. We learn from other scriptures this is the Gate.
2. Another qualification seems to be implied that all that are at the wedding must have the wedding garment on. This would appear to be another requirement. That:
1. A person must receive his own wedding garment through the New and everlasting covenant of Marriage. Or,
2. Be a single person (angle servant) who did not receive their own but is sealed to a Kingdom through the sealing of children to parents. This seems to be another qualification that all must have the wedding garment; either thier own, or a member of a kingdom of someone who has one through the sealing.
This seems to verify the importance of Elijah's mission. Behold I send you Elijah the Prophet before the comming of the lord and he shall give us the power of sealing and the seal the Children to the Parents lest the whole earth be wasted at his coming and no one is there to go to the wedding feast of the kings son.

What does it mean to be cast out because no wedding garement is worn? Hear are some possible angles of light:
1. Bruce R. McConkies explainations
2. Perhaps the wedding garment is additionaly representive of being single and not being sealed to someone's elses kingdom.
3. People have not received the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage.
4. They have received the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial Marriage but have not received the wedding garment or ratifing seal or garment the Holy Spirit of promise, the Holy Ghost.
5. In otherwords they were wedded after the order of the world, and all is lost. They are wedded after the order of the Priesthood by did not recieve the baptism of fire on that wedding or sealing and are cast out because it is not ratified....
For with all priesthood ordiances, 1st the Priesthood ordiances (baptism of water), then the ratification and seal of the Holy Ghost (the baptism of fire) both must be present or you can't receive the blessings and promises thereof.

Gospel Mysteries

Joint-Heirs with Christ

As the literal Son of God--the Firstborn in the spirit, the Only Begotten in the flesh--Christ is the natural heir of the Father. It thus became his right to inherit, receive, and possess all that his Father had. (John 16:15.) And his Father is possessor of all things: the universe; all power, wisdom, and goodness; the fulness of truth and knowledge; and an infinity of all good attributes. By heirship and by obedience, going from grace to grace, the Son attained these same things. (D. & C. 93:5-17.)

By obedience to the fulness of gospel law, righteous men are adopted into the family of God so that they also become heirs, joint-heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:14-18; Gal. 3:26-29; 4:1-7), inheritors of all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:33-41.) In his famous King Follett Sermon, speakin of those who "shall be heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked what their glory should be. Answering his own query, he described joint-heirship as inheriting "the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone before." (Teachings, p. 347.)

A joint-heir is one who inherits equally with all other heirs including the Chief Heir who is the Son. Each Joint-heir has an equal and an undivided portion of the whole of everything. If one knows all things, so do all others. If one has all power, so do all those who inherit jointly with him. If the universe belongs to one, so it does equally to the total of all upon whom the joint inheritances are bestowed.

Joint-heirs are possessors of all things. (D. & C. 50:26-28.) All things are theirs for they have exaltation. (D. & C. 76:50-60.) They are made "equal" with their Lord. (D. & C. 88:107.) They gain all power both in heaven and on earth and receive the fulness of the Father, and all knowledge and truth are theirs. (D. & C. 93:15-30.) They are gods. (D. & C. 132:20.) Celestial marriage is the gate to this high state of exaltation. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 24, 35-39; D. & C. 131: 1-4; 132.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 394-395.)

Kingdoms of Glory

Only those who are sealed in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage an who thereafter keep the terms and conditions of that covenant will attein the Highest of three heavens within the celestial Kingdom. (D. & C. 131:1-4.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 420.)

Patriarchal Order

...Those married in the temple in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage become inheritors of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and all the patriarchs and thereby enter into the patriarchal order. [When do they enter into this order? When they are married in the temple.] If the participating parties abide in the eternal marriage covenant, they shall reap the full blessings of patriarchal heirship in eternity where the patriarchal order will be the order of government and rule. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 559.)

If righteous men have power through the gospel and its crowning ordiance of celestial marriage to become kings and priests to rule in exaltation forever, it follows that the women by their side (without whom they cannot attain exaltation) will be queens and priestesses. (Rev. 1:6; 5:10) Exaltation grows out of the eternal union of a man and his wife. Of those whose marriage endures in eternity, the Lord says "Then shall they be gods" (D. & C. 132:20); that is , each of them, the man and the woman, will be a god. As such they will rule over their dominions forever. (Mormon Doctrine, p.613.)

I. V. Matt. 5:10.
This promise is to be understood literally Every living soul who is pure in heart shall see God, literally and personally, in this life, to say nothing of the fact that he shall dwell with and see him frequently in the celestial world hereafter. (Ether 3:19-20, 26; D. & C. 67:10-14; Teachings, pp. 9, 149-151.) "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 93:1.) (DNTC 1, p. 216.)

Know thee the only true God
It is one thing to know about God and another to know him. We know about him when we learn that he is a personal being in whose image man is created; when we learn that the Son is in the express image of his Father's person; specified attributes and powers. But we know them, in the sense of gaining eternal life, when we enjoy and experience the same things they do. To know God is to think what he thinks, to feel what he feels, to have the power he possesses, to comprehend the truths he understands, and to do what he does. Those who know God become like him, and have his kind of life, which is eternal life. (DNTC 1, p. 762.)

1 Cor 12:3
Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost.

Two principles are here set forth: 1. Any man who has the Spirit praises Christ and testifies fo his goodness and mercy; and 2. Christ is and can be known by revelation from the Holy Ghost, and in no other way.
Revelation is the sole and only sure source of knowledge about God and Christ and gospel truths. A knowledge of these things does not and cannot come by reason, research, or rationalization. God stands revealed, or he remains forever unknown. In keeping with this principle, Joseph Smith said that the latter part of verse three should read: No man can know that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." (Teachings, p. 223.) (DNTC 2, p. 365-367.)

Jesus taught that "the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things" (John 14:26), and the latter-day revelation on spiritual gifts says this about knowing of Christ's divinity by the power of the Spirit: "To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he was crucified for the sins of the world. To others it is given to believe on their words, that they also might have eternal life if they continue faithful." [Parents to children][Abraham] (D. & C. 46:13-14.) (DNTC 2, p. 367-368.)

1 Cor. 14:31
For ye may all prophesy on e by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted.
Who may prophesy? Who can receive revelation? To whom are visions and heavenly manifestations vouchsafed? Not to members of the council of the Twelve only, not to bishops and stake presidents alone, not just to the leaders of th Church. Rather, that God who is no respecter of persons and who loves all his children, speaks to every person who will head his voice. Prophecy is for all: men, women, and children, every member of the the true Chruch; and those who have the testimony of Jesus have the spirit of prophecy, "for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." (Rev. 19:10.) "Would God," said Moses, "that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his spirit upon them!" (Num. 11:29.) (DNTC 2, p. 387.)

Hebrews 12:14
Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lors:

Jesus said: "Blessed are the prue in heart: for they shall see God" (Matt. 5:8), meaning that every person who perfects his life shall see God, here and now, while he yet dwells in the flesh, and that if he continues in grace, he shall also see and dwell with him everlastingly in the realms of immortal glory.
As revealed to Joseph Smith, the divine law enabling man to see Deity is couched in thes words: "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who

[1] forsaketh his sins and

[2] cometh unto me, and

[3] calleth on my name, and

[4] obeyeth my voice [holy Ghost] [Greggs Disortation], and

[5] keepeth my commandments, [equalls]

[result]
[1] shall see may face and [act]

[2] know that I am [by the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know truth of all things] [seal of knowledge, comfirmation, surity, by the Holy Ghost." (D. & C. 93:1) [D&C 132:19-24]
Through Joseph Smith the Lord also said to all those who hold his holy priesthood: "It is [1] your privilege, and [2] a promise I give unto you that have been ordained unto this ministry, that inasmuch as
[1] you strip yourselves from jealousies and fears, and
[2] humble yourselves before me, for ye are not suffeciently humble,
[the result]
[1] the veil shall be rent and
[2] you shall see me and [act]
[3] know that I am [know by the Holy Ghost-seal of holy Ghost]-not with the carnal neither the natural mind [the emperical sences], but with the spiritual [the power of the Holy Ghost]. For no man has seen God at any time in the flesh, excetp quichened by the Spirit of God." (D. & C. 67:10-11.) And the revelation on priesthood says that without "the power of godliness," which is righteousness, "no man can see the face of God, even the Father, adn live." (D. & C. 84:21-22) [I think this means righteousness and the ordiances of God-we can not be in God's and Christ's presence and live as the Father lives with eternal lives....]
The Prophet also taught: "It is the priviledge of every Elder to speak of the things of God; and could we all come together with one heart oand one mind in perfect faith the veil might as well be rent today as next week, or any other time, and if we will but cleanse ourselves and covenant befoer God, to serve him, it is our privilege to have an assurance that God will protect us at all times." (Teachings, p. 9.) (DNTC 3, p. 227.)

A Tribute to Women by
Boyd K. Packer

This talk was delivered at the Priesthood commemoration Fireside broadcast by satellite from Temple Square on 7 May 1989. (July 1989, Ensign, p. 72-75.)

It is with reverence that I speak of the restoration of the priesthood. We commemorate the restoration, not the creation of it. The priesthood existed before the Lord appeared with others in the Kirtland Temple and restored the keys of the sealing authority. (See D&C 110:11-16.)
It did not begin when Peter, James, and John conferred the Melchizedek Priesthood and the keys of the kingdom upon Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery. (See D&C 27:12-13.) Nor when John the Baptist ordained them to the Aaronic Priesthood and gave them the keys to the ministering of angels. (See D&C 13.)
It was formed before Peter, James, and John received keys on the Mount of Transfiguration. It existed before Moses received it under the hands of his father-in-law, Jethro (See D&C 84:6), and before Abraham sought his "appointment unto the Priesthood according to the appointment of God unto the fathers" and paid tithes to Melchizedek. (See Abr. 1:3-4; JST Gen. 14:25-40.)
It was present before Enoch, even before Adam.
The prophet Joseph Smith revealed that the priesthood "existed with God from eternity, and will to eternity, without beginning of days or end of years" and that Adam obtained it "in the Creation before the world was formed."
(Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, sel. Joseph Fielding Smith, Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Co. 1938, p. 157.)
The Lord revealed that the priesthood and its ordinances were "instituted from before the foundation of the world" (see D&C 124:33-34), and commanded that a temple be built at Nauvoo as a place to "restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fulness of the priesthood" (D&C 124:34.) The scriptures reveal much about the priesthood, but they are not a handbook with references all gathered together in one place. They are scattered through the scriptures and were revealed at different times and in different places. Revelation continues: consider the recent announcement on the Seventy.
One must prospect through and dig into the scriptures like a miner searching for precious metal. Scattered here and there are nuggets, some pure, and some alloyed with other doctrines. Occasionally one strikes a rich vein which will yield all that you are willing to earn, for the scriptures do not explain not interpret themselves.
If I were to draw a prospector's map showing where I have found treasures on the priesthood, these are among the places I would mark: the old Testament contains many choice nuggets, including references to Melchizedek, King of Salem (now known as Jerusalem). There is much to be mined in the New Testament; the sixth chapter of Hebrews is a rich vein of doctrine on the priesthood.
In the Book of Mormon, the thirteenth chapter of Alma contains many treasures. No doubt the counsel was given in a priesthood meeting because Alma used the salutation "my brethren" more than once. He speaks of the priesthood being after "the order of [the Son of God]." (Alma 13:2.) He describes it as a "holy calling." (Alma 13:2, 4, 6.) He says of Melchizedek, "There were many before him, and also there were many afterwards, but none were greater." (Alma 13:19.)

Alma described the priesthood as "being prepared from eternity to all eternity...without beginning or end." (Alma 13:7-8.) It is a "holy calling. prepared from the foundation of the world for such as would not harden their hearts." (Alma 13:5.)

The Doctrine and Covenants holds veins of the richest and purest kind; sections 20, 76, 84, 107, 121, and 124 and examples.

In section 84 there is a genealogy which traces the priesthood back to Adam. (See D&C 84:6-17.) Another in section 107 (vs. 40-57) was included in instruction to the Twelve.

The Pearl of Great Price reveals how Adam received the priesthood. (See Moses 6:67.)

The priesthood, once defined as the authority given to man to act in the name of God, is not ours to remodel or change or modify or abridge. It is ours to honor and magnify.

From the beginning the priesthood has been conferred only upon the men. It is always described in the scriptures as coming through the lineage of the fathers. (See D&C 84:6, 14-16; 107:40-41; Abr. 1:3-4.)

While fathers and sons bear the burden of the priesthood, it was declared in the very beginning that it was not good for man to be alone. A companion, or "helpmeet," was given him. The word meet means equal. Man and woman, together, were constituted a fountain of life. While neither can generate life without the other, the mystery of life unfolds when these two become one. From the very beginning the power to beget life was unlawful to express except there be a marriage between the man and the woman. Marriage is a covenant of lifelong fidelity and devotion which, by ordiance, may last for eternity.

The whole physical universe is organized in order that man and woman might fulfill the full measure of their creation. It is a perfect system where delicate balances and counter-balances govern the physical, the emotional, an the spiritual in mankind.

The Lord revealed that the purpose of it all is "to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man." (Moses 1:39.) Ordinances and covenants were ordained to protect this power to generate life. When laws are obeyed, happiness follows, for "man are, that they might have joy." (2 Ne. 2:25.)

Ever and always there is the destroyer waiting to disturb and disrupt, to scatter abrasive into this marvelous system. His purpose is to rupture those circuits which interconnect the physical, the emotional, and the spiritual, or to cross-connect them in ways that never where intended. His purpose is to pollute that sacred fountain of life and to generate, if he can, unnatural affections. (See 2 Tim. 3:2-3.)

The process by which life is conceived belongs only to those who have been legally and lawfully married. It was meant from the beginning to be veiled in total privacy. It was never to be degraded in idle conversation or to be the subject of unworthy humor. It was never to be exposed to public view, detailed in novels, illustrated in books, or acted out upon the stage or in films. It is never to involve children. And it is never to be perverted, never to be sold, never to be bought for money.

The compelling need which draws a husband back to his wife is always to be expressed in tenderness and love. It is through this process that a wife may give her husband, and a husband his wife, a gift which can be received in no other way--the gift of children.

The separate natures of man and woman were designed by the Father of us all to fulfill the purposes of the gospel plan.

Never can tow of the same gender fulfill the commandment to multiply and replenish the earth. No two man or any number added to them, no matter how much priesthood they may think they possess, can do it. Only a woman can bestow upon man that supernal title of father.

She in turn becomes a mother. Can anyone dispute that her part is different from and more demanding than his? The mother must endure limitations while nature performs the miracle of creation.
Through her sacrifice, once again another spirit clothed in a mortal body crosses that frail footpath of life to experience mortality and the testing required in the plan of salvation.
The well-being of the mother, the child, the family, the Church, indeed of all humanity depends upon protecting that process. The obligations of motherhood are never-ending. The addition of such duties as those which attend ordination to the priesthood would constitute an intrusion into, an interruption to, perhaps the avoidance of, that crucial contribution which only a mother can provide.
The limitation of priesthood responsibilities to men is a tribute to the incomparable place of women in the plan of salvation.
The prophet who said that "no success [in any field of endeavor] can compensate for failure in the home" (David O. McKay) did not exempt callings in the Church.
Men and women have complementary, not competing, responsibilities. There is difference but not inequity. Intelligence and talent favor both of them. But in the woman's part, she is not just equal to man; she is superior! She can do that which he can never do; not in all eternity can he do it. There are complementing rewards which are hers and hers alone.
And blessings bestowed impartially upon man and woman alike include:
--Baptism;
--The gift of the Holy Ghost;
--The testimony of Jesus;
--Personal revelation;
--The ministry of angels;
--The responsibility to teach, to testify, to exhort, to edify and to comfort;
--The faith to be healed;
--And many other spiritual gifts.
All under a uniform standard for worthiness.
And the highest ordinances in the House of the Lord they receive together and equally or not at all!
It should not disturb either man or women that some responsibilities are bestowed upon one and not the other. Duties of the priesthood are delegated to men and are patriarchal, which means "of the father." From the very beginning this has been so. The scriptures plainly state that they were "confirmed to be handed down from father to son.... This order was instituted in the days of Adam." (D&C 107:40-41.)
Many in the world now press for a melding of the identities of man and woman, claiming that the virtue of equality requires a homogenization of all relationships. Following an absolutely hopeless quest, some seek for an enduring physical and spiritual relationship with one of the same gender. That wicked deception has unleashed a pestilence which now threatens the whole of humanity. There can be no fulfillment there. To find fulfillment, they must--and praise be to God, they can--find it where it has been from the beginning.
Some in the Church, following that trend in the world, have written doctrinal treatises trying to show that the scriptures provide for an exchange in the identities and responsibilities of men and women. They express concern that the leaders of the Church do not respond to their recommendations.
Lest they bring sorrow upon themselves and their loved ones, I call to their attention a caution in section 121, beginning with verse 16, part of which I will quote.
"Cursed are all those that shall lift up the heel against mine anointed, saith the Lord, and cry they have sinned when they have not sinned before me, saith the Lord, but have done that which was meet in mines eyes, and which I commanded them.... They shall be severed from the ordinances of mine house.... They shall not have right to the priesthood, nor their posterity after them from generation to generation." (D&C 121:16, 19, 21.)

"They themselves shall be despised by those that flattered them." (D&C 121:20.)
A similar caution applies to every man and boy who holds the priesthood. Have we not been told that "the rights of the priesthood are inseparably connected with the powers of heaven, and that the powers of heaven cannot be controlled nor handled only upon the principles of righteousness: and that "no power or influence can or ought to be maintained by virtue of the priesthood, only by persuasion, by long-suffering, by gentleness and meekness, and by love unfeigned"? (D&C 121:36, 41.)
Ought not those virtues by which the priesthood must govern apply first and always to our wives and children, to our families?
Jacob rebuked the brethren of his day, saying, "ye have broken the hearts of your tender wives, and lost the confidence of your children, because of your bad examples before them; and the sobbings of their hearts ascend up to God against you." (Jacob 2:35.)
It was not meat that the woman alone accommodate herself to the priesthood duties of her husband or her sons. She is of course to sustain and support and encourage them.
Holders of the priesthood, in turn, must accommodate themselves to the needs and responsibilities of the wife and mother. Her physical and emotional and intellectual and cultural well-being and her spiritual development must stand first among his priesthood duties.
There is no task, however menial, connected with the care of babies, the nurturing of children, or with the maintenance of the home that is not his equal obligation. The tasks which come with parenthood, which many consider to be below other tasks, ar simply above them.
Sister Packer and I have seven sons and three daughters. And that, I have often been heard to say, is about equal value. They, in turn, have given us daughters and sons-in-law, and grandchildren.
When our sons were growing up, they enjoyed a very broad tolerance from their father toward their mischief and mistakes. But there was no tolerance for even the slightest disrespect toward their mother.
And the question our daughters-in-law have matured, I have ordained each in turn to the priesthood. Somehow that seems the lesser part. I have but ordained them. She has born them, then trained and nurtured them.
They are not my children and my grandchildren. They are our children and grandchildren. They all share in the blessings of the priesthood.
I could not possibly express the depth and the intensity of love and gratitude that I feel toward my wife, the mother of our children.
Without her, I could not have the highest and most enduring blessings of this "priesthood...after the holiest order of God" (D&C 84:18), this "Holy Priesthood, after the Order of the Son of God" (D&C 107:3). For, "in order to the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage]; And if he does not, he cannot obtain it." (D&C 131:104.)
I know that the Son of God is our Redeemer. Reverently I give thanks to God the Father for the consummate blessing: a sweetheart, wife, companion, friend, a helpmeet, a woman! In the name of Jesus Christ, amen. (July Ensign, 1989, p. 72-75.)

In our own dispensation the lord revealed to the Saints that "unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom, but unto the world it is not given to know them." (D. & C. 42:65) Also--

> The power and authority of the higher, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18-19) [Husband needs this to preside over his family] ????MDD...????

From Joseph Smith's Inspired Translation of the Bible, we read that the fulness of the Priesthood comes "not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God." (Gen. 14:28) Willard Richards wrote in the Joseph Smith Diary that is Priesthood is for those who are--

> ...called, elected and made were without father, etc.; a priesthood which holds the priesthood by right from the Eternal Gods--and not by descent from father and mother. (words of Joseph Smith, p 244)

> And again, speaking of Hebrews 7:

> Paul is here treating of three different priesthoods, namely the priesthood of Aaron <Levitical>, Abraham <patriarchal>, and Melchizedek. Abraham's priesthood was of greater power than Levi's, and Melchizedek's was of greater power than that of Abraham. (Words of Joseph Smith, p.245-246)

> The Prophet Joseph stated that, "those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God,..." (TPJS, p. 322) He further explained this Priesthood order as--

> That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but of King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & law of endless life to man, & no man can attain to the joint heirship with Jesus Christ without being administered to by one having the same power & authority of Melchisedec. (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 245)

> In another instance, Joseph emphasized that the spirit of "Messiah is above the spirit and power of Elijah" (TPJS, p. 340), for--

> ... this greater priesthood administereth the gospel and holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God. For without this no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live. (D. & C. 84:19 & 22)

> In conclusion then, the Prophet stated that "the spirit of Elias is first, Elijah second, and Messiah last." (TPJS, p. 340) This highest power and authority of Priesthood was the kingly Priesthood which Peter referred to as the "Royal Priesthood" (I Peter 2:9), confirmed by the King of Kings–the Messiah Himself.

Those with the highest Priesthood may enjoy the following powers and privileges:

> Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that Priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy, and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam. (TPJS, p. 322)
>
> All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (DHC 5:424)
>
> The power and authority of the highest, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18–19)
> The object of every man should be to obtain the Priesthood and magnify his calling in that Priesthood until he proves himself worthy of the fulness of the ordinances of God's kingdom. Only then can he possess the power to have the heavens opened to him and commune with God the Father and His Son.

In our dispensation, the Lord has said: "every man might speak in the name of God that Lord, even the Savior of the world." (D. & C. 1:20) The prophet Jeremiah prophesied:

> Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jer. 31:31–34)
> The Lord stated further:
> ...I say unto you that mine eyes are upon you. I am in your midst and ye cannot see me; but the day soon cometh that ye shall see me, and know that I am; for the veil of darkness shall soon be rent, and he that is not purified shall not abide the day. Wherefore, gird up your loins and be prepared. (D. & C. 38:7–9)

|v19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you, (NewT:Galatians 4:19)

|v5 If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.
(NewT:James 1:5)

|v12 I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake.
(NewT:1 John 2:12)

|v13 I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one. I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the Father.
(NewT:1 John 2:13)

|v28 And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.
(NewT:1 John 2:28)

|v18 My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.
(NewT:1 John 3:18)

|v4 Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them: because greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world.
(NewT:1 John 4:4)

|v12 No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us.
(NewT:1 John 4:12)

|v14 And this is the confidence that we have in him, that, if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us:
(NewT:1 John 5:14)

|v15 And if we know that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him.
(NewT:1 John 5:15)

|v11 Do ye not remember the things which the Lord hath said?--If ye will not harden your hearts, and ask me in faith, believing that ye shall receive, with diligence in keeping my commandments, surely these things shall be made known unto you.
(BofM:1 Nephi 15:11)

|v35 Yea, I know that God will give liberally to him that asketh. Yea, my God will give me, if I ask not amiss; therefore I will lift up my voice unto thee; yea, I will cry unto thee, my God, the rock of my righteousness. Behold, my voice shall forever ascend up unto thee, my rock and mine everlasting God. Amen.
(BofM:2 Nephi 4:35)

|v6 The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion and fatling together; and a little child shall lead them.
(BofM:2 Nephi 21:6)

|v12 And then shall the wolf dwell with the lamb; and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf, and the young lion, and the fatling, together; and a little child shall lead them.
(BofM:2 Nephi 30:12)

Gospel Mysteries

|v15 Wherefore, I knowing that the Lord God was able to preserve our records, I cried unto him continually, for he had said unto me: Whatsoever thing ye shall ask in faith, believing that ye shall receive in the name of Christ, ye shall receive it.
(BofM:Enos 1:15)

|v34 I say unto you, that there are not any among you, except it be your little children that have not been taught concerning these things, but what knoweth that ye are eternally indebted to your heavenly Father, to render to him all that you have and are; and also have been taught concerning the records which contain the prophecies which have been spoken by the holy prophets, even down to the time our father, Lehi, left Jerusalem;
(BofM:Mosiah 2:34)

|v18 For behold he judgeth, and his judgment is just; and the infant perisheth not that dieth in his infancy; but men drink damnation to their own souls except they humble themselves and become as little children, and believe that salvation was, and is, and is to come, in and through the atoning blood of Christ, the Lord Omnipotent.
(BofM:Mosiah 3:18)

|v10 And again, believe that ye must repent of your sins and forsake them, and humble yourselves before God; and ask in sincerity of heart that he would forgive you; and now, if you believe all these things see that ye do them.
(BofM:Mosiah 4:10)

|v21 And now, if God, who has created you, on whom you are dependent for your lives and for all that ye have and are, doth grant unto you whatsoever ye ask that is right, in faith, believing that ye shall receive, O then, how ye ought to impart of the substance that ye have one to another.
(BofM:Mosiah 4:21)

|c15|v0 How Christ is both the Father and the Son--He shall make intercession and bear the transgressions of his people--They and all the holy prophets are his seed--He bringeth to pass the resurrection--Little children have eternal life.
(BofM:Mosiah 15:Heading)

|v25 And little children also have eternal life.
(BofM:Mosiah 15:25)

|v23 And now, he imparteth his word by angels unto men, yea, not only men but women also. Now this is not all; little children do have words given unto them many times which confound the wise and the learned.

(BofM:Alma 32:23)

|v22 Therefore, whoso repenteth and cometh unto me as a little child, him will I receive, for of such is the kingdom of God. Behold, for such I have laid down my life, and have taken it up again; therefore repent, and come unto me ye ends of the earth, and be saved. (BofM:3 Nephi 9:22)

|v37 And again I say unto you, ye must repent, and become as a little child, and be baptized in my name, or ye can in nowise receive these things.
(BofM:3 Nephi 11:37)

|v38 And again I say unto you, ye must repent, and be baptized in my name, and become as a little child, or ye can in nowise inherit the kingdom of God.
(BofM:3 Nephi 11:38)

|v8 And blessed are all the pure in heart, for they shall see God.
(BofM:3 Nephi 12:8)

|v8 Be not ye therefore like unto them, for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him.
(BofM:3 Nephi 13:8)

|v7 Ask, and it shall be given unto you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
(BofM:3 Nephi 14:7)

|v8 For every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened.
(BofM:3 Nephi 14:8)

|v9 Or what man is there of you, who, if his son ask bread, will give him a stone?
(BofM:3 Nephi 14:9)

|v10 Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?
(BofM:3 Nephi 14:10)

|v11 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father who is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?
(BofM:3 Nephi 14:11)

|v11 And it came to pass that he commanded that their little children should be brought.
(BofM:3 Nephi 17:11)

|v12 So they brought their little children and set them down upon the ground round about him, and Jesus stood in the midst; and the multitude gave way till they had all been brought unto him.
(BofM:3 Nephi 17:12)

|v21 And when he had said these words, he wept, and the multitude bare record of it, and he took their little children, one by one, and blessed them, and prayed unto the Father for them.
(BofM:3 Nephi 17:21)

|v24 And as they looked to behold they cast their eyes towards heaven, and they saw the heavens open, and they saw angels descending out of heaven as it were in the midst of fire; and they came down and encircled those little ones about, and they were encircled about with fire; and the angels did minister unto them.
(BofM:3 Nephi 17:24)

|v20 And whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, which is right, believing that ye shall receive, behold it shall be given unto you.
(BofM:3 Nephi 18:20)

|v28 And now I go unto the Father. And verily I say unto you, whatsoever things ye shall ask the Father in my name shall be given unto you.
(BofM:3 Nephi 27:28)

|v29 Therefore, ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for he that asketh, receiveth; and unto him that knocketh, it shall be opened.
(BofM:3 Nephi 27:29)

|v15 And now, O all ye that have imagined up unto yourselves a god who can do no miracles, I would ask of you, have all these things passed, of which I have spoken? Has the end come yet? Behold I say unto you, Nay; and God has not ceased to be a God of miracles.

Gospel Mysteries

(BofM:Mormon 9:15)

|v21 Behold, I say unto you that whoso believeth in Christ, doubting nothing, whatsoever he shall ask the Father in the name of Christ it shall be granted him; and this promise is unto all, even unto the ends of the earth.
(BofM:Mormon 9:21)

|v26 And after that he came men also were saved by faith in his name; and by faith, they become the sons of God. And as sure as Christ liveth he spake these words unto our fathers, saying: Whatsoever thing ye shall ask the Father in my name, which is good, in faith believing that ye shall receive, behold, it shall be done unto you.
(BofM:Moroni 7:26)

|v17 And I am filled with charity, which is everlasting love; wherefore, all children are alike unto me; wherefore, I love little children with a perfect love; and they are all alike and partakers of salvation.
(BofM:Moroni 8:17)

|v7 Ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. Amen.
(D&C: Section 4:7)

|v5 Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 6:5)

|v1 Oliver Cowdery, verily, verily, I say unto you, that assuredly as the Lord liveth, who is your God and your Redeemer, even so surely shall you receive a knowledge of whatsoever things you shall ask in faith, with an honest heart, believing that you shall receive a knowledge concerning the engravings of old records, which are ancient, which contain those parts of my scripture of which has been spoken by the manifestation of my Spirit.
(D&C: Section 8:1)

|v9 And, therefore, whatsoever you shall ask me to tell you by that means, that will I grant unto you, and you shall have knowledge concerning it.
(D&C: Section 8:9)

|v8 But, behold, I say unto you, that you must study it out in your mind; then you must ask me if it be right, and if it is right I will cause that your bosom shall burn within you; therefore, you shall feel that it is right.
(D&C: Section 9:8)

|v5 Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 11:5)

|v5 Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 12:5)

|v8 And it shall come to pass, that if you shall ask the Father in my name, in faith believing, you shall receive the Holy Ghost, which giveth utterance, that you may stand as a witness of the things of which you shall both hear and see, and also that you may declare repentance unto this generation.
(D&C: Section 14:8)

|v18 Ask the Father in my name, in faith believing that you shall receive, and you shall have the Holy Ghost, which manifesteth all things which are expedient unto the children of men.
(D&C: Section 18:18)

|v27 Yea, even twelve; and the Twelve shall be my disciples, and they shall take upon them my name; and the Twelve are they who shall desire to take upon them my name with full purpose of heart.
(D&C: Section 18:27)

|v28 And if they desire to take upon them my name with full purpose of heart, they are called to go into all the world to preach my gospel unto every creature.
(D&C: Section 18:28)

|v37 And again, by way of commandment to the church concerning the manner of baptism--All those who humble themselves before God, and desire to be baptized, and come forth with broken hearts and contrite spirits, and witness before the church that they have truly repented of all their sins, and are willing to take upon them the name of Jesus Christ, having a determination to serve him to the end, and truly manifest by their works that they have received of the Spirit of Christ unto the remission of their sins, shall be received by baptism into his church.
(D&C: Section 20:37)

|v18 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of my Spirit, which I will pour out upon you, and my word which I reveal unto you, and be agreed as touching all things whatsoever ye ask of me, and be faithful until I come, and ye shall be caught up, that where I am ye shall be also. Amen.

    (D&C: Section 27:18)

|v2 Behold, you have had many afflictions because of your family; nevertheless, I will bless you and your family, yea, your little ones; and the day cometh that they will believe and know the truth and be one with you in my church.

|v30 He that asketh in the Spirit asketh according to the will of God; wherefore it is done even as he asketh.
    (D&C: Section 46:30)

|v26 Behold, I say unto you, go forth as I have commanded you; repent of all your sins; ask and ye shall receive; knock and it shall be opened unto you.
    (D&C: Section 49:26)

|v29 And if ye are purified and cleansed from all sin, ye shall ask whatsoever you will in the name of Jesus and it shall be done.
    (D&C: Section 50:29)

|v30 But know this, it shall be given you what you shall ask; and as ye are appointed to the head, the spirits shall be subject unto you.
    (D&C: Section 50:30)

|c56|v0 Revelation given through Joseph Smith the Prophet, at Kirtland, Ohio, June 1831. HC 1:186–188. Ezra Thayre, who had been appointed to travel to Missouri with Thomas B. Marsh (52:22), was unable to start on his mission when the latter was ready. Elder Thayre was not ready to depart on his journey because of his involvement in the problems at Thompson, Ohio. See heading to Section 54. The Lord answered the Prophet's inquiry on the matter by giving this revelation.
    1– 2, The saints must take up their cross and follow the Lord to gain salvation;
    3–13, The Lord commands and revokes, and the disobedient are cast off;
  14–17, Wo unto the rich who will not help the poor, and wo unto the poor whose hearts are not broken;
  18–20, Blessed are the poor who are pure in heart, for they shall inherit the earth.
    (D&C: Section 56:Heading)

|v18 But blessed are the poor who are pure in heart, whose hearts are broken, and whose spirits are contrite, for they shall see the kingdom of God coming in power and great glory unto their deliverance; for the fatness of the earth shall be theirs.

(D&C: Section 56:18)

|v9 Lay your hands upon the sick, and they shall recover. Return not till I, the Lord, shall send you. Be patient in affliction. Ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 66:9)

|v11 For no man has seen God at any time in the flesh, except quickened by the Spirit of God.
(D&C: Section 67:11)

|v27 Let them ask and they shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto them, and be made known from on high, even by the Comforter, whither they shall go.
(D&C: Section 75:27)

|v22 For without this no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live.

|c88|v0 Revelation given through Joseph Smith the Prophet at Kirtland, Ohio, December 27, 1832. HC 1:302-312. It was designated by the Prophet as the "olive leaf...plucked from the Tree of Paradise, the Lord's message of peace to us." It appears from the historical records that portions of this revelation were received on December 27 and 28, 1832, and January 3, 1833.
1- 5, Faithful saints receive that Comforter which is the promise of eternal life;
6- 13, All things are controlled and governed by the light of Christ;
14- 16, The resurrection comes through the redemption;
17- 31, Obedience to celestial, terrestrial, or telestial law prepares men for those respective kingdoms and glories;
32- 35, Those who will to abide in sin remain filthy still;
36- 41, All kingdoms are governed by law;
42- 45, God hath given a law unto all things;
46- 50, Man shall comprehend even God;
51- 61, The parable of the man sending his servants into the field and visiting them in turn;
62- 73, Draw near unto the Lord, and ye shall see his face;
74- 80, Sanctify yourselves and teach one another the doctrines of the kingdom;
81- 85, Every man who hath been warned should warn his neighbor;
86- 94, Signs, upheavals of the elements, and angels prepare the way for the coming of the Lord;
95-102, Angelic trumps call forth the dead in their order;
103-116, Angelic trumps proclaim the restoration of the gospel, the fall of Babylon, and the battle of the great God;
117-126, Seek learning, establish a house of God [a temple], and clothe yourselves with the bond of charity;
127-141, Order of the school of the prophets set forth, including the ordinance of washing of feet.

    (D&C: Section 88:Heading)

|v63 Draw near unto me and I will draw near unto you; seek me diligently and ye shall find me; ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
    (D&C: Section 88:63)

|v64 Whatsoever ye ask the Father in my name it shall be given unto you, that is expedient for you;
    (D&C: Section 88:64)

|v68 Therefore, sanctify yourselves that your minds become single to God, and the days will come that you shall see him; for he will unveil his face unto you, and it shall be in his own time, and in his own way, and according to his own will.
    (D&C: Section 88:68)

|c93|v0 Revelation given through Joseph Smith the Prophet, at Kirtland, Ohio, May 6, 1833. HC 1:343-346.
    1- 5, All who are faithful shall see the Lord;
    6-18, John bore record that the Son of God went from grace to grace until he received a fulness of the glory of the Father;
  19-20, Faithful men, going from grace to grace, shall also receive of his fulness;
  21-22, Those who are begotten through Christ are the Church of the Firstborn;
  23-28, Christ received a fulness of all truth, and man by obedience may do likewise;
  29-32, Man was in the beginning with God;
  33-35, The elements are eternal, and man may receive a fulness of joy in the resurrection;
  36-37, The glory of God is intelligence;
  38-40, Children are innocent before God because of the redemption of Christ;
  41-53, The leading brethren are commanded to set their families in order.
    (D&C: Section 93:Heading)

|c97|v0 Revelation given through Joseph Smith the Prophet, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 2, 1833. HC 1:400-402. This revelation deals particularly with affairs of the saints in Zion, Jackson County, Missouri, in response to the Prophet's inquiry of the Lord for information. Members of the Church in Missouri were at this time subjected to severe persecution, and on July 23, 1833, had been forced to sign an agreement to leave Jackson County.
    1- 2, Many of the saints in Zion (Jackson County, Missouri) are blessed for their faithfulness;
    3- 5, Parley P. Pratt is commended for his labors in the school in Zion;
    6- 9, Those who observe their covenants are accepted by the Lord;
  10-17, A house is to be built in Zion in which the pure in heart shall see God;

18-21, Zion is the pure in heart;
22-28, Zion shall escape the Lord's scourge if she is faithful.

Gospel Mysteries

|v18 They that remain, and are pure in heart, shall return, and come to their inheritances, they and their children, with songs of everlasting joy, to build up the waste places of Zion--
(D&C: Section 101:18)

|v31 Behold this is my will; ask and ye shall receive; but men do not always do my will.
(D&C: Section 103:31)

|v4 And now we ask thee, Holy Father, in the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of thy bosom, in whose name alone salvation can be administered to the children of men, we ask thee, O Lord, to accept of this house, the workmanship of the hands of us, thy servants, which thou didst command us to build.
(D&C: Section 109:4)

|v2 While the pure in heart, and the wise, and the noble, and the virtuous, shall seek counsel, and authority, and blessings constantly from under thy hand.
(D&C: Section 122:2)

|v58 To prepare the weak for those things which are coming on the earth, and for the Lord's errand in the day when the weak shall confound the wise, and the little one become a strong nation, and two shall put their tens of thousands to flight.
(D&C: Section 133:58)

|v9 For I, the Lord, will judge all men according to their works, according to the desire of their hearts.
(D&C: Section 137:9)

|v52 And he also said unto him: If thou wilt turn unto me, and hearken unto my voice, and believe, and repent of all thy transgressions, and be baptized, even in water, in the name of mine Only Begotten Son, who is full of grace and truth, which is Jesus Christ, the only name which shall be given under heaven, whereby salvation shall come unto the children of men, ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, asking all things in his name, and whatsoever ye shall ask, it shall be given you. (PoGP:Moses 6:52)

|v11 While I was laboring under the extreme difficulties caused by the contests of these parties of religionists, I was one day reading the Epistle of James, first chapter and fifth verse, which reads: If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.

(PoGP:J Smith-History 1:11)

|v13 At length I came to the conclusion that I must either remain in darkness and confusion, or else I must do as James directs, that is, ask of God. I at length came to the determination to "ask of God," concluding that if he gave wisdom to them that lacked wisdom, and would give liberally, and not upbraid, I might venture.
(PoGP:J Smith-History 1:13)

|v14 So, in accordance with this, my determination to ask of God, I retired to the woods to make the attempt. It was on the morning of a beautiful, clear day, early in the spring of eighteen hundred and twenty. It was the first time in my life that I had made such an attempt, for amidst all my anxieties I had never as yet made the attempt to pray vocally.
(PoGP:J Smith-History 1:14)

|v18 My object in going to inquire of the Lord was to know which of all the sects was right, that I might know which to join. No sooner, therefore, did I get possession of myself, so as to be able to speak, than I asked the Personages who stood above me in the light, which of all the sects was right (for at this time it had never entered into my heart that all were wrong)--and which I should join.
(PoGP:J Smith-History 1:18)

|v26 I had now got my mind satisfied so far as the sectarian world was concerned--that it was not my duty to join with any of them, but to continue as I was until further directed. I had found the testimony of James to be true--that a man who lacked wisdom might ask of God, and obtain, and not be upbraided.
(PoGP:J Smith-History 1:26)

I. V. Matthew 7:17
What man among you, haveng a son, and he shall be stant out, and shall say, Father, open thy house that I may come in and sup with thee, will not say, Come in, my son; for mine is thine, and thine is mine? [Asking for ordiances of the Gospel....Kings & Priests]

Praying in the Holy Ghost
Praying by the power of the Holy Ghost, so that all requested petitions are granted, because "it shall be given you what you shall ask." (D. & C. 50:29-30; 101:27.) [I never would have gotten all this information on the fulness of the sealing blessings and the new and everlasting covenant of marriage unless I did as the Spirit directed me and asked for the blessing of being made a king and priest unto the most high god and Sheri a queen and priestess unto me.]

Fellow sojourners upon earth, it is your privilege to purify yourselves and come up to the same glory, and see for yourselves, and know for yourselves. Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (DHC 1:284)

The Prophet promises:

Having a knowledge of God, we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. (TPJS, p. 350)

NOAH'S HOME BEFORE THE FLOOD

1. Charles L. Walker Journal, p. 43 typescript; December 5, 1891, Saturday.

Sat., Dec. 5, 1891. Attended Quorum Meeting. Pres. Pymn... related the incident of the Prophet Joseph telling Dimic B. Huntington while his books were being mended, that Noah built the Ark in the Land where South Carolina is now and that while he was building it and preaching, the wicked people mobbed and drove him 4 (four) times.

2. Evidences & Reconciliations, pp. 396-97; 1960 ed.; John A. Widtsoe.

Adam, after his expulsion from the Garden of Eden, lived in the vicinity of the great Missouri and Mississippi rivers. As his descendants multiplied, they would naturally settle along the fertile and climatically acceptable river valleys. When the flood came in the days of Noah, the Mississippi drainage must have increased to a tremendous volume, quite in harmony with the Biblical account. Noah's ark would be floated on the mighty, rushing waters, towards the Gulf of Mexico. With favorable winds, it would cross the Atlantic to the Eastern continents. There the human race, in its second start on earth, began to multiply and fill the earth.

RESPECT FOR THE WORDS OF MINE ANOINTED

1. H.C. 1:104-105; Harmony, Pennsylvania; Latter part of July, 1830; Diary of Joseph Smith.

Shortly after we had received the above revelations, Oliver Cowdery returned to Mr. Peter Whitmer's Sen., and I began to arrange and copy the revelations, which we had received from time to time; in which I was assisted by John Whitmer, who now resided with me.

Whilst thus employed in the work appointed me by my Heavenly Father, I received a letter from Oliver Cowdery, the contents of which gave me both sorrow and uneasiness. Not having that letter now in my possession, I cannot of course give it here in full, but merely an extract of the most prominent parts, which I can yet, and expect long to, remember. He wrote to inform me that he had discovered an error in one of the commandments---Book of Doctrine and Covenants: "And truly manifest by their works that they have received the Spirit of Christ unto a remission of their sins."

The above quotation, he said, was erroneous, and added: "I command you in the name of God to erase those words, that no priestcraft be amongst us " I immediately wrote to him in reply, in which I asked him by what authority he took upon him to command me to alter or erase, to add to or diminish from, a revelation or commandment from Almighty God.

[Joseph was, at length, able to convince Oliver Cowdery and the Whitmer's of the folly of their ways.]

[Heber C. Kimball had just returned from his mission in England & relates:]

My family having been gone about two months, during which time I heard nothing from them; our brethren being in prison; death and destruction following us everywhere we went; I felt very sorrowful and lonely. The following words came to my mind and the Spirit said unto me, "Write" which I did by taking a piece of paper and writing on my knee as follows:

Verily I say unto my servant Heber, thou art my son, in whom I am well pleased; for thou art careful to hearken to my words, and not transgress my law, nor rebel against my servant Joseph Smith, for thou hast a great respect to the words of mine anointed, even from the least to the greatest of them; therefore thy name is written in heaven, no more to be blotted out for ever, because of these things; and this Spirit and blessing shall rest down upon thy posterity for ever and ever; for they shall be called after thy name, for thou shalt have many more sons and daughters, for thy seed shall be as numerous as the sands upon the sea shore; therefore, my servant Heber, be faithful, go forth in my name and I will go with you, and be on your right hand and on your left and my angels shall go before you and raise you up when you are cast down and afflicted; remember that I am always with you, even to the end.

3. Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 307; May 28, 1843; H.C. 5:412.

Of the Twelve Apostles chosen in Kirtland, and ordained under the hands of Oliver Cowdery, David Whitmer and myself [Joseph Smith], there have been but two but what have lifted their heel against me--namely Brigham Young and Heber C. Kimball.

4. J.D. 4:297-98; March 29, 1857; Remarks by President Brigham Young, delivered in the Bowery, in the Great Salt Lake.

Were I to be asked whether I have any experience in this matter, I can tell the people that once in my life I felt a want of confidence in Brother Joseph Smith, soon after I became acquainted with him. It was not concerning religious matter--it was in relation to his financiering--to his managing the temporal affairs which he undertook. A feeling came over me that Joseph was not right in his financial management, though I presume the feeling did not last sixty seconds, and perhaps not thirty. But that feeling came on me once and once only, from the time I first knew him to the day of his death. It gave me sorrow of heart and I clearly saw and understood by the spirit of revelation manifested to me, that if I was to harbor a thought in my heart that Joseph could be wrong in anything, I would begin to lose confidence in him, and that feeling would grow from step to step, and from one degree to another, until at last I would have the same lack of confidence in his being the mouthpiece for the Almighty. . Though I admitted in my feelings and knew all the time that Joseph was a human being and subject to error still it was none of my business to look after his faults.

I repented of my unbelief, and that too, very suddenly; I repented about as quickly as I committed the error. It was not for me to question whether Joseph was dictated to by the Lord at all times and under all circumstances or not. I never had the feeling for one moment, to believe that any man or set of men or beings upon the face of the whole earth had anything to do with him, for he was superior to them all, and held the keys of salvation over them. Had I not thoroughly understood this and believed it, I much doubt whether I should ever have embraced what is called "Mormonism." He was called of God; God dictated to him, and if He had a mind to leave him to himself and let him commit an error, that was no business of mine. And it was not for me to question it, if the Lord was disposed to let Joseph lead the people astray, for He had called him and instructed him to gather Israel and restore the Priesthood and kingdom to them.
It was not my prerogative to call him in any act of his life. He was God's servant, and not mine. He did not belong to the people but to the Lord, and was doing the work of the Lord, and if He should suffer him to lead the people astray, it would be because they ought to be led astray. If He should suffer them to be chastised, and some of them destroyed, it would be because they deserved it, or to accomplish some righteous purpose. That was my faith, and it is my faith still.

5. J.D. 12:117; August 17, 1867; Address delivered by President Brigham Young in Tooele City.

I said to the Saints at our last annual Conference, the Spirit whispers to me to call upon the Latter-day Saints to observe the word of wisdom, to let tea, coffee, and tobacco alone, and to abstain from drinking spirituous drinks. This is what the Spirit signifies through me. If the Spirit of God whispers this to His people, through their leader, and they will not listen nor obey, what will be the consequence of their disobedience? Darkness and blindness of mind with regard to the things of God will be their lot; they will cease to have the spirit of prayer, and the spirit of the world will increase in them in proportion to their disobedience until they apostatize entirely from God and his ways.

A friend . . . wished to know whether we . . . considered an honest difference of opinion between a member of the Church and the authorities of the Church was apostasy. . . .We replied that we had not stated that an honest difference of opinion between a member of the Church and the authorities constituted apostasy; . . . but we could not conceive of a man publishing those differences of opinion, and seeking by arguments, sophistry and special pleading to enforce upon the people to produce division and strife, and to place the acts and counsels of the authorities of the Church, if possible, in a wrong light, and not be an apostate, for such conduct was apostasy as we under stood the term. We further said that while a man might honestly differ in opinion from the authorities through a want of understanding, he had to be exceedingly careful how he acted in relation to such differences, or the adversary would take advantage of him, and he would soon become imbued with the spirit of apostasy, and be found fighting against God and the authority which He had placed here to govern His Church.

7. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; April 9, 1890.

Wednesday, April 9, 1890: Very nice day. From 7 a.m. till 10 o'clock I was busy at the office looking over the mail and attending to other matters of business. At the latter time I went to the Historian's office where all the brethren met who were present last evening. After the singing of two hymns and prayer Pres. Snow arose and expressed his pleasure at our fasting (which we all did this morning) and our meeting. Everyone of us who has not already had the experience must yet meet it of being tested in every place where we are weak, and even our lives must be laid on the altar. Brigham Young was once tried to the very utmost by the Prophet, and for a moment his standing in the Church seemed to tremble in the balance. Wm. Smith, one of the first quorum of apostles in this age had been guilty of adultery and many other sins. The Prophet Joseph instructed Brigham (then the Pres. of the Twelve) to prefer a charge against the sinner, which was done. Before the time set for the trial, however, Emma Smith talked to Joseph and said the charge preferred against William was with a view to injuring the Smith family. After the trial had begun, Joseph entered the room and was given a seat. The testimony of witnesses concerning the culprit's sins was then continued. After a short time Joseph arose filled with wrath and said, "Bro. Brigham, I will not listen to this abuse of my family a minute longer. I will wade in blood up to my knees before I will do it." This was a supreme moment. A rupture between the two greatest men on earth seemed imminent. But Brigham Young was equal to the danger, and he instantly said, "Bro. Joseph, I withdraw the charge." Thus the angry passions were instantly stilled.

8. Conference Report, April 1944, p. 112; April General Conference. Comments by Pres. J. Reuben Clark, Jr.

There is no limitation as to the matters to be covered by that scripture of which the Lord speaks. (D&C 68:4). Having in mind that this Church of ours is a practical Church, that it deals with temporal as well as with spiritual affairs, I submit that whatever comes from the voices of those who hold that authority is scripture, no matter of what they speak. That conclusion to me is inevitable.

9. The Improvement Era, June, 1945; April General Conference; See also Conference Report, pp. 86-89; Elder Marion G. Romney.

To seek to know the Father's will and to comply therewith does not mean abject submission to an arbitrary superior force, but rather bringing ourselves into harmony with the laws and principles prevailing in an orderly universe. It is the only way by which we may be at peace in the earth and eventually rise to our high destiny as the children of God. * * *
The happiest and most successful people in the earth are those who, knowing the will of the Father, are living in harmony therewith. On the other hand, the most contentious, distressed, and miserable people on the earth are those who know his will and who do not live in harmony with it. * * *

The manifestations of the Father's will to this generation did not cease with what is written in the Doctrine and Covenants. He has not left us unguided to jangle over the interpretations of those revelations, nor does he leave us ignorant of his will on current issues. He has given us living prophets to interpret those revelations and to declare to us his will on present problems. Today the Lord is revealing his will to all the inhabitants of the earth, and to members of the Church in particular, on the issues of this our day through the living prophets, with the First Presidency at the head. What they say as a presidency is what the Lord would say if he were here in person. This is the rock foundation of Mormonism. If it ever ceases to be the fact, this will be an apostate Church. But it will never cease to be the fact. * * * So I repeat again, what the presidency say as a presidency is what the Lord would say if he were here, and it is scripture. It should be studied, understood, and followed, even as the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants and other scriptures. Those who follow this course will not interpret what they say as being inspired by political bias or selfishness; neither will they say that the brethren are uninformed as to the circumstances of those affected by their counsel; or that their counsels cannot be accepted because they are not prefaced by the quotation, "Thus saith the Lord." * * *
This is a day of great conflict between truth and error. Satan is having a field day with the souls of men. Anti-Christs stalk the earth in all lands, including our own. False philosophies and doctrines emanating from the prince of darkness are being presented in such appealing manner as almost to deceive the very elect. There is only one sure way to divine the truth from the error. That is to learn what the mind and will of the Father is on these matters, and then do it. You will find it declared on many issues in the messages of the First Presidency.

10. Conference Report, April 1951, pp. 104-106; Elder Spencer W. Kimball.
The authorities which the Lord has placed in his Church constitute for the people of the Church a harbor, a place of refuge, a hitching post, as it were. No one in this Church will ever go far astray who ties himself securely to the Church Authorities whom the Lord has placed in his Church. This Church will never go astray; the Quorum of the Twelve will never lead you into bypaths; it never has and never will. There could be individuals who would falter; but there will never be a majority of the council of the twelve on the wrong side at any time. The Lord has chosen them; he has given them specific responsibilities. And those people who stand close to them will be safe. And, conversely, whenever one begins to go his own way in opposition to authority, he is in grave danger. I would not say that those leaders whom the Lord chooses are necessarily the most brilliant, nor the most highly trained, but they are the chosen, and when chosen of the Lord they are his recognized authority, and the people who stay close to them have safety.
I believe that John, in the book of Revelation, says something about valiancy. He is speaking to the people at Sardis, one of the cities which Paul had proselyted. He is speaking to the Saints, mind you, not to the people in the world. He says: "I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead." (Rev. 3:1)
There are many people in this Church today who think they live, but they are dead to the spiritual things. And I believe even many who are making pretenses of being active are also spiritually dead. Their service is much of the letter and less of the spirit.

11. BYU Devotional Speech, July 7, 1954; President J. Reuben Clark, Jr.;

Reprinted in the Church News, July 31, 1954.

Here we must have in mind--must know--that only the President of the Church, the presiding High Priest, is sustained as Prophet, Seer, and Revelator for the Church, and he alone has the right to receive revelations for the Church, either new or amendatory, or to give authoritative interpretations of scriptures that shall be binding on the Church, or change in any way the existing doctrines of the Church. He is God's sole mouthpiece on the earth for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the only true Church. He alone may declare the mind and will of God to his people. No officer of any other Church in the world has this high right and lofty prerogative.

12. Gospel Truth by George Q. Cannon. 1957 edition. Pages as indicated after each quotation.

A faithful Saint may not be able to understand all the movements of the Church nor all the motives of the authorities of the Church in giving counsel or in taking action upon different questions; but will a man of this character censure them, assail them or condemn them? Certainly not. He will be likely to say: "I do not understand the reasons for this action; I do not see clearly what the presiding authorities have in view in doing this; but I will wait and learn more. This I do know, that this is the work of God and that these men are His servants and that they will not be permitted by Him to lead the Church astray or to commit any wrong of so serious a character as to endanger its progress or perpetuity." (p. 234) (Juvenile Instructor, 31:618; Oct. 15, 1896)
It is a serious thing to fight against the Priesthood of the Son of God, no matter who holds it. The men who do bear it are fallible men and when they bear it properly, are conscious of their own weaknesses and infirmities. They feel not only as if they were utterly unworthy of the authority the Lord has placed upon them but incapable of exercising it. But they have been chosen by the Lord, and He will sustain them and bear them off triumphant always, as He has done thus far. And no man can lift his heel against the Priesthood of the Son of God without the curse of Almighty God coming upon him, unless he repents....
It is a dreadful sin to fight against or in any manner oppose the Priesthood of the Son of God, and everyone of us should repent of such opposition with all our hearts. (p. 236) (Deseret News Weekly, 54:674; April 5, 1897)
Honor the Priesthood of the Son of God. Let no word be spoken in your streets or in your dwellings or in your associations derogatory to the work and the servants of God or that would in any manner grieve the Spirit of God.
It is true, His servants are fallible men. No one know their fallibility better than they do themselves, speaking generally. They know how much they shrunk from bearing the responsibility which God has placed upon them. Joseph F. Smith and George Q. Cannon, who are here today, never wanted the office that they hold. We both would have avoided it if we could. We did not seek for power but have endeavored to protest against receiving it. Nothing but the command of God would have induced us to have taken it. But God did command; He did make this requirement of us, and we are here today, standing in the position we do, unsought for by us.
So it is with all of us. All you who know Wilford Woodruff know that that man never had any aspiration to preside over this Church. He presides today because God required it at His hands. Therefore, should you not uphold these men? Should you not pray for them? Should you be envious of them? Should you speak evil of them and be jealous of them? I say, No, for if you do, God will be angry with you.
I have spoken about the First Presidency of the Church; but I need not confine these remarks to them; they apply with equal force to the Twelve Apostles, and to the Presidents of Stakes. . . .The same thing applies, no doubt, to the High Council and to the Bishops and to all the servants of God. Men do not obtain place in this Church because they seek for it. (P. 275) (Deseret News Weekly, 56:707-708; April 17, 1898)

Whoever arrays himself in any manner against the authority which God has placed in His Church for its government, no matter who it is---one of the Twelve Apostles even or any number of them---unless he repents, God will withdraw His Spirit and power from him. * * * If any of you have indulged in the spirit of murmuring and fault finding and have allowed your tongues to give utterance to thoughts and words that were wrong and not in accordance with the spirit of the Gospel, let me say to you here today that you ought to repent of it with all your hearts and get down into the depth of humility and implore Him for the forgiveness of that sin---for it is a most deadly sin. * * *

But He does not give the authority to judge and condemn to man, only in the regularly constituted councils of His Church; and those who lift their voices and their heels against the authority of the Holy Priesthood, I tell you today, as a servant of God---and I wish these you men and young women to hear my testimony this day and to remember it as long as they live---they will go down to hell, unless they repent. (pp. 275-276) (Deseret News Weekly, 52:385-86; February 16, 1896)

There is one thing that the Lord has warned us about from the beginning and that is not to speak evil of the Lord's anointed. He has told us that any member of the Church who indulged in this is liable to lose the Spirit of God and go into darkness. The Prophet Joseph said time and again that it was one of the first and strongest symptoms of apostasy. [See TPJS, pp. 156-57] (p. 278) (Deseret News Weekly, 53:609; October 6, 1896)

13. Conference Report, Oct., 1965, p. 22; October General Conference, 1965; Elder Marion G. Romney.

Only Brigham Young and one other of the original Quorum of the Twelve gave total respect to Joseph's words. This other was Heber C. Kimball. As Elder Romney reminded the conference of the Church in 1966, this was one reason why Brother Kimball made his calling and election sure, for the Lord promised him eternal life because: ". . .for thou art careful to hearken to my words, and not transgress my law, nor rebel against my servant Joseph Smith, for thou hast respect to the words of mine anointed, even from the least to the greatest of them; therefore, thy name is written in heaven, no more to be blotted out forever. . . ."

14. Conference Report, Oct., 1968, p. 59; October General Conference, 1968; Elder Harold B. Lee.

The world to which the apostles James and John and the Master make reference is the moral and spiritual system which is hostile to God and which seeks to delude us into thinking that we and mankind generally do not need God. It is a society which in every age has operated and is operating on wrong principles, from selfish desires, from improper motives, unworthy standards, and false values. Those who do not accept God's revelation through his prophets have devised numerous philosophies from their limited human reasoning and seemingly think that they can find happiness and the satisfaction of their souls by ignoring God's plan of salvation.

One of the greatest threats to the work of the Lord today comes from false educational ideas. There is a growing tendency of teachers within and without the Church to make academic interpretations of gospel teachings--to read, as a prophet-leader has said, "by the lamp of their own conceit." Unfortunately, much in the sciences, the arts, politics, and the entertainment field, as has been well said by an eminent scholar, is "all dominated by this humanistic approach which ignores God and his word as revealed through the prophets." This kind of worldly system apparently hopes to draw men away from God by making man the "measure of all things."

AN HONEST DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

by Richard Ware

1. If an individual has an honest difference of opinion with the Authorities of the Church, it does not mean the person is in apostasy.

2. Several of the Brethren have had different statements on doctrinal issues, which would support the position that one is not in apostasy if one differs with the Brethren.

3. Therefore, it is not likely that individuals who have differences of opinions regarding doctrinal issues will go to hell. Joseph said he had never heard of anyone being damned for believing too much, but that they are damned for unbelief.

4. A person who has a differing of opinions on doctrinal issues should be sure that his opinions on the doctrines are founded in the writings of one or more of the Prophets of the Lord. They are the ones to whom the Lord has revealed his truths, and they would know better than anyone else on the face of the earth what is truth and what is not. Even their opinions are more apt to be correct than our own.

5. To formulate opinions that do not find support in the writings of the First Presidency, or one or more of the Prophets, and what goes contrary to that which is accepted as truth, then the person is formulating opinions without consulting the sources of truth and is very likely to err.

Elijah the Prophet
His latter-day mission was to "restore the authority and deliver the keys of the priesthood, in order that all the ordances may be attended to in righteousness.... Why send Elijah? Children of the covenant
According to the terms of the covenant which God made with Abraham, all of the literal seed of that great prophet are entitled to receive the gospel, the priesthood, and all the ordiances [even the crowning ordinaces] of salvation and exaltation. (Abra. 2:9–11; D. & C. 86:8–11.) When any of those descendants do receive all of these things, "They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, adn the church and kingdom, and the elect of God." (D. & C. 84:34.) [1. This means they are called and elected through priesthood ordiances, 2. They then need to make this calling and election sure with the seal of the Holy Ghost.....] They are then children of the covenant, that is, they are inheritors of the fulness of the blessings appertaining to the new and everlasting covenant which is the gospel. [This means that they receive all the fulness of the priesthood and have received all even the ordince, anointing, election, sealing of kings and queens, priests and priestesses and have the crowning blessings of the new and everlasting covenant of marriage sealed upon them.] "Ye are the children fo the covenant" (3 Ne. 20:24–27), our Lord told the Nephites among whom he ministered, a distinction which the faithful saints of this dispensation also enjoy. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 126.)

This is contained as part of the joint blessing that husband and wife receive together or not at all; That of sealing children to parents all the way back to Adam and Eve and from them to Our heavenly Father and Mother for this is a Joint blessing or not at all.
5. The Power of Elijah which is fulfilled within the New and Everlasting Covenant contains the following:
" The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called [to join the church and receive the fulness of the priesthood], [2] elected [to receive the Melchizedek Priesthood and the New and everlasting covenant of Celestial Marriage, and [3] the crowning ordinance of the Fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage is to receive the fulness of the priesthood to be annointed and made a king and priest and queen and preistess and become a member of the Church of the Firstborn and all these are then to be sealed] and made sure [by 1. the sealing power of the Priesthood and 2. the ratifing seal of the Holy Ghost..." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224).

Life
Alma said: "this life is the time for men to prepare to meet God." (Alma 34:32) [This means they prepare to meet God by receiving all the laws and ordiances of the Gospel from the least to the Greatest in the house of the lord.... and that they receive the Holy Ghost and have sealed upon them all the acts of the ordiances and perfomances which has occured in the house of the lord and otherwise in this life... The Holy Ghost is a God and we have a God dwelling within our tabernacles...

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D. & C. 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) Theses, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communications of keys," the prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fulness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30.) "Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordiances of the house of the Lord.... All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordiances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordiances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 474-482.)

"And thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5:10; 20:4.)

We which have believed do enter into rest
"True saints enter into the rest of the Lord while in this life and by abiding in the truth, they continue in tht blessed state until they rest with the Lord in heaven. (Moro. 7:3; D. & C. 84:17-25; Matt. 11:28-30; Heb. 3:7-19; 4:1-11.) The rest of the Lord, where mortals are concerned, is to gain a perfect knowledge of the divinity of the great latter-day work. 'It means entering into the knowledge and love of God, having faith in his purpose and in his plan, to such an extent that we know we are right, and that we are not hunting for something else; we are not distrubed by every wind of doctrine, or by the cunning and craftiness of men who lie in wait to deceive." It is "rest from the religious turmoil of the world; from the cry that is going forth, here and there--lo, here is Christ; lo, there is Christ." (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., pp. 58, 121-126.) The rest of the Lord, in eternity, is to inherit eternal life, to gain the fulness of the Lord's glory. (D. & C. 84:24.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 633.) (DNTC 3, p. 151.)

"The priesthood is an everlasting principle, and exited with God form eternity, and will to eternity, without beginning of days or end of years.: (Teachings, p. 157.) Christ and others held the priesthood in pre-existence.

Gospel Mysteries

Andam, the Prophet says, "obtained in in the creation, before the world was formed." (Teachings, p. 157.)
but as pertaining to his mortal ministry, Christ our Lord received the Melchizedek Priesthood here on earth, and was ordained to the office of a high priest therein, thus setting an example for others and being in all things the Prototype of salvation. With reference to the mortal receipt of the holy order which is his, and which he had afore used to create this and an infinite number of other worlds, and which he had in fact given to Melchizedek in the first instance, the Prophet says: "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtainted it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord." (Teachings, p. 308.) [Christ had to be Married and sealed up to eternal life] (DNTC 3, p. 156-157.)

Brigham Young:

> When I get a revelation that some of my progenitors lived and died without the blessings of the Gospel, or even hearing it preached, but were as honest as I am as upright as I am, or as any man or woman could be upon the earth; as righteous, so far as they knew how, as any Apostle or Prophet that ever lived, I will go and be baptized, confirmed, washed, and anointed, and go through all the ordinances and endowments [plural, first anointing for 1st endowment and second anointing for second endowment] for them, that their way may be opened to the celestial kingdom.
> As I have frequently told you, that is the work of the Millennium. It is the work that has to be performed by the seed of Abraham, the chosen seed, the royal seed, the blessed of the Lord, those the Lord made covenants with. They will step forth, and save every son and daughter of Adam who will receive salvation here on the earth; and all the spirits in the spirit world will be preached to, conversed with, and the principles of salvation carried to them, that they may have the privilege of receiving the Gospel; and they will have plenty of children here on the earth to officiate for them in those ordinances of the gospel that pertain to the flesh. (J.D. 2:138)

FILE:#47 SEE THE LORD (CROSS TO NEW AND EVERLASTING CONENANT OF MARRIAGE

ADDRESS GIVEN BY SPENCER W. kIMBALL

PRESIDENT OF THE QUORUM OF THE TWELVE APOSTLES
SANTA MONICA STAKE FIRESIDE

NOVEMBER 18, 1973

This great congregation tonight is near overwhelming. The beautiful music we've heard in solo and in chorus adds to it and the picture makes us feel that we are with our Lord. We've just heard the beautiful song, "Still, Still With Thee--I Am With Thee"...and brings to our remembrance that as has been said in the poem, we are not just something that happened. Each of us has a destiny. Each of us is born with a future--with a glorious future. And as the father of the son who left his home and went away--he said to the older son who remained and who had been faithful all his days, "All that I have is thine." And that promise is made to you and to me: "All that I have is thine."

This brings to our mind the couplet by President Snow which gives us another angle of this thing and that is: "As man is, God once was. As God is, man may become." As I see the picture of these heavens revolving and rotating, I see the greatness of His glory. "This is My glory." I think as I watch the television and see men walk on the moon, that we are small--we are tiny. But after all, each one of us has a destiny. each one of us is greater than the ocean, bigger than the mountain. Each one of us. We can destroy it or we can magnify it and make it great.

Within the past decade, Sister Kimball and I were in Assyria. We were down in Ur of the Chaldees where Abraham was born, where Abraham grew up, where Abraham courted Sarah and married Sarah. We were in that land which is now being excavated and found again--where the Egyptians, having come to Assyria in their religious rites, had offered up as sacrifices upon these great pyramids that climb into the heavens--they offered the daughters, the children of their leaders, to appease a God they didn't know. Then they got Abraham and put him on the table and the priests were ready to sacrifice his life and were stopped by intervention of the angels of God, who stopped them--took their lives--and Abraham was saved.

We traveled for many hours along the Euphrates River where Abraham and his small group, his father and others (a very small group), went these long miles on foot--I suppose perhaps with camel--way up to the fertile crescent--what is now in Turkey. And there they lived a long time until there were seventy of them in the group. And then they went down south, westerly down through Palestine. And when he got in [the] vicinity of what later became Jerusalem, he built an altar and there he offered sacrifices to the Lord. And he prayed to the Lord and the Lord came and visited him. And He walked and talked with this great man Abraham--who was like any of us--who was born to greatness, who was born to leadership. He was born to be a King. He was born to be a God. And there, at this place--this altar that Abraham built--the Lord gave him visions of things that few men ever see. Even few men--no men perhaps--even in the great laboratories of Houston and elsewhere. He saw the end from the beginning. He saw what you and I can see. Every soul in this building can see these things. Every soul in this building can see God. One God. Everyone.

Here's a quotation from the 94rd section of the Doctrine and Covenants. The Lord speaking says: "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass..." That phrase we get tired of reading sometimes, but it is powerful. It means very simply this: "What I'm going to tell you is true. It's true, it's basic. You can depend upon it. It will never fail." That's what He means when He says: "Verily, verily, I say unto you..." "I'm going to tell you something. Listen, and don't let it slip out of your minds." Then He says: "It shall come to pass that every soul..." Now that means you, and you, and you, and me--"every soul" who is born in this earth is destined to have this great privilege. Every soul. And then I go to the end of that verse: "...shal know, he was millionaire. And then one day some little trick happened. He couldn't get credit. He lost this one and this one and this one and was reduced almost to poverty again, all in the period of a few years. He hadn't depended on the Spirit of the Lord. He had been totally sufficient in and of himself, and "himself' wasn't a very strong person.

And then we come to number four: "... and obeyeth my voice..." Let's read down to there again. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins, who cometh unto me and who calleth on my name; who obeyeth my voice...shall see my face and know that I am." The Lord doesn't need to lock any doors and say, "Well, I'm going to see these that are the stake presidents, and these that are in the bishoprics, and these that are in the high places. He doesn't say that. He says, "every soul" of every nation, of every race -- every soul, without exception. "I'll come to see him. I'll talk to him. I'll give him these blessings." Every soul who doeth these five things, only four of which we've mentioned so far. This last one was: "...who obeyeth my voice..." What is His voice? Here is HIs voice -- the four standard works --the Holy Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Doctrine and Covenants, the Pearl of Great Price. Is there any one here tonight that hasn't read those four books? I hope there's not a soul here that hasn't read them, all those books.

When I was 14 years old, I remember I came to a big conference, about like this, down in Arizona. And as I sat way back in the audience, about two-thirds of the way back, I heard the speaker challenge that congregation to read the Holy Bible. I remember she said -- she had told how wonderful scriptures are and how basic they are and how needed they are -- and then she said: "How many in this congregation have read the Bible?" And I wa a little shame-faced because I hadn't and here I was 14 years old. I was reading a lot of books at this time and was a little shame-faced, and I looked around to see if I was the only one who hadn't read the Bible. And I saw about five or six hands go up that said they had read the Bible. I wonder how many of you, if I asked you (and I'm not going to) would raise your hands high and say, "I have read the Holy Bible because it is the word of God." "It is my voice..." "...who obeyeth my voice..." How in heaven's name are we ever going to obey God's voice if we don't know what it is? We don't get it in Sacrament Meeting all the time -- just a little bit. How are we going to obey His voice if we never hear it? Yet here it is in the most eloquent terms and tones and words that man can utter. The most eloquent and beautiful are the words of the scriptures. How many of us have read magazines that are crude and ugly and weak? How many of us have read other things--newspapers--every day? It's alright. There are parts of it that are good. But why don't we read the word of God? I could have read the Bible two or three years younger than I did. I got home that night after that conference. I lit the coal oil lamp. It was my only light. I sat down by this little flickering coal oil light and I opened the Bible and I started to read in Genesis that night, because the challenge had just come to me that night. I read several chapters and I got sleepy and went to bed. And every night in January, February, March, in April, May, June, July, August, September, October, November, and December. I read every night, every day, something of the word of God. Wasn't all interesting--pages and pages of names that I couldn't remember--but there is everything in that Holy Bible--practically everything, with the supplement from the Doctrine and Covenants, Book of Mormon, Pearl of Great Price--there is everything in this whole world a person needs. There isn't a thing left out--not one single thing. Salvation, exaltation, eternal life, and all the things in this world that are possible to man, are in those books. And yet we'll read cheap and sometimes very good books in lieu of that. Now there isn't time for everything, and I wouldn't think anybody would want to spend very much time reading novels, literature or anything else, until he read this literature.

Let's go on to the fifth one: "And it shall come to pass that every soul..." who does those things--A, B, C, and D--and who "...keepeth my commandments..." How do you know what the commandments are if you don't read the scriptures? If you don't read Exodus where it ways, "Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal." Now that wasn't something of bygone days. That was true in 1973 and it will be true in 1975. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain. Honor the sabbath day and keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor..." and do all thy work and the seventh is the sabbath of the Lord thy God. And in it "...thou shalt not do any work. Thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, thy maidservant, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea and all that in them is, and rested on the seventh day. Wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath day and hallowed it." Oh, He must get discouraged when He sees everybody having fun on Sunday. Everybody selling goods--the servants, the employees. Yet He says, "Thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, thy maidservant." These are employees. Sometimes we kid ourselves by saying, "Well, I'll hire people to wait on tables. I'll hire someone to sell the fruit on the way stand." The Lord said, "...thy servant, thy manservant, thy maid servant..." Still we don't know...we don't know the scriptures. We don't know the commandments of God.

Now let me put it all together again, and listen to the power of this one thing. Did you realize that the Lord may have stopped for a few minutes to think of just what He wanted to say that would be comprehensive. And can you think of any scripture of eight lines in all literature that is so comprehensive as this? "...Every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am."

Who has seen the Christ and knows that He is? in our time you may have known people who have. They don't go around boasting about it. They don't write it in pamphlets and hand them out as they go along. Anybody who would do that isn't worthy of the blessing. This isn't a spectacular thing that should be announced and made cheap and weak. When one of us had the blessing of being introduced to his Heavenly Father, to the Lord Jesus Christ for [sic] whom he would know--the one who wrote this Bible, the one who wrote this Doctrine and Covenants as Jesus Christ through His servants--He built those books and inspired them from the beginning. You can, you can, and you, and you, and you--every on of you.

Now I remind you again, it isn't going to come...it isn't going to come thought wishing--wishful thinking. It'll come only by performance. It can't come by, oh, a few days, or weeks, or months of service. Here is a Relief Society sister who's just near perfect during this short period she's president of Relief Society. Then when she's released, she gets a little careless. She doesn't pray all the time. She doesn't do the things she should. She misses some to her meetings. Here's a man, who while he was a great leader, while everyone was watching--he lives a righteously. But when he is released, he slips into the paths that are casual and that many people find.

This is perfection: remember the Beatitudes where the Lord says, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in Heaven is perfect"? Now He was talking to you again. To every soul again. To every man, woman, youth and child "Be ye perfect." That's how we become "still, still with thee." Now if that doesn't mean anything to require working...well just go ahead, headlong into disaster. But if it does have a meaning, then let it sink deep in our hearts and a realization of it. We don't need to become sober-faced to the point that we are pious without natural and proper living. The Lord has arranged so that we can live a very normal life with joy and laughter and peace and happiness and associations of family, fatherhood, motherhood, childhood--family life. All these things are a part of this gaining perfection. The Lord has required it of us. Now we have to start by forsaking our sins--forsaking the temptations.

There again comes to my mind the experience of Joseph--Joseph who was sold by his own brethren. First they were going to kill him because he had in some way disturbed them, and they were somewhat revengeful. He told some stories, some dreams he'd had which sounded to them very arrogant, as though he was going to rule over them. And so they promised to kill him. Then Reuben, dear soul, persuaded them not to kill him but to throw him down in a pit where he couldn't get out, and to send his coat covered with animal blood back to his father--to convince the father that it was only animals that had destroyed his son Joseph. But the travelers came along on camels and put up thirty pieces of silver and bought this human being. He could have been a roustabout. He could have been a "no-one", a nobody. But he was born like you were born and I was born--to greatness. Born to Godhood. Born to eternal life, and he didn't waste himself.

And then there's to remind us again that he had experiences that many people had. He had temptations. He had a chance probably to embezzle everything in Egypt that was put into his hands. I suppose he could have stolen, he could have embezzled. And there are tens of thousands of people today who would have embezzled in the first minute that nobody was watching. He didn't embezzle. I can imagine that he grew up praying even though he grew up in Potiphar's home. He was raised so he knew that immorality was destructive. He knew that he couldn't yield to the temptations of the flesh. He knew he had to be above all reproach.

And so when this wife of Potiphar found herself alone in the house with him, and put on all her paints and powders, and all her cosmetics...when she put on her finest dress--perhaps the smallest dress she had that covered her the least, like thousands of our sweet girls who don't know what they're doing. They just don't know what they're doing when they leave their limbs uncovered. And that isn't just a matter of fashion. It's a matter of being right and wrong and no girl is justified in leaving her body uncovered, no matter what the styles are. And I can say that a thousand times and still feel good about it. This woman. Here she lay. Here she tempted him. And she tempted him in every way a woman can tempt a man. But he wouldn't yield. He said, "Why, how could I do a thing like that? How could I do a thing like that when your husband, my master, has confidence in me?" And she dragged him and she would have pulled him down into her bed with here, but he jumped and ran away. He left in her hands a part of his garment which she grabbed and then used as evidence against him to get him thrown into prison. He probably knew that he would be in prison. He undoubtedly knew that he would. And so he was thrown down into the dungeons because this woman bore false witness against him. She told her husband that he tried to take advantage of her. But here he stood, this great man. He didn't succumb. He ran away and left her. And then we followed him into the dungeon--happy to serve in a dungeon, a dark and dismal place, rather than give of himself...rather than to break a commandment of the Lord.

He knew. He knew, though Moses hadn't come yet and though the Ten Commandments hadn't been given yet on Mt. Sinai, but he knew they had been given to Adam. The Ten Commandments were given to Adam and to Enos and to Noah and to all the patriarchs. Abraham knew the Ten Commandments. They weren't given first on Mt. Sinai--they were put into a physical situation at that time. But Joseph remained faithful and true. That's what the Lord is talking about here. That means every time a temptation comes along, every tendency to be ugly, to be unsociable, to do the things that are wrong, that we all know are wrong--that's when we resist and put on our armor of righteousness and helmet of truth.

Now let me read this once more and let you go home with this beautiful scripture. Remember, it's the 93rd section and it's the first verse, so you can't miss it. Read it over and over. Memorize it. Write it, you young girls, on a piece of paper and put it in your bedroom where you can see it. Paste it onto your mirror. You boys put it on your mirror where you shave. Remember, "Every soul who forsaketh his sins, who cometh unto me, who calleth upon my name, who obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am."

God bless you my brothers and sisters. Sometimes we just get so busy doing so many things, we forget to stop and think, to memorize, anHow Can I Know What the Lord Want's Me To Do!

Knowledge of Christ To Come By Revelation:

No matter what ability and talent a man may possess, all must come under this rule if they wish to know the Father and the Son. If knowledge of them is not obtained through revelation it cannot be obtained at all.... This principle alone can give the knowledge of God which is life eternal and the only power by which a man can stand unscathed in the trying hour. Those who possess this principle are one with Jesus Christ and one with the Father, as says Jesus, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they may be one in us:... that they may be one, even as we are one." (John 17:21-22.) They are baptized with the same baptism, they are baptized with the same Spirit; they are in possession of the same knowledge; and they knew God, whom to know is life everlasting. When built upon this rock the storms may blow, the rains may descend and beat upon the house, but it cannot fall because it is founded upon a rock. These are some of my reflections in relation to this ordiance of the sacrament of the Lord's supper. (JD, 10:115-117, February 22, 1863; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 112.)
Progress Toward Godhood Made Possible:

Apostles: [Apostles of God to our eternal families as per blessing in D&C 132: 23-24]

An apostle is a special witness of the name of Christ who is sent to teach the principles of salvation to others. [The mission of the holy Ghost is God the Testator He is the Chief Apostle of the Lord Jesus Christ and the Father, because this member of the GodHead dwell in the faithful baptized members of the chruch they also are Testators and Apostles of the Lamb and the Father particulary to theri families of eternity] He is one who knows ot the divinity of the Savior by personal revelation and who is appointed to bear testimony to the world to what the Lord has revealed to him. Every elder in the Church is or should be an apostle; [because he should be in the celestial marrage and should bear to his own world as adam, noah and abraham did to teach his children to know the lord even as Abraham taught Isaac and Isaac taught Jacob to know the Lord.....Mothers quotation.] that is, as a minister of the Lord and as a recipient of personal revelation from the Holy Ghost, every elder has the call to bear witness of the truth on all proper occasions. Indeed, every member of the Chruch should have apostolic insight and revelation, and is under obligation to raise the warning voice (D. & C. 88:81; Mosiah 18:9.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 46-47)

This is not over the church but one sent forth to reveal the light and truth to the eternal family..... There is also an ordained office over the church....

"The duty of the Twelve Apostles of the Church," President Joseph F. Smith said, "is to preach the gospel to the world, to send it to the inhabitants of the earth and to bear testimony of Jesus Christ of Son of God, as living witnesses of his divine mission. That is their special calling, and they are always under the direction of the Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints when that presidency is intact, and there is never at the same time two equal heads in the Church-never. (Mormon Doctrine p. 50) [This is scimotaineously done in connection with Eph 4;11-14 JST.]

|v10 And then cometh the day when the arm of the Lord shall be revealed in power in convincing the nations, the heathen nations, the house of Joseph, of the gospel of their salvation.
(D&C: Section 90:10)

|v51 But if they will not, make bare thine arm, O Lord, and redeem that which thou didst appoint a Zion unto thy people.
(D&C: Section 109:51)

Baptism is not optional if one wishes the fulness of salvation.
... Jesus himself was baptized "to fulfil all righteousness" Matt. 3:15; 2 Ne. 31:4-11.)
...Baptism in water has several purposes. It is for the remission of sins, for membership in the Church, and for entrance into the celestial kingdom; it is also the doorway to personal sanctification when followed by the reception of the Holy Ghost. (Bible Dictionary, p. 619)

Faith
...where faith is, there will the knowledge of God be also, with all things which pertain thereto-revelations, visions, and dreams, as well as every necessary thing, in order that the possessors of faith may be perfected, and obtain salvation; for God must change, otherwise faith will prevail with him. And he who possesses it will, through it, obtain all necessary knowledge and wisdom, until he shall know God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, whom he has sent--whom to know is eternal life." (Lectrues on Faith, pp. 70-71.)
"And there were many whose faith was so exceeding strond, evern before Christ came, who could not be kept from within the veil, but truly saw with their eyes the things which they had beheld with an eye of faith, and they were glad." (Ether 12:19.) Today as anciently the same effects flow from faith. "It is the privilege of every elder to speak of the things of God," the Prophet said, "and could we all come together with one heart and one mind in perfect faith the veil might as well be rent today as next week, or any other time." (Teachings, p. 9; D. & C. 93:1.) [Presiden Kimball's talk on seeing the Lord; Also, see God in Bible Dictionary...]. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 266-267.)

Gospel Mysteries

God

God can be known only by revelation. He must be revealed, or remain forever unknown (cf. Mosiah 4:9). God first revealed himself to Adam (Moses 5; 6) and has repetedly made himself known by revelation to chosen patriarchs and prophets since that time. The present translation of John 1:18 and 1Jn. 4:12 is misleading, for these say that no man has ever seen God. However, the scriptures state that there have been many who have seen him. The JST [Joseph Smith Translation] corrects these items to show that no sinful man has ever seen God, and also that Jesus Christ is the only Way to God. God the Father and his son have been manifested by voice, sight, or otherwise at various times, as at the baptism of Jesus (Matt. 3:16-17); the Transfiguration (Matt. 17:1-8); to Stephen (Acts 7:55-56); and to the Nephites 3 Ne. 11:7). The Father and the Son personally visited Joseph Smith in the Sacred Grove, in the spring of 1820, near Manchester, New York, in the opening of the dispensation of the fulness of times (JS-H 1:11-20).

Latter-day revelation confirms the biblical account of God as the literal father of the human family; as a being who is concerned fro the welfare of mankind, and a Personage who hears and answers prayers. (Bible Dictionary, p. 682).

Although God created all things and is the ruler of the universe, being omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent (through his Spirit), mankind has a special relationship to him that differentiates man from all other created things: man is leterly God's offspring, made in his image, whereas all other things are but the work of his hands (cf. Acts 17:28-29.) (Bible Dictionary, p. 681-682.)

Knowledge

"It is the knowledge of God and his laws that leads to high reward in the hearafter. (2 Ne. 9:28-29, 42.)

It is the knowledge of God that brings salvation. "And this is live eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17:3; D. & C. 93:6-28; 132:24.) When the Prophet said, "A man is saved no faster than he gets knowledge," he had reference not to the worldly knowledge flowing from research, but to the eternal knowledge coming by revelation, "for it needs revelation to assist us," he continued, "and give us knowledge of the things of God." (Teachings, p. 217.) Similarly, when he said, "It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance" (D. & C. 131:6), he meant there could be no salvation in ignorance of Jesus Christ and the saving principles of the gospel. "The principle of knowledge is the principle of salvation," he said on an other occasion. "This principle can be comprehended by the faithful and diligent; and every one that does not obtain knowledge sufficient to be saved will be condemned. The principle of salvation is given us through the knowledge of Jesus Christ." (Teachings, p. 297.)

In fact, the Melchizedek Priesthood is the key to the knowledge of God because it is in and through that priesthood that men receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. (D. & C. 84:19.) And those who grow in the knowledge of God until they gain a "perfect knowledge of God' cannot be kept within the veil and they are permitted to see the Lord. (Ether 3:19-20, 25; @. & C. 93:1.)

All men who gain exaltation eventually arrive at the status where they have all truth and know all things. (D. & c. 93:26-28.) But this is not gained in a moment; it is a long process of advancement and education. "We consider that God has created man with a mind capable of instruction, and a faculty which may be enlarged in proportion to the heed and diligence given to the light communicated from heaven to the intellect," Joseph Smith said, "and that the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with him. But we consider that this is a station to which no man ever arrived in a moment: he must have been instructed in the government and laws of that kingdom by proper degrees, until his mind is capable in some measure of comprehending the proprity, justice, equality, and consistency of the same." (Teachings, p. 51.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 428.)

Revelator

"The Holy Ghost is a Revelator," the Prophet said. "No man can receive the Holy Ghost without receiving revelations." (Teachings, p. 328.) Those who enjoy the companionship of the Holy Ghost have the spirit of revelation. (D. & C. 8:2-3.) A testimony of the gospel comes from the Holy Ghost. "By the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know the truth of all things." (Moro. 10:5.)

Revelation

As used in the gospel, "revelation signifies the making known of divine truth by communiction from the heavens." (Articles of Faith, pp. 296-313.) Revelation comes from God to man in various appointed ways, according to the laws ordained by the Almighty. The Lord appears personally to certain spiritually receptive persons: he speaks audibly by his own voice, on occasions, to those whose ears are attuned to the divine wave length; angels are sent from his presence to minister to deserving individuals; dreams and visions come from him to the faithful; he often speaks by the still small voice, the voice of the Spirit, the voice of prophecy and revelation;....

2. Personal Revelation.--Every devoted, obedient, and righteous person on earth has and does receive revelation from God. Revelation is the natural inheritance of all faithful. "No man can receive the Holy Ghost," the Prophet said, "without receiving revelations. The Holy Ghost is a revelator." (Teachings, p. 328.) God is no respecter of persons, meaning that the gift of the Holy Ghost, always and invariably, will be poured out upon all those who abide the law entitling them to that divine companionship. (Acts 10.) That Being "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of truning" (Jas. 1:17) always bestows the same reward for obedience to the same law.

To the faithful the Lord promises: "Assuredly as the Lord liveth, who is your God and your Redeemer, even so surely shall you receive a knowledge of whatsoever things you shall ask in faith, with an honest heart, believing that you shall receive.... Yea, behold, I will tell you in your mind and in your heart, by the Holy Ghost, which shall come upon you and which shall dwell in your heart. Now, behold, this is the spirit of revelation." (D. & C. 8:1-3; 46:7; Matt. 7:7-8; Jas. 1:5.) [This is the only way we can trully know all things is if the Lord tells us a thing in our very mind and heart by the Holy Ghost that dwells in us, and reveals, confirms, and seals this knowledge unto us personally.] This is the way testimony is gained, as in the case of Enos (Enos 1-10), and the way all men learn of the truth of the Book of Mormon. (Moro. 10:3-5.) Missionaries are to bear record of those things which have been revealed to them. (D. & C. 121:26-32), and when they speak as moved upon by that member of the Godhead, the resultant expressions are scripture. (D. & C. 68:1-4.) "If thou shalt ask,: the Lord said to the Prophet (and it applies in principle to all the saints), "thou shalt receive revelation upon revelation, knowledge upon knowledge, that thou mayest know the mysteries and peaceable things--that which bringeth joy, that which bringeth life eternal." (D. & C. 42:61: 59:4.)

Gospel Mysteries

Every person who is sufficiently faithful has the categorical promise that God himself will appear to him. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeht my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 93:1.) This has reference to the personal appearance of God to mortal beings. (D. & C. 67:10-14.) Many righteous persons have complied with the law of faith involved and received this promised revelation. (Ether 3:19-26.)
With reference to their own personal affairs, the saints are expected (because they have the gift of the Holy Ghost) to gain personal revelation and guidance rather than to run to the First Presidency or some other church leaders to be told what to do. "It is a great thing to inquire at the hands of God, or to come into his presence," the Priphet said, "and we feel fearful to approach him on subjects that are of little or no consequence, to satisfy the queries of individuals, especially about things the knowledge of which men ought to obtain in all sincerity, before God, for themselves, in humility by the prayer of faith, and more especially a teacher or a high priest in the Church." (Teachings, p. 22.)

D&C 132:19-24
The act: apostles witness of the Lord & his ministry

The Seal of the Holy Ghost on the truth had not occured: therefore Peter Denied the Savior before the day of penticost and the Saints received revelation of the truth and the Holy Ghost.

Life
Alma said: "this life is the time for men to prepare to meet God." (Alma 34:32) [This means they prepare to meet God by receiving all the laws and ordiances of the Gospel from the least to the Greatest in the house of the lord.... and that they receive the Holy Ghost and have sealed upon them all the acts of the ordiances and perfomances which has occured in the house of the lord and otherwise in this life... The Holy Ghost is a God and we have a God dwelling within our tabernacles...

D&C 132:19-24
Second Comforter
Calling and Election Sure, Comforter, Exaltation, Holy Ghost.
After a man so devotes himself to righteousness that his calling and election is made sure, "then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter," [the seal on what he has seen, Paul, Alma the younger] the Prophet says. "Now what is this other Comforter? It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even he will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn." (Teachings, pp. 150-151; John 14:16-23; D. & C. 88:3-4; 130:3.) "The Holy Spirit of Promise is not the Second Comforter." (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, p. 55.)

Gospel Mysteries

Sons of God
The sons of God are members of his family and, hence, are joint-heirs with Christ, inheriting with him the fulness of the Father. (D. & C. 93:17-23.) Before gaining entrance to that glorious household, they must receive the higher priesthood (Moses 6:67-68), magnify their callings therein (D. & C. 84:33-41), enter into the new and everlasting covenant of marriage (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132), and be obedient in all things. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 8-9, 37-41, 59, 64-65.) Those who become the sons of God in this life (1 John 3:1-3) are the ones who by enduring in continued righteousness will be gods in eternity. (D. & C. 76:58.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 745.)

I. V. Matt. 5:10.
This promise is to be understood literally Every living soul who is pure in heart shall see God, literally and personally, in this life, to say nothing of the fact that he shall dwell with and see him frequently in the celestial world hereafter. (Ether 3:19-20, 26; D. & C. 67:10-14; Teachings, pp. 9, 149-151.) "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 93:1.) (DNTC 1, p. 216.)

John 12:45
And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me.

"The face fo the Lord shall be unveiled; And the saints that are upon the earth, who are alive, shall be quickened and be caught up to meet him. And they who have slept in their graves shall come forth, for their graves shall be opened; and they also shall be caught up to meet him in the midst of the pilar of heaven--They are Christ's, the first fruits, they who shall descend with him first, and they who are on the earth and in their graves, who are first caught up to meet him." (D. & C. 88:95-98; 29:13; 133:56.) (DNTC 1, p. 680.)

Jesus Discourses on the Two Comforters

These statements about the two Comforters climax and crown the teachings of the Son of God. We have no record of anything he ever said which can completely withdraw the curtain of eternity and open to the faithful a vision of the glories of God. Based on love, born of obedience, Jesus promises the saints that they can have, here and now in this life, the following:
(1) The gift and constant companionship of the Holy Ghost;

[a] the comfort and peace which it is the function of the Holy Spirit to bestow;

[b] the revelation and th sanctifying power which alone will prepare men for the companionship of gods and angels here after;

(2) Personal visitations from the Second Comforter, the Lord Jesus Christ himself, the resurrected and perfected being who dwells with his Father in the mansions on high; and

Gospel Mysteries

(3) God the Father--mark it well Phillip!--shall
[a] visit man in person,

[b] take up his abode with him, as it were, and

[c] reveal to him all the hidden mysteries of his kingdom.

Joseph Smith, as the Holy Ghost poured light and revelation into his soul, said this about the two Comforters: "There are two Comforters spoken of. One is the Holy Ghost, the same as given on the day of Pentecost, and that all Saints receive after faith, repentance, adn baptism. This first Comforter or Holy Ghost has no other effect than pure intelligence. It is more powerful in expanding the mind, enlightening the understanding, and storing the intellect with present knowledge, of a man who is of the literal seed of Abraham, than one that is a Gentile, though it may not have half as much visible effect upon the body; for as the Holy Ghost falls upon one of the literal seed of Abraham, it is calm and serene; and his whole soul and body are only exercised by the pure spirit of intelligence; while the effect of the Holy Ghost upon a Gentile, is to purge out the old blood, and make him actually of the seed of Abraham. That man that has none of the blood of Abraham (naturally) must have a new creation by the Holy Ghost. In such a case, there may be more of a powerful effect upon the body, and visible to the eye, than upon an Israelite, while the Israelite at first might be far before the Gentile in pure intelligence.
"The other Comforter spoken of is a subject of great interest, and perhaps understood by few of this generation. After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and his election made sure, then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter, which the Lord hath promised the saints, as is recorded in the testimony of St. John, in the 14th chapter, from the 12th to the 27the verses. Note the 16, 17, 18, 21, 23 verses....
"Now what is this other Comforter. It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even he will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the First Born." (Teachings, pp. 149-151.) (DNTC 1, p. 735-736.)

The Lord Jesus Christ himself, the Second Comforter, will appear personally to the faithful. Mortal men have power while in this life to see God. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C.

92:1.) The Brother of Jared, among others, is one who complied with this law and thereby saw the Lord. "Because of the knowledge of this man," the record says, "he could not be kept from beholding within the viel; and he saw the finger of Jesus, which, when he saw, he fell with fear; for he knew, that it was the finger of the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting. Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; and he did minister unto him." (Ether 3:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 738.)

John 14:23
Jesus here announces the supreme earthly reward for personal righteousness--a personal visitation to man of the Father and the Son. "John 14:23--The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance; and the idea that the Father and the Son dwell in a man's heart is an old sectarian notion, and is false." (D. & C. 130:3.)

He shall teach you all things
All things? yes, all things; and all things means all things. "And by the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know the truth of all things." (Moro. 10:5.) The revealed word says God knows all things and has all thruth, which means there is nothing he does not know and no truth he does not possess. Consequently, now and hereafter, in time or eternity, the Holy Ghost shall teach all things to deserving and eligible students.

He shall testify of me (John 14:26)
Salvation centers in Christ. The Holy Ghost is Christ's revelator to bear witness of his divine Sonship and of the saving truths of his gospel. "The Holy Ghost," In Abraham's record this third member of the Godhead was called "God the third, the witness or Testator." (Teachings, p. 190.) As a Spirit personage, the Holy Spirit, by laws which are ordained, has power to speak to the spirit within man and to convey truth with absolute certainty. This revealed knowledge becomes a personal testimony to the recipient. By definition and testimony of the gospel is to know by personal revelation from the Holy Ghost that Jesus is the Christ through whom salvation comes; that Joseph Smith is the prophet who revealed anew to the world the saving truths of the gospel; and that the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints is the kingdom of God on earth.
[He seals, approves, ratifies, confirms, sanctifies and seals all blessings, truths, and ordiances of the gospel upon you.]

He shall glorify me
The Father and the Son, through their ministries, as Jesus has just announced, glorify each other. (John 13:31-32; 14:13.) Now Jesus says the Holy Ghost shall glorify the Son--a thing which comes to pass because men believe the testimony of the Holy Ghost, so live as to gain exaltation, and thereby add dominions and kingdoms to the endless domains of the Father and the Son. See John 13:31-35.

Know thee the only true God
It is one thing to know about God and another to know him. We know about him when we learn that he is a personal being in whose image man is created; when we learn that the Son is in the express image of his Father's person; specified attributes and powers. But we know them, in the sense of gaining eternal life, when we enjoy and experience the same things they do. To know God is to think what he thinks, to feel what he feels, to have the power he possesses, to comprehend the truths he understands, and to do what he does. Those who know God become like him, and have his kind of life, which is eternal life. (DNTC 1, p. 762.)

Three thousand souls (Acts 2:41.)
More than five hundred brethren saw the risen Lord, probably when he appeared on the mountain in Galilee. (1 Cor. 15:6.) Thus there could have been many priesthood barers available to perform these three thousand baptism. (DNTC 2, p. 43.)

1 Cor 12:3
Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost.

Two principles are here set forth: 1. Any man who has the Spirit praises Christ and testifies fo his goodness and mercy; and 2. Christ is and can be known by revelation from the Holy Ghost, and in no other way.
Revelation is the sole and only sure source of knowledge about God and Christ and gospel truths. A knowledge of these things does not and cannot come by reason, research, or rationalization. God stands revealed, or he remains forever unknown. In keeping with this principle, Joseph Smith said that the latter part of verse three should read: No man can know that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." (Teachings, p. 223.) (DNTC 2, p. 365-367.)

Jesus taught that "the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things" (John 14:26), and the latter-day revelation on spiritual gifts says this about knowing of Christ's divinity by the power of the Spirit: "To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he was crucified for the sins of the world. To others it is given to believe on their words, that they also might have eternal life if they continue faithful." [Parents to children][Abraham] (D. & C. 46:13-14.) (DNTC 2, p. 367-368.)

1 Cor. 14:31
For ye may all prophesy on e by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted.

We which have believed do enter into rest
"True saints enter into the rest of the Lord while in this life and by abiding in the truth, they continue in tht blessed state until they rest with the Lord in heaven. (Moro. 7:3; D. & C. 84:17-25; Matt. 11:28-30; Heb. 3:7-19; 4:1-11.) The rest of the Lord, where mortals are concerned, is to gain a perfect knowledge of the divinity of the great latter-day work. 'It means entering into the knowledge and love of God, having faith in his purpose and in his plan, to such an extent that we know we are right, and that we are not hunting for something else; we are not distrubed by every wind of doctrine, or by the cunning and craftiness of men who lie in wait to deceive." It is "rest from the religious turmoil of the world; from the cry that is going forth, here and there--lo, here is Christ; lo, there is Christ." (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., pp. 58, 121-126.) The rest of the Lord, in eternity, is to inherit eternal life, to gain the fulness of the Lord's glory. (D. & C. 84:24.)" (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed., p. 633.) (DNTC 3, p. 151.)

Gospel Mysteries

Hebrews 12:14 Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lors:

Jesus said: "Blessed are the prue in heart: for they shall see God" (Matt. 5:8), meaning that every person who perfects his life shall see God, here and now, while he yet dwells in the flesh, and that if he continues in grace, he shall also see and dwell with him everlastingly in the realms of immortal glory.
As revealed to Joseph Smith, the divine law enabling man to see Deity is couched in thes words: "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who

[1] forsaketh his sins and

[2] cometh unto me, and

[3] calleth on my name, and

[4] obeyeth my voice [holy Ghost] [Greggs Disortation], and

[5] keepeth my commandments, [equalls]

[result]
[1] shall see may face and [act]

[2] know that I am [by the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know truth of all things] [seal of knowledge, comfirmation, surity, by the Holy Ghost." (D. & C. 93:1) [D&C 132:19-24]
Through Joseph Smith the Lord also said to all those who hold his holy priesthood: "It is [1] your privilege, and [2] a promise I give unto you that have been ordained unto this ministry, that inasmuch as
[1] you strip yourselves from jealousies and fears, and
[2] humble yourselves before me, for ye are not suffeciently humble,
[the result]
[1] the veil shall be rent and
[2] you shall see me and [act]
[3] know that I am [know by the Holy Ghost-seal of holy Ghost]-not with the carnal neither the natural mind [the emperical sences], but with the spiritual [the power of the Holy Ghost]. For no man has seen God at any time in the flesh, excetp quichened by the Spirit of God." (D. & C. 67:10-11.) And the revelation on priesthood says that without "the power of godliness," which is righteousness, "no man can see the face of God, even the Father, adn live." (D. & C. 84:21-22) [I think this means righteousness and the ordiances of God-we can not be in God's and Christ's presence and live as the Father lives with eternal lives....]
The Prophet also taught: "It is the priviledge of every Elder to speak of the things of God; and could we all come together with one heart oand one mind in perfect faith the veil might as well be rent today as next week, or any other time, and if we will but cleanse ourselves and covenant befoer God, to serve him, it is our privilege to have an assurance that God will protect us at all times." (Teachings, p. 9.) (DNTC 3, p. 227.)

Ye also may have fellowship with us] Fellowship connotates a community of interest, activity and feeling; it is the association enjoyed by a group of equals or friends. and in the Church, it is not the apostles only who are to see and hear and know and understand and feel and handle; it is all the saints who have fellowship with them, "for God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what he will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them, for the day must come when no man need say to his neighbor, Know ye the Lord; for all shall know him (who remain0 from the least to the greatest." (Teachings, p. 149.)

Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ]
John--himself soon to be translated--is the same state of fellowship with the Lord which was enjoyed by the three soon-to-be translated Nephite disciples, to whom the Lord said: "Ye shall have fulness of joy; and ye shall sit down in the kingdom of my Father; yea, your joy shall be full, even as the Father hath given me fulness of joy; and ye shall be even as I am, and I am even as the Father; and the Father and I are one." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Thus, John is here saying" 'Our fellowship is with the Father and the Son; we are one with them; they accept us as friends; and we shall be "equal in power, and in might, and in dominion" [D&C 132:19] (D. & C. 76:95), in that glorious day when we receive of their fulness and grace.' To have fellowship with the Lord in this life is to enjoy the companionship of his Holy Spirit, which makes us one with him; and to have fellowship with him in eternity is to be like him, having that eternal life of which he is the possessor and originator. [D&C 132:19.] (DNTC 3, p. 374.)
1 John 2:3
And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments.
[Commandments are acts, after performing the acts and performances, and ordiances, then the Holy Ghost seals the truth of them upon us soul to soul and confirms to the inner man the absolute knowledge and surity of them...]

That John who recorded in his gospel account the great Intercessory Prayer, in which Jesus taught that life eternal consists of knowing the Father and the Son
[the Father 1st because he created us, and His Only Begotten Son 2nd because he saved us and brought us back to His Father and our Father...The Holy Ghost 3rd because it is he which testifies and teaches spirit to spirit the knowledge and truth of all theings.], [John] now announces how it is possible to know God. It is by obedience to the laws and ordiances of the gospel! And in no other way! Which is to say, among other things: There is not one scintilla of spiritual sense in the sectarian supposition that salvation is gained simply by saying: "I accept Jesus as my personal Savior."
Since the very fact of knowing God, in the ultimate and ful sense, consists of thinking what he thinks, saying what he says, doing what he does, and of being like him, thus having exaltation or godhood--it follows that saved souls must advance and progress until they acquire his character, perfections, and attributes, until they gian his eternal power, until they themselves become gods. (DNTC 3, p. 377.)

Rev 3:20-21
Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. [D&C 132:19; 93:1]
To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

Sit with me in my throne] In conversation with Deity, Enoch said: "Thou hast made me, and given unto me a right to they throne." (Moses 7:59.) Thus: "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) 'Ye shall have eternal life; ye shall have exaltation; ye shall be gods; ye shall rule and reign forever on a heavenly throne.'

I...am set down with my Father in his throne] "I am even as the Father." (3 Ne. 28:10.) Speaking of those who are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ," the Prophet asked, "What is it?" and then answered: "To inherit the same power, the same glory and the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a God, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone befoer. What did Jesus do? Why; I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came roling into existence. My Father workded out his kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to my Father, so that he may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take his place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of his Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all his children. It is plain beyond disputatuin, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel." (Teachings, pp. 347-348.) (DNTC 3, p. 462.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Rev. 7:3
Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)

The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted beings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12–17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322–323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

Rev 22:4–5
And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads.
And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

|v6 Seek to bring forth and establish my Zion. Keep my commandments in all things.
|v7 And, if you keep my commandments and endure to the end you shall have eternal life, which gift is the greatest of all the gifts of God.

|v8 And it shall come to pass, that if you shall ask the Father in my name, in faith believing, you shall receive the Holy Ghost, which giveth utterance, that you may stand as a witness of the things of which you shall both hear and see, and also that you may declare repentance unto this generation.

|v9 Behold, I am Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God, who created the heavens and the earth, a light which cannot be hid in darkness;
|v10 Wherefore, I must bring forth the fulness of my gospel from the Gentiles unto the house of Israel.

(D&C: Section 14:6-11)

Patriarchal blessing:
"If you are humble before our Heavenly Father, there is in the preparation a choice companion for you and so prepare yourself; that you can take her to the House of the Lord and there together you might start a Kingdom of your own, where the choice spirits of the Lord might come to be reared and taught and shown by example and by precept the way that they should go, and great will be your joy and your blessing, if you will but prepare yourself for the things that the Lord is willing to give you, through your faithfulness."

I was filled with great joy and rejoicing as I particularly reflected upon the part of my blessing concerning my choice wife and companion Sheri.

And I prayed unto the Lord, in my heart, and thanked Him that this part of my blessing was fulfilled. And I told the Lord how greatful that I was that I could take my wife to the holy temple to start my kingdom here upon this earth....
And as I was thus praying and thanking the Father in this manner, the Spirit of teh Lord came again unto me saying, "No! No! David, this part of your blessing is not fulfilled. Can there be a Kingdom without a King! I say unto you there cannot."

The "fulness of the gospel" refers to all of the laws and commandments of God. The Lord said that the scriptures were given for "the salvation of mine own elect; for they will hear my voice, and shall see me...." (D & C 35:20-21)

> He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. (John 14:21)

> Therefore, care not for the body, neither the life of the body; but care for the soul, and for life of the soul. And seek the face of the Lord always, that in patience ye may possess your souls, and ye shall have eternal life." (D. & C. 101:37-38)

> God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what He will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least Saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them! (TPJS, p. 149)

> And if your eye be single to my glory, your whole bodies shall be filled with light, and there will be no darkness in you; and that body which is filled with light comprehendeth all things.
> Therefore, sanctify yourselves that your minds become single to god, and the days will come that you shall see him; for he will unveil his face unto you, and it shall be in his own time, and in his own way, and according to his own will. (D. & C. 88:67-68)

Gospel Mysteries

To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he was crucified for the sins of the world. (D .& C. 46:13)

The Prophet Joseph adds:
It is not wisdom that we should have all knowledge at once presented before us; but that we should have a little at a time; then we can comprehend it.
The principle of knowledge is the principle of salvation. This principle can be comprehended by the faithful and diligent; and every one that does not obtain knowledge sufficient to be saved will be condemned. (TPJS, p. 297)

Then on another occasion he said:

I want to ask this congregation, every man, woman and child, to answer the question in their own heart, what kind of a being God is? Ask yourselves; turn your thoughts into your hearts, and say if any of you have seen heard, or communed with him. This is a question that may occupy your attention for a long time. I again repeat the question--What kind of a being is God? Does any man or woman know? Have any of you seen him, heard him, or communed with him? Here is the question that will, peradventure, from this time henceforth occupy your attention. The scriptures inform us that "This is life eternal that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."
If any man does not know God, and inquires what kind of a being he is,--if he will search diligently his own heart--if the declaration of Jesus and the apostles be true, he will realize that he has not eternal life; for there can be eternal life on no other principle. (TPJS, pp. 343-344)

The Lord has said,"this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. (John 17:3)

...no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and they to whom the Son will reveal himself; they shall see the father also. (Matt. 11:28, Insp. Ver.)

The power and authority of the higher, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18-19) [Husband needs this to preside over his family]

The Prophet promises:

Having a knowledge of God, we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. (TPJS, p. 350)

Gospel Mysteries

> ...because of the knowledge of this man he could not be kept from beholding within the veil; and he saw the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting.
> Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; AND HE DID MINISTER UNTO HIM. (Ether 3:19-20)

From Joseph Smith's Inspired Translation of the Bible, we read that the fulness of the Priesthood comes "not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God." (Gen. 14:28) Willard Richards wrote in the Joseph Smith Diary that is Priesthood is for those who are--

> ...called, elected and made were without father, etc.; a priesthood which holds the priesthood by right from the Eternal Gods--and not by descent from father and mother. (words of Joseph Smith, p 244)

> And again, speaking of Hebrews 7:

> Paul is here treating of three different priesthoods, namely the priesthood of Aaron <Levitical>, Abraham <patriarchal>, and Melchizedek. Abraham's priesthood was of greater power than Levi's, and Melchizedek's was of greater power than that of Abraham. (Words of Joseph Smith, p.245-246)

> The Prophet Joseph stated that, "those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God,..." (TPJS, p. 322) He further explained this Priesthood order as--

> That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but of King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & law of endless life to man, & no man can attain to the joint heirship with Jesus Christ without being administered to by one having the same power & authority of Melchisedec. (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 245)

> In another instance, Joseph emphasized that the spirit of "Messiah is above the spirit and power of Elijah" (TPJS, p. 340), for--

> ... this greater priesthood administereth the gospel and holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God. For without this no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live. (D. & C. 84:19 & 22)

> In conclusion then, the Prophet stated that "the spirit of Elias is first, Elijah second, and Messiah last." (TPJS, p. 340) This highest power and authority of Priesthood was the kingly Priesthood which Peter referred to as the "Royal Priesthood" (I Peter 2:9), confirmed by the King of Kings-the Messiah Himself.

Those with the highest Priesthood may enjoy the following powers and privileges:

>
> All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (DHC 5:424)
>
> The power and authority of the highest, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18-19)
> The object of every man should be to obtain the Priesthood and magnify his calling in that Priesthood until he proves himself worthy of the fulness of the ordinances of God's kingdom. Only then can he possess the power to have the heavens opened to him and commune with God the Father and His Son.

In our dispensation, the Lord has said: "every man might speak in the name of God that Lord, even the Savior of the world." (D. & C. 1:20) The prophet Jeremiah prophesied:

> Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jer. 31:31-34)
> The Lord stated further:
> ...I say unto you that mine eyes are upon you. I am in your midst and ye cannot see me; but the day soon cometh that ye shall see me, and know that I am; for the veil of darkness shall soon be rent, and he that is not purified shall not abide the day. Wherefore, gird up your loins and be prepared. (D. & C. 38:7-9)
> Remember these things; call upon the Lord while He is near, and seek Him while He may be found, is the exhortation of your unworthy servant. (Joseph Smith, TPJS, p. 18)

Joseph Smith taught:

It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with him face to face as one man converses with another. (T.P.J.S., p. 235)

And Brigham Young said:

I wish that every man would live so that he could have communion with angels--so that Jesus would come to visit him. I wish I could see this people in such a position; but there is too much sin in our midst: our traditions cling to us so strongly, that we cannot yet break through into that liberty; but we will see the day, if faithful, in which we can converse with angels. There are persons in this congregation that will converse with angels just as freely as we converse with each other. (J.D. 5:258)

And Enoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters: (Genesis 5:22)

Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God. (Genesis 6:9)

And the LORD appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the LORD, who appeared unto him. (Genesis 12:7)

And the LORD appeared unto him [Isaac] the same night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's sake. (Genesis 26:24)

And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. (Genesis 32:30)

Then went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel: (Exodus 24:9)

The LORD appeared to Solomon the second time, as he had appeared unto him at Gibeon. (1 Kings 9:2)

In the year that king Uzziah died I [Isaiah] saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple.  Then said I, Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the LORD of hosts. (Isaiah 6:1, 5)

The Brother of Jared:

And because of the knowledge of this man <the brother of Jared> he could not be kept from beholding within the veil; and he saw the finger of Jesus, which, when he saw, he fell with fear; for he knew that it was the finger of the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting. Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; and he did minister unto him. (Ether 3:19-20)

Nephi

And now I, Nephi, write more of the words of Isaiah, for my soul delighteth in his words. For I will liken his words unto my people, and I will send them forth unto all my children, for he verily saw my Redeemer, even as I have seen him. (2 Nephi 11:2)

Mormon

And I, <Mormon> being fifteen years of age and being somewhat of a sober mind, therefore I was visited of the Lord, and tasted and knew of the goodness of Jesus. (Mormon 1:15)

Moroni

And then shall ye know that I <Moroni> have seen Jesus, and that he hath talked with me face to face, and that he told me in plain humility, even as a man telleth another in mine own language, concerning these things; (Ether 12:39)

Melvin J. Ballard:

Away on the Fort Peek Reservation where I was doing missionary work with some of our brethren laboring among the Indians, seeking the Lord for light to decide certain matters pertaining to our work there, and receiving a witness from Him that we were doing things according to His will, I found myself one evening in the dreams of the night in that sacred building, the temple. After a season of prayer and rejoicing I was informed that I should have the privilege of entering into one of those rooms, to meet a glorious Personage, and, as I entered the door, I saw, seated on a raised platform, the most glorious Being my eyes have ever beheld or that I ever conceived existed in all the eternal worlds. As I approached to be introduced, he arose and stepped towards me with extended arms, and he smiled as he softly spoke my name. If I shall live to be a million years old, I shall never forget that smile. He took me into his arms and kissed me, pressed me to his bosom, and blessed me, until the marrow of my bones seemed to melt! When he had finished, I fell at his feet, and, as I bathed them with my tears and kisses, I saw the prints of the nails in the feet of the Redeemer of the world. The feeling that I had in the presence of Him who hath all things in His hands, to have His love, His affection, and His blessing was such that if I ever can receive that which I had but a foretaste, I would give all that I am, and that I ever hope to be, to feel what I then felt! (Sermons and Missionary Services of Melvin Joseph Ballard, by Bryant S. Hinckley, p. 156; also recorded in his diary for May 14, 1917)

I <Orson Whitney> thought I was in the garden of Gethsemane, a witness of the Savior's agony, I seemed to be standing behind a tree in the foreground of the picture, from which point I could see without being seen. The Savior, with the Apostles Peter, James and John, entered the garden through a little wicket gate at my right, where he stationed them in a group, telling them to pray. He then passed over to my left, but still in front of me, where he knelt and prayed also. His face, which was towards me, streamed with tears, as he besought the Father to let the cup pass, and added, "not my will but thine be done." Having finished his prayer, he arose and crossed to where the Apostles were kneeling fast asleep. He shook them gently; they awoke and he reproved them for their apathy. Again he bade them pray, and again crossed to his place and prayed, returning as before to find them sleeping. This happened three times, until I was perfectly familiar with his face, form, and movements.

He was much taller than ordinary men, and though meek, far more dignified than any being I had ever beheld; and he wore a look of ineffable tenderness and compassion, even while reproving His disciples. My heart went out to him as never before to anybody or anything; I loved him with all my soul. I wept at seeing him weep, and felt for him the deepest sympathy.

Then all of a sudden the circumstances changed, though the scene remained the same. Instead of before the crucifixion, it was after. The Savior and the three Apostles, whom he had beckoned to him, now stood in a group at the left, and were about to take their departure, ascending into heaven. I could endure it no longer, but rushed out from behind the tree, fell at his feet, clasped him around the knees and begged him to take me also. With a look of infinite tenderness, as of a father or an elder brother, he stooped, lifted me up and embraced me, saying as he did so in the kindest and gentlest manner possible, while slowly shaking his head and sweetly smiling, "No, my son, these can go with me; for they have finished their work; but you must stay and finish yours!" Still I clung to him and the contact was so real that I felt the warmth of his bosom as I rested upon it. Gazing up into his face, I once more besought him, "Well promise me that I will come to you at the last." Again he smiled sweetly, and there was a look as if he would have gladly granted my request had it been wise to do so. He then said, "That will depend entirely upon yourself."

I awoke with a sob, and it was morning. This dream made a wonderful impression upon me, paving the way to my thorough conversion, which soon followed. Among the things it taught me was not to sleep at my post, and to regard first the duties of my mission, and not to allow anything to interfere with them. (Jensen's Biographical Encyclopedia 1:660-661)

The following accounts are records of men in our dispensation who experienced the actual presence of Jesus Christ. Beginning with Joseph Smith--

Joseph Smith

_____It  no sooner appeared than I found myself delivered from the enemy which held me bound. When the light rested upon me I saw two Personages, whose brightness and glory defy all description, standing above me in the air. One of them spake unto me, calling me by name and said, pointing to the other--This is My Beloved Son. Hear Him! (PoGP:J Smith-History 1:17)

At the first meeting of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in a little log cabin, the Lord was there and Joseph Smith was a witness to it. From the testimony of Mary Lightner came this account:

After prayer and singing, Joseph began talking. He began very solemnly and very earnestly. Suddenly his countenance changed, and he stood mute. He seemed almost transfixed. He looked ahead--he was looking ahead and his face outshone the candle which was on the shelf just behind him. I thought I could almost see his cheekbones. He looked as though a > searchlight was inside his face. I never saw anything like it on earth. I could not take my eyes away from him. I shall remember him as he looked then as long as I live. After a short time he looked at us very solemnly as if to pierce each heart, and then said, "Brothers and Sisters, do you know who has been in your midst this night?" One of the Smith family said, "An angel of the Lord?" Joseph did not answer. Martin Harris was seated at the Prophet's feet on a box; he slid to his knees, clasped his arms around the Prophet's knees and said, "I know--it was our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." Joseph put his hand on Martin Harris' head and answered, "Martin, God revealed that to you. Brothers and sisters, the Savior has been in our midst this night. I want you to remember it. He cast a veil over your eyes, for you could not endure to look upon him. You must be fed milk and not meat. I want you to remember this if it were the last thing that escaped my lips. He has given you all to me and commanded me to seal you up unto eternal life, that where he is you may be also, and if you are tempted of Satan, say, "Get thee behind me, Satan; my salvation is secure." (Journals and Memoirs of Mary Elizabeth Rollins Lightner, pp, 2-3)

> Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, and Others

After having performed this service to my brethren, I retired to the pulpit, the veils being dropped, and bowed myself, with Oliver Cowdery, in solemn and silent prayer. After rising from prayer, the following vision was opened to both of us--

"The veil was taken from our minds, and the eyes of our understanding were opened.
We saw the Lord standing upon the breastwork of the pulpit, before us, and under His feet was a paved work of pure gold in color like amber.
His eyes were as a flame of fire, the hair of His head was white like the pure snow, His countenance shone above the brightness of the sun and His voice was as the sound of the rushing of great waters, even the voice of Jehovah, saying-- for behold, I have accepted this house, and my name shall be here, and I will manifest myself to my people in mercy in this House.
Yea, I will appear unto my servants, and speak unto them with mine own voice, if my people will keep my commandments, and do not pollute this holy house." (D.H.C. 2:435)

The brethren continued exhorting, prophesying, and speaking in tongues until five o"clock in the morning. The Savior made His appearance to some, while angels ministered to others, and it was a Pentecost and an endowment indeed, long to be remembered. (March 30, 1836, D.H.C. 2:432-433)

> Of whom we bear record; and the record which we bear is the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ, who is the Son, whom we saw and with whom we conversed in the heavenly vision. ***
> And we beheld the glory of the Son, on the right hand of the Father, and received of his fulness; And saw the holy angels, and them who are sanctified before his throne, worshiping God, and the Lamb, who worship him forever and ever. And now, after the many testimonies which have been given of him, this is the testimony, last of all, which we give of him: That he lives! Newel Knight

Much exhortation and instruction was given, and the Holy Ghost was poured out upon us in a miraculous manner--many of our number prophesied, whilst others had the heavens opened to their view, and were so overcome that we had to lay them on beds or other convenient places: among the rest was Brother Newel Knight, who had to be placed on a bed, being unable to help himself. By his own account of the transaction, he could not understand why we should lay him on the bed, as he felt no sense of weakness. He felt his heart filled with love, with glory, and pleasure unspeakable, and could discern all that was going on in the room; when all of a sudden a vision of the future burst upon him. He saw there represented the great work which through my <Joseph Smith> instrumentality was yet to be accomplished. He saw heavens opened, and beheld the Lord Jesus Christ, seated at the right hand of the majesty on high, and had it made plain to his understanding that the time would come when he would be admitted into His presence to enjoy His society for ever and ever. (D.H. C. 1:84-85)

John Taylor

When President Taylor came out of his room about eight o'clock on the morning of September 27, 1886, we could scarcely look at him on account of the brightness of his personage.
He stated, "Brethren, I have had a very pleasant conversation with Brother Joseph." I said, "Boss, who is the man that was there until midnight?" He asked, "What do you know about it, Loren?" I told him all about my experience. He said, "Brother Lorin, that was your Lord." (Statement of Lorin C. Wooley, Sept. 22, 1929)

Lorenzo Snow

One evening when I was visiting Grandpa Snow in his room in the Salt Lake Temple, I remained until the doorkeepers had gone and the night watchman had not yet come in, so Grandpa said he would take me to the main, front entrance and let me out that way. He got his bunch of keys from his dresser.
After we left his room and while we were still in the large corridor, leading into the celestial room, I was walking several steps ahead of Grandpa when he stopped me, saying: "Wait a moment, Alice. I want to tell you something. It was right here that the Lord Jesus appeared to me at the time of the death of President woodruff. He instructed me to go right ahead and reorganize the First Presidency of the Church at once and not wait as had been done after the death of the previous presidents, and that I was to succeed President Woodruff."
Then Grandpa came a step nearer and held out his left hand and said: "He stood right here, about three feet above the floor. It looked as though he stood on a plate of solid gold."
Grandpa told me what a glorious personage the Savior is and described his hands, feet, countenance, and beautiful white robes, all of which were of such a glory of whiteness and brightness that he could hardly gaze upon Him.
Then Grandpa came another step nearer me and put his right hand on my head and said: "Now granddaughter, I want you to remember that this is the testimony of your grandfather, that he told you with his own lips that he actually saw the Savior here in the temple and talked with Him Face to face.

Then we went on and Grandpa led me out of the main, front door of the temple. (Des. News, April 2, 1938)

John W. Taylor

I know our Savior lives because I have seen Him Face to face! (Family Kingdom, Sam Taylor, p. 121)

When the time came for him <John W. Taylor> to die, he knew his life and mission in mortality was nearly finished. He asked his wife, ellen, to wash his face, comb his hair, smooth his mustache--now he was ready.
"John..." (spoke Ellen).
"Hush," he whispered.
He needn't have spoken, for the change in his face had taken her voice away. The gray and wasted countenance was transformed with the light of the Spirit, as it had been in the old days upon the rostrum. Ellen had heard so many people tell of times when John's countenance came alight, and now at last the wife who had known him only during the years of the shadow saw this brilliance and felt the awesome warmth of the Spirit emanating from him.
"Hush," he whispered. "The Savior is passing."
And the light died away as he followed Him. (Ibid., pp. 298-299)

George Q. Cannon

I rejoiced exceedingly in the testimonies that have been borne during this conference. I know that this is the work of God. I know that God lives. I know that Jesus lives; for I have seen him! I know that this is the Church of God, and that It is founded on Jesus Christ, our Redeemer. I testify to you of these things as one that KNOWS--as one of the Apostles of the Lord that He lives and that He will live, and will come to reign on the earth, to sway an undisputed sceptre. (The Deseret Weekly, Vo. LII, No. 20, Oct. 31, 1896, p. 610)

Alexander Neibaur

Shortly before his (Alexander Neibar's) death, his son said to him:
"Father, you have been telling us of your long and hard experience and we have listened with intense affection and interest. But let me ask you, is it worth it all? Wouldn't you have been better off if you had remained with you people? Is the Gospel worth all this sacrifice?"
The glow of testimony and of truth lit up the torches in the dimming eyes of that ancient Hebrew prophet and poet and he lifted up his voice in firm and lofty assurance as he said:
"Yes, yes! and more! I have seen my Savior! I have seen the prints in His hands. I know that Jesus is the Son of God. I know that this work is true, and that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God. I would suffer it all and more, far more than I have suffered for that knowledge, even to the laying down of my body on the plains for the wolves to devour!" (From

Brigham H. Roberts

"Make your calling and election sure. This is more important than plural marriage or any other principle of the Gospel--make your calling and election sure! See to it that you KNOW the Savior while in this life. You must know Jesus Christ, perorally, while in this probation."
Carl Jentzsch, a friend of John and Lorin Wolley, reported the above and also mentioned that at one time he had a discussion with B. H. Roberts, who was then head of the Quorum of the Seventy in the Church. He says:
...I spoke to, or had a long conversation for about four hours with, B. H. Roberts. He was then head of the Quorum of the Seventy in the Church. For two or three hours he skirted around things and didn't come quite to the point until finally he said, "Well, I am very discouraged with the Church, the officials and the way things are going, and they know it because I have told them. But I want to say this to you--I have gone into Certerville Canyon, and I've fasted many days by a little stream of water." Now I know what he means, because I've been lost in Centerville Canyon, in the middle of the night. And the brush at the time was very thick, and the only way to get up there at the time was to find deer trails.
Brother roberts went on, "After many days, when I was so discouraged and felt like I just couldn't go another day, I started out of that canyon. The Savior appeared to me, and He laid His hands upon my head, and he said, 'Brother Roberts, thou shalt have a part and a lot in my kingdom.'" So, I just want to witness these things to you because it is the truth. He (B. H. Roberts) said, "Every man in this Church who does not receive this confirmation, has not obtained anything in this kingdom whatsoever: he must obtain this. It is one of the most necessary things in the whole Gospel of Jesus Christ!" (Reminiscences of John W. Woolley and Lorin C. Woolley, Vol. 1, Rhea Knuz, p. 6)

John W. Woolley

I <Harold Allred> want to mention that Ianthus W. Barlow went with us that day to visit with this pioneer <John W. Woolley>, whom he knew well. the most outstanding thing John told us was this: "Brethren, I have shaken hands with my Savior. It was here in this room." That room was in John W. Woolley's home where the monumental meetings of September 27, 1886, took place. (Statement by Harold Allred, Dec. 1972, as recorded in Vol. 4, p. 1, of Reminiscences of John and Lorin Woolley, Rhea Knuz)

Lorin C. Woolley

March 31, 1930. About 4 p.m. met my dear friend and brother Lorin C. woolley on the street. He had been to see me and finding me out of the office had left. As I was driving in my car I saw him and felt impressed to stop. We repaired to the office, and he, under the influence of the Spirit of the Lord, told me many wonderful things, some of which I record here: He had met the Savior, Brigham Young and John Taylor, since the death of the two latter, also Joseph Smith, and had heard the voice of his father since his death. Joseph Smith and John Taylor had visited him at his father's home before his father's death and after he had been "handled" by the Church, and he was comforted and instructed to "carry on". He has a special mission. (Joseph Musser Journal, p. 55)

* * * * *

These were some of the experiences and testimonies of "the elect". This was the fulfillment of a promise by the Lord, when He declared that--

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. (Revelation 3:20) * [See also President Kimball's talk on D&C 93]

He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him...And we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. (John 14:21, 23)

...the scriptures shall be given, even as they are in mine own bosom, to the salvation of mine own elect; for they will hear my voice, and shall see me, and shall not be asleep, and shall abide the day of my coming;... [for they shall be purified, even as I am pure.] (D. & C. 35:20-21)

President Heber J. Grant understood clearly the reasons why so many men never experience the fulfillment of this promise:

If we keep the commandments of God, He will love us, and the Savior will manifest Himself unto us. If we fail to keep the commandments of God, there is no promise made to us....(Gospel Standards, pp. 36-37;

FILE NAME:PURPOSE.TEM

THE PURPOSE OF THE TEMPLE ORDINANCES

Too often we go to the temple and do not really understand what it is all about except to know that we are doing work either for the living or the dead. Too often the rest of what goes on in there is clouded in mystery and symbolism which seems eternally impenetrable. But we must realize that salvation is an individual affair, meaning, that everyone must be saved upon the same conditions. None will receive exaltation except through obedience to the laws and ordinances ordained for that purpose. With this concept in mind, the temple can become an intensely personal experience. All that goes on in there is for your own exaltation, as well as for those who have passed on. In order for us to understand what the ordinances do for us we must understand the fall of mankind and the plan of redemption which was designed by God to bring man back to him. We are in a fallen condition, both physically and spiritually. We have sins that prevent us from coming into His presence. How do the ordinances help us to return to God's presence? How do they help us gain eternal life? How do they help us gain the blessings and spiritual experiences that we need and desire? Each of the ordinances build upon the prior ordinance received, until the recipient has received a fulness of the ordinances and has received the crown of eternal life.

Baptism & The Holy Ghost

We must first begin with the ordinance of baptism of water since this is the first ordinance which a person receives in this world. Through this ordinance the individual is promised a forgiveness of sins upon conditions of repentance. The first two principles of the gospel are faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and second, repentance. If the baptized person did not repent of his sins prior to baptism then he must still do so if he desires to receive a remission of his sins through the waters of baptism. The ordinance of baptism itself is a sign before heaven and earth, that the person is willing to take upon himself the name of Jesus Christ and to fulfill the terms and conditions of the covenant of baptism as outlined in Mosiah 18:8-10. This ordinance justifies the person. It does not sanctify the person. That is the mission of the Holy Ghost which is received through the next ordinance of the laying on of hands. In that ordinance the person is commanded to receive the Holy Ghost. If that third member of the Godhead is not sought for by the individual he may never really receive His influence in this life. Having been justified and made clean through watery baptism, the Holy Ghost (if diligently sought for) can now begin the process of "sanctification" through the powers of the holy spirit. His blood becomes of the blood of Abraham (TPJS, pp. 149-150) and the person becomes eligible for the reception of the gifts of the Holy Ghost and persona! revelation on a continual basis. His body becomes spiritually renewed and sanctified as he grows in the experiences of the spirit, and in the attributes of godliness mentioned in II Peter 1:5-7.

Oath & Covenant Of The Priesthood

After the man is cleansed of his sins and is being sanctified, he is ready to receive the covenant of eternal life the covenant which will make of him an heir to all that the Father hath; a joint-heir with Christ; a son of God. It is the oath and covenant of the priesthood. And all those who are faithful unto the magnifying of these two priesthoods (Aaronic & Melchizedek) are sanctified unto the renewing of their bodies; they become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, the Church and Kingdom and the elect of God. Through faithfulness they may receive the Savior himself, and then the Father. Then, the Father promises that all that he has shall be given to him he becomes an heir to all that the Father has through his Son, Jesus Christ. Without this oath and covenant of the priesthood, the man would not inherit anything. But because of this covenant, the brethren can receive their own kingdoms for eternity, and their wives that are sealed to them become heirs to the blessings of the kingdom through their husbands. They receive all that their husbands receive, be it large or small, whether 2, 5 or 10 talents.

But whether or not the brethren actually becomes heirs to all that the Father has, depends entirely upon whether or not they magnify their callings in the priesthood. First, they are called to be fathers and husbands in Israel. They must magnify those callings with all diligence and care. Then, they are called to minister to others outside of their family, to the inhabitants of the earth, as their assignments designate. The three overall missions which priesthood holders have are to (1) preach the gospel (2) perfect the saints, and (3) redeem the dead. As priesthood holders they are "servants" of the Lord, (The sisters are called "handmaidens") which is preparatory to becoming a "son". As "servants" they become responsible for the blood and sins of those they are called upon to serve. If they are true and faithful to their priesthood callings, after a season of testing and proving, the voice of the Lord will call them (D&C 88:85) and declare that they are clean from the blood and sins of this generation. They are then eligible for the ordinance, which comes later, which will make the priesthood holder clean "every whit" from the sins of the generation he was called upon to serve. Through baptism he is cleansed from his own sins. Through the ordinance of the washing of the feet he is cleansed from the sins of those he held priesthood responsibility for. Thus, it matters not whether you are a bishop, a teacher, a counselor, a home teacher, or an apostle. It is not WHERE one serves that determines his worthiness, but HOW. The covenant says he must magnify his callings in the priesthood. It does not stipulate, nor is it important what the calling may be, for the body of Christ needs all of it members, the hands, the eyes, the feet and the legs, in order to function properly. In fact, the greater the responsibility of the calling, the greater the condemnation that will come to the person if he does not magnify it properly. But in the end there is only one celestial kingdom, to which we will go if we prove faithful in our callings. Thus we should not seek for positions within the kingdom. The desire for position seems to stem from the desire to have status and power among the people, which desire is of the world and is not of God.

Initiatory Ordinances

Next, the person must go to the temple to continue his quest for eternal life. The next essential ordinances are those labeled "initiatory". These ordinances promise to the individual that if he is faithful he might become clean from the blood and sins of this generation. It also states that he will be made a king and a priest if he remains faithful. The sisters are pronounced clean from the sins of this generation because they do not hold the priesthood responsibilities within the Church. Because of this they are not primarily responsible for the actions of this generation. Therefore they are not responsible for the sins of this generation. They do assist the priesthood brethren however, as auxiliaries to the priesthood and are accountable to them for the work they are called upon to do. The sisters are promised that they will become queens and priestesses unto their husbands if they are faithful in magnifying their callings as wives, mothers, and as auxiliary leaders in the kingdom.

A Shield

At this point the person is given a garment which is designed to be a shield and a protection against the power of the destroyer until the person's work on earth is completed. As each person comes closer to the Lord, the garment becomes a shield against the powers of the destroyer, and thus each person is able to approach the Lord without fear of being destroyed by Satan.

Endowment

So far, the person has been forgiven of his sins, is on the road to sanctification, has been promised further blessings if faithful, and has received a shield that will be used later in conjunction with the keys of the priesthood. The endowment now bestows those keys of the priesthood upon both men and women. They are put under covenant to obey certain laws of the gospel. By faithfully observing these laws they prove that they are true and faithful and can therefore receive further blessings.

The person is now ready to receive the keys of the priesthood, which are the keys of how to ask and receive an answer. The signs and tokens, etc., constitute the keys of the priesthood mentioned in the lecture at veil. These keys are revealed to both the men and the women. With these keys the person may begin to learn how to approach God in the proper manner. The shield which was received earlier now is an important part of prayer.

Marriage Sealing

At this point a new kingdom is formed for time, with the promise that if the couple endures faithfully in this life, the kingdom will have a seal placed upon it so that it can endure for all the eternities.
It is at this point where the couple receives the command to bear children, to multiple & replenish the earth. Up to this point in their lives they had no right to have sexual relations and to bear children, lawfully, before the Lord. However, because of the kind of a world we live in, the Lord tolerate or endures the system we live under. But if we were to do things the Lord's way, all on earth would be married in the temple, and it is there where they would receive the command from the Lord to bear children. But because of the rebelliousness of mankind, they have turned from the Lord and do what they want in spite of him. Nevertheless, those who marry in the temple are not only legally married (in the eyes of the land), but lawfully as well (in the eyes of God).
The wife promised to obey her husband in righteousness, and thus the husband takes the lead in the home. The keys of the priesthood which were received in the endowment must be observed by the couple if they expect to come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds.

Washing Of The Feet

This ordinance is performed upon the brethren after they have proven that they have been true and faithful in their assigned priesthood responsibilities. If the wife desires to receive the fulness of the priesthood, she should encourage, inspire and assist her husband to magnify his callings in the priesthood, for only in this way can she ever hope to gain the reward, because the blessings & rewards will come to her only as her husband inherits them.

Fulness Of The Priesthood

The kingdom which was formally organized in temple marriage now becomes permanent throughout all eternity. They are actually made kings and queens, priests and priestesses for all the eternities to come. This ordinance also seals them up to eternal life and bestows many other blessings upon the couple.
The keys of the priesthood which were given in the endowment are operable for the benefit of the husband and wife and they are able to receive all necessary revelations for themselves and their kingdom, and all prayers are answered.

THE MEANING & USE OF THE SIGNS

Gospel Mysteries

Signs & Tokens To Be Used After This Life

On April 6, 1853, President Brigham Young made the following comments about the endowment after the First Presidency and the Patriarch had laid the Southeast corner stone of the Salt Lake Temple:

Your endowment is, to receive all those ordinances in the House of the Lord, which are necessary for you, after you have departed this life, to enable you to walk back to the presence of the Father, passing the angels who stand as sentinels, being enabled to give them the key words, the signs and tokens, pertaining to the Holy Priesthood, and gain your eternal exaltation in spite of earth and hell. (J.D. 2:31; See also 12:163; 2:315; 10:172; 6:63; 6:154-55)

The Signs As They Relate to Prayer

Certainly as President Young explained, the signs and tokens will have to be used, after this life, by those who desire to gain their exaltation. But this is not the only reason the Lord has given the keys of the priesthood to the saints.
In a discourse given in the Nauvoo Temple, December 28, 1845, President Brigham Young explained further concerning the signs:

...the name that was given to Adam was more ancient than he was the first man--but his New Name pertained to the Holy Priesthood & as I before stated is more ancient than he was--there are 4 Penal Signs & 4 Penal Tokens and should I want to address the Thorone (sic) to enquire after ancient things which transpired on Plannets that roled away before this Plannet came into existence, I should use my New Name which is Ancient & refers to Ancient things--Should I wish to Enquire for Present things I should use my own Name which refers to present things & should I want to Enquire for Future things I would use the 3rd Name which refers to the first token of the Melchizedek Priesthood-- or is the 3rd token that is given--& refers to the son--the 2nd Token of the M. Priesthood is to be given only in one place and nowhere else--but these signs & tokens that pertain to the Priesthood should never be given any where only in such places as belong to the P.H. & that too by none but such as belong to the order of the Priesthood. (General Record of the Seventies, Book B, 28 Dec 1845)

The use of the fourth sign and token was never mentioned by President Young in this discourse as far as we have record. However, from several other LDS sources and documents, and as it is portrayed in the temple, we know that the fourth sign is used specifically to petition for messengers.

Evidences of the Use of the Fourth Sign

After Adam and Eve were cast into the lone and dreary world they built an altar and offered prayer. After offering up the signs he used the last one, petitioning the Father for messengers. Before "Peter, James and John" are able to appear, Satan and one of his ministers appear. Then 3 angelic messengers with physical bodies appear. After finding him true and faithful in all things they are able to give him the additional light and knowledge which he desired. This same sign was apparently used by Abraham to free himself from the altar as he was about to be slain by the idolatrous priest. The facsimile itself shows Abraham with his arms raised with an angel of the Lord appearing to free him. At the early meetings of the School of the Prophets, 1833, Zebedee Coltrin describes what happened on several instances while praying with uplifted hands: First, the Savior appeared, then the Father. Others, desiring to see an angel joined at the altar in prayer. "When the vision came, two of the brethren shrank and called for the vision to close or they would perish. When the Prophet came in they told him what they had done and Joseph said the angel was no further off than the roof of the house, and a moment more he would have been in their midst." Mary Lightner used the last sign as she knelt between 3 haystacks endeavoring to find an answer to her prayer concerning a difficult situation which she faced.

The Signs and The Crucifixion

The significance of what the tokens and signs represent is deepened as one gains a greater awareness of their relationship to the atonement. The last two tokens relate directly to the wounds the Savior received while on the cross. The first two tokens are not explained, but possibly refer to the wounds received by the Savior in the feet and the side. The signs are the positions of the Savior's arms while on the cross which would form both the square and compass. The cup which is scripturally spoken of, while Christ was in the Garden of Gethsemane, and which he desired that it should pass from him, corresponds to his cupped hands as the nails were driven through causing the muscles to cramp into a cup shape. The penalties make reference to the ways in which the sacrifices were made in ancient times, and which referred to the crucifixion of Christ which was to come.
Through the endowment, the saints receive the wounds of the crucifixion in symbolic imagery into their own body. Thus Paul could say that he had the marks of the crucifixion in his body. If we are true and faithful, we will not have to suffer in the manner in which the Savior did for our sins. The signs and tokens remind us of the awful price he had to pay for our sins, that we might not have to suffer as he did.
There are basically five wounds which the Savior received in the crucifixion:

1. Hands
2. Wrists
3. Side
4. Feet
5. Head (crown)

Concerning three of the wounds, President Kimball said:

He [Christ] goes his way alone. The nails are hammered into his hands and feet, through soft and quivering flesh. The agony increases. The cross is dropped in the hole; the flesh tears. What excruciating pain! Then new nails are placed in the wrist to make sure that the body will not fall to the ground and recover. (The Ensign/December 1984, p. 7; Also The Ensign/December 1980, p. 8)

In like manner there are temple paralells where we might receive those same wounds symbolically through the ordinances of the temple:

1. Hands	1. Token
2. Wrists	2. Token
3. Side	3. Eternal Marriage-- Power of procreation
4. Feet	4. Washing of feet
5. Head (crown)	5. Anointed & Ordained King & Priest (on the crown)

General Knowledge of the Signs & Marks Among Saints Today

Gospel Mysteries

The meaning of these signs and tokens were fully explained to the saints in the early days of the church. But after 1890 the knowledge of their meanings slowly slipped away as the church members died away, until we generally do not know the meanings of the signs and tokens.
In a meeting of Manti Temple workers, May 1st, 1938, Sister Young (the temple Matron) told the group of a meeting held in the Logan Temple where the late President Ivins stated that the full meaning of the marks of the garment has not been revealed (Manti Temple Historical Record, May 1, 1938). In the 1930's it was recommended by a temple committee that the temples give an explanation of the marks in the garment. Elder David 0. McKay at that time had given an explanation that this committee approved of, and which was approved by the First Presidency and implemented in all the existing temples. The meanings of the marks which we currently receive in the temple are the same ones which were approved of in the 30's. However, it does not necessarily mean that the explanation currently given in the temple today is what the Lord really had in mind when he first gave them to Adam and Eve. By October of 1955, it was necessary for President David 0. McKay to meet with all the General Authorities and temple presidencies of the church to give to them the proper translation of the fourth sign, which was apparently being pronounced incorrectly.

How The Signs Are Used In Prayer

When an individual receives the signs, and all that goes along with them, he has received his endowment. All the rest that occurs in the endowment room is instructive in nature, and designed to put man under covenant to obey certain laws. The keys of the priesthood, mentioned in the lecture at the veil, are the signs, etc., which are received in the endowment. Thus both the man and the woman are endowed with the keys of the priesthood, or, the keys of how to ask and receive an answer. The second sign is always given at the altar because "present" things are always being prayed for. However, if other signs were used, they would be for the purpose of inquiring or asking for past or future things. If the last sign were to be used, it would be for the purpose of petitioning for messengers. The women veil their faces in the circle because they receive their revelations through their husbands, who receives them from God. The veil acts as a symbol to God and angels that the person wearing it is not desirous of receiving direct revelation, rather to only be a participant in it with her husband.
In the endowment, all who desire are allowed to pray in the true order of prayer. The participants in this kind of prayer actually approach the Lord at the veil because the dedicated altar is where the real veil is located, regardless of where that altar might be located. At the veil (the altar) the person who is supplicating the Lord uses the signs of the priesthood. Those signs are designed to give revelation concerning all things past, present and future, or to open the heavens, depending upon the one which is used. The experience of going through the temple veil symbolically teaches the person what must be done in order to go through the real veil.
Prayer at an altar should also be given as depicted at the prayer circle in the temple. First a dedicated altar exists; then the person presents himself there in the robes of the priesthood; then the signs are offered up; then the individual prays with one of the signs, usually the second. When the signs are offered up it should be remembered what they represent---the Savior's positions while on the cross. Some individuals were not depicting the fourth sign correctly in the 1930's and therefore instruction was given to them by temple president Robert D. Young that the sign should be improved by raising the hands as high as conveniently possible, then down to the square, and then dropping the hands to the side. (Manti Temple Historical Record, 15 December 1936)

The Process of Going Through The Real Veil

The 2nd sign is used in the temple at the circle because that is the one individuals should use in their homes. It is the example of which one to use. Out of the 4 signs, the second is the only one which is operable for those who have not yet received the fulness of the priesthood, or had their calling and election made sure. The second sign will allow a person to converse through the veil. After this has been accomplished, and the person secures the name of the last token by conversing with the Lord through the veil, then he is able to use the fourth sign (which now becomes operable) to go through the veil and enter the Lord's presence. Once the person has received the fulness of the priesthood and has made his calling and election sure, the signs can then be used to reveal all things past, present, future, and to hold converse with the angels and just men made perfect.

Interestingly enough, the second sign is the last of the Aaronic order. The Aaronic order will allow a person to come to the veil of the temple, but will not allow him to enter. The ancient Israelites would ritually come to the veil of the temple annually, but they were never permitted to enter through the veil because they did not have the Melchizedek portion of the endowment. The fourth sign is the fulness of the Melchizedek order, and thus will allow the person to enter through the veil into the Lord's presence. And so it is in real life. We must first learn to converse with the Lord through the veil. Then we will have the knowledge necessary to open the veil and enter his presence. Until we have been able to converse with the Lord through the veil, use of any of the other signs will do us little good.

I have come to believe now, that the three taps at the veil symbolically represent our own prayers which we should do three times daily. As we pray in the true order in the morning, the first tap is made in heaven by a worker. At noon when prayers in the true order are done again, another tap is heard, and at the end of the day the third tap is heard in heaven. We should pray at the veil three times daily so that our prayers will be heard. Only through prayer, fasting and diligent effort will we be able to finally come to hear the voice of the Lord through the veil.

Also of importance is the thought that when Adam approaches the veil he has already been judged "true and faithful in all things", and he now "desires further light and knowledge by conversing with the Lord through the veil." We are told in the endowment session that if we are true and faithful the day will come when we will be called up and anointed kings & queens, priests & priestesses, whereas we are now anointed only to become such. The fact that we are true and faithful at that point indicates that a judgment has taken place. Enos was judged clean and his sins were forgiven. This is apparently the judgement for which we seek, that we might be pronounced clean from our own sins, as happened to Enos, Alma the Younger, and other Book of Mormon characters. This was their 3 day experience in which they were being born again through the blood of Christ. The rebirth process makes them sons and daughters of God. clean and pure, having proven themselves to be true and faithful in keeping all the commandments and covenants made.

In addition to being cleansed from our own sins, we will have to be proven worthy in the areas of (1) sharing the gospel to non-members around us; (2) helping to perfect the saints through our assigned callings; and (3) in doing temple work for the dead. Now the scripture in D&C 88 makes sense:

> Verily I say unto you, let those who are not the first elders [all of us] continue in the vineyard [in our assigned callings] until the mouth of the Lord shall call them [the voice of the Lord is heard], for their time is not yet come; [our period of probation is not yet complete] their garments are not clean from the blood [and sins] of this generation. (85)

After we have proven ourselves true and faithful in keeping all the commandments, and in living up to the covenants we have made, and the priesthood assignments which we have received, then if we will endure in this kind of righteous living, the judgement will come, and then we will be able to begin conversing with the Lord through the veil. Then after we have conversed with the Lord through the veil, and we have received the name of the last token, then we will be able to approach the veil and have it said: Adam, having conversed with the Lord through the veil, desires now to enter his presence. "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." (Rev 3:20) We will then be able to open the door (the veil) and allow the Savior to come in and minister unto us.

Keys Must Be Used To Obtain Blessings

The endowment is designed to "enable one 'to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Eloheim in the eternal worlds.' (TPJS, p. 237)" But in order to do so there are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing of the fulness of the priesthood (Mormon Doctrine, p. 482). If the saints are to ever obtain the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood, they will have to exercise their faith and approach the throne of grace and petition for his mercy and blessings, in the true order.

NATURAL AND ORDAINED PATRIARCHS (1)

(2) In a patriarchal government, the father presides and directs the affairs of the family. This has been the basic form of government on the earth within families for nearly 6,000 years since the days of Adam and Eve.

Within the gospel context, a natural patriarch is a person who holds the Patriarchal Priesthood and is the natural, and/or sealed father of his posterity. On the other hand, an ordained patriarch is a person who has been ordained within the church to give blessings to those who are orphans, as well as to those who have no father holding the priesthood. In 1845, John Taylor explained the difference and relationship between the two:

A Patriarch to the church is appointed to bless those who are orphans, or have no father in the church to bless them....But does not the Patriarch [to the church] stand in the same relationship to the church, as Adam did to his family, and as Abraham and Jacob did to theirs? No. This is another mistake which is made by our junior, and one that may be very easily made inadvertently. Adam was the This was Font/Pitch 1,10 - Off.This was Font/Pitch 4,10 - On.naturalThis was Font/Pitch 4,10 - Off.This was Font/Pitch 1,10 - On. father of his posterity, who were his family and over whom he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest, and king. Both Abraham and Jacob stood in the same relationship to their families. But not so with Father Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, or William Smith. They were not the natural fathers of the church, and could not stand in the same capacity as Adam, Abraham, or Jacob; but inasmuch as there had been none to bless for generations past, according to the ancient order, they were ordained and set apart for the purpose of conferring patriarchal blessings, to hold the keys of this priesthood, and unlock the door, that had long been closed upon the human family: that blessings might again be conferred according to the ancient order, and those who were orphans, or had no father to bless them, might receive it through a patriarch who should act as proxy for their father, and that fathers might again be enabled to act as patriarchs to their families, and bless their children. For like all other ordinances in the church, this had been neglected; and must needs be restored. (3)

Eliza R. Snow, expressed this same idea by saying:

With the restoration of the fullness of the gospel came also the ancient order of patriarchal blessings. Each father, holding the priesthood, stands as a patriarch, at the head of his family, with invested right and power to bless his household, and to predict concerning the future, on the heads of his children, as did Jacob of old.

Inasmuch as many fathers have died without having conferred those blessings, God, in the order of his kingdom, has made provisions to supply the deficiency, by choosing men to officiate as patriarchs, whose province it is to bless the fatherless. Joseph Smith, Sr., was ordained to this office, and held the position of first patriarch in the church. (4)

John A. Widtsoe explained this concept by saying that "one holding the Patriarchal office [as an ordained patriarch within the church] does not stand as the head of any family (save his own) or as the head of the Church, or any branch thereof, but acts primarily as proxy for the fatherless and for those whose nearest male ancestors are not in the Church." (5)

How, within the gospel framework, does a father become a patriarch to his family? John Taylor taught:

Every father, after he has received his patriarchal blessing, is a Patriarch to his own family; and has the right to confer patriarchal blessings upon his family; which blessings will be just as legal as those conferred by any Patriarch of the church: in fact it is his right; and a Patriarch in blessing his children, can only bless as his mouthpiece. (6)

Elder Taylor was apparently addressing himself to those who were already members of the church and who held the higher priesthood, since one cannot pronounce spiritual blessings upon the heads of others, as God's mouthpiece, without the Melchizedek Priesthood. (7)

Daniel Tyler commented that "every faithful Elder in Israel who has received a patriarchal blessing by a legally authorized father in Israel, is, himself, by virtue of his blessing, a patriarch to his children, and without such blessing is not a recognized patriarch." (8) Here, brother Tyler indicates that "every faithful Elder" is "a patriarch to his children", showing that natural patriarchs must hold the priesthood.

To this idea, John A. Widtsoe added that "every man is a Patriarch who is the natural father or head of a family, if his children have been born to him under the bond of the Holy Priesthood. Therefore, each head of a properly organized family, being a Patriarch, may in his own right bless his posterity." (9)

Bruce R. McConkie echoed this idea by saying:
In addition to ordained patriarchs, there are also natural patriarchs. Every holder of the higher priesthood who has entered into the patriarchal order of celestial marriage---thereby receiving for himself the blessings of the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob---is a natural patriarch to his posterity. (10)
President Spencer W. Kimball also taught that a man becomes a patriarch to his family through temple marriage:
Only through this power [Melchizedek Priesthood] does man "hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church," enabling him to receive "the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened" unto him (see D&C 107:18-19), enabling him to enter the new and everlasting covenant of marriage and to have his wife and children bound to him in an everlasting tie, enabling him to become a patriarch to his posterity forever. (11) What is a patriarch supposed to do in connection with his calling? John Taylor stated that patriarchs are to bless their children with patriarchal blessings according to the ancient order. The ancient order began with Adam, who, according to revelation, gathered...
...the residue of his posterity who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing.
And the Lord appeared unto them, and they rose up and blessed Adam, and called him Michael, the prince, the archangel.
And the Lord administered comfort unto Adam, and said unto him: I have set thee to be at the head; a multitude of nations shall come of thee, and thou art a prince over them forever.
And Adam stood up in the midst of the congregation; and, notwithstanding he was bowed down with age, being full of the Holy Ghost, predicted whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation.
These things were all written in the book of Enoch, and are to be testified of in due time. (12)
This ancient order shows that Adam apparently gave several blessings to his children, for prior to his death he gave them his "last blessing." He also blessed several generations of children, not just his immediate children. Additionally, Adam prophesied "whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation." (13) Finally, all these things were written down in a book. (14)
In the restoration of all things, these same rights were restored to the earth. Every father who has entered the new and everlasting covenant of marriage, may bless his own children by the spirit, and prophesy upon their heads "whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation", and record these sayings in the family records. This is according to the ancient order of things.
In the latter-days, an important part of a blessing also includes declaring the lineage from which the person comes. In 1976 the First Presidency stated:
Certainly we should give new and additional emphasis to the role of the father in giving blessings to children in the family. We think we should generally leave to the ordained patriarchs in the stakes the responsibility of declaring lineage in connection with an official patriarchal blessing, but still we could leave unlocked the door so that any father who felt inspired to pronounce the lineage in connection with a father's blessing he was giving to his children should not be prevented from doing so. (15)
Patriarchal blessings are important for several reasons. First, the person is told which of the twelve tribes he descends from. The tribe of Ephraim is the firstborn, and is the one that is generally being gathered today. Second, the blessing can reveal things about the person's future that will assist him in his earthly mission. Third, the patriarch (natural or ordained) who holds the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood can seal the person up to eternal life. (16) The blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob can also be sealed directly upon the person. This idea is what led Daniel Tyler to state that a patriarch to a family can "renew unto his posterity the rights conferred upon him." (17) The privilege of being able to bless our posterity as Adam, Abraham and Jacob blessed theirs was lost to the world through apostasy. But in the latter-days, all the powers and blessings which rightfully belong to righteous fathers are being restored to them once again. Through the fulness of the temple ordinances men and women can once again obtain all the blessings of the fulness of the gospel that pertain to the same kind of family order which existed in the days of Adam and Eve.

A COMPILATION OF QUOTATIONS ON THE SECOND DEATH
THE UNPARDONABLE SIN
SONS OF PERDITION

H.C. 1:366; Letter to W. W. Phelps & Saints from Joseph Smith; June 25, 1833.

Say to the brothers Hulet and to all others, that the Lord never authorized them to say that the devil, his angels or the sons of perdition, should ever be restored; for their state of destiny was not revealed to man, is not revealed, nor ever shall be revealed, save to those who are made partakers thereof; consequently those who teach this doctrine, have not received it of the Spirit of the Lord. Truly Brother Oliver declared it to be the doctrine of devils. We therefore command that this doctrine be taught no more in Zion. We sanction the decision of the Bishop and his council, in relation to this doctrine being a bar to communion.

Minutes of a Meeting of the Twelve in the House of the Prophet

Elder Heber C. Kimball preached at the house of President Joseph Smith, on the parable in the 18th chapter of Jeremiah, of the clay in the hands of the potter, that when it marred in the hands of the potter it was cut off the wheel and then thrown back again into the mill, to go into the next batch, and was a vessel of dishonor; but all clay that formed well in the hands of the potter, and was pliable, was a vessel of honor; and thus it was with the human family, and ever will be: all that are pliable in the hands of God and are obedient to His commands, are vessels of honor, and God will receive them. President Joseph arose and said--"Brother Kimball has given you a true explanation of the parable," and then read the parable of the vine and its branches, and explained it, and said, "if we keep the commandments of God, we should bring forth fruit and be the friends of God, and know what our Lord did."

T.P.J.S., pp. 357-358; Conference address by Joseph Smith; H.C. 6:313-315; Sunday, April 7, 1844.

I have a declaration to make as to the provisions which God hath made to suit the conditions of man---made from before the foundation of the world. What has Jesus said? All sins, and all blasphemies, and every transgression, except one, that man can be guilty of, may be forgiven; and there is a salvation for all men, either in this world or the world to come, who have not committed the unpardonable sin, there being a provision either in this world or the world of spirits. Hence God hath made a provision that every spirit in the eternal world can be ferreted out and saved unless he has committed that unpardonable sin which cannot be remitted to him either in this world or the world of spirits. God has wrought out a salvation for all men, unless they have committed a certain sin; and every man who has a friend in the eternal world can save him, unless he has committed the unpardonable sin. And so you can see how far you can be a savior.

A man cannot commit the unpardonable sin after the dissolution of the body, and there is a way possible for escape. Knowledge saves a man; and in the world of spirits no man can be exalted but by knowledge. So long as a man will not give heed to the commandments, he must abide without salvation. If a man has knowledge, he can be saved; although, if he has been guilty of great sins, he will be punished for them. But when he consents to obey the Gospel, whether here or in the world of spirits, he is saved.

A man is his own tormenter and his own condemner. Hence the saying, They shall go into the lake that burns with fire and brimstone. The torment of disappointment in the mind of man is as exquisite as a lake burning with fire and brimstone. I say, so is the torment of man.

I know the Scriptures and understand them. I said, no man can commit the unpardonable sin after the dissolution of the body, nor in this life, until he receives the Holy Ghost; but they must do it in this world. Hence the salvation of Jesus Christ was wrought out for all men, in order to triumph over the devil; for if it did not catch him in one place, it would in another; for he stood up as a Savior. All will suffer until they obey Christ himself. The contention in heaven was--Jesus said there would be certain souls that would not be saved; and the devil said he could save them all, and laid his plans before the grand council, who gave their vote in favor of Jesus Christ. So the devil rose up in rebellion against God, and was cast down, with all who put up their heads for him.

All sins shall be forgiven, except the sin against the Holy Ghost; for Jesus will save all except the sons of perdition. What must a man do to commit the unpardonable sin? He must receive the Holy Ghost, have the heavens opened unto him, and know God, and then sin against Him. After a man sinned against the Holy Ghost, there is no repentance for him. ["For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame."-- Heb. 6:4-6. Those who sin against the light and knowledge of the Holy Ghost may be said to crucify more than the body of our Lord, they crucify the Spirit.--FOOTNOTE]. He has got to say that the sun does not shine while he sees it; he has got to deny Jesus Christ when the heavens have been opened unto him, and to deny the plan of salvation with his eyes open to the truth of it; and from that time he begins to be an enemy. This is the case with many apostates of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

When a man begins to be an enemy to this work, he hunts me, he seeks to kill me, and never ceases to thirst for my blood. He gets the spirit of the devil--the same spirit that they had who crucified the Lord of Life--the same spirit that sins against the Holy Ghost. You cannot save such persons; you cannot bring them to repentance; they make open war, like the devil, and awful is the consequence.

J.D. 3:93; President Brigham Young; August 8, 1852.

How much does it take to prepare a man, or woman, or any being to become angels to the devil, to suffer with him to all eternity? Just as much as it does to prepare a man to go into the celestial kingdom, into the presence of the Father and the Son.

No man or woman unless they receive the gospel of salvation, and then deny it, and altogether turn away from it, sacrificing to themselves the son of God afresh, they are the only ones who will suffer the wrath of God to all eternity.

J.D. 1:161; President Heber C. Kimball; Delivered in the Tabernacle at General Conference; October 9, 1852.

You have got to be like that clay in the hands of the potter. Do you not know that the Lord directed the Prophet anciently, to go down to the potter's house to see a miracle on the wheel? Suppose the potter takes a lump of clay, and putting it on the wheel, goes to work to form it into a vessel, and works it out this way, and that way, and the other way, but the clay is refractory and snappish; he still trys it, but it will break, and snap, and snarl, and thus the potter will work it and work it until he is satisfied he cannot bring it into the shape he wants, and it mars upon the wheel; he takes his tool, then, and cuts it off the wheel, and throws it into the mill to be ground over again, until it becomes passive, (don't you think you will go to hell if you are not passive?) and after it is ground there so many days, and it becomes passive, he takes the same lump, and makes of it a vessel unto honor. Now do you see into that, brethren? I know the potters can. I tell you, brethren, if you are not passive you will have to go into that mill, and perhaps have to grind there one thousand years, and then the Gospel will be offered to you again, and then if you will not accept it, and become passive, you will have to go into the mill again, and thus you will have offers of salvation from time to time, until all the human family, except the sons of perdition, are redeemed.

J.D. 1:113-114; Pres. Brigham Young; February 27, 1853.

Hear it, all ye Latter-day Saints! Will you spend the time of your probation for naught, and while away your probation for naught, and fool away your existence and being? You were organized, and brought into being, for the purpose of enduring forever, if you fulfill the measure of your creation, pursue the right path, observe the requirements of the Celestial law, and obey the commandments of our God. It is then, and then only, you may expect that the blessing of eternal lives will be conferred upon you. It can be obtained upon no other principle. Do you understand that you will cease to be, that you will come to a full end, by pursuing the opposite course?

The privileges and blessings of the Saints of the Most High God, are many . . . . Everything in heaven, earth, or hell, is for your glory, exaltation, and excellence, if by your lives you honor the Priesthood which has been conferred upon you: and, in the proper time, all will become subservient unto you, but not until then. But if you submit to serve your own feelings, and if you desire not to build up the kingdom of God, and sanctify your hearts, they will lead you down to be eternally subject thereunto-subject to the power that will afflict and torment you, and eventually bring you to destruction: whereas, if you pursue the opposite course, those feelings and passions will become subject unto you: you will be enabled to govern and control them and cause them to serve you, and subserve the object and design for which they were planted in your bosoms . . . . No person can be a Saint, unless he receives the Holy Gospel, for the purity, justice, holiness, and eternal duration of it. Everything else tends to decay, separation, annihilation: no not annihilation, as we use the english term, but dissolution or decomposition. * * *

. . . Suppose you say, `we will give up the pursuits of our holy religion. We are not Latter-day Saints. Let us go and seek after the things of the world, speculate, get unto ourselves riches . . . neglect the things pertaining to our salvation . . . . I tell you the result of that course. You would cease to increase in all the attributes of excellence, glory, and eternal duration, from that very moment . . . from that very moment you cease to increase. The opposite principle seizes you, fastens itself upon you, and you decrease, lessen, diminish, decay, and waste away in quality, excellence, and strength, until your organization becomes extinct, oblivion covers you, your name is blotted out from the Book of Life, from the heavens, from the earth, and from under the earth, and you will return, and sink into your natural element, which cannot be destroyed . . . .

The principle opposite to that of eternal increase from the beginning, leads down to hell: the person decreases, loses his knowledge, tact, talent, and ultimately, in a short period of time, is lost: he returns to his mother earth, his name is forgotten. But where, O where is his spirit? I will not now take the time to follow his destiny: but here, strong language could be used . . . .

J.D. 2:124; Pres. Brigham Young; April 17, 1853.

The Lord said to Jeremiah the Prophet, "Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee to hear my words, Then I went down to the potter's house, and, behold, he wrought a work on the wheels. And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hands of the potter; so he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it." [Jer. 18:1-4] The clay that marred in the potter's hands was thrown back into the unprepared portion, to be prepared over again. So it will be with every wicked man and woman, and every wicked nation, kingdom, government upon earth, sooner or later; they will be thrown back to the native element from which they originated, to be worked over again, and be prepared to enjoy some sort of a kingdom.

J.D. 1:349-353; Pres. Brigham Young; Delivered in the Tabernacle; July 10, 1853.

To choose life is to choose an eternal existence in an organized capacity; to refuse life and choose death is to refuse an eternal existence in an organized capacity, and be contented to become decomposed, and return again to native element. * * *

Death, in reality, is to decompose or decrease, and life is to increase.

All creation is in progress; coming into existence, and going out of existence, as we use the terms; but another form of language fits this phenomenon of nature much better, (viz) forming, growing, increasing, then begins the opposite operation--decreasing, decomposition, returning back to native element, &c.

If mankind will choose the opposite to life held out in the Gospel, it will lead them to dissolution, to decomposition, to death; they will be destroyed, but not as it is commonly understood. * * *

Life and death are set before us, and we are at liberty to choose which we will. I have frequently reflected upon these two principles, but were I to explain in full my own views upon them, they might perhaps come too much in contact with the feelings and views of many people. To me, these principles are like the vision of open day upon this beautiful earth. Life and death are easily understood in the light of the Holy Ghost, but, like everything else, they are hard to be understood in its absence.

To choose life is to choose an eternal existence in an organized capacity: to refuse life and choose death is to refuse an eternal existence in an organized capacity, and be contented to become decomposed, and return again to native element . . . . To live as I am, without progress, is not life, in fact we may say that it is impossible. There is no such principle in existence, neither can there be. All organized existence is in progress, either to an endless advancement in eternal perfections, or back to dissolution. You may explore all the eternities that have been, were it possible, then come to that which we now understand according to the principles of natural philosophy, and where is there an element, an individual living thing, an organized body, of whatever nature that continues as it is? It cannot be found. All things that have come within the bounds of man's limited knowledge--the things he naturally understands, teach him that there is no period in all the eternities, wherein organized existence will become stationary, that it cannot advance in knowledge, wisdom, power, and glory.

If a man could ever arrive at the point that would put an end to the accumulation of life--the point at which he could increase no more, and advance no further, we should naturally say he commenced to decrease at the same point. Again, when he has gained the zenith of knowledge, wisdom, and power, it is the point at which he begins to retrograde: his natural abilities will begin to contract, and so he will continue to decrease until all he knew is lost in the chaos of forgetfulness. As we understand naturally this is the conclusion we must come to, if a termination to the increase of life and the acquisition of knowledge is true.

. . . Now understand, to choose life is to choose principles that will lead you to an eternal increase, and nothing short of them will produce life in the resurrection for the faithful. Those that choose death, make choice of the path which leads to the end of their organization. The one leads to endless increase and progression, the other to the destruction of the organized being, ending in its entire decomposition into the particles that compose the native elements. Is this so in all cases, you inquire? Yes, for aught I know. I shall not pretend to deny but what it is so in all cases . . . . In consequence of some expressions of the ancient servants of God, has come the tradition of the Elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints. You hear some of them preach and teach that which I never taught: you hear them preach people into hell. Such a doctrine never entered into my heart: but you hear others preach, that people will go there to dwell throughout the endless ages of eternity.

Such persons know no more about eternity, and are no more capable of instructing others upon the subject, than a little child. They tell about going to hell, "where the worms dieth not, and the fire is not quenched," where you must dwell. How long? Why, I should say, just as long as you please . . . .

J.D. 1:275-276; Pres. Brigham Young; August 14, 1853.

The people in this age, are like the old miser, whose latter end was drawing nigh; he had saved a good purse of gold, but he was blind and could not see it, so he requested the attendants to bring him the gold that he might put his hand upon it. * * * He possessed the negative of true riches. * * * If he had understood the principles of life--the principles of true riches, he could have commanded that gold in California, in England, or anywhere else; but he had no power over it, and died like a fool, no doubt. What good was his gold to him? He had not the power of endless life in him, and he will be decomposed, and the particles which compose his body and spirit will return to their native element. I told you some time ago what would become of such men. But I will quote the Scriptures on this point, and you can make what you please of it. Jesus says, he will destroy death and him that hath the power of it. What can you make of this but decomposition, the returning of the organized particles to their native element, after suffering the wrath of God until the time appointed. That appears a mystery, but the principle has been in existence from all eternity, only it is something you have not known or thought of. When elements in an organized form do not fill the end of their creation, they are thrown back again, like brother Kimball's old pottery ware, to be ground up, and made over again. All I have to say about it is what Jesus says--I will destroy death, and him that hath the power of it, which is the devil. And if he ever makes "a full end of the wicked", what else can he do than entirely disorganize them, and reduce them to their native element? Here are some of the mysteries of the kingdom.

On the other hand, let us take the affirmative of the question; and inquire what is life and salvation? It is to take that course wherein we can abide forever and ever, and be exalted to thrones, kingdoms, governments, dominions, and have full power to control the elements, according to our pleasure to all eternity; the one is life, and the other is death, which is nothing more or less than the decomposition of organized native element. There can be no such thing as power to annihilate element. There is one eternity of element, which can be organized or disorganized, composed or decomposed. . .but there is no such thing as putting it entirely out of existence.

J.D. 2:301; Pres. Brigham Young; June 3, 1855.

When Abraham has passed a certain ordeal and proved himself faithful, he will receive honor, power, glory, and exaltation, which he is made as capable of attaining in the future as those were who acted previous to his day. Were not this the case, the intelligence, the power of the mind, the spirit that is placed in the body, and all that pertain to life in this stage of action, or prior to our coming into the world, are not made honorable; and if they are not honored by the creature, by the principle that is placed in him, that organization is liable to decompose. Can you understand this? For instance, let a man or woman who has received much of the power of God, visions and revelations, turn away from the holy commandments of the Lord, and it seems that their senses are taken from them, their understanding and judgment in righteousness are taken away, they go into darkness, and become like a blind person who gropes by the wall. Many of you witness this almost daily. Such will continue to go on the retrograde path until they are decomposed; while those who are faithful will continue to increase, and this is the great blessing the Lord has given to, or placed within the reach of, the children of man.

J.D. 3:203; Pres. Brigham Young; February 17, 1856.

We might ask, when shall we cease to learn? I will give you my opinion about it: never, never. If we continue to learn all that we can, pertaining to the salvation which is purchased and presented to us through the Son of God, is there a time when a person will cease to learn? Yes, when he has sinned against God the Father. . .the Son, and the Holy Ghost--God's minister; and when he has denied the Lord, defied Him and committed the sin that in the Bible is termed the unpardonable sin--the sin against the Holy Ghost. That is the time when a person will cease to learn, and from that time forth, will descend in ignorance, forgetting that which they formerly knew, and decreasing until they return to the native element, whether it be one thousand or in one million years, or during as many eternities as you can count. They will cease to increase, but must decrease, until they return to the native element. These are the only characters who will ever cease to learn, both in time and eternity. . . . We shall never cease to learn, unless we apostatize from the religion of Jesus Christ. Then we shall cease to increase, and will continue to decrease and decompose, until we return to our native element. Can you understand that? It is a subject worthy the attention of the eminent divines of Christendom, and they may search into it until they are tired, and still know comparatively little about it, while I preach it to you in a few words.

Journal of Wilford Woodruff; Ms/f/115/CHO; February 17, 1856.

I attended prayer meeting in the evening circle President Young asked Elder Orson Pratt what he thought of his preaching that intelligent beings would continue to learn to all Eternity 0. Pratt said that he believed the Gods had a knowledge at the present time of every thing that ever did exist to the endless ages of all Eternity He believed it as much as any truth that he had ever learned in or out of this Church President Young remarked that he had never learned that principle in the Church for it was not taught in the Church for it was not true it was false doctrine For the Gods & all intelligent beings would never cease to learn except it was the Sons of Perdition they would continue to decrease untill they became dissolved back into their native Element & lost their Identity. In speaking of this people he said if they would behave half decent they would not be driven away from this place.

J.D. 4:28, 31-32; Pres. Brigham Young; August 17, 1856.

. . . Now suppose that you let the common mode of reflection and practice reach into eternal things, upon the same principle you would have a selfish interest in eternity: you would there be to yourself, by yourself, and for yourself, regardless of every other creature. But the truth is, you are not going to have a separate kingdom: I am not going to have a separate kingdom: it is not our prerogative to have it on this earth.
If you have a kingdom and a dominion here, it must be concentrated in the head: if we are ever prepared for an eternal exaltation, we must be concentrated in the head of the eternal Godhead. Why? Because everything else is opposed to that kingdom, and the heir of that kingdom will keep up the warfare with that opposing power until death is destroyed, and him that hath the power of it; not annihilated, but sent back to native element. He will never cease to contend with the opposite power, with that power that contends against the heir of this earth: . . . . Your interest must be concentrated in the head on the earth, and all of our interest must center in the Godhead in eternity, and there is no durable interest in any other channel.
The moment a person decides to leave this people, he is cut off from every object that is durable for time and eternity, and I have told you the reason why. Everything that is opposed to God and His son Jesus Christ, to the celestial kingdom and to celestial laws, those celestial laws and beings will hold warfare with, until every particle of the opposite is turned back to its native element, though it should take millions and millions of ages to accomplish it. Christ will never cease to warfare, until he destroys death and him that hath the power of it. Every possession and object of affection will be taken from those who forsake the truth, and their identity and existence will eventually cease. "That is strange doctrine." No matter, they have not an object which they can place their hands or affections upon, but will vanish and pass away. That is the course and will be the tendency of every man and woman, when they decide to leave this kingdom. * * *

J.D. 4:54; Pres. Brigham Young; Delivered in the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; September 21, 1856.

There are principles that will endure through all eternity, and no fire can obliterate them from existence. They are those principles that are pure, and fire is made typical use of to show the glory and purity of the God and of all perfect beings. God is the Father of our spirits; He begat them, and has sent them here to receive tabernacles, and to prove whether we will honor them. If we do, then our tabernacles will be exalted; but if we do not, we shall be destroyed; one of the two--dissolution or life. The second death will decompose all tabernacles over whom it gains ascendancy; and this is the effect of the second death, the tabernacles go back to their native element.

J.D. 4:200; Brigham Young; February 1, 1857.

. . . Here are the people that say they are Latter-day Saints. Now, if you can understand your own position, you will know, perhaps, better how to deal with yourselves and control yourselves: how to bring into subjection your own dispositions, your passions, appetites, and wills, and let the Spirit of Truth the Lord has given you commence and conquer and overcome, little by little, until you gain the mastery in the spirit. This prepares the tabernacle for a resurrection and eternal life. You cannot inherit eternal life, unless your appetites are brought in subjection to the spirit that lives within you, that spirit which our Father in heaven gave. I mean the Father of your spirits, of those spirits which He has put into these tabernacles. The tabernacle must be brought in subjection to the spirit perfectly, or your bodies cannot be raised to inherit eternal life: if they come forth, they must dwell in a lower kingdom.

J.D. 4:372; Pres. Brigham Young; Delivered in the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; June 28, 1857.

Giving endowments to a great many proves their overthrow, through revealing things to them which they cannot keep. They are not worthy to receive them. Brother Heber takes the lead in giving endowments, and you may ask, "Why do you give such folks their endowments?" To qualify them to be devils, if they wish to be. The plan of salvation is calculated to make devils as well as Saints; for by and by we shall need some to serve as devils; and it takes almost as much knowledge to make a complete devil as it does to fit a man to go into the celestial kingdom of God, and become an heir to His kingdom.

J.D. 5:53; Brigham Young; July 19, 1857.

. . . We understand that . . . when we put off these bodies we put on immortality. These bodies will return to dust, but our hope and faith are that we will receive these bodies again from the elements--that we will receive the very organization that we have here, and that, if we are faithful to the principles of freedom, we shall then be prepared to endure eternally. Can the wicked be brought forth to endure? No! they will be destroyed.

J.D. 5:95; Pres. Heber C. Kimball; July 26, 1857.

I believe in annihilation in one degree. Men will sin so that they will be damned spiritually and temporally. There will be a dissolution of the natural body and of the spirit, and they will go back into their native element, the same as the chemist can go to work and dissolve a five-dollar gold piece, and throw it into a liquid. Does not that show there can be a dissolution of the natural body and of the spirit? This is what is called the second death.

Journal of Wilford Woodruff; Pres. Brigham Young speaking; August, 1857.

Many get their endowments who are not worthy to, & this is the way devils are made. There will be some needed in the next world.

J.D. 5:271; Pres. Heber C. Kimball; September 27, 1857.

If I do not live my religion, but turn away from the principles of light and life, my spirit will die. You have heard me speak of that a great many times, and so you have brother Brigham. There are thousands upon thousands whose bodies will die by the power of the second death; and then they never will return again. Many call that annihilation. * * * Now, will the day come when this pitcher will return to its mother earth? It will; and it may be thrown into some part of the earth where it may be thousands and millions of years before that pitcher or the elements of which it is composed will be brought back again; and so it will be with thousands and millions of the people; they never will be brought back into the shape they were in once. Some men inquire, "Why?" Simply because they have dishonoured the spirit and bodies that God gave them; therefore God will make a desolation of those bodies and spirits, and he will throw them back into the earth; that is, that portion that belongs to the earth will go back there. And so it will be with our spirits; they will go back into the elements or space that they once occupied before they came here. * * *

I used to preach upon that in Nauvoo, and Joseph said it was the true interpretation.

J.D. 5:340-42; Pres. Brigham Young; October 18, 1857.

Never serve God because you are afraid of hell; but live your religion, because it is calculated to give you eternal life. It points to that existence that never ends, while the other course leads to destruction, to dissolution, where they will be destroyed from the earth and from the eternities, and return back to the native elements. * * *

We will maintain the kingdom of God, living; and if we do not maintain it, we shall be found not only dying a temporal, but also an eternal death.

J.D. 6:67; Apostle George A. Smith; November 15, 1857.

You see dead limbs on trees. Will they ever come to life again, after they are dead? No. They must be cut off and thrown back into the earth, to return back to their mother element, and become again quickened by the law they were ordained to keep; and if they are not quickened by that power, they will never be restored again to that tree. No more will you. You have got to keep that law pertaining to that tree, limb, or government, or you will never be restored again,--never, no never, while the earth stands.

J.D. 6:146; Pres. Brigham Young; December 27, 1857.

When God organized intelligent beings, he organized them as independent as he is himself. And whether we see an evil act or a good one performed by an intelligent being, that being has performed the act by his will, by his own independent organization, which is capable of doing good or evil, by choosing light or darkness, of performing that which will promote death, or a dissolution of his organization.

J.D. 7:57; Pres. Brigham Young; Delivered in the Bowery, Provo, Utah; June 27, 1858.

. . . They are welcome to traduce our character, if they choose: but they must not undertake to walk us under foot, contrary to every principle of the Constitution, right and law. The character of those who are such sticklers for it will perish, for they are taking the downward road to destruction. They will be decomposed, both soul and body, and return to their native element. I do not say that they will be annihilated; but they will be disorganized, and will be as though they never had been, while we will live and retain our identity, and contend against those principles which tend to death or dissolution. I am after life; I want to preserve my identity, so that you can see Brigham in the eternal worlds just as you see him now. I want to see that eternal principle of life dwelling within us which will exalt us eternally in the presence of our Father and God. If you wish to retain your present identity in the morn of the resurrection, you must so live that the principle of life will be within you as a well of water springing up unto eternal life.

J.D. 6:345-6; Brigham Young; July 31, 1859.

. . . They will say, "We offer you life; will you receive it?" "No", some will say. "Then you are at perfect liberty to choose death: the Lord does not, neither will we control you in the least in the exercise of your agency. We place the principles of life before you. Do as you please, and we will protect you in your rights, though you will learn that the system you have chosen to follow brings you to dissolution---to being resolved to native element.

J.D. 7:202-203; Brigham Young; July 31, 1859.

. . . Nothing can satisfy, except being perfectly subject to the law that will preserve them in their identity to all eternity, and that is the holy Priesthood . . . . It is by the law of the Priesthood that men are, and by that law they may maintain their eternal identity. A strict observance of those laws will secure an inheritance in that kingdom where death never enters, and all else will sooner or later pass away as a night vision . . . . But they cannot tell from whence those principles came. They are searching and researching with an inherent principle that never can be satisfied without true knowledge: and that true knowledge flows through the Priesthood, to enable us to know how to order our lives, to overcome every principle that tends to the death, and to embrace every principle that tends to the life, that we may preserve our identity to all eternity . . . . The principles of eternal life . . . are calculated to exalt us to power and preserve us from decay . . . .

J.D. 7:276; Brigham Young; October 6, 1859.

. . . Does not the Father of all living conduct himself in this wise towards his children? He has revealed to us that he will prepare us for glory, for life eternal,--will preserve our identity forever, if we will be guided by him. But we must be obedient to him, for He understands more than we do. We should destroy ourselves if we were suffered to take our own way . . . .

J.D. 7:287; Pres. Brigham Young; October 9, 1859.

Every principle, act and portion of the lives of the children of men that does not tend to this will lead to an eternal dissolution of the identity of the person. "Why?", some say, "we thought that the wicked were to be sent to hell to dwell with eternal burnings for evermore." They go to hell and will stay there until the anger of the Almighty consumes them and they become disorganized, as the elements of the fuel we burn are disorganized by the action of fire and thrown back again to their native element.

J.D. 7:352, 358-59; Apostle Erastus Snow; January 5, 1860.

. . . Our Father in heaven is laboring for our exaltation; his work forever and ever is doing good; good is the part he has chosen; evil he escheweth. He seeks to unite and concentrate the faith and feelings of intelligent beings to improve them, to teach them the benefits of doing good, and the consequences resulting from doing evil, that the one principle tendeth to dissolution and to eternal death and disorganization, while the other principle tendeth to life, to perpetuate the organization which has already been effected, and bring it to the highest state of perfection; or, in other words, to secure to intelligent beings the boon they most earnestly desire--namely, the continuation of lives. * * *
The second death, what is that? * * * There is a revelation in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, which, to my mind is more explicit than any I find in the Old and New Testament on this subject. It is in that revelation in which our Father speaks unto us concerning the transgression of Adam and death that passed upon him because of his transgression. He partook of a spiritual death. That which was spiritual was first, and afterwards that which was temporal. Again, says the revelation "the last shall be first, and the first shall be last." The spiritual death is that which shall be passed upon the wicked when he shall say unto them "Depart ye, cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the Devil and his angels." You can read this revelation in the D&C when you go home. I understand that that second death is a spiritual death. Is it meant that the spirit shall die? Each of you can draw your own conclusions as well as I. Your traditions may be such that your thoughts do not run in the same channel with mine in this respect. But I can conceive of no other spiritual death than dissolution. I understand, when applied to the mortal tabernacle, it alludes to the dissolution of that tabernacle: it ceases to act in its functions, being dissolved, to return to its native element. I conceive that the same term is applicable to the spirit in like manner. * * * The idea of the second death, or dissolution of the spirit, is that which is the most terrifying to the soul. But our Father has so ordained that our spiritual organizations as well as our tabernacles, can only be maintained and perfected through obedience to the laws of eternal life.

J.D. 8:7; Pres. Brigham Young; March 4, 1860.

It is written that the greatest gift God can bestow upon man is the gift of eternal life. The greatest attainment that we can reach is to preserve our identity to an eternal duration in the midst of the heavenly hosts.

J.D. 8:28; Brigham Young; March 25, 1860.

. . . Jesus said . . . `He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.' . . . In the scripture above quoted, the death spoken of is a death that the intelligent being undergoes, and never recovers from: it is an eternal death. For the body to decay, like a kernel of wheat that is cast into the ground, is not considered a death . . . . `Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection, on such the second death hath no power.' The death that is spoken of here is the death that is opposite to the eternal life the Saviour spoke of. If you dishonour that body--transgress the natural laws pertaining to it, you are not worthy in your sphere, to possess this body in an immortal state. What will become of it? It will return to its native element. That is the death that never dies. That is endless death.

J.D. 8:178-79; Instructions by President Brigham Young made in the Bowery, and in the Historian's Office, Great Salt Lake City; September 9, 1860.

Brother Cannon remarked that people wondered how many wives and children I had. He may inform them that I shall have wives and children by the million, and glory, and riches, and power, and dominion, and kingdom after kingdom, and reign triumphantly. "What will you do with all those who have sought to kill you?" Make them soap-boilers and kitchen flunkeys. We are not going to send them into hell fire, for it takes a good Latter-day Saint apostatized to get down into that deep (did I say bottomless?) pit. A person, to become an angel of the Devil, has first to be a good Saint, and then deny the Lord who bought him.
Do you query why we give endowments to A., B., and C? It is to make devils of those who will deny the faith, for that is also necessary, as a host of devils will be needed. We also want Saints, angels, holy ones, and those that are exalted to the highest glory--we want them to inherit kingdoms that number millions on millions.

J.D. 8:206; Brigham Young; October 14, 1860.

. . . Unless my father, mother, brother, sister, wife, and child, pertaining to the flesh, love God supremely, embrace the truth, and follow out the dictates of the Holy Ghost, they are not my kindred--I do not own them--I have nothing to do with them: they will perish, die, sink into forgetfulness, and be as though they had never been: they will pass away and return to native element.

J.D. 8:240; Pres. Heber C. Kimball; November 25, 1860.

. . . the man who dishonours his tabernacle and the earth upon which we dwell will not inhabit them again for some time to come. It will be with them as President Young was talking this morning about a certain class of individuals, there will be a dissolution, not only of the tabernacles, but of the spirits: . . . . I have seen the time when I did not know the meaning of the phrase, "second death," but I now comprehend it to my satisfaction. There will probably be thousands who will be brought forth, in the resurrection, in their sins, and their conduct in life will have rendered them worthy of the second death.

J.D. 8:257; Pres. Heber C. Kimball; December 16, 1860.

Brethren, why don't you live your religion, magnify your callings, and honour God in all things you do and say? Be humble and prayerful: be faithful to your duties at all times. I am speaking to you plainly: you may, perhaps call it scolding, but I am speaking of unrighteous practices--such as will bring trouble upon you, and a final dissolution. Tell me of a man that understands what has been said here this afternoon, who does not know this as well as I do? Why do I say this? Because here is light, knowledge and revelation handed to you every Sabbath by President Young . . . .

J.D. 8:331; Pres. Heber C. Kimball; January 6, 1861.

The Book of Mormon informs us that the Devil will come along with all manner of deceitfulness, and persuade the people to lie a little, to steal a little, and to rob your neighbour of anything that lies within your reach. Such a course leads to death and dissolution, and will cause those to mourn hereafter that follow it. These are mysteries that are worth finding out.

J.D. 9:149; Pres. Brigham Young; January 12, 1862.

. . . There is no plan, no device, no possible way in which we can get rid of "mormonism" only by taking the downward road which leads to hell, until spiritually and temporally the whole organized being is dissolved and the particles thereof have returned again to native elements. We read in the Scriptures of the second death not having power over certain ones. The first death is the separation of the spirit from the body; the second death is, as I have stated, the dissolution of the organized particles which compose the spirit, and their return to their native element.

J.D. 9:294; Pres. Brigham Young; May 25, 1862.

Leave this kingdom, and I will promise you more suffering than the tongue of man can utter, until you are consumed soul and body--until you are wasted away--the body in the death pronounced upon it, and the spirit in the awful sufferings and torments attending the second death.

J.D. 10:119; Apostle John Taylor; February 22, 1863.

To know God and the ways of life is infinitely more important than any worldly consideration. "What will a man give in exchange for his soul?" Jesus said, "And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."

J.D. 10:251; Brigham Young; October 6, 1863.

. . . I wish you to understand that sin is not an attribute in the nature of man, but it is an inversion of the attributes God has placed in him. Righteousness tends to an eternal duration of organized intelligence, while sin bringeth to pass their dissolution. Were it our purpose, at this time, we might produce extensive, instructive, and interesting arguments of a scriptural and philosophical character, in support of these views.

J.D. 13:9; Apostle Erastus Snow; February 28, 1869.

The foundation and the seeds of dissolution and death are sown in our tabernacles. The passions of human nature work, ultimately, the overthrow and dissolution of our bodies; and this is no more true than that the spirit, in like manner, works out its own dissolution, that is, whosoever suffers the second death, which is a spiritual death, suffers that death as the legitimate fruit of his evil doings as certainly and as naturally as the body suffers death through the violation of the laws of its own organization.

J.D. 13:316; Brigham Young; April 17, 1870.

. . . There are some who go so far in their unbelief that they deny the resurrection of the body: and even to say that the soul sleeps eternally. What is the use of your intelligence, what is it good for if this be true? There is no such thing as destroying element! There is no such philosophy as annihilation. If the spirit should return to native element the element would not be destroyed: the particles of matter will remain forever.

J.D. 13:283; Brigham Young; October 30, 1870.

. . . There is space, and in that space there are mansions or kingdoms which God has prepared for His children to inhabit, according to their several capacities. We shall all go somewhere, and all upon whom the second death has no power will live eternally.

J.D. 13:298; George A. Smith; November 20, 1870.

. . . What can man do? He can kill the body. What else? That is the end of it, he has no further power. The principles of Mormonism can not only destroy the body, but the soul and spirit: and they can confer the bliss of eternal glory and increase.

J.D. 15:353; Apostle Daniel H. Wells; February 23, 1873.

When the spirit and body are reunited in immortality they will never be separated again. We need not fear death, that is if we are numbered among those who will have the privilege of coming forth in the morning of the first resurrection, for upon all such the second death will have no power. It is the second death that people may be afraid of. Fear Him who has power to destroy both soul and body in hell. This is the second death, but this will have no power upon those who have part in the first resurrection. All manner of sin will be forgiven to men except the sin against the Holy Ghost; they will never be forgiven, neither in this world nor the world to come. If men will only be obedient to the Gospel, and avail themselves of the plan of salvation devised by our Father and God in heaven before the world was, they may obtain forgiveness of their sins by being obedient to the gospel.

J.D. 18:232,234; Brigham Young; September 17, 1876.

. . . What is the ultimate result of this downward course which some are pursuing? The beautiful organization they now possess, will decrease in beauty, and continue to decrease until the elements of which it is formed dissolve and return to their original state, just like the action of these mountains, which, in their time decay and return to mother clay. They who turn away from the Gospel of the Son of God, which we preach, turn away from the origin of all truth, from light into darkness, from wisdom to folly, until they are known no more forever: this is the end of apostasy.
. . . There are but two roads, one in the way of life, glory and excellency, and crowns, and kingdoms, immortality and eternal lives: the other is drunkenness, debauchery, beautiful manners in the light, but shameful conduct in the dark. "O," say they, "don't you think we are wise, we have studied and been to college." Yes, I know the extent of your wisdom, I know, too, the road you are traveling: it leads down, down, down, until you become as nothing, returning to native element, and losing your identity, you are lost forever and forever. These are they who have sinned away the day of grace, and denied the Lord, who bought them.

Jesse N. Smith Journal; BYU Special Collections/Mss 503/Box l/Folder 2; p. 333; October 21, 1883.

William Law commenced to administer secret oaths asking men to lay their hands on the Bible and swear that they would kill Joseph Smith. You cannot reclaim apostates especially after they have been into the house of the Lord. When a man is determined to go to hell I will help him, said Joseph.

J.D. 26:305; Apostle Moses Thatcher; August 28, 1885.

. . . Satan was an accuser of his brethren from the beginning, hence the rejoicing of angels when he and his kind were cast down to earth bodiless, estateless and powerless, except for evil. Wandering spirits in the realms of darkness, seeking everywhere and under all circumstances to enter, defile and destroy the souls and bodies of men. Where God is he can never abide, nor can those having received the testimony of Jesus who deny it. Such can never, if they reject the truth, sin against the light and put Jesus again to an open shame, abide the presence of God. When through the atoning blood of Christ their spirits and bodies are brought together in the resurrection of the wicked and are judged according to the deeds done in the body, the second death will pass upon them. The first death resulted in a temporary separation of body and spirit, but the second will result in eternal separation. As the rebellious in heaven lost their first, so these will lose their second estate and become like the first. How many people in this world today are capable of becoming the sons of perdition? And those are the only ones of the human family who will not be saved in some degree of glory . . . . How many in the Christian world have that testimony of Jesus which the Apostle declared was the spirit of prophecy?

Millennial Star 53:577-80; Pres. George Q. Cannon; See also Gospel Truth, pp. 120-121; May 10, 1891.

God has not predestined any of us to be damned. On the contrary He has desired and does desire the salvation of all the children of men; and He will save all with certain degrees of salvation if they do not go so far as to commit the unpardonable sin. Some people think they have done this when they have not. A man must have attained to considerable knowledge about God and eternal things before he is in a condition where he can commit the unpardonable sin. * * * There are comparatively few who get so far as this. A man must have sufficient knowledge to make him a God in order to be a devil. Lucifer had to be a great and a powerful being. He stood high in the presence of God, and his fall was greater than it would have been if he had occupied an inferior station. Therefore, the more we know concerning God, the more power and the more gifts we get from God, if they are abused, the greater will be our condemnation and the greater will be the depth to which we shall fall when we do fall.
On the one hand there is glory and exaltation in proportion to faithfulness, to knowledge and to gifts and opportunities enjoyed. On the other hand there is damnation and a withdrawal of these blessings, and the depth to which that soul will fall will be in proportion to the knowledge, to the understanding, to the gifts, to the opportunities and to the blessings that he possessed and that he enjoyed.

Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; Wednesday, November 29, 1893.

I went to the President's office with Bro. James E. Talmage in the forenoon to get some doctrinal points answered by the brethren concerning a change in the articles of faith, and about the subject of baptism--an answer will be given after these matters have been submitted to the Quorum meeting this afternoon. About the Sons of Perdition it was said we can scarcely tell who will be consigned to this doom. That there will also be daughters of Perdition there is no doubt in the minds of the brethren. It was explained that only such can become Sons of Perdition who receive a testimony of the Gospel--who receive the Holy Ghost, and the highest blessings of the Church, and then wilfully deny the light they have obtained. Murderers who crucify Christ anew, or consent to His death, in that they shed innocent blood knowing at the time that they are thereby preventing the spread of the truth, will be subject to this penalty. The murderers of the Savior are not Sons of Perdition, for they did not know what they were doing, as Jesus said in His prayer while on the cross. Peter also preached repentance to them, and said they would be redeemed when the times of refreshing should come. If they were Sons of Perdition they should not have been prayed for, as we are commanded not to do so in the modern revelations.

Evidences and Reconciliations, pp. 213-14; 1970 ed., Elder John A. Widtsoe.
It must be a terrible punishment beyond human comprehension, the greatest conceivable, yet a justified punishment. Since the greatest sin is the unpardonable sin, it would appear that they will forfeit all gains of the ages of pre-existence and the years on earth. It is no wonder that the heavens wept over Lucifer's rebellion.

President Brigham Young has suggested that the ultimate punishment of the sons of perdition may be that they, having their spiritual bodies disorganized, must start over again, must begin anew the long journey of existence, repeating the steps that they took in the eternities before the Great Council was held. That would be punishment indeed! "They will be decomposed both soul and body, and return to their native element. I do not say that they will be annihilated; but they will be disorganized, and will be as if they had never been; while we live and retain our identity and contend against those principles which tend to death or dissolution." (J.D. 7:57) "The clay that marred in the potter's hands was thrown back into the unprepared portion to be prepared over again." (J.D. 2:124)

Little is known of the sons of perdition and their destiny, yet that little known stands as a warning to all men. To deal carelessly with truth, to deny it when once gained, to defy the laws of truth which are the laws of God, must be counted among the greatest sins. Those who deal lightly with truth in their lives, though they may not become sons of perdition, must expect a heavy punishment.

The Ensign, p. 99; "The Covenant of the Priesthood"; Elder Marion G. Romney; April General Conference, Priesthood Session; July 1972.

The revelation says that the Lord cannot break his part of the oath and covenant. But we can break our part of it, and many priesthood bearers do so. Of them the revelation says:

"But whoso breaketh this covenant after he hath received it, and altogether turneth therefrom, shall not have forgiveness of sins in this world nor in the world to come." (v. 41)

Now, I do not think this means that all who fail to magnify their callings in the priesthood will have committed the unpardonable sin, but I do think that priesthood bearers who have entered into the covenants that we enter into--in the waters of baptism, in connection with the law of tithing, the Word of Wisdom, and the many other covenants we make--and then refuse to live up to these covenants will stand in jeopardy of losing the promise of eternal life.

THE POSITION OF THE CHURCH IN RELATION TO THE WRITINGS OF THE BRETHREN
by Richard Ware

1. Although individuals within the church practiced plural marriage (lawfully) before 1852, it was not a church practice until April Conference of 1852. Therefore, although the doctrine was accepted by the leading brethren of the church as a doctrine of the restored gospel, and which they were requested to live by the Prophet, the Church itself did not have such a policy or practice. (1)

2. The Prophet (or President) of the Church is the only one who can declare doctrine or policy for the church. All other General Authorities do not establish Church doctrine nor church policy. They may express their opinions, especially as they do today in their published writings, but such writings do not establish the policy or position of the church on doctrines or issues. These brethren are subject to the Prophet in regards to these things. (2,10,11)

3. The church does not have to defend any doctrine that is not explicitly found in the works of the Church setting forth authoritatively her doctrines. (3) Thus the brethren, as apostles, may state what they feel is truth, but it does not establish church doctrine unless the Prophet declares it to be so.

4. The church has taken no position on the doctrinal issue of progression between kingdoms, in spite of the fact there have been teachings on the subject on both sides. (5,9)

5. The church has taken no position on the doctrinal issue of organic evolution. (6,7,8,12)

6. The church has taken a position on the origin of man. The position that was taken in 1909 has not changed over the years, and remains the same today. (7,12)

7. The church has taken no position on the doctrinal issue of Adam-God. (4)

8. The book "Man, His Origin & Destiny" by Joseph Fielding Smith "expresses the views of the author, for which he assumes full responsibility. The book was not published, approved, or authorized by the Church, nor did the author intend that it be." (7)

9. Neither "Man, His Origin and Destiny" by Elder Joseph Fielding Smith, nor "Mormon Doctrine" by Elder Bruce R. McConkie are official publications of the church. (6)

10. The prophet may change existing doctrines of the church. (10)

11. There have been very few official church pronouncements on doctrinal points over the years. Bruce R. McConkie feels that excepting Joseph Smith, there isn't anyone who hasn't slipped doctrinally (apparently himself included). (13)

THE POSITION OF THE CHURCH IN RELATION TO THE WRITINGS OF THE BRETHREN

1. Deseret News, May 20, 1886 (Thursday); Charles W. Penrose, Editor. Article entitled: "Joseph Smith and Celestial Marriage".

Until the open enunciation of the doctrine of celestial marriage by the publication of the revelation on the subject in 1852, no Elder was authorized to announce it to the world. The almighty has revealed things on many occasions which were for his servants and not for the world.
Under these instructions Elders had no right to promulgate anything but that which they were authorized to teach. And when assailed by their enemies and accused of practicing things which were really not countenanced in the Church, they were justified in denying those imputations and at the same time avoiding the avowal of such doctrines as were not yet intended for the world.

2. Conference Report, April, 1907; An Official Address containing a general overview of the doctrines of the Church. Signed by the First Presidency. The Address was delivered in General Conference on April 5, 1907. The Address was adopted by vote of the Church on this date. See Messages of the First Presidency, 4:154, by James R. Clark.

. . .the President of the Church is recognized as the only person through whom divine communication will come as law and doctrine to the religious body.

3. Improvement Era, July, 1907; Elder Brigham H. Roberts. The contents of the above Address was challenged by a Review by the Salt Lake Ministerial Association which was published in the Salt Lake Tribune of June 4, 1907. The Review was given an Answer by B. H. Roberts in the L.D.S. June MIA Conference and was published in the above issue of the Improvement Era. See Messages of the First Presidency, 4:143, by James R. Clark.

I presume the presidency of the Church did not think the occasion called for an elaborate exposition of the principles of our faith [as was given in the "Address"]. with chapter and verse given for warrant of the authority on which they rested. But the Church had been under the fire of severe criticism for a period of four years or more. Its doctrines had been assailed, the practices of its people had been misrepresented, their character traduced, and their "whole course of conduct reprobated and condemned." Taking these circumstances under advisement, the presidency of the Church thought, I presume, the time propitious for an utterance which would in outline tell the world what we believed, and correct the misunderstanding that obtained respecting our past history and present position. The address was not designed, as I understand it, to be a complete exposition of our faith, but a declaration of our present attitude.(14)

Let me say, in treating this group of statements [concerning several doctrinal topics], that these gentlemen nowhere support these allegations by citations from our authoritative works that the Church accepts as binding in doctrine; but they do quote the commentaries of men, which often express only individual opinion. I might dismiss this group of charges against the "Mormon" Church, therefore, by this statement of the case: the Church is not bound to defend any doctrine that is not explicitly found in the works of the Church setting forth authoritatively her doctrines. But I do not propose to dismiss the charges in any such fashion. 1 propose to grapple with them, and meet them, I trust to your satisfaction and to the satisfaction of these gentlemen. (15)

4. Letter written to Sister W. L. Smith from Pres. Heber J. Grant, 14 January 1927; Film/272/Bx 16/Letter #920.

Referring to your letter--The Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Doctrine & Covenants and the Pearl of Great Price are the books which are accepted as the standard works of the Church. I know of nothing in these books which would sustain the contention that Adam is the God of this world and is a resurrected being.

If there is any one thing more than another which I have endeavored to impress upon the minds of the Latter-day Saints it is to keep the commandments of the Lord and to follow the instructions of the Prophet Joseph Smith to the effect that they let mysteries alone. The best way to answer questions such as those advocated by the aged brother to whom you refer, is to say that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints having made no pronouncement upon such subjects, therefore what may have been spoken or written on them must be regarded as the views of the individuals and not Church doctrine.

5. Letter dated March 5, 1952 from the First Presidency, signed by Joseph L. Anderson, Secretary. This letter is in response to a question as to whether progression between kingdoms was possible after the resurrection.

The brethren direct me to say that the Church has never announced a definite doctrine upon this point. Some of the brethren have held that it was possible in the course of progression to advance from one glory to another, invoking the principle of eternal progression; others of the brethren have taken the opposite view. But as stated, the Church has never announced a definite doctrine on this point.

6. Letter from President David 0. Mckay, February 3, 1959 to Dr. A. Kent Christensen, Dept of Anatomy, Cornell University Medical College, New York.

I have your letter of January 25, 1959 in which you ask for a statement of the Church's position on the subject of evolution.

The Church has issued no official statement on the subject of the theory of evolution.

Neither "Man, His Origin and Destiny" by Elder Joseph Fielding Smith, nor "Mormon Doctrine" by Elder Bruce R. McConkie, is an official publication of the Church.

7. Letter written to Robert C. Stones, Provo, Utah by A. Hamer Reiser, Assistant Secretary to the First Presidency, dated April 21, 1960.

I have been directed to say that the enclosed statements published in the Improvement Era over the signature of President Joseph F. Smith and his counselors express the position of the Church upon the subject of the "origin of man."
I have also been directed to say that the Church has made no official statement on the subject of evolution. * * *
I have also been directed to say that the book to which you refer in your letter (Man, His Origin and Destiny by Joseph F. Smith) expresses the views of the author, for which he assumes full responsibility. The book was not published, approved, or authorized by the Church, nor did the author intend that it be.

8. Letter to Pertti Felin, BYU, Provo, Utah, from Pres. David 0. McKay, signed by Clare Middlemiss, Secretary to Pres. McKay, dated May 8, 1964.

President McKay, who is recuperating at home from an illness, has asked me to acknowledge for him your letter of May 6, 1964, wherein you ask regarding the Church's position on the theory of evolution.
I have been directed to say that the Church has issued no official statement on this subject.

9. Letter to Joe J. Christensen, Dir. of the University of Utah Institute of Religion, from the First Presidency, dated December 17, 1965; Signed by Joseph L. Anderson. This letter is in response to his inquiry as to whether or not there is progression between kingdoms after the resurrection.
The brethren direct me to say that the Church has never announced a definite doctrine upon this point, though some have held the view that it was possible in the course of progression to advance from one glory to another, invoking the principle of eternal progression; others have taken an opposite view. As indicated, however, the Church has never announced a definite doctrine on this point.

10. BYU Address to Seminary & Institute Personnel; 7 Jul 1954; Pres. J. Reuben Clark, Jr.; "When Are the Writings or Sermons of Church Leaders Entitled to the Claim of Scripture?"; Printed in the Church News, July 31, 1954.

Here we must have in mind--must know--that only the President of the Church, the presiding High Priest, is sustained as Prophet, Seer, and Revelator for the Church, and he alone has the right to receive revelations for the Church, either new or amendatory, or to give authoritative interpretations of scriptures that shall be binding on the Church, or change in any way the existing doctrines of the Church. He is God's sole mouthpiece on the earth for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the only true Church. He alone may declare the mind and will of God to his people. No officer of any other Church in the world has this high right and lofty prerogative.

11. BYU Address to Seminary & Institute of Religion Faculty; 8 Jul 1964; Elder Harold B. Lee; "The Place Of The Living Prophet, Seer, And Revelator", p 14.

It is not to be thought that every word spoken by the General Authorities is inspired, or that they are moved upon by the Holy Ghost in everything they read and write. Now you keep that in mind. I don"t care what his position is, if he writes something or speaks something that goes beyond anything that you can find in the standard church works, unless that one be the prophet, seer, and revelator--please note that one exception--you may immediately say, "Well, that is his own idea." And if he says something that contradicts what is found in the standard church works (I think that is why we call them "standard"--it is the standard measure of all that men teach), you may know by that same token that it is false, regardless of the position of the man who says it. We can know, or have the assurance that they are speaking under the inspiration if we so live that we can have a witness that what they are speaking is the word of the Lord. There is only one safety, and that is that we shall live to have the witness to know. President Brigham Young said something to the effect that "the greatest fear I have is that the people of this Church will accept what we say as the will of the Lord without first praying about it and getting the witness within their own hearts that what we say is the word of the Lord.

12. Letter to Michael Derr, Provo, Utah, from the First Presidency, signed by Joseph L. Anderson, Secretary; dated January 25, 1972.

Reference is made to your letter dated January 5th addressed to President Joseph Fielding Smith in which you ask what stand the Church takes on the question of organic evolution.
The brethren feel very sure that serious reflection on the matter will persuade you of the problems and resulting difficulties that would come to the First Presidency from any announcement that they might make on this matter of "organic evolution." * * *
Under direction I am pleased to send you herewith a statement by the First Presidency of the Church, at that time Presidents Joseph F. Smith, John R. Winder and Anthon H. Lund, which appeared in the Improvement Era, volume 13, pages 75 to 81, on this very question of the origin of man. This will give you the position of the Church as of that time, and there has been no change.

13. Letter to Walter M. Horne, Salt Lake City, from Elder Bruce R. McConkie, dated October 2, 1974.

As to official church pronouncements on doctrinal points, they are almost nonexistent. The Brethren made one in 1916 entitled, "The Father and the Son, A Doctrinal Exposition." The First Presidency made another in 1913 on the subject of evolution. There, of course, have been those who have questioned the expressions in this statement on evolution by President Joseph F. Smith, President John R. Winder, and President Anthon H. Lund. As far as official doctrinal pronouncements are concerned, about all the Brethren ever do is say here are the Standard Works, get the spirit of inspiration and figure out what the doctrines are. Those with extensive backgrounds of study in the Church are aware that differing opinions have been expressed by various of the Brethren on certain points over the years. This, of course, is of no great moment. All the opinions cannot be true, but the marvel is that there are so few differences in views and that there is so great harmony on the basics of the gospel.
This [topic] is not something about which I get very excited. I suppose that Joseph Smith excepted, there isn't anyone who hasn't slipped and erred on some doctrinal point or another. All of us are in the learning process.

FILE:#34 MELCHIZEDEK-KEYS OF PRESIDENCY-THE SEAL OF THE FATHER UNTO THE WHOLE HOUSE.

|v1 For this Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him;
|v2 To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being by interpretation King of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of peace;
|v3 Without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually.
|v4 Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils.
(NewT:Hebrews 7:1-4)

"Without father, without mother, without decent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but be made like unto the Son of God, abideth a priest continually." Melchizedek Priesthood holds the right from the eternal God, and not by descent from father and mother; and that priesthood is as eternal as God Himself, having neither beginning of days nor end of life.

The Patriarchal Order:

We find that after the days of Noah an order was introduced called the patriarchal order, in which every man managed his own family affairs. And prominent men among them were kings and priests unto God, and officiated in what is known among us as the priesthood of the Son of God, or the priesthood after the order of Melchizedek. Man began again to multiply on the face of the earth, and the heads of families became their kings and priests, that is, the fathers of their own people. And they were more or less under the influence and guidance of the Almighty. We read, for instance, in our revelations pertaining to these matters, of a man called Melchizedek, who was a great high priest. We are told that there were a great many high priests in his day, and before him and after; and these men had communication with God, and were taught of him in relation to their general proceedings, and acknowledged the hand of God in all things with which the were associated. (JD, 17:207, October 7, 1874; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 139.) [Note: Here Christ is a King of kings and Lord of lords and instruction each family patriarch as needed.]

The Office of Patriarch to The Church:

In regard to the office of patriarch, William Smith has been ordained patriarch to the church; but he is not the only patriarch, but would act as a senior patriarch, holding the keys of that priesthood; and his labors would be more especially connected with the church in Zion; and he would take the lead, priority, or presidency of the patriarchal office in this place; and in this capacity, if there should be a council of patriarchs, he as a matter of course would preside by right of office. But every legally ordained patriarch has the same right to bless that he has, and their administrations are just as legal as his are. Every ordinance that is administered by a legal administrator, is legal. A priest has just as much right to baptize a person for the remission of sins as an elder, a high priest, or an apostle; but he cannot lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, because he does not possess that authority to do it; but an elder does, and an elder's administration would be just as legal as the administration of any of the beforementioned persons, or as that of the president of the church.

Rights of Fathers to Act as Patriarchs:

Every father, after he has received his patriarchal blessing, is a patriarch to his own family, and has the right to confer patriarchal blessings upon his family; which blessings will be just as legal as those conferred by any patriarch of the church: in fact it is his right; and a patriarch is blessing his children, can only bless as his mouthpiece.
A patriarch to the church is appointed to bless those who are orphans, or have no father in the Church to bless them. Not as stated inadvertently, in the editorial above alluded to "to bless all, and such as have not a father to do it," for this he could not do, where the church is so extensive; the burden would be too onerous; hence other patriarchs have been ordained, both in this country, and in England, to assist the patriarch to the church, and hence the provision made in the Doctrine and Covenants: "It is the duty of the Twelve, in all large branches of the church, to ordain evangelical ministers, [patriarchs] as they shall be designated unto them by revelation." (D. & C. 107:39.) And should any of those patriarchs remove here, they have just as much right to administer in their patriarchal office under the direction of the patriarch to the church, as an elder or priest would, who should remove from one of the branches to this place, under the direction of the presidency. Brother William Smith, however "holds the keys of the patriarchal blessings upon the heads of all my people," and would of necessity have the seniority, and of course the priority and presidency; yet it would be left for those who wished to be administered to, to make their choice; just as much as it would for a candidate for baptism to choose who should administer to him.
The above is the true doctrine of the church in regard to this matter, and we speak of it for the information of the brethren at large, lest those who may have received their patriarchal blessings from other sources, or from their fathers, might be tempted to think they were of no avail, and to set at rest this agitated question.

The Patriarch Does Not Preside Over the Priesthood or the Church:
We now proceed to answer some of the remarks which we have heard:
We have been asked, "Does not patriarch over the whole church" place Brother William Smith at the head of the whole church as president?
Answer. No. Brother William is not patriarch over the whole church, but patriarch to the church, and as such he was Ordained. The expression "over the whole church," is a mistake made by W. W. Phelps. He is patriarch to the church to Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The twelve are commanded to ordain evangelical ministers in all large branches of the church abroad, and who has charge over them? The patriarch? No. Those who ordained them. And to who is committed the power and authority to regulate all the affairs of the churches abroad? And who has the charge of the whole priesthood here?
Answer. The presidency of the church, and not the patriarch.
But does not the Doctrine and Covenants say:
"First, I give unto you Hyrum Smith to be a patriarch unto you to hold the sealing blessings of my church, even the Holy Spirit of promise, whereby ye are sealed up unto the day of redemption, that ye may not fall notwithstanding the hour of temptation that may come upon you." (D. & C. 124:124.)

Yes, but that is in regard to seniority not in regard to authority in priesthood, for it immediately follows, "I give unto my servant Joseph to be a presiding elder over all my church, to be a translator, a revelator, a seer, and prophet." (D. & C. 124:125.) In the Doctrine and Covenants we read "the duty of President of the office of the high priesthood is to preside over the whole church, and to be like unto Moses." (D. & C. 107:91.) And from this is evident that the president of the church, not the patriarch, is appointed by God to preside.

But does not the patriarch stand in the same relationship to the church as Adam did to his family, and as Abraham and Jacob did to theirs? No. This is another mistake which is made by our junior, and one that may be very easily made inadvertently. Adam was the natural father of his posterity, who were his family and over whom he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest and king. Both Abraham and Jacob stood in the same relationship to their families. But not so with Father Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, or William Smith. they were not the natural fathers of the church, and could not stand in the same capacity as Adam, Abraham, or Jacob [or Lehi]; but inasmuch as there had been none to bless for generations past, according to the ancient order, they were ordained and set apart for the purpose of conferring patriarchal blessings, to hold the keys of this priesthood, and unlock the door, that had long been closed upon the human family: that blessings might be conferred according to the ancient order, and those who were orphans, or had no father to bless them [As Abraham was an Orphan, his fathers leaving the priesthood sought his blessings from the fathers who had not left the priesthood], might receive it through a patriarch who should act as proxy for their father, (Abraham and Joseph Smith act as proxy for our true fathers,) and that fathers might again be enabled to act as patriarchs to their families, and bless [and seal] their children [with the holy spirit of Promise]. For like the other ordinances in the church, this had been neglected and must needs be restored. But Father Joseph Smith was not president of the church, nor the president's counsel. Nor was Hyrum Smith either president or president's counsel. He was one counsel, but when he was ordained patriarch he gave it up and another was ordained in his stead, [William Law] and in all probability if Brother William magnifies his calling, he will not be able henceforth to attend to the duties of an apostle; but officiate in the same capacity in regard to blessing as his brother Hyrum did--not as president of the church, but as patriarch to it.

The president of the church presides over all patriarchs, presidents, and councils of the church; and this presidency does not depend so much upon genealogy as upon calling, order, and seniority. James and Joses were the brothers of Jesus, and John was his beloved disciple, yet Peter held the keys and presided over all the church. Brother William was in the quorum of the twelve yet he was not president of the twelve during his brother's lifetime, nor since; and if being ordained a patriarch would make him president of the church, it would have made Father Joseph Smith and Hyrum Smith presidents over the church instead of Joseph.

Brother William understands the matter, and were it not for the folly of some men there would be no necessity for these remarks.

A patriarch is what is termed in scripture an evangelist, and Brother William acts in that capacity, and God placed in the church "first apostles,' not first evangelists, but the president stands in the same relationship to the church as Moses did to the children of Israel, according to the revelations. Again, who ordained Father Smith to the office of patriarch? His son Joseph, and Father Smith ordained Hyrum, and the twelve (of whom Brother William is one) ordained him. Who are appointed to ordain evangelical ministers? It is the duty of the Twelve, in all large branches of the church, to ordain evangelical ministers, as they shall be designated unto them by revelation. (D. & C. 107:39.) Can a stream rise higher than its fountain? No.... We think that everyone will see that Brother William Smith's patriarchal office will not exalt him higher in regard to priesthood than he was before, as one of the twelve; but will rather change the nature of his office. But will it take any thing from his priesthood? it may be asked. No. You cannot take any man's priesthood away without transgression. Brother William will still retain the same power, priesthood, and authority that he did before, and yet will hold in connection with that the patriarchal office and the keys of that priesthood, and as one of the twelve must maintain his dignity as one of the presidents of the church [This occurred during the apostolic interregnum of 1844-1847 when the twelve, Brigham Young at their head, were sustained as "presidents of the Chruch"], of whom President Brigham Young is the president and head, and presides over all patriarchs, presidents, and councils of the church. (Times and Seasons, 6:921-922, June 1, 1845; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 146-149.)

|c1|v0 Abraham seeks the blessings of the patriarchal order:

|v1 In the land of the Chaldeans, at the residence of my fathers, I, Abraham, saw that it was needful for me to obtain another place of residence; |v2 And, finding there was greater happiness and peace and rest for me, I sought for the blessings of the fathers, and the right whereunto I should be ordained to administer the same; having been myself a follower of righteousness, desiring also to be one who possessed great knowledge, and to be a greater follower of righteousness, and to possess a greater knowledge, and to be a father of many nations, a prince of peace, and desiring to receive instructions, and to keep the commandments of God, I became a rightful heir, a High Priest, holding the right belonging to the fathers.
|v3 It was conferred upon me from the fathers; it came down from the fathers, from the beginning of time, yea, even from the beginning, or before the foundation of the earth to the present time, even the right of the firstborn, on the first man, who is Adam, or first father, through the fathers unto me.
|v4 I sought for mine appointment unto the Priesthood according to the appointment of God unto the fathers concerning the seed.
(PoGP:Abraham Heading & 1:1-4)

Abraham had to receive these blessings proxie from one holding the office of presidency because his fathers turned away from the priesthood.

My fathers having turned from their righteousness, and form the holy commandments which the Lord their God had given unto them, unto the worshiping of the gods of the heathen, utterly refused to harken to my voice; (Abraham 1:5)

[Note: Here we learn that the Patriarch:

1. Holds the keys of sealing, even the holy Spirit of Promise, [which is the spirit of Elijah or the fulness of the priesthood, concerning the seed].

2. We learn that the patriarch is standing as proxie for the fathers or Kings and priests as Abraham:

3. We can conclude as Abraham stated he sought for:

A. The right of the priesthood [the fulness of the priesthood-to be made a king and a priest over his posterity and

B. He sought for the right to bestow the same blessings on his seed.

4. Therefore it is obvious why the keys of sealing, even the holy Spirit of Promise [resides in the patriarch] because as Abraham the King and Priest over his family, has the right to administer the same unto his family and transmit the same keys to his children.

5. This is why you see Lehi of the Book of mormon probably as a Patriarch, Prophet, Priest, and King over his seed had the right when separated from the first presidency, became the first presidency over his family and Held the keys to administer the same unto his seed. ie., He married his sons and daughters, made them kings and priests unto the Most High God, and anointed their wives Queens and Priestess unto their husbands which is the holy spirit of promise, sealing them up to eternal life. He also bestowed the Fulness of the Priesthood on His children and transmitted the same Keys to them so that they Could Build Temples and bestow the same sealing keys upon their posterity unto the latest generation. This is why Moroni was see by John Proclaiming the Everlasting Gospel. Because he understood the fulness of the priesthood and outlined it four times to the Prophet Joseph Smith and as a symbol he stands upon the top of the Capstone of the Temple symbolizing that he is proclaiming the fulness of the priesthood starting with the introductory steps all the way up to the capstone of the temple of man when they are made Kings and Priests unto the Most high God and Queens and Priestesses unto their husbands and reign equally with him over their seed and hold the right to bestow the same upon their posterity as Abraham and as Lehi and as God, And all other affiliations stand in proxie of the Father or fathers. The Prophet stands as the proxie King and Priest and his wife the queen and priestess in and over the Kingdom of God of the Earth. Transmitting these keys to each head of each family to stand in their own capacity eventually attaining unto the Godhead themselves......

Here we see the full order of the Church as described time and time again:

Christ said in his great prophetic Prayer "Thy Kingdom come thine will be done on earth which is done in heaven:

1. In order to establish what the Christ had prayed for in his prophetic prayer; the Lord Set up the First Presidency which represents the Godhead and is Proxie Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Which priesthood is without father and mother-or in other words holds all the Keys of the Fulness of the Priesthood independent of the Patriarchal order.

2. He then made Joseph to stand in his place as his is a Patriarchal order and made him Proxie King of Kings and Lord of Lords, which keys will be delivered back to Christ at the start of the Millennium and then the Christ will deliver these keys to His Father and Our Father at the end of the Millennium.

3. The Lord through Joseph Smith then established the order of the Church to restore the Patriarchal order which had been lost.
He:
1. Set up the first presidency to preside over the Fulness of the priesthood. (D&C 124:125.)

Keys of the Kingdom
"In their fulness, the keys are held by only one person at a time, the Prophet and Presiden of the Church. He may delegate any portion of this power to another, in which case that person holds the keys of that particular labor." [D&C 132: My house is a house of order.] (Gospel Doctrine, 5th ed., p. 136.)

King of Kings
Christ is the King of kings (1 Tim. 6:15; Rev. 17:14; 19:11–16), a title signifying far more than the mere fact that he as the Eternal King holds dominion over mere earthly kings. Rather, those who gain exaltation are ordained kings and queens, priests and priestesses, in which position s they shall exercise power and authority in the Lord's eternal kingdoms forever. (Rev. 1: 6; 5:10.) Christ as the chief of all exalted beings continues to hold dominion and sway over these other exalted kings and saints and consequently reigns as King of Kings and King of Saints forever. (Rev. 15:3.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 424.)

(NewT:John 13:Heading-20)
Washing of feet is a gospel ordiance; it is a holy and sacred rite, one performed by the saints in the seclusion of the temple sanctuaries. It is not done before the world or for worldly people. For this day and dispensation Jesus instituted it in the upper room at the time of the Last Supper.
"Our Lord did two things in the performance of this ordinance: 1. He fulfilled the old law given to Moses; and 2. He instituted a sacred ordinance which should be performed by legal administrators among his true disciples from that day forward.

"As part of the restoration of all things, the ordinance of washing of feet has been restored in the dispensation of the fulness of times. In keeping with the standard pattern of revealing principles and practices line upon line and precept upon precept, the Lord revealed his will concerning the washing of feet little by little until the ful knowledge of the endowment and all temple ordinances had been given.

"December 27, 1832, this command was given to 'the firs laborers in the last kingdom': 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your father, and your God and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75.) On that same occasion the command came to organize the school of the prophets, with the express stipulation that 'ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation ["is clean every whit: and ye are clean" (John 13:10); [The same would hold true to enter the Highest Degree in the Celestial Kingdom; all saints from the least to the greatest must be washed and pronounced clean ever whit that "I [Jesus Christ] may testify unto you Father, and you God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75)] And he shall be received by the ordiance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted.' (D. & C. 88:127-141.)
"In the case of this school the ordinance is to be performed by the President of the Church. [This would indicate that others would receive this ordiance from the legal administrators appointed by the President of the Church or First Presidency.] In compliance with this revelaton the Prophet on January 23, 1833, washed the feet of the members of the school of the prophets. 'By the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation," he recorded. (History of the Church, vol. 1, pp. 322-324; vol. 2, p. 287.)
"Later apostles were called and ordained, and on November 12, 1835, the Prophet addressed them, as pertaining to the washing of feet where they were concerned: 'The item to which I wish the more particularly to call your attention tonight is the ordinance of washing of feet. This we [meaning the Twelve] have not done as yet, but it is necessary now, as much as it was in the days of the Savior; and we must have a place prepared, that we may attend to this ordinance aside from the world.
"'We have not desired as much from the hand of the Lord through faith and obedience, as we ought to have done, yet we have enjoyed great blessings, and we are not so sensible of this as we should be.... We must have all things prepared, and call our solemn assembly as the Lord has commanded us, that we may be able to accomplish his great work, and it must be done in God's own way. The house of the Lord must be prepared, and the solemn assembly called and organized in it, according to the order of ht ehouse of God; and in it we mus attend to the ordance of washing of feet. It was never intended for any but official members. It is calculated to unite our hearts, that we may be one in feeling and sentiment, and that our faith may be strong, so the Satan cannot overthrow us, nor have any power over us here.

"'The endowment you are so anxious about, you cannot comprehend now, nor could Gabriel explain it to the understanding of your dark minds; but strive to be prepared in your hearts, be faithful in all things, that when we meet in the solemn assembly, that is, when such as God shall name out of all the official shall meet, we must be clean ever whit.... The order of the house of God has been, and ever will be, the same, even after Christ comes; and after the termination of the thousand years it will be the same; and we shall finally enter the celestial kingdom of God, and enjoy it forever.' (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 308-309.)

"On Sunday, March 27, 1836, as part of the dedicatory services fo the Kirtland Temple, the congregation sang the glorious hymn, 'The Spirit of God Like a Fire is Burning!' One verse, as then sung, was:

> "'We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed,
> Withal not omittin the washing of feet;
> For he that receiveth his penny appointed
> Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat.'

[In otherwords all saints who intend to enter the Lords Kingdom before he comes in glory must have this ordiance performed or done by proxie or they cannot enter the Lords Kingdom, "For no unclean thing can enter the kingdom of God", and again it must needs be that we must "not omitt the washing of feet" and "must be "clean [every whit] at the harvest of wheat." And again, the Lord has commanded 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean [every whit] from the blood of this wicked generation.' (D. & C. 88:74-75.)

"On March 29 and 30, 1836, the leading brethren, including the First Presidency, Council of the Twelve, bishoprics, and preidents of quorums, participated in the ordiance of washing of feet. (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 426, 430-431.)

"It should be remembered that the endowment given in the Kirtland Temple was only a partial endowment, and that the full endowment was not performed until the saints had established themselves in Nauvoo. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 241-242.) The full endowment--referred to in the revelation dated January 19, 1841 (D. & C. 124:36-41)--including washings and anointings except under unusual circumstances, is designed to be administered in the temples of the Lord.

Thus the knowledge relative to the washing of feet has been revealed step by step in this day until a full knowledge is now in corporated in the revaled ordiances of the Lord's house. Obviously the apostate peoples of the world, being without revelation to guide them, cannot comply with our Lord's command given on the occasion of the last supper." (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 751-753.) (DNTC 1, p. 708-710.)

From Joseph Smith's Inspired Translation of the Bible, we read that the fulness of the Priesthood comes "not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God." (Gen. 14:28) Willard Richards wrote in the Joseph Smith Diary that is Priesthood is for those who are--

> ...called, elected and made were without father, etc.; a priesthood which holds the priesthood by right from the Eternal Gods--and not by descent from father and mother. (words of Joseph Smith, p 244)

> And again, speaking of Hebrews 7:

> Paul is here treating of three different priesthoods, namely the priesthood of Aaron <Levitical>, Abraham <patriarchal>, and Melchizedek. Abraham's priesthood was of greater power than Levi's, and Melchizedek's was of greater power than that of Abraham. (Words of Joseph Smith, p.245-246)

> The Prophet Joseph stated that, "those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God,..." (TPJS, p. 322) He further explained this Priesthood order as--

> That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but of King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & law of endless life to man, & no man can attain to the joint heirship with Jesus Christ without being administered to by one having the same power & authority of Melchisedec. (Words of Joseph Smith, p. 245)

> In another instance, Joseph emphasized that the spirit of "Messiah is above the spirit and power of Elijah" (TPJS, p. 340), for--

> ... this greater priesthood administereth the gospel and holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God. For without this no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live. (D. & C. 84:19 & 22)

> In conclusion then, the Prophet stated that "the spirit of Elias is first, Elijah second, and Messiah last." (TPJS, p. 340) This highest power and authority of Priesthood was the kingly Priesthood which Peter referred to as the "Royal Priesthood" (I Peter 2:9), confirmed by the King of Kings-the Messiah Himself.

Those with the highest Priesthood may enjoy the following powers and privileges:

> Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that Priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy, and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam. (TPJS, p. 322)

> All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (DHC 5:424)

Gospel Mysteries

The power and authority of the highest, or Melchizedek Priesthood, is to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church--to have the privilege of receiving the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. (D. & C. 107:18-19)

The object of every man should be to obtain the Priesthood and magnify his calling in that Priesthood until he proves himself worthy of the fulness of the ordinances of God's kingdom. Only then can he possess the power to have the heavens opened to him and commune with God the Father and His Son.

In our dispensation, the Lord has said: "every man might speak in the name of God that Lord, even the Savior of the world." (D. & C. 1:20) The prophet Jeremiah prophesied:

Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that i will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jer. 31:31-34)

The Lord stated further:

...I say unto you that mine eyes are upon you. I am in your midst and ye cannot see me; but the day soon cometh that ye shall see me, and know that I am; for the veil of darkness shall soon be rent, and he that is not purified shall not abide the day. Wherefore, gird up your loins and be prepared. (D. & C. 38:7-9)

Wilford Woodruff said the Twelve Apostles had received "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things. (Times and Seasons 5:698)

Orson Hyde said the Twelve Apostles had been given "the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing. (The Return 2:253)
Joseph confirmed this by saying:

Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. (TPJS, p. 322)

And again--

Here, then is eternal life-to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to god, the same as all Gods have done before you.... (TPJS, p. 346)

Brigham Young added:

For any person to have the fulness of that Priesthood, he must be a king and a priest. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, Aug. 6, 1843)

This was also confirmed by Dan Jones:

Dan Jones heard Wilson Law...declare that while he (Mr. Smith) was once preaching from Daniel 2nd chapter, 44th verse, <he> said that the kingdom referred to was already set up, and that he was the king over it. (DHC 6:568-569)

Further evidence as to Joseph Smith's being anointed a king was given by Parley P. Pratt:

This Priesthood, including that of the Aaronic, holds the keys of revelation of the oracles of God to man upon the earth; the power and right to give laws and commandments to individuals, churches, rulers, nations and the world; to appoint, ordain, and establish constitutions and kingdoms; to anoint kings, presidents, governors or judges, and to ordain or anoint them to their several holy callings, also to instruct, warn, or reprove them by the word of the Lord. (Parley P. Pratt, Key to Theology, 1885, p. 66)

It was in this context that a man could become king of kings and lord of lords, as explained by Brigham Young:

We understand that we are to be made kings and priests unto God; now if I be made the king and lawgiver to my family, and if I have many sons, I shall become the father of many fathers, for they will have sons, and their sons will have sons, and so on, form generation to generation, and, in this way, I may become the father of many fathers, or the king of many kings. This will constitute every man a prince, king, lord, or whatever the Father sees fit to confer upon us.
In this way we can become king of kings, and lord of lords, or father of fathers, or prince of princes, and this is the only course, for another man is not going to raise up a kingdom for you. (JD 3:266)

John Taylor also revealed:

You have been ordained kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to your Lord; you have been put in possession of principles that all the kings, potentates, and power upon the earth are entirely ignorant of; they do not understand it; but you have received this form the hands of God. (JD 5:189)

THREE GRAND ORDERS

There are three grand orders of priesthood referred to here. First, the king of Shiloam (Salem) had power and authority over that of Abraham, holding the key and the power of endless lives. Angels desire to look into it but they have set up too many stakes. God cursed the children of Israel because they would not receive the last law of Moses.

The sacrifice required of Abraham in the offering up of Isaac shows that if a man would attain to the keys of the kingdom of an endless life he must sacrifice all things. When God offers a blessing or knowledge to a man and he refuses to receive it he will be damned. The Israelites prayed that God would speak to Moses and not to them; In consequence of which he cursed them with a carnal law.

What was the power of Melchizedek? Twas not the priesthood of Aaron which ministers in outward ordinances and the offering of sacrifices. Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priest of the Most High God holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam.

Abraham says to Melchizedek, I believe all that thou hast taught me concerning the priesthood and the coming of the Son of Man; so Melchizedek ordained Abraham and sent him away. Abraham rejoiced saying, Now I have a priesthood.

THE MISSION OF ELIJAH

Salvation could not come to the world without the mediation of Jesus Christ. How shall God come to the rescue of this generation? He will send Elijah the Prophet. The law revealed to Moses in Horeb never was revealed to the children of Israel as a nation. Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the fathers to the children.

The anointing and sealing is to be called, elected and made sure. "Without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like unto the Son of God, abideth a priest continually." The Melchizedek Priesthood holds the right from the eternal God, and not by descent from father and mother; and that priesthood is as eternal as God himself, having neither beginning of days nor end of life.

The 2nd Priesthood is Patriarchal Authority. Go to and finish the temple, and God will fill it with power, and you will then receive more knowledge concerning the priesthood.

The 3rd is what is called the Levitical Priesthood, consisting of priests to administer in outward ordinances, made without an oath; but the Priesthood of Melchizedek is by an oath and covenant.

The Holy Ghost is God's messenger to administer in all those priesthoods. Jesus Christ is the heir of this kingdom--the Only Begotten of the Father according to the flesh, and holds the keys over all this world.

Men have to suffer that they may come upon Mount Zion and be exalted above the heavens.

I know a man that has been caught up to the third heavens, and can say with Paul, that we have seen and heard things that are not lawful to utter. (H.C. 5:554-556) (TPJS, 322-323, 1976)

lst Levitical which was never able to administer a Blessing but only to bind heavy burdens which neither they nor their father able to bear
2 Abrahams Patriarchal power which is the greatest yet experienced in this church
3d That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but of King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man & No man can attain to the Joint heirship with Jesus Christ with out being administered to by one having the same power & Authority of Melchisedec Joseph also said that the Holy Ghost is now in a state of Probation which if he should perform in righteousness he may pass through the same or a similar course of things that the Son has.

4. James Burgess Notebook; 27 August 1843; Church Historians Office; The Words of Joseph Smith, Ehat/Cook, pp. 245-47.

Hebrews 7 chap. Paul is here treating of three different preisthoods, namely the preisthood of Aron, Abraham, and Melchizedeck, Abraham's preisthood was of greater power than Levi's and Melchizedeck's was of greater power than that of Abraham. The preisthood of Levi consisted of cursings and carnal commandments and not of blessings and if the preisthood of this generation has no more power than that of Levi or Aron or of a bishhoprick it administers no blessings but cursings for it was an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. I ask was there any sealing power attending this preisthood.that would admit a man into the presence of God. Oh no, but Abraham's was a more exalted power or preisthood he could talk and walk with God and yet consider how great this man was when even this patriarch Abraham gave a tenth part of all his spoils and then received a blessing under the hands of Melchesideck even the last law or a fulness of the law or preisthood which constituted him a king and priest after the order of Melchesideck or an endless life Now if Abraham had been like the sectarian world and would not have received any more revelation, what would have been the consequence it would have damned him. Book of Covenants. The levitical preisthood was an appendage to the Melchesideck preisthood or the whole law of God when in full face or power in all its parts and bearings on the earth. It is understood by many by reading this chapter that Melchesedeck was king of some country or nation on the earth, but it was not so, In the original it reads king of Shaloam which signifies king of peace or righteousness and not of any country or nation.
Malachi says that the sons of Levi shall in the last days offer an offering in righteousness.
Men will set up stakes and say thus far will we go and no farther, did Abraham when called upon to offer his son, did the Saviour, no, view him fulfiling all righteousness again on the banks of jordon, also on the Mount transfigured before Peter and John there receiving the fulness of preisthood or the law of God, setting up so stake but coming right up to the mark in all things here him after he returned from the Mount, did ever language of such magnitude fall from the lips of any man, hearken him. All power is given is given unto me both in heaven and the earth. Offering's sacrifice's and carnal commandments, was added in consequence of transgression and they that did them should live by them. View the Son of God at saying it behoveth me to fulfil all righteousness also in a garden saying if it be possible let this cup pass from me nevertheless thy will be done. What was the design of the Almighty in making man, it was to exalt him to be as God, the scripture says yet are Gods and it cannot be broken, heirs of God and joint heirs I with Jesus Christ equal with him possesing all power &c. The mystery power and glory of the preisthood is so great and glorious that the angels desired to understand it and cannot: why, because of the tradition of them and their fathers in setting up stakes and not coming up to the mark in their probationary state. J Smith the Prophet.

5. William Clayton Diary, 27 August 1843; Church Historians Office; The Words of Joseph Smith, Ehat/Cook, p. 247.

A.M. at the Grove. Prest. J. preached on Hebrews c 7. After reading a letter from Thos. Carlin to S. Rigdon and making some remarks about it. He shewed that the word "Salem" is a wrong translation it should be "Shalome" signifying peace. He prophecied that "not all the powers of hell or earth combined can ever overthrow this boy" for he had a promise from the eternal God. He spoke concerning the priesthood of Melchisedek shewing that the sectarians never proposed to have it consequently never could save any one and would all be damned together. He showed that the power of the Melchisek P'd was to have the power of an "endless lives." he showed that the everlasting covenants could not be broken, and by the sacrifice requeired of Abraham the fact that when God offers a blessing or knowledge to a man and he refuses to receive it he will be damned.--mentioning the case of the Israelites praying that God would speak to Moses & not to them--in consequence of which he cursed them with a carnal law.

THE PATRIARCHAL ORDER OF THE PRIESTHOOD

Compiled by Richard A. Ware
1985

The Divine Family Organization

1. Family Guidebook, pp. ii, 1; 1979 ed.

The family is the basic unit of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The home should be the principal place where individuals learn how to meet their needs and how to work out their exaltation.

The father presides over the family and is assisted by the mother. They are companions and should counsel together on all matters pertaining to the home and the family. If there is no father in the home, the mother is responsible for the family.

An accounting of the welfare of the family should be made by the father to the Lord and leaders of the Church, which the Lord has established to assist the father and the family.

Because our Father in Heaven loves us, he wants us to become exalted as he is. To help us, he has given us a plan to follow based on divine laws of truth. Those who learn about the plan and follow it faithfully can someday become like our Father in Heaven and enjoy the kind of life he enjoys.
To help us prepare ourselves for life with him, our Heavenly Father has organized us into families. Families on earth are similar to the families that we will have in the celestial kingdom. * * *
The family is the basic unit of the Church, and the father is the head or patriarch of the family. His wife is his most important companion, partner, and counselor. They should counsel together on all family matters.
A father who holds the priesthood is a basic priesthood officer in the church.

Gospel Mysteries

As the priesthood leader in his family, he has the responsibility for teaching, blessing, and providing for the members of his family. He leads his family so that they are preparing to return to the presence of our Heavenly Father.
The mother has the specific role and blessing of bearing children. She is a partner and a counselor to her husband; she is to help him teach and train the children in the laws of heaven. If there is no father, the mother presides over the family.
The father is to see that his family is active in the gospel, including the following three basic priesthood functions:
1. Personal and family preparedness, both spiritual and temporal.
2. Sharing the gospel.
3. Family exaltation for the living and the dead.

Organized Through Temple Marriage

1. 1967 Melchizedek Priesthood Course of Study, "On Heaven And In Earth", p 143.

There is nothing as important in time or eternity as a family unit. We were members of God's eternal family in pre-existence. The purpose of the plan of salvation is to enable us to create for ourselves eternal family units patterned after that of God our Father.
The perfect operation of priesthood authority on earth is thus through the family unit. The patriarchal order is a priesthood order--an order which governs through the family organization and which prepares all members of a family to live everlastingly as family members.
Eternal family units have their beginning in an "order of the priesthood" named "the new and everlasting covenant of marriage." (D&C 131:2). Through the proper use of the priesthood in these families, they can be perfected and assured of an eternal continuance. * * *
. . .the patriarchal order will continue among exalted beings in the celestial kingdom.

2. Lecture given at BYU; Summer, 1967; by Elder Bruce R. McConkie, to the Seminary and Institute Teachers of the Church.

The patriarchal order as far as we are concerned, centers in the revolves around celestial marriage and when an individual progresses in the church to the point that he has the blessings of that order of the priesthood, he has all the blessings of Abraham and becomes a natural patriarch to his posterity.
* * *
The father ought to be the head of the house and all things center in him. In a general sense in all families but in a particular sense in these families where the patriarchal order and system has been established, which system is not established, which system is not established until somebody gets the blessings of Abraham. And the blessings of Abraham as we read and explained do not come to people unless and until they are sealed upon them in the temple.

3. 1967-68 Melchizedek Priesthood Course of Study, "A Light Unto The World", p. 55.

Not only must we be concerned with the patriarchal family, thinking of our Heavenly Father's family from an eternal perspective, but we must be concerned with the meaning of a patriarchal family. Each one who bears the Holy Priesthood should have it as a clear and emphatic objective to preside over and give leadership to his family in a patriarchal fashion. Although each father is the head of his family, in the strict sense of the word the Latter-day Saint family cannot be called patriarchal unless the husband holds the Melchizedek Priesthood and the wife was married to or sealed to the husband in the temple, and the children were born in the covenant or sealed to their parents.

Thus, temporally speaking, a patriarchal family is one which has prepared itself by ordinance and covenant, and is constantly striving to improve itself by faithful observance of the order and power of the Holy Priesthood, that it may in eternity be a part of the Patriarchal Family of the Eternal Father.

4. Doctrine & Covenants, Institute of Religion, Self Instruction Program, Vol. II, 1972-73 Year. Approved by the Adult Correlation Committee of the Church; For College Age Adults, Church Educational System; The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, pp. 479, 494.

Yours may or may not be a family that is sealed in the temple. But you have the privilege to one day create a family kingdom of your own. And this can only be done in the house of the Lord.
When you someday kneel across that sacred alter, not only do you exchange holy covenants, but you receive the keys to your own kingdom. It gives you and your spouse the right to receive all knowledge and power to bring about the salvation of your own posterity, the same as Adam did with his. This is where the patriarchal order has its beginning. * * *
The real reason that a couple goes to the temple is to receive all the keys, powers, and privileges to establish their own kingdom through the posterity that will come to them. Thus, we can say that through the husband's priesthood a couple receives the keys to their own kingdom. This is predicated, of course, on whether they live up to all the covenants they make with the Lord. The promise given them is that they will have "eternal increase," which means that their right to marriage and having posterity extends beyond mortality. Except they receive these keys, they will have no such right to this sacred privilege.
The real and most important purpose of the kingdom of God (the Church) is to bless the family through the father of that home. It is to help him magnify his major stewardship (his family) and so exercise his keys that he can provide family members with salvation and eternal life. The Church exists to assist fathers to come to that realization and magnification of their responsibility.
Fathers can exercise their priesthood keys by---

1)Having a posterity. (See Moses 5:2) 2)Teaching the gospel to their family. (See Moses 5:12)
3)Praying in the home morning and evening. (See Moses 5:16)
4)Preparing sons to go on missions.
5)Teaching sons how to home teach.
6)Teaching daughters, through their helpmate, how to be wives, homemakers, and mothers.
7)Teaching the children to work and provide for their welfare.
8)Keeping a family record, a book of remembrance. (See Moses 6:5,6)

These are some of the things Adam did to save his posterity. Fathers who magnify the priesthood to its full extent can save their posterity the same way today.

5. An address given by Elder Ezra Taft Benson to the Regional Representatives,

Gospel Mysteries

October 4, 1973; Entitled: "Strengthening the Individual Priesthood Holder".

Each father is establishing, or should be establishing his patriarchal order---an order that will extend into the eternities, and it seems to me there is nothing more important for a priesthood leader or a priesthood holder to do than to give consideration to the fact that he is establishing his patriarchal order here in mortal life, and that that order will be extended into the eternities. * * *
And, of course, in establishing this great patriarchal order, the family must be sealed for time and for all eternity. So it is appropriate that the mother be considered a counselor, a close companion, in planning the execution of the plan for the benefit and the blessing of the family.

6. The Ensign/June 1975, p. 3; First Presidency Message, by Pres. Spencer W. Kimball; Entitled: "The Example of Abraham".

Only through this [Melchizedek Priesthood] power does man "hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church," enabling him to receive "the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened" unto him (see D&C 107:18-19), enabling him to enter the new and everlasting covenant of marriage and to have his wife and children bound to him in an everlasting tie, enabling him to become a patriarch to his posterity forever, and enabling him to receive a fulness of the blessings of the Lord.

7. 1980-81 Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide, "Choose You This Day", p. 102; See also "The Eternal Family Concept, Genealogical Devotional Address, 19-23 June 1967 [Provo, Utah: Brigham Young University Press, 1968], pp. 89-91.)

We go to the temple and we get married for eternity, and when we do, we are given everything that Abraham received as far as the promises of glory and exaltation are concerned....
Joseph Smith says that in the temple of God there is an order of priesthood that is patriarchal. 'Go to the temple,' he says, 'and find out about this order.' So I went to the temple, and I took my wife with me, and we kneeled at the altar. There on that occasion we entered, the two of us, into an 'order of the priesthood.' When we did it, we had sealed upon us, on a conditional basis, every blessing that God promised Father Abraham---the blessings of exaltation and eternal increase. The name of that order of priesthood, which is patriarchal in nature, because Abraham was a natural patriarch to his posterity, is the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage.

Presiding Authority Within The Home

1. Relief Society Manual, 1974-75, pp. 57-58; Letter by the First Presidency to an unmentioned writer, February 14, 1972.

You inquire as to who presides in the home when the husband is absent, whether it is the mother or the oldest member of the family holding the priesthood. I am directed to tell you that the mother is the presiding authority in the home when the husband is absent.

2. Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide, 1977-1978, p. 28.

Gospel Mysteries

The organization of the immediate family ordinarily includes the father, the mother, and their children who are living at home. Where there is no father in the home, the mother presides.

Responsibilities of Melchizedek Priesthood Leaders

1. Melchizedek Priesthood Handbook; 1975 ed.

A priesthood quorum is an organization of a group of men, within geographical boundaries, holding the same office in the priesthood. Quorums are organized to advance the work of the Church, to train members in the principles and responsibilities of the priesthood, to provide brotherhood for priesthood bearers, and to offer these men opportunities for service. (p. 2)

The stake president presides over and supervises all the Melchizedek Priesthood quorums and groups and is responsible for "watching over the church," for blessing, training, protecting, leading, and inspiring those in the stake. * * *

The stake president is responsible for ensuring that every Melchizedek Priesthood holder and prospective elder in the stake is taught the duties of his calling. The stake president should ensure that quorum presidents fulfill their responsibilities in teaching the fathers and other quorum members about the duties they have accepted by covenant, such as the role of the father in the home, missionary work, genealogy, Church service, welfare and fellowshipping. (p. 4)

All quorum presidents are "to preside over" their quorum members and "to sit in council with them and to teach them according to the covenants." (D&C 107:89) They should (1) instruct quorum members in how to magnify their callings, (2) train them in their duties, and (3) help them learn the doctrines of the kingdom. (p. 7)

All Melchizedek Priesthood quorum presidents hold the keys to administer the affairs of the quorum. (D&C 124:143)

All quorum presidents are to watch over and ensure the welfare of every member of the quorum.

IN addition to married elders, elders quorum presidents have a special responsibility for the male Young Adults, male Special Interests, and prospective elders. (p. 9)

The quorum president or group leader is the presiding officer in the quorum of group. It is the duty of the quorum president or group leader to preside over fathers and other members of the quorum, to sit in council with them, and to teach them the duties they have accepted by covenant. (p. 17)

The quorum president or group leader presides over the father as a quorum member. He ensures that the quorum---with its curriculum, projects, activities, and home teaching---functions for the benefit of all quorum members and, through fathers, the families of the ward. He also uses the personal priesthood interview with the bishop and meetings with the ward priesthood executive committee and the ward correlation council to call upon the resources of the ward in fulfilling his responsibilities.

2. Letter from the First Presidency to all Stake Presidents and Bishops, dated March 19, 1976.

The quorum president is responsible, directly and through the home teachers, to see that fathers attend to their family and Church duties. However, the elders quorum president does not preside over the families of these brethren. For example, he has no authority to call in a husband and wife to counsel them in marital problems nor to counsel with the children of quorum members; such matters should be referred to the bishop.

[Entire letter is attached]

3. Welfare Services Resource Handbook, p. 7. 1980 ed.

Melchizedek Priesthood Quorums

These quorums implement welfare services by---

1. Teaching personal and family preparedness.
2. Helping produce good and services.
3. Helping rehabilitate members with problems.

The spirit of brotherhood should motivate quorum members to do everything possible to prevent distress and, where necessary, to rehabilitate their unfortunate brethren both spiritually and temporally. After the bishop gives immediate and temporary help, the priesthood quorum should follow through with a needy brother until both his spiritual and temporal needs are met.

Home Teaching & The Family

1. Melchizedek Priesthood Handbook; 1975 ed.

Priesthood Home Teaching

a. Principles and responsibilities

1) The Lord uses his priesthood holders to watch over and strengthen his Church. Each man who receives the priesthood has this responsibility. Home teachers are called to represent the quorum president and, through the quorum president, the bishop. Therefore, home teachers are priesthood representatives called to assist the quorum president in watching over and strengthening the quorum members, including fathers and their families.
2) The father should be recognized and supported in his position as the presiding leader of his family. He is responsible for teaching his family the basic doctrines of the kingdom and seeing that they assist in building the kingdom of God. He has the responsibility for leading his family into eternal life. The order of the priesthood, then, requires home teachers to work with and through the presiding authority in the family, the father.
3) Priesthood home teachers are to watch over the Church and to inquire into the health of the family and to encourage the father and family to attend to their family and Church responsibilities. * * *
An ultimate goal of quorum presidencies and their representatives (priesthood home teachers) is to inspire fathers, and through them the family, to conform to all church standards. (p. 11)
The quorum president sends his priesthood representatives, the home teachers, as a basic source of assistance, to visit the homes of the members and encourage them to attend to all family duties.
The home teacher represents the Lord, the quorum president, and the bishop as a standing minister watching over and strengthening the priesthood bearers and families of the Church. The home teacher is called and assigned by the quorum president after consultation with the bishop. He returns to the quorum president on a regular basis and reports on his assignments and accomplishments.

Every Melchizedek Priesthood holder and his family and every Church member have responsibility in such areas as missionary, welfare, genealogy, and temple work. Melchizedek Priesthood leaders, with the help of their representatives, the home teachers, are to see that fathers and other quorum members attend to these duties. (p. 18)

2. 1975-76 Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide, p. 103; "A Royal Priesthood".

A priesthood representative's duty is to "watch over the Church," to "strengthen," and to "see that the church 'meet together often." It does NOT say that the priesthood representative should teach families. This is the father's duty.

3. 1976-77 Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide, pp. 140-144; "My Errand From The Lord".

Just as a bishop presides over the members of the Church in his ward, the father presides over members of his family, the basic unit of the Church. All Church officers should respect the position of the father, because "in the home the presiding authority is always vested in the father, and in all home affairs and family matters there is no other authority paramount. (Joseph F. Smith, Gospel Doctrine, p. 287) The quorum president presides directly over fathers as quorum members, and the quorum president is responsible for teaching fathers their duties.
You [the home teacher] represent your quorum president much the same as a high councilor represents the stake president.
The quorum president presides directly over fathers as quorum members, but he holds no keys to preside over the mother or the children. [Italics added] That stewardship belongs to the father. Therefore, when you go into a man's home, representing as you do your quorum leader, the teaching or attention that you give to the wife and children should be under the father's direction.
President Harold B. Lee reminded all priesthood representatives:

The Priesthood visitors are to be watchmen on the tower. I'm not sure but what we've arrived at a time when we ought to be thinking of a new name instead of teacher attached to these Priesthood visitors. The word teaching suggests that they are to go there to teach a gospel message, and that primarily isn't what we expect the home teachers of today to do. They are home visitors; they are Priesthood home visitors to inquire into the health of the family and to see if they are doing their family duties, and if they are assuming their Church responsibilities. (Seminar for Reg. Rep., Apr 3, 1969).

On another occasion, President Lee stated:

Maybe the home teacher should be charged more clearly to describe his mission to watch over, to strengthen, to see that members do their duty. There's our failure. They think of themselves as teachers of the gospel message only. Maybe we ought to be calling them home guardians or sentinels and to report their stewardship....We must do something to change the emphasis from teaching to guardians watching over the Church kind of concept. Until we get that into their minds, we are not going to do the kind of home teaching that is going to get results. (Seminar for Reg. Rep., Apr 1972).

A husband and father, by nature, appreciates being honored and respected in his position by Church leaders or others who may visit his home. What might a home teacher do to the father's position when he goes into the home and bypasses the father to give attention and instruction to the wife and family members?

4. 1978-79 Melchizedek Priesthood Personal Study Guide, p. 35; "Prepare Ye The Way of The Lord".

Home teaching should not be confused with the Lord's program for teaching the gospel in the home by parents. It is not intended, nor would it be proper, for home teachers to take the place of the family head in teaching the gospel in the home. (Elder Marion G. Romney)
As home teachers desiring to effect a change in a family, we are to work primarily with and through the father. Note these words of Elder Ezra Taft Benson: "The Church was created in large measure to help the family, and long after the Church has performed its mission, the celestial patriarchal order will still be functioning."

5. Guidelines For Priesthood Home Teaching (1980); 3 pages.

Responsibilities of Home Teachers

Two priesthood holders are called as home teachers to visit regularly the homes of assigned families. They represent the quorum leader and the bishop. To be effective with the families for whom they are responsible, home teachers should win their friendship and respect by entering the home with a spirit of love and understanding. * * *
Home teachers should always work through and consult with the father or head of the household regarding family needs and ways in which they can be most helpful. They should make an appointment for each visit at a time convenient for the family. They should always remember that they are guests in the home.

The Bishop's Relationship To The Family & The Quorum

1. Melchizedek Priesthood Handbook; 1975 ed. (Italics added).

The bishop is the presiding officer in the ward. He presides over fathers, including Melchizedek Priesthood leaders, and their families as ward members. These responsibilities include interviewing for temple recommends and working with families that have domestic difficulties. (p. 18)

The bishop is the presiding authority in the ward and has jurisdiction over the father and family as ward members. The bishop should correlate the activities and programs of the quorum with those of the ward. He can do this in priesthood executive committee meeting, in ward correlation council meeting, and during personal priesthood interviews. Through an interview with the quorum leader, the bishop has access to the quorums resources, including the home teachers, to assist him in his responsibilities. (p. 19)

2. Bishop"s Guide; 1975 ed.

Gospel Mysteries

To gain eternal life, every individual will have the opportunity to become a member of an exalted family. Therefore, in all he does to help individuals and to encourage others to help individuals, the bishop must support the family. The most important organization in time and eternity is the family. The Church and all its organizations are designed to help each individual and the family. The father is responsible for guiding and strengthening his family spiritually and temporally. The bishop supports the Melchizedek Priesthood quorums in carrying out their responsibilities for teaching the father in his duty.

In applying these principles, the bishop should--

1.Reserve Mondays for family home evening.
2.Consult the father (or other family head) before calling a member of the family to any Church assignment.
3.Direct ward leaders to plan activities that are family-oriented.
4.Encourage fathers to make sure their families attend sacrament meeting and other meetings together.
5.Encourage fathers to bring their families to tithing settlement (although family members may be interviews individually). * * *

Melchizedek Priesthood quorum presidents and group leaders have a direct responsibility for the heads of families. A father should learn his duty from his quorum president or group leader. Therefore, the bishop should recognize and support the authority and responsibility of Melchizedek Priesthood leaders.
"The quorums of the Priesthood must assume pre-eminence in all Church activities." (Elder John A Widtsoe)
Quorum presidents and group leaders train priesthood holders in their duties, instruct them in the doctrines of the kingdom, and teach them how to magnify their callings.
Home teachers are agents of their quorum presidents or group leaders and of the bishop.

In applying these principles, the bishop should--

1. Offer ward resources to quorum presidents and group leaders to help them strengthen family heads.
2. Involve the quorum president or group leader in welfare services plans to help members of those families for which the quorum or group has a responsibility (unless such involvement would violate a confidence).
3. Request the aid of home teachers through quorum or group leaders. (Home teachers, who are a resource of both the quorum and the bishop, serve under the direction of the quorum or group leaders.) (p. 5)

A bishop is the presiding officer of his ward, and where the bishop is in the ward, his counselors and those who are members of his ward are subject to his presidency. * * * The presiding officer is the head, should be regarded in his place, and his place should be held sacred in the minds of his associates. (p. 9)

The bishop should correlate the activities and programs of the quorum with those of the ward. He can do this in priesthood executive committee meetings, in ward correlation council meetings, and during personal priesthood interviews.
In the personal priesthood interview with the quorum president or group leader, the bishop has access to the quorum's resources, including the home teachers, to assist him in his responsibilities. The quorum president also has access to ward resources, together with the assistance and support of the bishop, to help the quorum president in his responsibility to teach, watch over, and strengthen the father and family. * * *

The bishop is the presiding officer in the ward. He has jurisdiction over all ward members and over all programs in the ward. The bishop has jurisdiction over the fathers and the families as ward members. Melchizedek Priesthood leaders have direct priesthood responsibility for fathers as members of the quorum or group. They teach, watch over, and strengthen each father, helping him more effectively strengthen his family. (p. 16)

3. Letter from the First Presidency to all Stake Presidents and Bishops, dated March 19, 1976.

Dear Brethren:

To clarify certain questions which have arisen regarding the relationship between the bishop of the ward and the elders quorum president and so that there will be maximum effectiveness in the jurisdiction of these two priesthood leaders, the following points are emphasized.

Bishop

1.The bishop presides as president of the Aaronic Priesthood.

2.The bishop is the presiding high priest in the ward and presides over all members of the ward--men (including those who hold the Melchizedek Priesthood), women, and children.

3.The bishop is chairman of the ward welfare services committee and has overall responsibility for ward welfare services and other temporal matters.

4.The bishop is a common judge in Israel and has the responsibility of interviewing for temple recommends and determining the worthiness of all members of the ward. Those found in transgression may be called before a bishop's court, which may disfellowship any member of record and may excommunicate any member except a holder of the Melchizedek Priesthood. Holders of the Melchizedek Priesthood who need further disciplinary action than disfellowshipment should be referred by the bishop to the stake presidency.

5.The bishop as the presiding high priest presides over and conducts the ward priesthood executive committee meeting as chairman, where he gives direction. He also presides over and conducts the ward correlation council meeting, where he correlates all programs for the benefit of ward members.

6.The bishop as the presiding high priest is chairman of the ward priesthood executive committee and presides over the home teaching program of the ward. He ensures that each family is assigned to a Melchizedek Priesthood quorum or group for home teaching purposes. The Melchizedek Priesthood quorum, group, or unit leaders oversee home teaching and report the results of home teaching to the bishop in separate monthly personal priesthood interviews.

7.The bishop is accountable to the stake president for ward activities.

Elders Quorum President

1.For quorum activities, the elders quorum president is responsible directly to, and is called and released, by the stake president.

2.The elders quorum president presides over members of his quorum and also has been given responsibility for prospective elders, a large number of whom are holders of the Aaronic Priesthood.

3.The elders quorum president has the duty to train each quorum member and to assist the elders and prospective elders to become active and responsible. He reports to the bishop the progress and activity of each quorum member or prospective elder.

4.In fulfilling his responsibility to elders and prospective elders, the elders quorum president may request the bishop and other Melchizedek Priesthood leaders to assign high priests as home teachers to help reactivate elders, prospective elders, and their families. In such cases, the high priests report these home teaching contacts to the elders quorum president.

5.The elders quorum president is responsible, directly and through the home teachers, to see that fathers attend to their family and Church duties. However, the elders quorum president does not preside over the families of these brethren. For example, he has no authority to call in a husband and wife to counsel them in marital problems nor to counsel with the children of quorum members; such matters should be referred to the bishop.

6.The elders quorum president is accountable to the stake president for quorum activities.

It is suggested that stake presidents call this letter to the attention of their respective elders quorum presidents.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ Spencer W. Kimball
/s/ N. Eldon Tanner

The First Presidency

4. 1976-77 Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide, p. 62; "My Errand From The Lord."

Bishops preside over all the members of the Church in their wards [as ward members], and quorum leaders preside over quorum members [as quorum members]; but only fathers preside over the family, as the basic unit of the Church. The father has the ultimate responsibility for the spiritual training of his family members.

Ward Callings To Family Members

1. Relief Society Manual, 1974-75, p. 58; "Woman's Relationship to Priesthood Offices in the Church".

The line of authority of the woman goes and comes through her husband. She should seek his counsel in her activities. She should respect her husband's authority. Similarly, when ward or stake officers call a sister to a position in the Church, her husband should be consulted, and the call should be made to the woman only with the knowledge and concurrence of her husband.

2. Bishop's Guide, 1975 ed., pp. 5, 17.

To gain eternal life, every individual will have the opportunity to become a member of an exalted family. Therefore, in all he does to help individuals and to encourage others to help individuals, the bishop must support the family. The most important organization in time and eternity is the family. The church and all its organizations are designed to help each individual and the family. The father is responsible for guiding and strengthening his family spiritually and temporally. The bishop supports the Melchizedek Priesthood quorums in carrying out their responsibility for teaching the father in his duty.
In applying these principles, the bishop should---
1. Reserve Mondays for family home evening.
2. Consult the father (or other family head) before calling a member of the family to any Church assignment. * * *
If the recommendation is approved, the bishop should appoint a counselor or himself to interview the member, extend the call, and arrange for the setting apart. The family head should be contacted before calling a family member.

3. General Handbook of Instructions, 1976; No. 21; pp. 25, 40.

As a manifestation of regard for authority in the home, the officer who desires to call a wife or child to a ward or stake position should consult the husband or father in the family and obtain his approval to interview the person to be called.
The bishop should consult with a young man's parents or guardian and obtain permission before ordaining him to any office in the Aaronic Priesthood. * * *
This consultation with the parents should precede the private interview with the young man himself.

4. Young Women Handbook, 1977 ed., p. 9.

2. After a calling has been approved by the bishopric, permission should be obtained from the husband (in case of adult leaders) or parents (in case of youth leaders) before the call is made. * * *
The father as patriarch of his family (or mother or guardian, if the home is without a father) is the recognized leader closest to a young woman and, in this capacity, has primary authority and responsibility for his daughter's welfare and development. Members of the bishopric should always keep this in mind. They should consult with the parents, in ways appropriate to the parents' attitude, about the work they and the Young Women leaders are doing with the young woman. They should obtain the father's (or mother's or guardians) permission before calling a young woman to a Church position.

Sacred Family Records

1. Seventies Book B of Minutes; August 17, 1845, p. 131; General Conference of the Seventies held in the Seventies Hall, Nauvoo, Illinois. Remarks by Elder Heber C. Kimball.

He [Heber] spoke of the anxiety of the Presidency of the Church for the welfare of the people and that unity might increase to ten fold extent, that you may live 'till you receive your endowments and that you may be able to ask God for blessings which you can receive by asking aright. . . .He exhorted the brethren to keep a journal of your everyday proceedings and thereby gratify yourselves in the day of the resurrection. . . .Every man that is faithful holds the right of standing at the head of his own family and no other can taken them from him. . . .for in the resurrection, we will take up many of our old journals and read them with interest, just as you read your journal and then lie down and sleep and dream, then get up and read them.

2. Journal of Oliver B. Huntington, Vol. 2:25. The history commenced December 10, 1845.

I do not write this account of myself, out of a speculative motive; to get gain thereby, or, thinking thereby to beget to myself much honor or applause from and one, for it will not probably be of great satisfaction to many if anyone, until I am no more.
Many times have I wished that my father had kept an account of his life, that I might look over it, and see his by gone days, deeds and fortune; and never did he make the scratch of a pen towards it, until he had seen sixty cold winters; and as yet I know but very little of his life, not enough to make any record of, although I have a very short account written, but which is beyond my reach at present, if not forever. Like men in general I presume to suppose, that I shall have a posterity; and that my [posterity] like me wish to know of their father's life, that they might view it, and perhaps profit thereby, or at least, have the satisfaction of knowing it. This is one object that induces me to write; that my nearest kindred, might know of their kinsman. I write also for a satisfaction to myself, to look over my past life, dates and events, and to comply with a requirement, oft repeated by the prophet Joseph Smith, "That every man should keep a daily Journal."

3. The New Era/October 1975; President Spencer W. Kimball.

Accordingly, we urge our young people to begin today to write and keep records of all the important things in their own lives and also the lives of their antecedents in the event that their parents should fail to record all the important incidents in their own lives. Your own private journal should record the way you face up to challenges that beset you. Do not suppose life changes so much that your experiences will not be interesting to your posterity. * * *
Get a notebook, my young folks, a journal that will last through all time, and maybe the angels may quote from it for eternity. Begin today and write in it your goings and comings, your deepest thoughts, your achievements and your failures, your associations and triumphs, your impressions and your testimonies. Remember, the Savior chastised those who failed to record important events.

4. The Ensign/January 1977; "The Inspiration of a Family Record", by Elder Theodore M. Burton of the First Quorum of Seventy, pp. 13-17.

A wonderful method of sharing one's life with one's family is to preserve these memories and keep them fresh. By writing a personal history of our lives and sharing our experiences with them [our children] we can leave them a constant reminder of the things we did together which are of lasting importance in a family.
Life is soon gone. Grandparents do not live forever. Parents all too soon become grandparents and in turn pass away themselves. They and their influence will then in part be lost as memories begin to fade. All too soon our imprint in the lives of our descendants begins to dwindle. We can keep that flame of love burning brightly if we write down a personal history of our lives and that of our families. By so doing we can pass on to our descendants in a more permanent form the courage, the faith, and the hopes we felt within us as we lived our lives and solved the problems which faced us. Passing an account of these experiences on to them will provide them with vital guidance and direction.

In these personal histories we can express to them our love, our hopes, and our desires. We can pass on to them a knowledge of our family ancestry and express to them the pride we feel in our family heritage and the blessings we have received through those who went before us. In this manner we can keep the flame of love burning brightly in our children long after we have gone. When we reduce to writing those things that have strengthened our own faith and courage, we strengthen faith and courage in our children and grandchildren. By sharing our aspirations with our children we give them something to work for and we set goals for them to strive to attain and in turn pass on to their descendants. When we share our faith, our testimony, and our own experiences with them we are in very fact writing a sacred guide for our family. Reading that sacred record in time of stress will strengthen them by recalling to their minds the experiences which they have shared with us.

At this point I might ask, "What is scripture?" We can answer that scripture is the revealed will of God. But to whom is that revelation to be given? You may answer, "Why, to us, of course!" But then once we obtain that information and possess such knowledge in our own minds, why bother to write it down? There are many passages throughout the scriptures that answer this question, indicating that the scriptures are written not only to keep them fresh in our own memories, but also for the benefit of our descendants. * * *

These scriptures [in the Book of Mormon]. then, are a record of the spiritual experiences these great men had and then recorded to arouse faith and understanding in the minds of their children and children's children. They are written records, and because these experiences are recorded, those memories are kept fresh in the mind of the reader. Thus they constitute a family history and a record of God's dealings with our fathers and mothers so that their children might also profit from such knowledge. They are a legacy of faith to be passed on from one generation to another to strengthen each generation in turn in its desire to serve the Lord and to worship the true and living God. * * *

This history of the dealings of God with his people and the experiences they had constitutes our present scripture. It is nothing more or less than sacred family history. Because it was written under the influence of the Spirit of the Holy Ghost, it became scripture. * * *

Not everything we do is important. Not everything we write is important. Not everything we think is important. But occasionally we are in tune with God. Inspiration sometimes comes to us without our even recognizing it. At such times the Lord whispers things into our minds, and what one then writes can become inspirational to one's descendants. When we write by the Spirit and they read by the Spirit, there is a godly communication between us and them which makes that which we write become meaningful and a source of inspiration to our descendants.

5. The Ensign/December 1980, pp. 60-61; President Spencer W. Kimball; "President Kimball Speaks Out On Personal Journals".

On a number of occasions I have encouraged the Saints to keep personal journals and family records. I renew that admonition. We may think there is little of interest or importance in what we personally say or do--but it is remarkable how many of our families, as we pass on down the line, are interested in all that we do and all that we say.

Any Latter-day Saint family that has searched genealogical and historical records has fervently wished their ancestors had kept better and more complete records. On the other hand, some families possess some spiritual treasures because ancestors have recorded the events surrounding their conversion to the gospel and other happenings of interest, including many miraculous blessings and spiritual experiences. People often use the excuse that their lives are uneventful and nobody would be interested in what they have done. But I promise you that if you will keep your journals and records, they will indeed by a source of great inspiration to your families, to your children, your grandchildren, and others, on through the generations.
Each of us is important to those who are near and dear to us--and as our posterity read of our life's experiences, they, too, will come to know and love us. And in that glorious day when our families are together in the eternities, we will already be acquainted. * * *
From time immemorial the Lord has counseled us to be a record-keeping people. Abraham had a book of remembrance, and Adam had one. You may think of them as not being as highly educated as we are, but they were well-trained people. Adam spent much effort being the school teacher for his children. He and Eve taught their sons and daughters. He taught them the gospel in their home evenings, and he taught them reading and writing and arithmetic. And they kept their books of remembrance. How else do you think Moses, many hundreds of years later, got the information? * * *
We hope you will begin as of this date. If you have not already commenced this important duty in your lives, get a good notebook, a good book that will last through time and into eternity for the angels to look upon. Begin today and write in it your goings and your comings, your deeper thoughts, your achievements, and your failures, your associations and your triumphs, your impressions and your testimonies. We hope you will do this, our brothers and sisters, for this is what the Lord has commanded, and those who keep a personal journal are more likely to keep the Lord in remembrance in their daily lives.

The Role & Responsibility of the Patriarch

1. The Juvenile Instructor, March 1, 1902; President Joseph F. Smith.

There must be a presiding authority in the family. The father is the head, or president, or spokesman of the family. This arrangement is of divine origin. A home, as viewed by the Church, is composed of a family group, so organized as to be presided over by the father, under the authority and the spirit of the priesthood conferred upon him. The patriarchal order is of divine origin, and will continue throughout time and eternity. There is then a particular reason why men, women and children should understand this order and this authority in the households of the people of God, and seek to make it what God intended it to be for his children.

2. Address given by Elder Ezra Taft Benson, delivered at the Regional Representative Seminar, October 4, 1973, Entitled: "Strengthening the Individual Priesthood Holder". Reprinted in the Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide, 1976-77, pp. 250-259.

As I have enjoyed this wonderful meeting today, my heart has been filled with gratitude for the great and rich program of the Church. I think it is the richest program to be found anywhere in the world for the building of men and women, to say nothing of the eternal benefits to a father in his patriarchal responsibilities. I think there isn't anything that even approaches it in richness, and I think it is the richest it has ever been in the history of the Church. * * *

Each father is establishing, or should be establishing his patriarchal order---an order that will extend into the eternities, and it seems to me there is nothing more important for a priesthood leader or a priesthood holder to do than to give consideration to the fact that he is establishing his patriarchal order here in mortal life, and that that order will be extended into the eternities.

I presume we have never heard of a father being released. We release bishops and stake presidents, but fathers go on and on. That is the Lord's plan. Only through sin can a father be relieved of his obligations to that family, and that is a terrifying thing to contemplate. * * *

These are some [items] that we thought would be of interest as having a bearing on this whole question of strengthening the individual priesthood holder, and we are considering it as a father---strengthening the father's hand as the head of his family. Now, I will list these by number.

1.The home and family is the eternal unit and the basis of the righteous life.
2.The father is the presiding authority in the home. He is the patriarch or head of the family.
3.The mother is the help-mate, the counselor.
4.You cannot talk father without talking the role of the mother---they are one.
5.The quorum is organized to teach, inspire, and strengthen the father in his responsibility and it must "let him learn his duty." 6.If the father fails in his responsibility, the priesthood representative must work with him to strengthen and help him to do his duty.
7.The father has the responsibility for the physical, mental, social, and spiritual growth and development of himself, his wife, and each of his children.
8.A father cannot be released from his responsibility.
9.The father has the responsibility to lead his family by:
a. loving God and looking to him for daily counsel and direction;
b. loving his wife and being one with her;
c. desiring to have children and loving them, and if he really loves them, he will want the home evening, he will want the family council, he will want them to be exposed to the program of the Church;
d. letting virtue garnish his thoughts unceasingly;
e. being an example of all he wants to teach;
f. teaching and training his children in the word of the Lord, in light and truth;
g. teaching their families repentance, faith in Christ, baptism and the gift of the Holy Ghost, enduring to the end;
h. governing, commanding, correcting, nurturing, and blessing them in meekness, tenderness, and love and upon the principles of righteousness;
i. provoking not so that the family or the child is discouraged;
j. creating an environment in the home conducive to order, prayer, worshiping, learning, fasting, growth, happiness, and the Spirit of the Lord;
k. dedicating his home to the Lord.

10. Our pattern or model for fatherhood is our Heavenly Father. How does he work with His children?
11. The father must hunger and thirst and yearn to bless his family, go to the Lord, ponder the words of God and live by the Spirit to know the mind and will of the Lord and what he must do to lead his family.

12. The Church exists to assist the father to get his family back into the presence of our Father in heaven.
13. The father has the responsibility to lead his family by solving his problems in the Lord's way.

3. Address by President Spencer W. Kimball to Stake, Mission and District Presidents; August, 1974; Entitled: "Strengthen the Priesthood Quorums and Fathers".

Let us never forget that as priesthood leaders we are, first, sons of God-husbands and fathers--and, secondly, we are stake, mission, or district presidents, high councilors, elders quorum presidents, or bishops. * * *
To begin to strengthen the priesthood, brethren, we must return the fathers to their divinely appointed place at the head of the family. As fathers ourselves, we must ensure that we do not neglect our own families. We should be teaching our people over and over again that the most important leadership position in time and eternity is that of the father.

Blessings & Responsibilities of Womanhood

1. The Ensign/March 1976, pp. 4-5; First Presidency Message by President Spencer W. Kimball, entitled: "Relief Society--Its Promise & Potential".

And in his wisdom and mercy, our Father made men and women dependent on each other for the full flowing of their potential. Because their natures are somewhat different, they can complement each other; because they are in many ways alike, they can understand each other. Let neither envy the other for their differences; let both discern what is superficial and what is beautifully basic in those differences, and act accordingly.

2. The Ensign/March 1976, pp. 71-73; An address by President Spencer W. Kimball, entitled: "The Blessings & Responsibilities of Womanhood", originally delivered at the Relief Society General Conference, October 1 & 2, 1975.

Some of those who write for the public have already gone after the far afield. They have chosen already to subvert the right way. Some of the things they are telling you these days are: it is not necessary to marry; it is not necessary to marry to have children; it is not necessary to have children; you may have all the worldly pleasures without these obligations and responsibilities. There is the pill. There is abortion. There are other ways to give you this loosely held, so-called freedom. They are telling you that you are manacled to your homes, to your husbands, to your children, to your housework. They are talking and writing to you about a freedom they know nothing about. * * *
Those things that endanger a happy marriage are infidelity, slothfulness, selfishness, abortion, unwarranted birth control, leaving the home to others, and sin in all of its many manifestations. * * *
As an indication of the importance the gods gave to women, the Lord said, "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh." (Gen. 2:24)
Do you note that? She, the woman, occupies the first place. She is preeminent, even above the parents who are so dear to all of us. Even the children must take their proper but significant place.

I have seen some women who give their children that spot, that preeminence, in their affection and crowd out the father. That is a serious mistake. Many marriages have gone "on the rocks" for this very cause. * * *
The Lord said to the woman: "...in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children." I wonder if those who translated the Bible might have used the term distress instead of sorrow. It would mean much the same, except I think there is great gladness in most Latter-day Saint homes when there is to be a child there. As He concludes this statement he says, "and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." (Gen. 3:16.) I have a question about the word rule. It gives the wrong impression. I would prefer to use the word preside because that's what he does. A righteous husband presides over his wife and family. ***
No woman has ever been asked by the Church authorities to follow her husband into an evil pit. She is to follow him as he follows and obeys the Savior of the world, but in deciding this, she should always be sure she is fair.
Mothers have a sacred role. They are partners with God, as well as with their own husbands, first in giving birth to the Lord's spirit children and then in rearing those children so they will serve the Lord and keep his commandments. Could there be a more sacred trust than to be a trustee for honorable, wellborn, well-developed children? We affirm the Church's strong, unalterable stand against innovations or any unchastity or breaking of the laws that could possibly reflect in the lives of the children.
Motherhood is a holy calling, a sacred dedication for carrying out the Lord's work, a consecration and devotion to the rearing and fostering, the nurturing of body, mind, and spirit of those who kept their first estate and who came to this earth for their second estate to learn and be tested and to work toward godhood.
The role of mother, then, is to help those children to keep their second estate, so that they might have glory added upon their heads forever and ever.

3. The Ensign/January 1979, p. 61; Address by Elder Bruce R. McConkie, originally delivered at the dedication of the Nauvoo Monument to Women, June 29, 1978, entitled: "Our Sisters From the Beginning".

Where spiritual things are concerned, as pertaining to all of the gifts of the Spirit, with reference to the receipt of revelation, the gaining of testimonies, and the seeing of visions, in all matters that pertain to godliness and holiness and which are brought to pass as a result of personal righteousness--in all these things men and women stand in a position of absolute equality before the Lord. He is no respecter of persons nor of sexes, and he blesses those men and those women who seek him and serve him and keep his commandments.
The Lord is merciful and gracious unto all those who fear him, and he delights to honor those who serve his in righteousness unto the end---both male and female. It is to them that he promises to reveal all the hidden mysteries of his Kingdom; they are the ones whose understanding shall reach to heaven and to whom he will reveal those things which eye has not seen, nor ear heard, and which have not entered into the heart of man (See D&C 76:5-10.) I speak both of men and of women. I have no hesitancy in stating that women from the beginning have acquired great spiritual talents.

The Eternal Role of Women

January 8 - February 7, 1846; Book end title: "W. Richards" in gold leaf; C.H.D., CR/342/3/box 4. Second anointing blessing given to Mary Young, Heber C. Kimball officiating; Evan Melbourne Green, Clerk; Recorded by C. W. Wandell Smith; Received 11 January 1846.

Sister Mary Ann Young, I pour upon thy head this holy, consecrated oil, and seal upon thee all the blessings of the everlasting priesthood, in conjunction with thy husband: and I anoint thee to be a Queen and Priestess unto thy husband, over the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; and thou shalt be heir to all the blessings which are sealed upon him, inasmuch as thou dost obey his counsel; and thou shalt receive glory, honor, power and exaltation in his exaltation: and thou shalt be a strength in thy mind for thou shalt have visions, and manifestations of the Holy Spirit, and the time shall come that Angels shall visit thee, and minister unto thee, and teach thee: and in absence of thy husband shall comfort thee, and make known his situation.
Thou shalt be a wise counsellor to many of thy sex, and they shall look unto thee for precept and or example.
Thou shalt be noted and honored for thy generosity, and the freedom and good feelings with which thou shalt relieve the wants of the distressed; and the disgression [discretion] with which thou shalt act in thy sphere [p. 5] in all things. And I seal thee up unto Eternal Life, thou shalt come forth in the morning of the first resurrection and inherit with him all the honors, glories, and power of Eternal Lives, and that thou shalt attain unto the eternal Godhead, so thy exaltation shall be perfect, and thy glory be full, in a fulness of power and exaltation.
And the glory, honor and power shall be ascribed unto the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost: Amen.

2. J.D. 8:208; October 14, 1860; Held in the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; President Brigham Young.

Many of the sisters grieve because they are not blessed with offspring. You will see the time when you will have millions of children around you. If you are faithful to your covenants, you will become mothers of nations. You will become Eves to earths like this; and when you have assisted in peopling one earth there are millions of earths still in the course of creation.

3. J.D. 12:97; June 30, 1867; Held in the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; President Brigham Young.

If you are not sanctified and prepared, you ought to be sanctifying and preparing yourselves for the blessings in store for you when it will be said of you, this is Mother Eve. Why? Because you are the mother of all living. You might as well prepare first as last. If you wish to be Eves and mothers of human families, you ought to bear the burden.

4. The L.D.S. Millennial Star, Vol. 31:267; 1869; President Brigham Young.

Before me I see a house full of Eves. What a crowd of reflections the word Eve is calculated to bring up! Eve was the name or title conferred upon our first mother, because she was actually to be the mother of all the human beings who should live upon this earth. I am looking upon a congregation designed to be just such beings.

5. Autobiography of Parley P. Pratt, lst ed., pp. 329-330; Published 1938.

It was from him [Joseph Smith] that I learned that the highest dignity of womanhood was to stand as a queen and priestess to her husband, and to reign for ever and ever as the queen mother of her numerous and still increasing offspring.

6. The Ensign/March 1976, pp. 4-5; "Relief Society--Its Promise & Potential"; President Spencer W. Kimball--First Presidency Message.

It is a great blessing to be a woman in the Church today. The opposition against righteousness has never been greater, but the opportunities for fulfilling our highest potential have also never been greater.
What IS our greatest potential? Is it not to achieve godhood ourselves? And what are the qualities we must develop to achieve such greatness? We might consider some:
First, intelligence, light and knowledge. * * *
Second, leadership....Leadership is the ability to encourage the best efforts of others in working toward a desirable goal.
And finally, perhaps the most essential godlike quality: compassion and love. * * * Wherever women are true to their feminine natures and magnify their opportunities for loving service, they are learning to become more like God.

Sexual Relationships & Practices

ABORTION

1. Letter of the First Presidency, May 16, 1969. Addressee unknown. Signed by Joseph Anderson in behalf of the lst Prescy.

In answer to your letter of March 23rd addressed to President McKay regarding the matter of abortions I am directed to quote the following from a statement recently issued by the First Presidency on the subject of abortion and sterilization:

"We have given careful consideration to the question of proposed laws on abortion and sterilization. We are opposed to any modification, expansion or liberalization of laws on these vital subjects."

The Church takes the view that any tampering with the fountains of life is serious, both morally and physiologically. The Lord's command imposed upon all Latter-day Saints is to "multiply and replenish the earth." Nevertheless there may be conditions where abortion could be justified, but such conditions must be determined acting under the advice of competent, reliable physicians, preferably members of the Church, and in accordance with the laws pertaining thereto.

2. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition. Section 8--The Church Judicial System; October 1980 update, p. 2.
Abortion is a most serious transgression, but it is not necessarily considered to be murder. Priesthood leaders should carefully review the circumstances of members involved in abortions to determine whether or not to bring them before a Church court. Except in those cases where the life or health of the mother is at stake, or where the pregnancy resulted from forcible rape, those who engage in abortions, or Church members who are doctors who perform abortions, may be brought before a Church court where the facts can be weighed. Questions on difficult cases can be forwarded by local priesthood leaders to the Office of the First Presidency.

3. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition. Supplement 1:5, July 1, 1976.

Prospective male missionaries who have advised, encouraged, consented to, or arranged for the performance of an abortion growing out of their immoral conduct will not be called on full-time missions.

Sisters who voluntarily submit to abortions growing out of their immoral conduct will not be called on full-time missions.

These provisions do not apply to abortions performed before baptism.

4. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition. Supplement 1:13, July 1, 1976.

To reaffirm the policy of the Church concerning abortion, the First Presidency is publishing the following official statement on this subject.

The Church opposes abortion and counsels its members not to submit to, be a party to, or perform an abortion except in the rare cases where, in the opinion of competent medical counsel, the life or health of the woman is seriously endangered or where the pregnancy was caused by forcible rape and produces serious emotional trauma in the victim. Even then it should be done only after counseling with the local bishop or branch president and after receiving divine confirmation through prayer.
Abortion is one of the most revolting and sinful practices in this day, when we are witnessing the frightening evidence of permissiveness leading to sexual immorality.
Members of the Church guilty of being parties to the sin of abortion are subject to the disciplinary action of the councils of the Church as circumstances warrant. In dealing with this serious matter, it would be well to keep in mind the word of the Lord stated in the 59th Section of the Doctrine and Covenants, verse 6, "Thou shalt not steal; neither commit adultery, nor kill, nor do anything like unto it."
As far as has been revealed, the sin of abortion is one for which a person may repent and gain forgiveness.

5. General Handbook of Instructions, 1983 edition.

A woman who has submitted to an abortion or a man who has encouraged, consented to, or arranged for an abortion may be baptized only if the stake or full-time mission president approves. When considering requests for baptism from such persons, the president should be guided by Doctrine and Covenants 20:37, 68, and 69. (p. 31)

Young men who have encouraged, consented to, or arranged for an abortion resulting from their immoral conduct will not be called on full-time missions.

Sisters who voluntarily submit to abortions growing out of their immoral conduct will not be called on full-time missions. (p. 47)

Gospel Mysteries

Abortion is a most serious transgression. Priesthood leaders should carefully review the circumstances of members involved in abortions to determine whether or not to bring them before a Church court. Except in those cases where the life or health of the mother is at stake, or where the pregnancy resulted from forcible rape or incest, those who engage in abortions, or Church members who are doctors who perform abortions, may be brought before a Church court where the facts can be weighed. Questions on difficult cases can be forwarded by local priesthood leaders to the Office of the First Presidency, setting forth the facts in detail. (p. 52)

The Church opposes abortion as one of the most revolting and sinful practices of this day. Members must not submit to, be a party to, or perform an abortion. The only exceptions are the rare cases where, in the opinion of competent medical counsel, the life or health of the woman is in jeopardy or the pregnancy resulted from incest or rape. Even then, the woman should consider an abortion only after counseling with her husband and bishop or branch president, and receiving divine confirmation through prayer.

Church members who encourage, perform, or submit to an abortion are to be disciplined by Church councils, as necessary. Priesthood leaders dealing with abortions should remember the word of the Lord, "Thou shalt not steal; neither commit adultery, nor kill, nor do anything like unto it." (D&C 59:6) As far as has been revealed, a person may repent and be forgiven for the sin of abortion. (pp. 77-78).

ADULTERY & SEALING

1. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition. Section 8--Church Judicial System. October 1980 update, p. 12.

When a person who has been sealed commits adultery, he cannot thereafter be sealed to the one with whom the adultery occurred. Any exceptions to this rule must be authorized by the First Presidency.

2. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition. Supplement 2:13, April 1, 1977.

If a person who has been sealed to a spouse commits adultery which is the cause of a divorce or which results in the breaking up of a home or homes, such person cannot be sealed to the one with whom the adultery occurred. If any exceptions are made to this rule, they must be authorized by the First Presidency.

3. General Handbook of Instructions, 1983 edition, p. 64.

When a person who has been sealed commits adultery while legally married, he cannot thereafter be sealed to the one with whom the adultery occurred. Any exceptions to this rule must be authorized by the First Presidency.

ADULTERY & FULNESS OF THE PRIESTHOOD

1. Letters of the First Presidency on Temple Work, 21 November 1906, Signed by Joseph F. Smith, John R. Winder and Anthon H. Lund; CHO.

Question: If a good record of a man is broken by his falling into transgression, say adultery or fornication, and he repents and makes restitution as far as he can do so, and has received forgiveness, can he afterwards, by living a faithful and good life, be entitled to receive these higher ordinances?

Answer: Every such case should stand on its own merits. In some instances it may be highly proper to recommend for second anointings, in others improper. For instance, a man who commits adultery after receiving his endowments should not be recommended to receive second blessings. Let the cases of all such men be considered and determined by the authority on the other side of the veil. But where a man commits adultery before joining the Church or even after baptism but before receiving his endowments his condition is different, and yourself and counselors must be the judges as to his worthiness to receive these blessings.

ARTIFICIAL INSEMINATION

1. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition. Supplement 2:30, April 1, 1977.

Although the Church discourages artificial insemination with other than the semen of the husband, it recognizes this is a personal matter which must ultimately be left to the determination of the husband and wife with the responsibility for their decision resting solely upon them.
However, a child born by means of artificial insemination after parents are sealed in the temple is born in the covenant. A child born by artificial insemination before parents are sealed may be sealed subsequent to the sealing of parents.

2. General Handbook of Instructions, 1983 edition.

A child born to sealed parents who was conceived by artificial insemination is born in the covenant. Such a child who is born before his parents are sealed may be sealed to his parents after they are sealed. (p. 43)

The Church discourages artificial insemination with semen from anyone but the husband. Using semen from anyone else may seriously disrupt family harmony. However, this is a personal matter that ultimately must be left to the husband and wife, with the responsibility for the decision resting solely upon them. A child conceived by artificial insemination and born after the parents are sealed in the temple is born in the covenant. A child conceived by artificial insemination before the parents are sealed may be sealed to them after they are sealed.

BIRTH CONTROL

1. Private Correspondence from David 0. McKay to an unknown individual. Letter dated June 16, 1947. Pres. McKay was second counselor in the First Presidency to President George Albert Smith at this time.

The Church does not approve of any form of artificial birth control. It would seem, however, that in your having four babies within five years of your marriage, you are subjecting your body to an almost superhuman test, especially with your threatened affliction of arthritis. The proper spacing of your babies is your responsibility. The mother's health should be of first consideration. Certainly it will be to the blessing of your little ones--those with whom you are now blessed and others yet to come--if you will keep well and strong so that you can give them proper care.

2. Private Correspondence from David 0. McKay to an unknown individual. Letter dated November 20, 1960. President McKay was the prophet at this time. The letter was signed by Joseph Anderson, Secretary to Pres. McKay.

The Church has consistently taken the position that according to holy writ, ancient and modern, it is entirely wrong to interfere with the normal processes of the reproduction of life. One of the commands imposed upon all Latter-day Saints is to multiply and replenish the earth. This was the original plan given to Adam. We understand there are righteous spirits waiting on the other side to be tabernacled in mortal bodies, and that it is the duty of the Latter-day Saints to provide bodies for these spirits.

3. Private Correspondence from the First Presidency sent to an unnamed stake president, August 30, 1965.

We refer to your letter of August 15th in which you ask for guidance in answering questions that have been presented to you pertaining to birth control. You mention a number of examples that have arisen in your stake to illustrate the different facets of the problem.

We quote below what we have said regarding this matter to those who have made inquiry:

"The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has always stood for the highest and purest ideals in family life. Marriage is ordained of God, and the paramount purpose of this sacred principle is to bring into the world immortal spirits to be reared in health and nobility of character, to fill the measure of their mortal existence. Married couples who, by inheritance and proper living, have themselves been blessed with mental and physical vigor are recreant to their duty if they refuse to meet the natural and rightful responsibility of parenthood. Of course, in every ideal home the health of the mother, as well as the intelligence and health of the children, should receive careful consideration."

The Views of the Authorities of the Church today are the same as those expressed on one occasion by President Joseph F. Smith, as follows:

"I regret, I think it is a crying evil, that there should exist a sentiment or a feeling among any members of the Church to curtail the birth of their children. I think that is a crime wherever it occurs, where husband and wife are in possession of health and vigor and free from impurities that would be entailed upon their posterity. I believe that where people undertake to curtail or present the birth of their children that they are going to reap disappointment by and by. I have no hesitancy in saying that I believe this is one of the greatest crimes of the world today, this evil practice."

4. Letter from the First Presidency, dated January 7, 1969 to Mr. W. M. Hess, Associate Professor, B.Y.U., Provo, Utah. Signed by Joseph Anderson, secretary to the First Presidency.

Your letter of December 21, 1968 has been received in which you ask for the Church's stand pertaining to birth control.

I am directed to tell you that the Church has never authorized the use of methods to curtail the birth of children where the parties concerned are in possession of health and vigor and are free from impurities that would be entailed upon their posterity.

The brethren feel, however, that men must be considerate of their wives who bear the greater responsibility not only of bearing children but of caring for them through childhood. To this end the mother's strength should be conserved and the husband's consideration for his wife is his first duty and self-control a dominant factor in all their relationships. After all, however, the brethren recognize that this is a personal matter involving the individuals concerned, and concerning which they must make their own decision.

5. Letter from the First Presidency, April 14, 1969; Signed by David 0. McKay, Hugh B. Brown & N. Eldon Tanner. Sent to all stake presidents, Bishops & Mission Presidents.

Dear Brethren:

The First Presidency is being asked from time to time as to what the attitude of the Church is regarding birth control. In order that you may be informed on this subject and that you may be prepared to convey the proper information to the members of the Church under your jurisdiction, we have decided to give you the following statement:

We seriously regret that there should exist a sentiment or feeling among any members of the Church to curtail the birth of their children. We have been commanded to multiply and replenish the earth that we may have joy and rejoicing in our posterity.

Where husband and wife enjoy health and vigor and are free from impurities that would be entailed upon their posterity, it is contrary to the teachings of the Church artificially to curtail or prevent the birth of children. We believe that those who practice birth control will reap disappointment by and by.

However, we feel that men must be considerate of their wives who bear the greater responsibility not only of bearing children, but of caring for them through childhood. To this end the mother's health and strength should be conserved and the husband's consideration for his wife is his first duty, and self control a dominant factor in all their relationships.

It is our further feeling that married couples should seek inspiration and wisdom from the Lord that they may exercise discretion in solving their marital problems, and that they may be permitted to rear their children in accordance with the teachings of the gospel.

THE GARMENT & SEXUAL RELATIONS

Gospel Mysteries

1. Letter from the First Presidency (David 0. McKay, Hugh B. Brown, & N. Eldon Tanner), sent to all Temple Presidents, May 22, 1968; marked "personal and confidential".

Dear Brethren:

It has come to our attention that in some of the temples instruction has been given to those going through to receive their endowments prior to entering into the marriage covenant that they must not remove the temple garment during the time of sexual relations.

We have authorized no such instruction or advice. We feel that this is a matter of such intimate nature that it must be left with the persons concerned. We therefore ask that you govern yourselves accordingly.

HOMOSEXUALITY

1. Priesthood Bulletin, February, 1973, Item #2.
A homosexual relationship is viewed by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints as sin in the same degree as adultery and fornication. * * * Church members involved to any degree must repent. * * * Failure to work closely with one's bishop or stake president in cases involving homosexual behavior will require prompt Church court action.

INCEST

1. Priesthood Bulletin, June, 1972, Item #4.

The First Presidency and Quorum of the Twelve have determined that the penalty for incest shall be excommunication. Also, one excommunicated for incest shall not be baptized again into the Church without the written permission of the First Presidency.

2. Letter from the First Presidency to all Stake Presidents; January 15, 1976. Signed by Spencer W. Kimball, N. Eldon Tanner & Marion G. Romney.

Dear Brethren:

Recent Church court cases involving moral transgressions indicate some misunderstanding among Church leaders of the moral sin of incest.

The June, 1972, Priesthood Bulletin States:

The First Presidency and Quorum of the Twelve have determined that the penalty for incest shall be excommunication. Also, one excommunicated for incest shall not be baptized again into the Church without the written permission of the First Presidency.

We emphasize the need for all priesthood leaders who are responsible in dealing with cases of moral transgression and the persons involved to determine if incest has been committed. We stress the seriousness of this moral sin.

When the term incest is used by the Church, it refers to sexual intercourse between parents and children, including parents with adopted or foster children. Appropriate disciplinary action will be taken against the parents only. There may be other circumstances, however, that constitute incest. You may contact the Office of the First Presidency by letter explaining the circumstances of the case in question.

Please instruct the bishops within your stake of the gravity of the sin of incest so that they may take the necessary steps when they find members guilty of this serious moral transgression.

3. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition; Supplement 2:20, April 1, 1977.

When the term "incest" is used by the Church, it refers to sexual intercourse between a parent and child, including a parent with an adopted or foster child. There may be other instances, however, that constitute incest. The First Presidency should be contacted by letter explaining the circumstances of any cases in question. When a young child is involved, disciplinary action will not be taken against the child.

4. General Handbook of Instructions, p. 52, 1983 edition.

Incest is an extremely serious transgression. The term incest refers to sexual intercourse between a parent and a natural, adopted, or foster child or stepchild. A grandparent is considered the same as a parent.
A parent who commits this sin must be brought before a Church court. The penalty for incest is mandatory excommunication. If local priesthood leaders are confronted with unusual circumstances concerning incest, they may write to the Office of the First Presidency for further counsel.

INTIMATE RELATIONSHIPS

1. The Ensign/September 1981, p. 46.

The sexual side of marriage is closely linked with the emotional and personal elements in the relationship....What the married couple have to achieve, therefore, is a sex relationship that expresses, sustains, and renews their deepest and most tender feelings for each other.
Love is like a flower, and, like the body, it needs constant feeding. The mortal body would soon be emaciated and die if there were not frequent feedings. The tender flower would wither and die without food and water. And so love, also, cannot be expected to last forever unless it is continually fed with portions of love, the manifestation of esteem and admiration, the expressions of gratitude, and the consideration of unselfishness.
Prophets have taught that physical intimacy is a strong force in strengthening the love bond in marriage, enhancing and reinforcing marital unity. Indeed, it is the rightful gift of God to the married. As the Apostle Paul says, "The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband; and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife." Paul continues, "Depart ye not one from the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency." (1 Cor 7:4-5) Abstinence in marriage, Paul says, can cause unnecessary temptations and tensions, which are certainly harmful side effects.

SODOMY---See "Unnatural Sex Acts"

STERILIZATION

1. General Handbook of Instructions, p. 77, 1983 edition.

Sterilization may possibly be justified in a case where (1) medical conditions jeopardize the health of a mother, or (2) a person is born with defects or has suffered severe trauma that renders him mentally incompetent and not responsible for his actions. Such conditions, rare as they may be, must be determined by competent medical judgment and in accordance with the law.

TRANSSEXUAL OPERATIONS

1. General Handbook of Instructions, #21, 1976 edition. Section #8--The Church Judicial System, October 1980 Update, p. 2.

The Church counsels against transsexual operations, and members who undergo such procedures require disciplinary action. Church members who are doctors who perform such operations may also require disciplinary action. Investigators who are considering transsexual operations may not be baptized. Investigators who have already undergone transsexual operations may be baptized if otherwise worthy on condition that an appropriate notation be made on the membership record so as to preclude such individuals from either receiving the priesthood or temple recommends. Members contemplating transsexual operations should be informed that the Church counsels against such procedures, but any disciplinary action is deferred until the individual has made a decision whether to undergo the operation. Members who have undergone transsexual operations must be excommunicated. After excommunication such a person is not eligible again for baptism. Questions on difficult cases can be forwarded by local priesthood leaders to the Office of the First Presidency.

2. General Handbook of Instructions, 1983 edition.

Questions on difficult cases can be forwarded by local priesthood leaders to the Office of the First Presidency. (pp. 52-53)

An excommunicated person should be encouraged to repent and live the gospel standards to prepare himself for baptism. In cases of murder or transsexual operations, either received or performed, however, no readmission to the Church is possible. (p. 59)

UNNATURAL SEX ACTS

1. Statement by the First Presidency, January, 1980; Located in the front cover of the temple recommend book. This statement is a part of question #12.

In speaking of the temple the Lord made it clear that no unclean thing should enter therein. He also said, "But if there shall come into it any unclean thing, my glory shall not be there, and my presence shall not come into it." (D&C 94:8-9). Our Heavenly Father is displeased when any of his children engage in impure, unholy, or unnatural sex acts. When a person has been involved in any of these situations, complete repentance is required before a temple recommend is issued.

2. Letter from the First Presidency, January 5, 1982; Sent to all Stake, Mission, and District Presidents, Bishops & Branch Presidents, p. 2

The First Presidency has interpreted oral sex as constituting an unnatural, impure, or unholy practice.

3. Solemn Assembly, January 10, 1976; Pres. Spencer W. Kimball.
Keep your marriages sweet, clean and beautiful. Have normal sex relationships. Don't do anything unnatural, or ugly. Sodomy is not right. It is unholy and impure. Marriage is "holy" and "pure".

VASECTOMY

1. Solemn Assembly, January 10, 1976; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

Vasectomy: We deploy this act. Temple recommends could be withheld. There must be true repentance.

Patriarchal Blessings

1. Times & Seasons, Vol. 6:921-22; June 1, 1845; John Taylor, editor; Published in Nauvoo, Illinois.

Every father, after he has received his patriarchal blessing, is a Patriarch to his own family; and has the right to confer patriarchal blessings upon his family; which blessings will be just as legal as those conferred by any Patriarch of the church: in fact it is his right; and a Patriarch in blessing his children, can only bless as his mouth-piece.
A Patriarch to the church is appointed to bless those who are orphans, or have no father in the church to bless them. ***
But does not the Patriarch stand in the same relationship to the church, as Adam did to his family, and as Abraham and Jacob did to theirs? No. This is another mistake which is made by our junior, and one that may be very easily made inadvertently. Adam was the natural father of his posterity, who were his family and over whom he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest, and king. Both Abraham and Jacob stood in the same relationship to their families. But not so with Father Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, or William Smith. They were not the natural fathers of the church, and could not stand in the same capacity as Adam, Abraham, or Jacob; but inasmuch as there had been none to bless for generations past, according to the ancient order, they were ordained and set apart for the purpose of conferring patriarchal blessings, to hold the keys of this priesthood, and unlock the door, that had long been closed upon the human family: that blessings might again be conferred according to the ancient order, and those who were orphans, or had no father to bless them, might receive it through a patriarch who should act as proxy for their father, and that fathers might again be enabled to act as patriarchs to their families, and bless their children, for like all other ordinances in the church, this had been neglected; and must needs be restored.

2. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; March 17, 1873; Pres. Brigham Young.

The patriarchal office [within the church] gives you the highest power to bless, but does not give the apostleship, but makes you patriarchs.

3. The Women of Mormondom, p. 96; Eliza R. Snow speaking; 1877 ed.

With the restoration of the fullness of the gospel came also the ancient order of patriarchal blessings. Each father, holding the priesthood, stands as a patriarch, at the head of his family, with invested right and power to bless his household, and to predict concerning the future, on the heads of his children, as did Jacob of old.
Inasmuch as many fathers have died without having conferred those blessings, God, in the order of his kingdom, has made provisions to supply the deficiency, by choosing men to officiate as patriarchs, whose province it is to bless the fatherless. Joseph Smith, Sr., was ordained to this office, and held the position of first patriarch in the church.

4. Juvenile Instructor, Vol. 15:111; Article entitled: "Temples"; Daniel Tyler, editor; May 15, 1880.

I will speak of the patriarchal priesthood, and say that every faithful Elder in Israel who has received a patriarchal blessing by a legally authorized father in Israel, is, himself, by virtue of his blessing, a patriarch to his children, and without such blessing is not a recognized patriarch. This doctrine may be new to some of you, but whether or not, it is true.
But all faithful patriarchs have not the fullness of that priesthood. By virtue of a patriarchal blessing the patriarch thus created receives power to renew unto his posterity the rights conferred upon him; but he cannot confer patriarchal blessings outside his own lineage or rather beyond his immediate descendants; while those especially ordained to bless the people may bless all kindreds of the earth, and the Patriarch to the Church is recognized as the Patriarch of all Patriarchs.

5. Priesthood & Church Government, p. 268; John A. Widtsoe; 1939 ed.

Literally, Patriarch means head of a family or tribe; as Abraham (Hebrews 7:4); the twelve sons of Jacob (Acts 7:8) and David, (Acts 2:29). And for that matter, every man is a Patriarch who is the natural father or head of a family, if his children have been born to him under the bond of the Holy Priesthood. Therefore. each head of a properly organized family, being a Patriarch, may in his own right bless his posterity. But the position of a Patriarch in or to the Church, and that of a father at the head of his family, are quite different. One holding the Patriarchal office does not stand as the head of any family (save his own) or as the head of the Church, or any branch thereof, but acts primarily as proxy for the fatherless and for those whose nearest male ancestors are not in the Church. However, any other persons, even though not of this class, who desire patriarchal blessings, may receive them under the hands of one specially ordained to this calling. In fact, patriarchal blessings, other than those given by the father, are not only legal and right but very desirable.

6. The Gospel Kingdom, p. 146; John Taylor, author; 1943 edition.

Every father, after he has received his patriarchal blessing, is a patriarch to his own family, and has the right to confer patriarchal blessings upon his family; which blessings will be just as legal as those conferred by any patriarch of the church; in fact it is his right; and a patriarch in blessing his children, can only bless as his mouthpiece.
A patriarch to the church is appointed to bless those who are orphans, or have no father in the Church to bless them.

7. Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 3:172; Joseph Fielding Smith; Compiled by B. R. McConkie; 1956 ed.

A faithful father who holds the Melchizedek Priesthood may bless his own children, and that would be a patriarchal (father's) blessing. Such a blessing could be recorded in the family records, but it would not be preserved in the archives of the church. Every father who is true to this priesthood is a patriarch over his own house. In addition, children may receive a blessing by an ordained patriarch. A father blessing his own child could, if he received the inspiration to do so, declare the lineage of the child.

8. Mormon Doctrine, pp. 558, 560; Bruce R. McConkie; 1966 ed.

As inheritors of the blessings of Jacob, it is the privilege of the gathered remnant of Jacob to receive their own patriarchal blessings and, by faith, to be blessed equally with the ancients. Patriarchal blessings may be given by natural patriarchs, that is by fathers in Israel who enjoy the blessings of the patriarchal order, or they may be given by ordained patriarchs, specially selected brethren who are appointed to bless worthy church members. ***
In addition to ordained [church] patriarchs, there are also natural patriarchs. Every holder of the higher priesthood who has entered into the patriarchal order of celestial marriage---thereby receiving for himself the blessings of the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob---is a natural patriarch to his posterity.

9. Lecture given at BYU; Summer, 1967; by Elder Bruce R. McConkie, to the Seminary and Institute Teachers of the Church.

The patriarchal order as far as we are concerned, centers in the revolves around celestial marriage and when an individual progresses in the church to the point that he has the blessings of that order of the priesthood, he has all the blessings of Abraham and becomes a natural patriarch to his posterity. In consequence of which, he can do anything where his posterity are concerned that Abraham could do where his are involved or where Jacob could do where his are involved. So that he ought, for instance among other things, to give his patriarchal blessing to his own descendants. He ought to be the one who administers to the sick in his family without calling in the home teachers or the bishop or anybody else. He ought to be the one who ordains his children deacons, teachers, priests and the ideal, elders. All of this of course under the direction of somebody who holds the keys so that it will not be done promiscuously.

The father ought to be the head of the house and all things center in him. In a general sense in all families but in a particular sense in these families where the patriarchal order and system has been established, which system is not established, which system is not established until somebody gets the blessings of Abraham. And the blessings of Abraham as we read and explained do not come to people unless and until they are sealed upon them in the temple.
He [John Taylor] says among other things that fathers should give patriarchal blessings to their children (the fathers he is talking about are these natural patriarchs although he does not say that). When an ordained patriarch gives a blessing, he just acts as a substitute for the father. The ideal perfect system is for the brethren to give their own children patriarchal blessings. This is what ought to be and when the church is perfected the way it will be. For instance, during the millennium, there is not any question that is where patriarchal blessings will come from. * * *
I give my children a patriarchal blessing and in addition let them go to a patriarch. And all I can say for the patriarch is he better get in tune because I gave it first. Now the fact is that these blessings come from the same source and they will be in harmony with each other. * * * I record them just exactly like any other patriarchal blessing. I declare their lineage. I tell them anything I feel like telling them and really that is their patriarchal blessing, and anything a patriarch tells them I am delighted to have them have some additional blessings, but I did it. I am the natural patriarch to my children and this is what ought to be. Now I got a patriarchal blessing and it came from my father and I got another one that came from the patriarch of the church.
Now the natural patriarch ought ideally to be the one that gets the revelation of the spirit when his posterity concerned. To begin with I have got a great advantage over any patriarch where my children are concerned because I know my children better than he does. And so I have got a beginning foundation to build on that he does not have and he has got to work harder to get inspiration on things he does not know as much about as I know.
President Joseph Fielding Smith says in his writings, Doctrines of Salva tion, if the father gets the inspiration, he can declare the lineage. Well, the only issue is do you get the inspiration. And that in principle applies to anything in a patriarchal blessing. You should not say anything you do not have the inspiration to say anyway. So if I get the inspiration and tell my children that they are of the House of Ephraim (which I did), it's true, they are of the House of Ephraim and I declare their lineage. * * *

I. Father's Blessings to Children

The First Presidency has issued the following policy statement:

"Certainly we should give new and additional emphasis to the rule of the father in giving blessings to children in the family. We think we should generally leave to the ordained patriarchs in the stake the responsibility of declaring lineage in connection with an official patriarchal blessing, but still we could leave unlocked the door so that any father who felt inspired to pronounce the lineage in connection with a father's blessing he was giving to his children should not be prevented from doing so." (Suggestions to Patriarchs, pp. 2-3)

Lecture delivered by Elder Bruce R. McConkie
Brigham Young University
Summer, 1967 Typescript
[This was one of a series of several classes taught by Elder McConkie during this summer to the Seminary and Institute Faculty.]

The Patriarchal Order as far as we are concerned, centers in and revolves around Celestial Marriage and when an individual progresses in the Church to the point that he has the blessings of that order of the Priesthood, he has thereby entered into a Patriarchal Order in which he becomes an inheritor of all of the blessings of Abraham and becomes a Natural Patriarch to his posterity. In consequence of which, he can do anything where his posterity are concerned that Abraham could do where his are involved or where Jacob could do where his are involved. So that he ought, for instance among other things, to give his Patriarchal Blessing to his own descendants. He ought to be the one who administers to the sick in his family without calling in the Home Teachers or the Bishop or anybody else. He ought to be the one who ordains his children Deacons, Teachers, Priests and the ideal, Elders. All of this of course under the direction of somebody who holds the keys so that it will not be done promiscuously.

The father ought to be the head of the house and all things center in him. In a general sense in all families but in a particular sense in these families where the Patriarchal Order and System has been established, which system is not established until somebody gets the blessings of Abraham. And the blessings of Abraham as we read and explained do not come to people unless and until they are sealed upon them in the Temple.

He [John Taylor] says among other things that fathers should give Patriarchal Blessings to their children (the fathers he is talking about are these Natural Patriarchs although he does not say that). When an ordained Patriarch gives a blessing, he just acts as a substitute for the father. The ideal perfect system is for the brethren to give their own children Patriarchal Blessings. This is what ought to be and when the Church is perfected the way it will be. For instance, during the Millennium, there is not any question that is where Patriarchal Blessings will come from. . . .

I give my children a Patriarchal Blessing and in addition let them go to a Patriarch. And all I can say for the Patriarch is he better get in tune because I gave it first. Now the fact is that these blessings come from the same source and they will be in harmony with each other. . .I record them just exactly like any other Patriarchal Blessing. I declare their lineage. I tell them anything I feel like telling them and really that is their Patriarchal Blessing, and anything a Patriarch tells them I am delighted to have them have some additional blessings, but I did it. I am the Natural Patriarch to my children and this is what ought to be. Now I got a Patriarchal Blessing and it came from my father and I got another one that came from the Patriarch of the Church.

Now the Natural Patriarch ought ideally to be the one that gets the revelation of the Spirit when his posterity are concerned. To begin with I have got a great advantage over any Patriarch where my children are concerned because I know my children better than he does. . .And so I have got a beginning foundation to build on that he does not have and he has got to work harder to get inspiration on things he does not know as much about as I know.

President Joseph Fielding Smith says in his writings, Doctrines of Salvation. . .if the father gets the inspiration, he can declare the lineage. Well, the only issue is do you get the inspiration. And that in principle applies to anything in a Patriarchal Blessing. You should not say anything you do not have the inspiration to say anyway. So if I get the inspiration and tell my children that they are of the House of Ephraim (which I did), it's true, they are of the House of Ephraim and I declare their lineage. . . .
An ordained Patriarch's Blessings are sent in but these are not sent in anywhere.
Special blessings ought to come from a father, just out and out. The whole Patriarchal System is that a father blesses his children and the practice and habit of running around to some particular individual and asking for a special blessing is certainly to be frowned upon and discouraged. Now if there is not a father to give a special blessing---and we ordinarily call this a comfort blessing---for some reason, then the thing to do is to go to the Home Teacher or to the Bishop and let them be a substitute for the father and stay within the organizational framework. . . .
Now a lot of things that some people want special blessings for, they ought to get because they pray for it and ask for it and plead with the Lord for it. But on the other hand, somebody is going to go into the Service and be away for a couple of years in Vietnam or something. It is perfectly proper for a father to give a comfort blessing to the individual before he goes into the Service. Somebody is going to go away to school for a long time. It is just a wise, good thing for a father to give a comfort blessing before they go. Or if there is no father, then a Bishop. A woman is not sick but she is going to go to the hospital to have a child. The ideal thing and the recommended thing is for the husband to give his wife a blessing before she goes to the hospital.

DIGEST OF THE MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF THE PATRIARCHS OF THE CHURCH WITH THE GENERAL AUTHORITIES
HELD IN THE
BARRATT HALL, SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH,
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1958, AT 8:00 A.M.

President Joseph Fielding Smith presided at and conducted the meeting. General Authorities present included: President Joseph Fielding Smith, Elders Spencer W. Kimball, Mark E. Petersen, Delbert L. Stapley, LeGrand Richards, Patriarch Eldred G. Smith, Elders S. Dilworth Young and Bruce R. McConkie.

[From the minutes---President Smith talking]:

We do not need to promise those who come to us for blessings that they will live to see the building of Jackson County or to labor in the temple which will be built there. These things are not essential in a blessing. Be conservative and careful. * * *
Patriarchs should not be asked to give comfort blessings, whatever that means. People may be despondent or have various difficulties and just want a blessing for comfort. That is not the business of a patriarch. A patriarch is an elder in Israel and may administer to the sick but people who want comfort blessings should go to the bishop of the ward. Let him give the blessing or appoint some members of the priesthood to give it. * * *
In looking over some of the blessings, we have a few suggestions. Patriarchs should audit their blessings better. Some of the patriarchs should issue blessings a little more carefully. It is the right of the patriarch by inspiration to give the lineage of the person receiving the blessing. Now it may be that the Lord does not inspire you to say, for instance, that they are Ephraimites or from Manasseh or Judah. Maybe in giving the blessing you only say they are from the seed of Abraham. Well, if you are from the seed of Abraham that should be sufficient, but it does not seem to be enough for some people. Don't say they are from the House of Ephraim or from Manasseh unless you feel that way and the Lord gives you the inspiration. We have blessings come in where the blessing shows the candidate is from the seed of Judah or a descendant of Dan, so these things can happen. We might be able to satisfy people by saying they are from the House of Israel and that should suffice but some it won't, but it is your privilege, with the right inspiration, to declare the lineage of the person receiving the blessing.

Now here is a problem which to me is serious. A patriarch gave a blessing to an individual who had Negro blood in his veins and said you are of the House of Israel and entitled to all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. A Negro cannot hold the priesthood and not holding the priesthood they cannot, until the Lord removes the restriction, enter into the exaltation of the Kingdom of God and that would not entitle them to all of the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. That is a very serious matter and we should be extremely careful to know the Lord is speaking to us because Negroes cannot receive the fullness. A Negro may come into the Church and we can do more for him than any other church on the face of the earth. If he is baptized and is faithful and true, he can enter the celestial kingdom, but he does not get exaltation, but as I understand it, the Lord will, in due time, remove the restrictions. Not in this world but the time will come, if the Negro receives the gospel and is true to the end, he may go to the celestial kingdom and when the right time comes the restrictions will be removed and he may receive all of the blessings. Now the reason as stated by President Brigham Young and some of the other brethren that the Negro cannot receive the priesthood is two fold. One is their own fault because of their attitude in the spirit world. They were not valiant for some cause which the Lord does not explain, and they were barred from receiving the priesthood but they were not barred from birth into this world, and were not denied the right to have a body. If he is faithful in his second estate, the time will come when these restrictions will be removed. ***

[Question & Answer session, President Smith answering]:

Q: We have a young man who joined the church and there is a question as to his lineage. Is there any reason why they couldn't call upon the patriarch to see if he could give it to them, to see whether or not they have colored blood?

A: A patriarch has the right to have inspiration in a case of that kind. In a case where there might be a person suspected of having Negro blood, but it is not certain, they could go to the patriarch. He has the right to inspiration. In such a case the bishop should have the right of inspiration too. There are some cases where I suppose no one could tell but the Lord.

Q: These interviews are important. In some instances while I was a stake president, applicants became very disturbed about the patriarch's interview and felt he was entitled to inspiration from the Lord. If there is anything to receiving inspiration, it seems to me that a patriarch should be careful of the questions he asks so he does not mislead them. Many times they came to me disturbed about the questions asked by the patriarch.

A: You don't need to question his morality. You can question about his family. If you know all about him, perhaps you don't need to interview him.

Q: It seems a patriarch might be influenced by some of the answers to the questions.

A: He should be influenced. For instance, a man comes in for a blessing; he comes from the bishop who has given him a recommend for the blessing. That does not prevent the patriarch from asking him about his family or his ancestry. It does not prevent the patriarch from asking, if he holds the priesthood. There are many questions that the patriarch can ask. He doesn't have to quiz him regarding his conduct.

Q: Should a patriarch ask the candidate what he would like to have in his blessing?

A: No. That should be left to inspiration. The patriarch could ask about the family, who is his father, did he belong to the church, etc.

Q: That would be fine if the patriarch would ask the right questions. A: That is all he should ask. They have no right to ask questions which they have no business to ask. * * * (shouldn't ask about previous sexual conduct, etc).

Q: We have a family with ten in the family. Most of them are very active. There is an adult whose mental capacity is that of a child. They have asked about a patriarch blessing for her. She would like to have a blessing.

A: For her sake I don't know why a patriarch would not give her a blessing. It may give her some comfort. A patriarch could say that through her faithfulness she is entitled to the blessings of the celestial kingdom of God. Her condition is something which is not eternal. That is a physical condition which will disappear in the resurrection. I don't know why a blessing could not be given to such a person although the mental capacity is only that of a child.

Q: We have a lot of people desiring patriarch blessings whose husbands are not members of the church. Would it be permissible for the husband to come in?

A: I don't think so. He has given his consent to have the blessing.

Q: After interviewing a person, if a patriarch decides that this person is not entitled to a blessing, can he refuse it?

A: Yes. He has the right of inspiration. If a patriarch questions a man and finds something in his life which has not been cleared up, he does not have to give him a blessing if his life has not been worthy.
Meeting adjourned at 9:15 a.m. after benediction by Patriarch Eldred G. Smith.

16. THE GESTURE OF POWER. COSMOCRATOR'S SIGN

a. The Emperor's "Huge Hand".

The ancient world had its own sign of salvation, and divine gesture distinct from the sign of benediction authorized by the Church some time during the middle ages (p. 171 sqq.) This older sign of salvation is clearly described in a remarkable scene having its historically significant place midway between antiquity and the middle ages. When the Sassanian king Kavades had conquered Amida, Procopius relates, he also wanted to take Edessa and Konstantine. In the vicinity of Edessa he asks his magicians whether he will take the town, at the same time stretching his right hand towards it. The magicians reply that now he cannot take edessa by force, for by stretching out his right hand towards the town he has given it "the sign of salvation".(1)

Here it is clearly expressed that the outstretched right hand of the king has magic powers. The passage sheds light on the panegyrical descriptions of the Roman emperor's right hand with its power of salvation. Behind the allegories we must see the physical gesture, the magically outstretched right hand. Constantine performed the act of ruling, Eusebius relates, stretching out his saving right hand to all in need.(2) The same idea was entertained as to the saviour gods. Julian the Apostate says of Aesculapius that "he stretched his saving right hand out to the whole world".(3) The thought of supernatural might and power is always present when the emperor's "vast right hand" is praised, for example, by court poets such as Martial and Statius, who refer to the emperor's magna manus, his ingens manus, his divina manus, his alta dextra, his destra elata, his felix dextra qua nihil est in orbe maius.(1)

How literally this "saving right hand" must be understood, is shown -- in conformity with the quoted passage in Procopius -- in pictorial art. In an earlier investigation we have interpreted the gesture in the historical relief cycle on the Arch of Constantine.(2) New material and new combinations now permit us to arrive at much more far-reaching conclusions. The outstretched right hand was, as we shall see, a primeval magical sign of power in the East. The God and his servant make this sign for the salvation of their peoples and proteges, but can also do it destructively, that is in the case of their enemies. Thus it may be both benediction and curse. It is the expression of the irresistible power and might of the divinity and his chosen being. From the East it spreads, as we shall see, into the life of the West, and still in early Byzantium has not lost its magic power, even if it has no more its original terrifying force, as shown, for instance, in the cited passage in Procopius where only the saving power of the gesture seems to be felt.

Procopius' interpretation of the statue of Justinian on the Augustaeum in Constantinople, however, clearly maintains the apotropeic power of the emperor's outstretched right hand. "stretching forth his right hand towards the Orient and spreading out his fingers, he commands the barbarians in that quarter to remain at home and to proceed no further".(3) The special significance of the gesture in the contemporary Persia is stressed by the historians. As seen above, Procopius speaks of it as an expression of the saving force of the king. Arab and Persian literature connects it with his omnipotence. "Ardashir Bahaman", Albiruni tells us, was called Logimanus, because his command was omnipotent, wherever he liked, as if he were only to stretch out his hand to set things right."(1)

Let us first consider the emperor in this gesture. The emperor with his right hand outstretched is first of all represented on coins and medallions, that is in the official images which the state itself minted and imperial propaganda inspired and controlled. Of the extensive material here only examples can be given. The gesture is especially significant when introduced into the obverse image of the emperor, as is done for the first time in the case of Geta(2) (fig. 100a): the raised right hand is disproportionately large, recalling the imperial hand in literature, his ingens manus. Elagabalus is depicted in the same gesture both on Edessene and on official Roman coins, (3) Gordian III in autonomous coinage.(4) The type occurs more frequently from the time of Gallienus on, e.g. in portraits of Gallienus,(5) Postumus(6) (fig. 100d), Claudius Gothicus,(7) Aurelianus(8) (fig. 100b), Probus,(9) Carausius,(10) Diocletianus, Maximianus Herculius,(11) Maximinus Daza(12), and Constantius Chlorus.(13) On the whole, the gesture does not dominate the imperial effigy until the time of Constantine (fig. 100 e, h, i, j); this applies equally to coinage and monumental art. Agreat number of averse effigies of Constantine and his sons on coins and medallions might be adduced.(1) After Constantine the raised right hand is repeated as a typical gesture of majesty right down to the middle ages, e. g. on coins of Valens,(2) Honorius,(3) Theodoric(4) (fig. 1001) and on barbarian imitations of late antique medallions, giving, as it seems, a quite special significance to the raised right hand.(5)

These obverse pictures are usually expressive. That the outstretched are should be squeezed into the scant space available shows how imperative it was to show the emperor in this gesture. It is just the same when significant attributes, for instance Jupiter's thunder-bolt in the emperor's hand, are forced into the picture. In both cases a similar crowding of the picture can only take place in order to characterize the emperor in his most essential being and activity. The sign of salvation is just such a characteristic. From the outstretched divine hand supernatural powers emanate, repelling all hostile and evil forces.

Imperial images on the reverse of coins also often show him with his right hand outstretched. The gesture was probably first conceived as a sign of salvation in Severan times, when the gods of the East, with Serapis and Sol Invictus ot their head, appeared in this posture.(6) It is thus not till Severan times that the gesture is introduced in the obverse picture of the emperor (Geta). Especially important is a reverse type, first appearing in the 3rd century, showing the emperor in his triumphal chariot: while in earlier times depicted in profile, most frequently with a twig in his right hand,(1) he is in the new type shown frontally, with his right hand raised and a globe in his left (fig. 101 E; cf. the emperor in the Sun chariot on consecration coins, fig. 101 a) -- a conscious adaption to Sol chariteer (fig. 106 k). On a coin from Asia Minor already Caracalla appears in the solar type(1) (fig. 101b) and on a Sidonian coin Alexander Severus.(2) From the East the type penetrates the Roman state coins. On medallions Probus appears in the new type,(3) only common from the time of Constantine. This emperor,(4) then Constantius II(5) (fig. 101e), Constans,(6) Valens,(7) Honorius(8) are represented in the type, sometimes drawn by a yoke of horses, sometimes by elephants. The emperor ascends the Sun chariot as a heaven-solaring cosmocrator (cf.p. 112 sq.). Other reverse pictures, too, show the emperor with his right hand outstretched, e.g. the seated divus Claudius Gothicus on Constantinian ancestral coins,(9) the enthroned imperial couple Valens and Valentinian(10) (fig. 100m), and the standing Theodosius(11) on gold medallions.

The emperor in this gesture of power and benediction appears not only on coins, but also in monumental art, for instance, in triumphal reliefs and statues, and also in miniatures. On the Arch of Constantine the emperors appear with the right hand outstretched. In the archways four imperial busts are preserved, all but one with the right hand raised(12) (fig. 102). On the pedestals 4 signa are reproduced carrying an imperial imago, all with their right hand outstretched.(13) In the siege of Verona, in the historical cycle, Constantine, in super-human stature(14)(fig. 103), stretches his right hand over his fighting army with a magic of victory similar to that of Moses when raising his hands during the battle against the Amalechites. A relief scene on the Arcadius column in Constantinople and an illustration to the chronograph of 354(15)give further examples of the emperor in this gesture. Hugh equestrian statues in monumental squares in Constantinople raise their right hands in the same manner, so does Theodosius' equestrian statue on his triumphal column at Taurus,(16)and that of Justinian on the Augustium(17)

The supernatural redeeming power in the emperor's outstretched right hand presupposes higher powers and abilities dwelling in him. Through the emperor manifesting his power in this gesture, divine interference in human affairs takes place. Actually it is the gods themselves who in this gesture intervene in the sphere of mortals. But not all the gods. It is from the orientalized world of gods of the third century A. D. the gesture has been transferred to the emperor.

Let us see how these Eastern Gods are depicted on Roman coins! The great Eastern gods, in distinct contrast to the National-Roman ones, are often represented in the gesture of salvation from Severan times onwards. Serapis is, for instance, depicted in this type on the coinage of Gallienus(1) and Postumus.(2) On anonymous Roman coins from the 4th century his bust appears on the obverse with his right hand outstretched(3) (fig. 105), just like the imperial one. But above all the magic gesture is characteristic of Sol Invictus. In the numerous type variants of this god, the outstretched right hand is the striking and inevitable common feature.(4) It characterizes him whether naked or clothed, whether standing, walking or hastening forward, with the weight on the right or the left foot, facing right or left, with varying attributes and in varying situations -- always the right hand is raised in the gesture of omnipotence and salvation (fig. 106 d-j). In fact, even the various types of Sol in the heavenly chariot (e.g. fig. 106 k) -- whether he is mounting into the chariot(1) or already standing in it, whether he is clothed or naked, whatever attributes he may have, whether depicted in profile or full face(2) -- he always raises his right hand, despite the fact that when driving he should be holding the reins in his right hand. The charioteer accordingly drops the reins and raises his right hand in the mighty gesture now disrupting the logically correct representation of the driving Sun-god as classical art had shaped the type and a fixed tradition handed it down(3). It is now the Sun of the East, the Star-turning" god (cf. fig. 14), who faces us. In the magic sun of his ingens dextra he rules and moves the Cosmos, sends the spheres spinning in their eternal orbits, thus affecting everything that happens in our earthly sphere. It is the gesture of the cosmocrator.

Also in monumental art, in miniatures etc. Sol Invictus appears in this gesture. Once more the Arch of Constantine offers the best examples. The central divinity in the decoration of the arch -- Sol Invictus -- is every where depicted with his right hand raised.(4) Whether he speeds in his heavenly chariot over Constantine's troops entering Rome(5) repose in the archway(1) (fig. 108), in every case he has his right hand raised in the same gesture. So also on the reliefs showing Sol Invictus as Constantine's deus militaris carried by his troops and guards.(2) In a similar way he is pictured on Roman sarcophagi from the 3rd century e. g. on those of the Prometheus group, further on altars, on votive reliefs,(3) Mithreian monuments(4) etc. On the Prometheus sarcophagi in the Museo Capitolino in rome (fig. 109 a) and the

Museo Nazionale in Napels (fig. 109 b), here reproduced as examples, Sol is galloping with his quadriga above the elemental spirits and the spinning goddesses of fate, with his right hand stretched out towards the stars in their orbits. In the 4th and 5th centuries the same type is depicted, for instance, on the silver dish from Parabiago(1) and on the pedestal of the Arcadius column in Constantinople,(2) later in medieval miniatures,(3) in fact becoming so fixed as to be repeated even in the late middle ages, for instance, in one of Antelami's tymponon-reliefs on the baptistery in Parma.(4)

Both in the case of the emperor and of the god, it is not until Severan times that official Roman art depicts them in the gesture of the raised hand.(5) From this time on the emperor and his divinity, whether it be Serapis or Sol, are in a remarkable way united and unified in the gesture. On the Arch of Constantine the emperor and Sol repeat it in the same way. On coins the attributes of the imperial bust, the accompanying inscription, the image types on the reverse, clearly indicate the innate union of emperor and Sol. When the raised hand type first appears in the imperial effigy on a Roman coin (fig. 100a), the accompanying inscription contains the word "invictus", the divine Eastern epithet above all bound up with the Oriental Sol.(6) The emperor with outstretched right hand is frequently crowned with the radiant crown at the same time holding a globe in his left -- all typical Sun-attributes. To an obverse showing Aurelian with his right hand outstretched corresponds a reverse with the imperial couple united under the head of the Sun-god(7) (fig. 100 b, c); to the obverse Maximinus Daza with globe, radiant crown and raised right hand, on the reverse Sol Invictus with globe, radiant crown and raised right hand.(8) Constantine, more frequently than the other emperors shown in the gesture of the raised hand, especially clearly displays his relationship with Sol. He places, for instance, his bust, with globe and raised right hand, beside the Sun-bust, surrounding them with the inscription Comis Constantini Aug.(1) (fig. 100 i). The type of the emperor with raised right hand on the triumphal chariot shows an especially clear adaptation to the chariot-driving Sun of late antiquity.(2)

This assimilation expresses the idea that the might of the emperor reposes in the Sun, and that it is in identity with this god that he stretches out his right hand in the sun of power and salvation. The emperor's hand, too, is stretched out towards cosmos, he is one with the universal power of fate; he is the cosmocrator. The gesture is thus charged with the same ideas of cosmic power as those seen crystallized in his cosmic palace hall, his heavenly throne, his astral insignia, the zodiac he holds in his hand. The raised right hand -- penetrating together with the Sun and Serapis cult and all the orientalized religion of the 3rd century -- is worked in as the standing imperial sign of power and benediction, inseparably bound up with the divine person of the emperor. In this sense the sign outlives both Sol and Serapis and survives far down into Christian times.

b. The Oriental Origin of the Gesture of the Raised Right Hand.

As noted, it is not till Severan times that Roman art depicts the emperor in the gesture of the raised right hand -- at the same time at which the great gods of the Orient, in the same sign, establish their rule in Rome. The gesture is a symptom of orientalized Rome itself. For in the East it had its origin, and the benedictory gods can here be traced back far beyond Severan times.

The Sun type which according to numismatic and archaeological evidence must be considered the main type and in Rome must have been represented in a dominant cult statue(3) (fig. 106 d-f), was created in the East.(4) Our sources take us to Semitic Syria, in fact to the immediate vicinity of Emesa, whence the Oriental sun cult radiated into the Roman world. In Phoenician Tripolis, by the altar of Zeus Hagios, so often depicted on Severan local coins, our very type of Sun was to be seen, and on the other side of the altar Luna(1) (fig. 106 m). In Hierapolis a similar Sun type crops up on local coins from Antoninian times.(2) On local Cretan coins from the time of Vespasian a god appears, with radiant crown, with a scepter in his left hand and his right one raised.(3) Already in the time of Trajan the riding Sun is depicted in this gesture in Alexandrian coinage(4); in his left hand the god holds his scepter, his right one outstretched (fig. 110). As in the representation of the Sun in his heavenly chariot, the right hand has again dropped the reins -- contrary both to the traditional type and to the logic of riding itself. All such logical and traditional considerations had to give way to the new point of magic expression lying in the outstretched hand.

Fig. 110.

Cat. Greek Coins Brit. Mus. pl. 2, 413

Of a similar kind and equally striking is the change of type experienced by Bryaxis' Serapis. The famous cult statue which supported its right hand on the arm-rest of the throne (or on Cerberus' head, or, possibly, held it just above Cerberus),(5) on the coins of Roman times raises it in the sign of salvation(1) (fig. 111 a, b). It is a change parallel to the development of the type of standing Serapis. The standing Serapis with raised right hand, from Severan times the most common type of Serapis on Roman coins, was already at that time old in Serapis' home city. Fused with Helios as Helios-Serapis the type appears on Alexandrian coins from the time of Domitian, with radiant crown and modius, scepter in its left hand, its right one raised(2) (fig. 111 c). The type without Sun attributes, surrounded by Ares and Nike, is represented on a garlanded base -- undoubtedly a cult statue in a temple(3) (fig. 111 d). A similar Serapis turns in benediction to Hadrian on

A coin showing the emperor in the god's temple(1) (fig 111 e). The type is also preserved in a bronze statuette from the Nile delta in the Constantine Sinadio collection in Alexandria.(2) As was the case with the main type of Sol in this gesture, so also with the main type of Serapis: here, too, the original model was an Eastern cult statue.

In the East, however, it is not Sol and Serapis alone who make the gesture of the raised right, but also other gods, and in some cases those of the West too. On Alexandrian coins from the 3rd century, Roma(3) (fig. 112 a, b) and Alexandria(4) raise their right hands. Likewise Homonoia, with Cornucopiae in her left arm, raises her right in blessing (fig. 112 d). She appears in this gesture already at the time of Commodus, and still more frequently in subsequent times.(5) Asiatic gods such as Sandan on lion(6) or the riding Men(7) are on local coins constantly depicted with outstretched right hands.

Thus numismatic evidence proves the gesture of the raised right hand to have originated in Oriental cults. Not only from Severan times on, but throughout the whole Roman period, the divinity here raises his right hand in benediction. In fact, this feature, so characteristically determining the appearance of the god, has here an even more extensive application -- it can be traced through Hellenism back to the Ancient Orient. Right from primeval times the idea of the redeeming power in the outstretched right hand of the god or divine person has belonged to the religious cult tradition of the East. In this magically effective position the god and the divine person appear both in art and literature.

According to Cumont the gesture originated in the religious ritual of the Semites, where it had -- as it still has to this very day in the East -- apotropeic powers, was a magic blessing.(1) L'e'le'vation de la main droite est un geste rituel des Se'mites. II est tre's souvent figure' sur les monuments et on le trouve pre'te' aussi bien aux dieux qu' a' leurs adorateurs. II apparait de'ja' sur les bas-reliefs et les sce'aux babyloiniens. On le recontre en Phe'nicie et en Syrie, sur les ste'les de Byblos, de Neirab et d'Oumm-el-Awamid et plus tard sur plusieurs monuments palmyre'niens. Les Phe'niciens le transport'rent a' Carthag et on en peut citer en Afrique une quantite' d'exemples. II est me'me reproduit en Egypte sur un bas-re'lief hellenistique figurant un sacrifice a' Astarte" Hathor.. Le geste de lever la main est proprement une menace, et il a pris ainsi tre's naturellement une signification apotropaique: la main droite ouverte a conserve' ce caracte're jusqu'a' nos jours dans tous les pays se'mitiques, en Asie comme en Afrique. Lorsqu' il est fait par le dieu, il prote'ge ses serviteurs contre toutes les influences malignes et les esprits manvais et devient ainsi un signe tutelaire, un symbole de be'ne'diction. Quand e'est le fide'le qui le fait, il renforce ainsi sa prie're ou son incantation et l'action de la main s'ajoute a' celle des paroles consacre'es pour e'carter de lui tous les maux.(2)

Achaemenian king or satrap in his chariot.

The Eastern examples cited by Cumont might easily be multiplied. It is enough to recall the Assyrian rock relief in Maltaya on the Tigris(1) where a whole Olympus of benedictory gods appears (fig. 28). In persian worship, too, the gesture has deep roots. As seen, Ahuramazda, as cosmocrator in the world ring, raises his right hand (fig. 63, p. 92), and so does his reflection on earth, the Achaemenian king (fig. 65 b). He or his satrap is depicted riding in his chariot, his right hand outstretched(2) (fig. 113). Just as Jahve answers "by his right hand and by his mighty arm",(3) so Persian subjects take the oath by the king's right hand, by "Mithras' great light and the royal right hand".(4) We remember Procopius interpretation of the outstretched arm of the Sassanian king as a ...(p. 139) and Albiruni's words of Ardashir named Longimanus "because his command was omnipotent" (p. 140sq.); already Artaxerxes was named Longimanus,...(5) Eastward the sun can be followed as far as the Buddhist art of Central Asia, where, as noted by Sten Konow,(6) the gesture has the same signification of apotropeic blessing. Buddha makes the sign even in our times.

Certainly under Eastern influence the gesture of the raised right hand has also penetrated the Egyptian cult.(7) As a remarkable example Echnaton's Ray-Aton may be mentioned (fig. 114): the rays of the sun emanate in benedictory hands, stretched towards the King and his family, sometimes also in hands carrying the sign of life (Ankh) -- in both cases Aton's saving, sustaining, life-giving power showers down on the royal family. In the Carthaginian sphere -- a Western emanation of the Eastern world -- Stephane Gsell has studied the gesture which also here has the Eastern signification of divine power and protection.(1)

c. Jahve's "High Hand".

Cumont's supposition, that the gesture has its roots in the religious ritual of the Semites, is strikingly confirmed by its importance in the Jewish scriptures. From Exodus and down to the late prophets Jahve is depicted, with all the emphasis of endless repetition, with the mighty raised right hand. Beneath it his believers stand "hidden in the shadow of his hand". We witness in these writings the supernatural power and demonic nature originally present in this gesture. We may therefore select a few passages from the Old Testament suggesting to us the significance of Jahve's high hand.

The irresistible divine power, which had rescued the fleeing Israelites from the power of Egypt, is incarnated in Jahve's "outstretched", "high" or"raised" hand". The fleeing Jews are under the protection of a "raised", a "high hand",...(Exodus 14, 8). Moses speaks to Jahve of Israel "which"he says, "thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with great power, and with a high arm"....(Exodus 32, 11), "by a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm and by great wonders, ...(Deut. 4, 34). And this expression is now repeated with slight variations right down to the late prophets. In the same way as the gesture is encountered in stereotyped, ritually petrified form on the monuments, so it recurs in writing in hieratically formalized form on the monuments, so it recurs in writing in hieratically formalized expressions. In Jeremiah, for instance (32, 20 sq.).(2) the same words are used about Israel's marvelous escape: Jahve has led Israel out of Egypt "with a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm and with great wonders",... The marked insistence on miracle and power shows the gesture in the true magical light. The psalmist sings: Thou has an arm with power; strong is thy hand, raised up is thy right hand", ...(Psalm 89, 14).(1) One might compare the praises of the ingens manus, alta dextra etc., of the Roman emperor-god (p. 140). Omnipotence itself is manifested in Jahve's outstretched right hand. "I have made the earth, the man and the beast", says Jahve, "by my great power and by my outstretched arm", ...(Jer. 27, 5; 32, 17).(2)

In the prophets' rebuke to Israel, who have turned from the god, Jahve stands with his hand stretched out against his people. "I stretch out my hand and destroy thee", ...(Jer. 15, 6). "I myself will fight against you, with stretched out hand and strong arm", ...(Jer. 21, 5). "And I shall stretch out my hand against them and make the land a desert and a wilderness", ...(Ezek. 6, 14). "He (Jahve) has in his fierce anger drawn back his right hand from before the enemy" -- the is to say, let the enemy advance unhindered -- "and he burned against Jacob like a flaming fire", ... "He stood with his right hand as an adversary and slew all that were pleasant to the eye", ...(Lamentations 2, 3 sq.). With the same destructive power Jahve stretches out his hand also agains Ammon, Edom and the Philistines. "Behold, therefore I will stretch out mine hand upon thee and deliver thee for a spoil to the heathen", ...(Ezek. 25, 7). "I will also stretch out mine hand against Edom and will cut of man and beast", ...(Ezek. 25, 13). "Behold I will stretch out mine hand upon the Philistines and I will cut off the Cherethim", ...(Ezek. 25, 16). " Against the wrath of my enemies thou stretchest out and thou savest me with thy right hand", (Psalm 138, 7).(3) In the formalized repetition of these expressions ritually fixed conceptions are once more clearly reflected (see also Psalm 88, 43; Isaiah 5, 25; 9, 12; 9, 17; 9, 21; 10, 4; Ezek. 44, 12; Zephaniah 1, 4; Zechariah 2, 13).

Jahve's servants received strength from their god to act with the same high hand, just as we saw the emperor did it. "My hand shall always be with him", says Jahve about David, "and my arm shall give him strength.. and I shall let him lay his hand on the sea and his right hand on the rivers". "God hath broken in upon my enemies by mine hand", says David after a victory over the Philistines (I Chron. 14, 11). "The hand of the Lord was on Elijah" (1 Kings, 18, 46) and we are told of the power in Joshua's (Jos. 8, 18 sq.; 10 6) and especially in Moses' outstretched hand. Sometimes it is by Moses' outstretched hand, sometimes by his magic staff that the power works. Before the crossing of the Red Sea Jahve says to Moses: "But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it" (Exodus 14, 16). After the crossing Jahve says to Moses: "stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen. And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to his strength when the morning appeared" (Exodus 14, 26 sq.). The song of praise now sung by Israel is dedicated to Jahve's right hand:

"Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power, thy right hand, O lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy .. thou stretchest out thy right hand, the earth swallowed them", (Exodus 15, 6 sqq.). Moses with both hands raised during the battle against the Amalechites (Exodus 17, 8 sqq.) is filled with the same magical power.(1)

Only the one having received Jahve's initiation is in possession of this powerful hand. When Jeroboam stretched out his right hand against one of Jahve's prophets, it withered, and he could not pull it in again (I Kings, 13, 4 sqq.). Note this passage proving how literally "the outstretched hand" is to be taken: Jeroboam could not pull his hand in again. There must have been definite laws for the transference of this magic power to the hands of God's servants. At the initiation of priests a ritual "filling" of hands took place; and we learn, for instance, that Jonathan, the son of Saul, went to David in the forest and strengthened his hands in God, (I Sam. 23,. 16 sq.). A hint of such initiations is perhaps afforded by the remarkable scene of King Joas' visit to the dying Elisha. "And Elisha said unto him: "take bow and arrows". And he took unto him bow and arrows. And he said to the King of Israel "Put thine hand upon the bow". And he put his hand upon it. And Elisha put his hands upon the king's hands. And he said: Open the window eastward". And he opened it. Then Elisha said: "Shoot". And he shot. and he said: "The arrow of the Lord's deliverance and the arrow of deliverance from Syria", for thou shalt smite the Syrians in Aphek, that thou have consumed them (2 Kings, 13, 14, sqq.).

d. [Cosmic Kingship]... in the Greek world.

In the archaic period, or perhaps already in prehistoric times,(1) Eastern impulses have brought the sign of salvation into the religion of the West. Already in Homer, and later on in Greek art and literature, we come across [Cosmic Kingship].... The magically outstretched right hand to such a degree dominates the very conception of god that it gives him his peculiar name. Hera ... had her cult in Sparta, Zeus ... and Athena ... at Lesbos, Apollon ... in the Peloponnesos. As this has been described by Chr. Blinkenberg.(2) we need here only mention a few examples.

Above all, gods of healing and child-bearing are represented with outstretched right hand.(3) Aesculapius cures Theopompos by stretching towards him his healing hand...(4) just as the god -- and also his companion Hygieia -- is shown on Greek votive reliefs.(5) To sailors in distress at sea he appears in the same gesture...,(6) as also said of Serapis.(7) Artemis as Eileithyia eases the birth pains by holding her hands over the mother in labor....(8) a, archaic bronze-relief.

b, Hermes..., bronze statuette, Walters Art Gallery, Baltimore. c, d, Hermes, bronze statuette, Berlin.

Eileithyia in the goddess' temple in Aigion represented her in this characteristic gesture,(1) and thus she is also to be seen on vase paintings.(2)

But not only gods within this special sphere of activity but also others, as Zeus, Apollo, Athene, Hermes, Hera and Hercules occasionally appear with magically protecting hand.(3) Zeus, for instance, stands in front of the Io cow, his right hand outstretched: it is the moment of its miraculous metamorphosis.(4) Apollo was worshipped as ... in the Peloponnesos. With the battle cry: Apollo ..., Aratos advanced on Sicyon, and as ... with his right hand magically outstretched, Apollo -- invisible present in the middle of the battle -- in the famous gable group of the Temple of Zeus in Olympia stands before us.(5)

I shall conclude this series of examples of ... with a reference to an archaic bronze-relief adequately translating into pictorial form a famous passage in Homer(1) (fig. 115 a). When Priam is placed under the protection of Hermes during his hazardous expedition through the enemy camp, he feels that a god is holding his hand over him.(2):

....

How concretely these words are to be taken is shown in the relief: beneath the magic protection of Hermes' outstretched right arm the old king passes unseen through the enemy camp reaching Achilles unhindered. We see Hermes as the ..., as also represented in a number of statuettes of the ... the protector of the cattle(3) (fig. 115 b, cf. 115c, d).

Are we to see the same gesture of a divine ... in Alexander's stretching out his right hand towards his army, when, strongly wounded, he met it after an Indian battle ...(4)? Or is the gesture here plainly the ... greeting? The soldiers responded shouting with joy, some raising their hands towards heaven, others towards Alexander .... The stretching out of the right hand by the ... of the dead seems to be a kind of apotropeic greeting. In vase paintings the mourners appear in this gesture surrounding the dead.(5) Orestes complains of not having been present at the ... of his father(6): .... The gesture strengthens the spoken word of prayer. As in Assyria certain prayers were called "prayers of the lifting of the hand" (p. 157 note 1), ... in Greek simply signifies to pray. Not only the prayer, but every spoken word is magically strengthened by stretching out the right hand. When Caesar before the battle at Pharsalos asked Crassianus' opinion as to the issue, Crassianus exclaimed stretching out his right hand ...: "Caesar, you are going to win a brilliant victory".(1)

The ... of the ancient greeting also seems to have had the same root: the stretching out of the right hand -- in itself an apotropeic gesture -- expresses the same as the verbal greeting it accompanies: words as ... salve, cf. our modern greetings, good day, salute, Heil etc. When the apotropeic words of the greeting are being spoken -- or might have been spoken -- the gesture of the outstretched right hand strengthens them so as to realize the good wishes expressed in the very verbal greeting.

f. Christ Pantocrator.

Under the overwhelming influence of the world empires of the East, the gesture of the raised right hand penetrated archaic Greece. Later on, with the withdrawal of the Oriental influence, the gesture seems to fall into disuse in the Greco-Roman Pantheon, and not until Oriental religions in the 3rd century A. D. penetrated the Roman empire, the gesture of the magic right hand once more became a dominating motif in Western cult and religious iconography. From the Eastern gods, above all from Sol Invictus and Serapis, it penetrates, as seen, the official image of the emperor.

The gesture now also takes its place in Christian iconography.(2) As an example let us consider Christ raising Lazarus from death in a painting in the Catacombe di Callisto (fig. 116).(3) Christ stands with a virga magica in his left hand, the sign of his miraculous saving power. His right hand is stretched out with the palm turned towards Lazarus. Just as through the staff, the power of salvation works through this sign: the entrance to the tomb opens, and out steps Lazarus with powerful strides. A Christ picture of this kind corresponds to the divine type of benedictory gods of 3rd century orientalized Rome(1) (p. 147 sq.).

When Christianity had become the state religion, a certain adaptation of the ecclesiastical apparatus to traditional forms of worship took place. As the Christian basilica approaches the sacred architecture surrounding the godemperor,(2) so the Christian iconography takes over the imperial insignia and power symbols and to these belongs, with the cosmic and astral signs the outstretched hand. Christ in this gesture is now the all-powerful the ... the cosmocrator, pantocrator, the ..., and not the miraculous healer of the sick and raiser from the dead. Thus we meet him in the monumental pictures of the triumphant Church in late antique and early medieval art.(1)

We here call attention to a specially important composition, which recurs in mosaics, paintings and sarcophagi since late Constantinian times, for instance, in an apse mosaic in Santa Costanza in Rome(2) (fig. 117): it is the traditio legis.(3) Christ gives the world his law, the Gospel's nova lex. Dominus legem dat is the legend on the Gospel scroll (in Santa Costanza erroneously restored as pacem dat). As law-giving dominus he stands before us, his right hand raised, in the compelling sign of omnipotence. And with this sign a note is struck sounding through the whole composition and echoed in all particulars of figures and forms. In his might and glory Christ stands on the mount of Paradise, a halo about his head. The figures are symmetrically grouped around and subordinated to him, as to the emperor in a stereotyped maistras scheme of this age.(4) From both sides the two apostle-princes approach. Peter's pose is determined by the ... as the ceremony demanded of one who stood before the face of the emperor.(5) Ceremony likewise demanded that one should receive with covered hands what the omnipotent handed out; and thus Peter is receiving the law with covered hands.(6) On the other side of Christ Paul moves his hand in acclamation, the spontaneous human reaction to the gesture of the Savior, expressing approval of the law, man's subordination to omnipotence. The same scene is repeated on a number of sarcophagi(7) and on a fragment of a monumental relief in the Metropolitan Museum, with Christ in a specially stressed and impressive gesture(1)(fig. 118). It is significant that in these pictures of the traditio Legis Christ is frequently shown on the world globe, for instance, in a mosaic in John's baptismal chapel in Naples(1) (fig. 119): he is the .... On one of the doors of S. Sabina in Rome the same Christ Pantocrator is framed by A and Q, the sign of eternity: he is the novus rex aevorum, revealing to us the new world law. In the famous apse mosaic in SS. Cosma e Damiano from the 6th century in Rome,(2) we are no longer dealing with the traditio legis. But the raised hand of the Pantocrator is the same.

(1) I am very much indebted to Dr. James J. Lorimer for the permission to publish this unique relief and express my thanks for important indications during my study of it to Dr. W. H. Forsyth. The dimensions and profile of the fragment seem to indicate that it belonged to an architectural relief, not to a sarcophagus. The thickness of the block -- c. 0,16 m (upper border c 0,12 m) - is remarkable. The length of the fragment, measured along the upper border is 1,335 m; but there must have been still two niches corresponding to four disciples to the right, and one niche corresponding to two disciples to the left, with belonging columns; thus, according to the dimensions of the niches and columns preserved, and adding some space for the columns at the corners we arrive at about 2,5 m for the whole relief. The profile of the relief is strange: the front at the top turns back to a depth of 0,33-0,04 m, then rising as a vertical finishing upper border. The vine not only decorates the upper part of the front, but also the top where the ground turns back, as far as to the finishing upper border. The front of this border indicates, as it seems, the plane of the bond in which our relief, with its strongly projecting arches and figures, was inserted. See J. J. Rorimer, The authenticity of the Chalice of Antich, in, in: memorial volume to Belle Grene (in print).

(1) J. Wilpert 1. c. III, 32.

(2) J. Wilpert 1. c. III, 102 sq. From Christ the gesture is handed on to his servants, the apostles, saints, bishops (E. Fehrenbach 1. c. II 1 col. 764 sqq.). Far into the middle ages it retains its power and often recurs in disguised form. As an example may be mentioned the account in Gregory of Tours of an Eastern king who with the help of St. Sergius won all his battles: he had fixed the martyr's thumb on his right arm, and whenever, had pressed by his enemies, trusting in the Saint, he raised his this arm, the enemy retired (Greg. Tur., Hist. Franc. 7, 31. E. Lucius, Die Anfange des Heiligenkults p. 237 sq). Once more we are reminded of Moses in the battle against the Amalechites (p. 145). In a Byzantine account regarding a 9th century chapel in the imperial palace in Constantinople, a figure of the Virgin over the altar is described as "stretching out its immaculate hands over us and giving the Emperor success and courage against his enemies" (T.P. Richter, Quellen zur byzantin. Kunstegeschichte 357).

WOMEN AND THE PRIESTHOOD
by Richard Ware

Important ideas relating to this concept:

1. Women do not hold priesthood of any kind within the framework of the Church. They do hold priesthood authority, however, within the organization of the family which is given to them through the temple endowments and marriage sealing.

2. Both men and women are clothed in the robes of the Aaronic and Melchizedek Priesthoods and can officiate in the ordinances of those Priesthoods. In temple marriage, both the husband and wife "enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage]" (D&C 131:2). This is the patriarchal priesthood and operates within the patriarchal order. Then, through the ordinance of second anointings, they both receive the fulness of the priesthood.

Gospel Mysteries

3. The patriarchal priesthood only operates within the confines of the family kingdom. That priesthood is non-functional within the church. The church is here to build up and perfect the family order. It is within the confines of the temple that the ancient family order of Adam and Eve are restored again to the earth. This same order was lived by Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. This family order is given again to all the faithful through the endowments of the temple. Ultimately, husbands and wives will receive the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and function within their kingdoms through that priesthood.

4. The gifts of the spirit (and in this case, the ability to heal and be healed) are available to all members of the church regardless of gender. They are not dependent upon the priesthood for them to operate.

5. Within the church framework, the elders should be called upon to administer to the sick and afflicted as they are called upon by any family. Elders can do this outside their own homes because they hold the Melchizedek Priesthood and can operate cross family lines as requested.

6. Within the family organization and the patriarchal order however, the husband may administer to his own family by virtue of the priesthood which he holds, and his wife may assist him with her faith, but not by any authority she holds, unless she has a fulness of the priesthood. With a fulness of the priesthood she is a queen and priestess and may administer by virtue of the priesthood within the patriarchal order which she received. But she can function only under the direction of her husband who holds the keys of the priesthood within the family kingdom.
7. We do not understand all the ordinances which can be performed within a Zion family. However, we do know that upon receiving the patriarchal order through temple marriage, couples are commanded to multiply and replenish the earth, and through that special ordinance of procreation, they are able to bring forth the blessings associated with it: children. All ordinances have blessings associated with them.

8. Women may "administer by the authority given to their husbands inasmuch as they were one with their husbands." (12) Being one means the husband and wife have been sealed up to eternal life." (53) "When a woman is sealed to a man holding the priesthood, she becomes one with him. . . .The glory and power and dominion that he will exercise when he has the fulness of the priesthood and becomes a 'king and a priest unto God,' she will share with him." (42)

9. Bathsheba W. Smith indicated that Joseph taught them that the women "could administer to the sick and he wanted to make us, as the women were in Paul's day, 'A kingdom of priestesses.'" (33) John Taylor explained that the role of a priestess and priest is to administer the ordinances of the gospel, and the role of a king and queen is to rule and govern. (54) Healing the sick is an ordinance of the gospel, thus the women would function as priestesses to do this.

10. When the husband is not at home the wife presides, not the oldest child holding the priesthood. This is so because she holds the patriarchal priesthood within her kingdom and holds the right to preside in the absence of her husband, whereas the child, although a member of that kingdom, does not have any right to preside within it. That right to preside comes through temple marriage wherein a husband and wife are organized into a divine patriarchal kingdom. He is king and she is queen of the kingdom. The children are subjects. And although brethren holding the priesthood come to visit a home, the husband and wife still preside, for they hold the supreme authority within their family kingdom.

11. Having been endowed the participants are prepared to enter the true order of prayer and be presented at the veil.

12. When the laws, commandments and covenants of a Zion society return to this people, the women will, no doubt, operate for the blessing and comfort of other women by virtue of the fulness of the priesthood which they will hold, having received such authority through being sealed to their husband.

WOMEN AND THE PRIESTHOOD

1. Minutes of the Proceedings of the Sixth Meeting of the [Relief] Society April 28, 1842 Typescript of original.

Lodge Room, April 28, 1842 * * *

[p. 24] Healing Sick (Sisters May Officiate): He [Joseph Smith Jr.] said the reason of these remarks being made was that some little things were circulating in the society, that some persons were not going right in laying hands on the sick, etc. Said if he had common sympathies, would rejoice that the sick could be healed, that the time had not been before, that these things could be in their proper order -- that the Church is not now organized in its proper order, and cannot be until the Temple is completed. Pres. Smith continued the subject by reverting to the commission given to the ancient Apostles, "Go ye into all the world", etc. No matter who believeth these signs such as healing the sick, casting out devils, etc., should follow all that believe whether male or female. He asked the society if they could not see by this sweeping stroke that wherein they are ordained, it is the privilege of those set apart to administer in that authority [p 25] which is conferred on them, and if the sisters should have faith to heal the sick, let all hold their tongues, and let every thing roll on. * * *
Laying on of Hands by Women: Respecting the females laying on hands, he further remarked, there could be no devil in it, if God gave his sanction by healing, that there could be no more sin in any female laying hands on the sick than in wetting the face with water. It is no sin for anybody to do it that has faith, or if the sick have faith to be healed by the administration. He reproved those who were disposed to find fault with the management of concerns, saying that if he undertook to lead the Church he would lead it right, that he calculated to organize the Church in proper order. etc. * * *
[p. 26] He spoke of delivering the keys of the society and of the Church, that according to his prayers God had appointed him elsewhere.
General Instructions and Advice to the Society by the Prophet: He exhorted the sisters always to concentrate their faith and prayers, for, and place confidence in, those whom God has appointed to honor, whom God has placed at the head to lead. That we should arm them with our prayers, that the keys of the kingdom are about to be given to them that they may be able to detect anything false as well as to the Elders.

2. D&C 131:1-4; May 16 & 17, 1843; Revelation given at Ramus, Illinois to Joseph Smith Jr.; See H.C. 5:392-393

1. In the celestial glory there are three heavens or degrees;

2. And in order to obtain the highest, a man [and woman] must enter into this order of the priesthood (meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage);
3. And if he does not, he cannot obtain it.
4. He may enter into the other, but that is the end of his kingdom; he cannot have an increase.

3. A blessing by Patriarch John Smith upon the head of Mary Jane Whitney, daughter of Newel K. and Elizabeth Ann Whitney, born at Nauvoo Hancock Co Ill, Jan 17th 1844.

Sister beloved of the Lord, I lay my hands upon thy head, since you have no father, and seal upon thee the blessing of thy father, for thou art a daughter of Jacob, and of the same blood & lineage of thy father, the Eye of the Lord has been upon thee from Everlasting. He designs thee to be a great one in the house of Israel, and inasmuch as thou art young & know not the trials & temptations to which you may be Exposed, I ask my father in Heaven, in the name of Jesus, to give you a sound mind, a discerning of Spirits, and a persevering desire to do the will of the Lord.
Thou shalt have the Spirit of Prophecy when thou art Young, the Lord hath given his Angels charge over thee, they will never leave nor forsake thee, they will often Converse with thee, and your heart Shall be made glad thereby, thou Shalt have the Priesthood sealed upon thee for I seal it upon thee now and thou Shalt realize it in due time.
Thou Shalt have a Companion in due time and shall be a mother in Israel, and shall raise up Sons and Daughters which Shall be greater than David and Solomon, thou Shalt have Riches until thou art Satisfied, Shall have faith to do Miracles in the name of the Lord, thy Companion shall be a man that Shall hold the Keys of the Priesthood, shall be mighty in Israel, when he speaks his voice shall be obeyed, no good thing shall be withheld from you for I seal upon you Riches, & honors, Immortality and Eternal Lives, Even so, Amen. Inasmuch as You will listen to the Counsel of Your Mother, not one word of this blessing shall fail.

4. A patriarchal blessing given by Patriarch John Smith upon the head of Louisa C. Jackson, LDS Historical Dept., 6 February 1844

Thou art of the blood of Abraham thru the Loins of Manasseh & a lawful heir to the Priesthood & shall possess it in common with thy companion and inasmuch as thou art faithful in the covenant thou shalt have power to heal the sick in their houses.

5. Lewis Taft Papers, CHO/Ms/dq/63; 6 April 1845; Discourse by Brigham Young

(p.5). . . .If we improve upon the small things that are given into our charge, still greater things will be given unto us. "God created man in His own image, male and female created He them." Adam the father of our race represented the male portion of his offspring, and Eve, the mother of all living, represented the female portion, and the works of redemption is a work in which both man and woman are engaged through the gospel. When man & woman are joined together for time and all eternity by the sealing power of the everlasting priesthood which is after the order of the Son of God, they twain become one flesh in their offspring, and are mutually interested and engaged, if they are faithful, in their own redemption and the redemption of their progenitors who died without the knowledge of the gospel, and of their offspring after them, the woman being an helpmate to the man, and sharing with her husband in the honors powers blessings of the priesthood which he possesses.

6. Times & Seasons Vol 6:920; June 1, 1845; Elder Orson Pratt; Remarks made at the funeral of Mrs. Caroline Smith, 24 May 1845

He [Christ] looked upon them [in the spirit world] and saw that they were his lawful, legitimate brothers and sisters in the spirit, that they all descended from the same Father, and he possessed the natural feeling of anxiety to redeem his kindred from their situation. The Father commissioned him to preach the gospel to them and show them the plan by which they could be brought up in the resurrection and prepare themselves for higher glories. This is the way that he spent the time, and this is the way that every person who holds the priesthood will spend the time that intervenes between his death and his resurrection. The spirits of men are not all that will be employed in this delightful task; but you too, my sisters, will take a part therein, for you will hold a portion of the priesthood with your husbands, and you will thus do a work, as well as they, that will augment that glory which you will enjoy after your resurrection.

7. A patriarchal blessing given by Patriarch John Smith upon the head of Mehitable Duty; 27 December 1845; CHO; Typed without sic.

The Priesthood in its fullness shall be confered upon thee in due time thou shalt have powr ovr thy relatives & friends & thy husband & children to lead them wethersoever thou wilt in as much as you seek faithfully & truly to preserve them in the bonds of the new & everlasting covenant.

8. A Patriarchal blessing upon the head of Emily Jacob by Patriarch John Smith, 26 January 1846; Located in "The Record of Norton Jacob", p 16; Church Archives.

. . .I place my hands upon your head in the name of Jesus of Nazareth and seal upon thee the Priesthood with all the blessings of the new and everlasting covenant, which was sealed upon the children of Joseph, for this [is] thy lineage, the same as thy companion. Thou has a right to all the blessings which are sealed upon his head, for a woman can have but little power in the Priesthood without a man. . .

Wednesday 17 [March] She [Mary Pearce] was buried. I went to the funeral. Brigham [Young] preached. I then visited the sick. Mr Sessions and I went and laid hands on the widow Holmans step daughter. She was healed. I was sent for to go to a private meeting with Brighams family. Did not go. Mr Sessions wished me to go another way. I went.

Thursday April lst Put Sarah wife P P Pratt to bed. Visited with sister Knight at Sister Buels. Mr Sessions and I then visited the sick and anointed and laid hands and [said] a blessing.

Thursday 29 Visited Sary Ann and sister Whitney. Sylvia had a chill at sister Buels as we visited her in the forenoon. We prayed and laid hands on her. She was better.

Sattyrday 29 [May]. Went to a meeting to Eliza Beamans with many of the sisters. Sisters Young and Whitney laid their hands upon my head and predicted many things that I should be blesed with that I should live to stand in a temple yet to be built and Joseph [Smith] would be there. I should see him and there I should officiate for my labours should then be done in order and they should be great and I should be blessed and by many and there I should bless man and many should be brought unto me saying your hands were the first that handled me bless me and after I had blesed them their mothers would rise up and bless me for they would be brought to me by Joseph himself for he loved little children and he would bring my litle ones to me and my heart was filled with joy and rejoicing.
Tuesday June 1 We had a feast in the afternoon at sister Millers. There we blessed and got blessed. I blesed sister Christeen by laying my hands upon her head and the Lord spoke through me to her great and marvelous things. At the close I thought I must ask a blessing at sister Kimbals hand but it came to me that I must first bless her and show Herbers girls the Order that duty caled them to perform to get many blessings from her upon them. I obeyed. Layed my hands upon her head although it was a great cross and the power of God came upon me. I spoke great and marvelous things to her. She was filled to the overflowing. She arose and blesed the Lord and caled down a blessing on us and all that pertained to her. Sister Hess fell on her knees and claimed a blessing at my hands. I then blessed her. Sister Chase claimed a blessing of Sister Kimbal. She blessed her with me. She spoke great things to her. The power of God was poured out upon us. E R Snow was there and with many others. Thank the Lord.

10. A patriarchal blessing on the head of Caroline Frances, daughter of James and Phebe Angell, by Patriarch John Smith; Joseph Holbrook Journal; BYU Special Collections; 1850; Typed without use of sic.

Thou art a daughter of Abraham, through the loins of Joseph. Thou hast a right to the priesthood by and inheritance of thy fathers. * * * In as much as thou hast seen trouble and thy heart hath been weighted down with sorrow, thou shalt hold the keys of all the mysteries in company with a man whom the Lord hath or will appoint to guide thee in the ways of salvation. And in as much as thy present companion hath left the church, if he does not repent his blessing shall be given to another who shall enjoy the fruits thereof in peace.

11. A blessing by John Smith, Patriarch, upon the head of Elizabeth Bean, daughter of Jacob and Agnes Baum. Given at Great Salt Lake City, May 16, 1853; Born Jan. 27, 1834. Chester Co., Pa.; Journal Book I, p. 79-80 of George Washington Bean, BYU Spec Coll/Mss 1038; Typed without use of sic.

Sister Elizabeth, in the name of Jesus Christ, I lay my hands upon thy head and seal upon you a father's blessing. I also set a mark upon you that the destroyer may pass by you as by the children of Israel in Egypt and not hurt you. I also seal upon you all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and all the priesthood that was sealed upon the daughters of Joseph in the land of Egypt which is to abide with you and your posterity giving you power to heal the sick and to understand all the principles of the priesthood and mysteries that have been kept hid from before the foundation of the world. You shall have faith to heal the sick in your house and power to keep off the destroyer. You shall be blessed in your family with health. The angel of peace shall dwell in your habitation. Your sons and daughters shall be mighty men and women, clothed with the priesthood. They shall extend their dominions to the ends of the earth. Your name shall be had in honorable remembrance in the house of Israel forever. Your years shall be multiplied according to the desire of your heart. You shall be satisfied with the riches of the earth and inherit the riches of eternal lives. You shall see all things accomplished which the prophets have spoken concerning Zion. You shall fly to meet the Lord in a cloud and be forever with him and inherit all the blessings of His Kingdom, with your companion, and all your father's house. Amen.

12. Journal of Mary Ellen Kimball,March 2, 1856; Church Archives.

[After washing and anointing a certain sister Mary Kimball said:]

I felt to rejoice with her for I shall never forget the time when I was healed by the power of God through faith in him which power has again been restored with the priesthood. But after I returned home I thought of the instructions I had received from time to time that the priesthood was not bestowed upon woman. I accordingly asked Mr. [Heber C.] Kimball if women had a right to wash and anoint the sick for the recovery of their health or is it mockery in them to do so. He replied inasmuch as they are obedient to their husbands, they have a right to administer in that way in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ but not by authority of the priesthood invested in them for that authority is not given to woman. He also said they might administer by the authority given to their husbands in as much as they were one with their husbands.

Sister Sarah Ann I lay my hands upon thy head to seal upon thee a father's blessing which shall be sealed and ratified in the Book of Life. Thou shalt have the gift of discernment and wisdom, that leads to eternal life, great shall by thy reward and understanding for thou art of Joseph and a lawful heir to the fulness of the Priesthood with thy companion and a numerous posterity on the earth. Thou shalt have an inheritance in Zion with all the redeemed, and shalt help to redeem thy Father's household. Thou shalt go into the Temple of the Lord, the place called the Holy of Holies and converse with Angels and be ordained a Queen by the Hand of your Redeemer and thy companion a King and priest. No good thing shall be denied thee, and I seal upon you these blessings of powers, dominions, and eternal lives forever and ever. Amen.

16. J.D. 13:155; November 14, 1869; President Brigham Young; Salt Lake Tabernacle.

Why do you not live so as to rebuke disease? It is your privilege to do so without sending for the Elders.
It is the privilege of a mother to have faith and to administer to her child; this she can do herself, as well as sending for the Elders to have the benefit of their faith.

17. J.D. 17:119; June 28, 1874; President Brigham Young; Delivered in the Bowery, Brigham City, Sunday Afternoon.

Now, brethren, the man that honors his Priesthood, the woman that honors her Priesthood, will receive an everlasting inheritance in the kingdom of God; but it will not be until this earth is purified and sanctified, and ready to be offered up to the Father. But we can go to work now and live as near as we can like the family of heaven, that we may secure to ourselves the blessings of heaven and of earth, of time and of eternity, and life everlasting in the presence of the Father and the Son. This is what we want to do. Remember it, brethren and sisters, and try to live worthy of the vocation of your high calling.

18. Woman's Exponent, Vol 7:86; 1 November 1878; Pres. Angus Cannon; President of the Salt Lake Stake.

Women could only hold the priesthood in connection with their husbands; man held the priesthood independent of woman. The sisters have a right to anoint the sick, and pray the Father to heal them, and to exercise that faith that will prevail with God; but women must be careful how they use the authority of the priesthood in administering to the sick.

19. J.D. 21:367-68; President John Taylor; 8 August 1880; Delivered at Paris, Bear Lake, Sunday Morning; "The Order & Duties of the Priesthood".

At a late meeting of the Society held in Salt Lake City I was present, and I read from a record called the Book of the Law of the Lord, the minutes of that meeting. At that meeting the Prophet called Sister Emma to be an elect lady. That means that she was called to a certain work; and that was in fulfilment of a certain revelation concerning her. She was elected to preside over the Relief Society, and she was ordained to expound the Scriptures. In compliance with Brother Joseph's request I set her apart, and also ordained Sister Whitney, wife of Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and Sister Cleveland, wife of Judge Cleveland, to be her counselors. Some of the sisters have thought that these sisters mentioned were, in this ordination, ordained to the priesthood. And for the information of all interested in this subject I will say, it is not the calling of these sisters to hold the Priesthood, only in connection with their husbands, they being one with their husbands.

THE SICK AND AFFLICTED

Gospel Mysteries

It is the privilege of all faithful women and lay members of the Church, who believe in Christ, to administer to all the sick or afflicted in their respective families, either by the laying on of hands, or by the anointing with oil in the name of the Lord: but they should administer in these sacred ordinances, not by virtue and authority of the priesthood, but by virtue of their faith in Christ, and the promises made to believers: and thus they should do in all their ministrations.

. . . blest the Sisters in having faith to administer to there own families in humble faith not saying by the Authority of the Holy priesthood but in the name of Jesus Christ. . . .

22. Woman's Exponent, 13:61; 15 September 1884; Eliza R. Snow.

Q: Is it necessary for sisters to be set apart to officiate in the sacred ordinances of washing, anointing, and laying on of hands in administering to the sick?

A: It certainly is not. Any and all sisters who honor their holy endowments, not only have the right, but should feel it a duty whenever called upon to administer to our sisters in these ordinances, which God has graciously committed to His daughters as well as to His sons; and we testify that when administered and received in faith and humility they are accompanied with all mighty power.
Inasmuch as God our Father has revealed these sacred ordinances and committed them to His Saints, it is not only our privilege but our imperative duty to apply them for the relief of human suffering. * * *
. . .thousands can testify that God has sanctioned the administration of these ordinances by our sisters with the manifestation of His healing influence.

I wish to speak of the great privilege given to us to wash and to anoint the sick and suffering of our sex. I would counsel every one who expects to become a Mother to have these ordinances administered by some good faithful sister.

Mary Ann Freeze commented: ". . .said she attended to this and the curse to bring forth in sorrow was almost taken away."

24. Woman's Exponent, April 27, 1888; Letter from First Presidency; Emmeline B. Wells, editor.

[Emmeline B. Wells sent Wilford Woodruff a list of questions on the topic of washing and anointings. Her questions and his response follow:]

First: Are sisters justified in administering the ordinance of washing and anointing previous to confinements to those who have received their endowments and have married men outside of the Church?

Second: Can anyone who has not had their endowments thus be administered to by the sisters if she is a faithful Saint in good standing and has not yet had the opportunity of going to the temple for the ordinances?

To begin with I desire to say that the ordinance of washing and anointing is one that should only be administered in Temples or other holy places which are dedicated for the purpose of giving endowments to the Saints. That ordinance might not be administered to any one whether she has received or has not received her endowments, in any other place or under any other circumstances. But I imagine from your questions that you refer to a practice that has grown up among the sisters of washing and anointing sisters who are approaching their confinement. If so, this is not, strictly speaking, an ordinance, unless it be done under the direction of the priesthood and in connection with the ordinance of laying on of hands for the restoration of the sick.
There is no impropriety in sisters washing and anointing their sisters in this way, under the circumstances you describe; but it should be understood that they do this, not as members of the priesthood, but as members of the Church, exercising faith for, and asking the blessings of the Lord upon, their sisters, just asking the blessings of the Lord upon their sisters, just as they and every member of the Church might do in behalf of the members of their families.

Thou knewest the voice of the good shepherd, for thou wast acquainted therewith, and was chosen in the eternal worlds to receive the fulness of the holy Priesthood with crowns and principalities and powers. Thou art of the lineage of Ephraim and an heir to all the blessings by birthright and election and you shall have power to heal the sick by attending [to] the holy ordinance used for that purpose, and you shall be a mighty leader among your sisters of the House of Israel. . .

26. Woman's Exponent 17:172; 15 August 1889; Zina D. H. Young; General Conference of Relief Society.

It is the privilege of the sisters, who are faithful in the discharge of their duties, and have received their endowments and blessings in the house of the Lord, to administer to their sisters, and to the little ones, in time of sickness, in meekness and humility, ever being careful to ask in the name of Jesus, and to give God the glory.

27. Young Woman's Journal 4:176-177; 4 January 1893; Editorial to Sisters:

Do not wait until you are sick nigh unto death before making a trial of your faith and the power of God. The next time you have a headache take some oil and ask God to heal you. If you have a touch of sore throat, try the oil and a little prayer before you try a single thing besides. Go to bed and see if you are not better in the morning. If you are, then go on adding experience to experience until you have accumulated a store of faith that will all be needed when your body is weak, and you are sick unto death....and if you still feel sick ask your mother or your father to administer to you. Try that; then if that fails, and they wish to call in Elders, let them do so, and thus exhaust the ordinances of the priesthood before you take the other step [of calling a doctor].

Priest, Teacher or Deacon may administer to the sick, and so may a member, male or female, but neither of them can seal the anointing and blessing, because the authority to do that is vested in the Priesthood after the order of Melchisedek.

30. Letter from Louisa L. G. Richards to President Lorenzo Snow, April 9, 1901. [In reply to a statement made in the Deseret News, 8 April 1901].

If the information given in the answer is absolutely correct, then myself and thousands of other members of the Church have been misinstructed and are laboring under a very serious mistake, which certainly should be authoritatively corrected. Sister Eliza R. Snow Smith, who received the instructions from the Prophet Joseph Smith, her husband, taught the sisters in her day, that a very important part of the sacred ordinance of administration to the sick was the sealing of the anointing and blessings, and should never be omitted. And we follow the pattern she gave us continually. We do not seal in the authority of the Priesthood, but in the name of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints
Salt Lake City, Utah

----ANSWER TO QUESTIONS----

The first question: "Is it necessary for one or more sisters to be set apart for that purpose? (washing & anointing the sick, etc.) or should it be done under the direction of the Presidency of the Relief Society, or could any good sister officiate?

This seems to include three questions.

Firstly, our late President Sister Eliza R. Snow Smith said many times, "Any good sister who had received her endowments and was in good standing in the Church, might officiate in washing and anointing previous to confinement, if called upon, or requested to do so by the sister or sisters desiring the blessing" but should not offer her services.
Secondly, not necessarily under the direction of the Presidency of the Relief Society, although it is most likely whoever was called upon to render such services would be a member of the Relief Society in her own Ward. Some sisters are gifted in ministering and comforting with faith, and adaptability, who might not be chosen to preside or fill any official position in the Relief Society, then the sister herself who desires the blessing might have some choice as to whom she would prefer, and there are many little things [that] might be taken into consideration, all cases are not alike, all circumstances are not the same, wisdom and the guidance of the Holy Spirit are things necessary in all such matters.
Thirdly, in reference to children in sickness, one could not always wait to consult the Presidency of the Relief Society; mothers, grandmothers, and often other relatives attend to a sick child, both in administering and in the washing with pure water and annointing with the consecrated oil; but generally in neighborhoods, there are sisters who are specially adapted to minister to children, and who have in a large degree the gift of healing under the influence of the Holy Spirit, who are possessed of greater humility and have cultivated the gift, or whom the Lord has greatly blessed.
Second question: "Should the washing be sealed?" It is usual to do this in a few simple words, avoiding the terms used in the Temple, and instead of using the word "Seal" we would use the word "confirm" in the spirit of invocation.
Third question: "Have the sisters a right to seal the washing and anointing, using no authority, but doing it in the name of Jesus Christ, or should men holding the Priesthood be called in?" The sisters have the privilege of laying their hands on the head of the one officiated for and confirming the anointing in the spirit of invocation, and in the name of Jesus Christ, not mentioning authority. The Lord has heard and answered the prayers of the sisters in these ministrations many times.
In suggestions made in reference to washing and anointing the sisters are always advised to kneel and offer prayer previous to officiating in any sacred duty.

[Following is a written form which was used by the Relief Society sisters when they washed, anointed and sealed sisters before childbirth:]

We anoint your spinal column that you might be strong and healthy no disease fasten upon it no accident belaff [befall] you, your kidneys that they might be active and healthy and preform their proper functions, your bladder that it might be strong and protected from accident, your Hips that your system might relax and give way for the birth of your child, your sides that your liver, your lungs, and spleen that they might be strong and preform their proper functions,...your breasts that your milk may come freely and you need not be afflicted with sore nipples as many are, your heart that it might be comforted.

. . .the child shall present right for birth and that the afterbirth shall come at its proper time...and you need not flow to excess....We anoint...your thighs that they might be healthy and strong that you might be exempt from cramps and from the bursting of veins....That you might stand upon the earth [and] go in and out of the Temples of God.

[Sealing of the anointing:]

Sister_____we unitedly lay our hands upon you to seal this washing and anointing wherewith you have been washed and anointed for your safe delivery, for the salvation of you and your child and we ask God to let his special blessings to rest upon you, that you might sleep sweet at night that your dreams might be pleasant and that the good spirit might guard and protect you from every evil influence spirit and power that you may go your full time and that every blessing that we have asked God to confer upon you and your offspring may be litterly fulfiled that all fear and dread may be taken from you and that you might trust in God. All these blessings we unitedly seal upon you in the name of Jesus Christ Amen.

33. Pioneer Stake Relief Society; First Annual Conference; 9 June 1905; Bathsheba W. Smith.

When I had my endowments Brother Joseph was there. . .I don't think the Prophet or any of our leaders ever taught us anything wrong. I have always been pleased that I had my endowments when the Prophet lived. He taught us the true order of prayer. I never like to hear a sermon without hearing something of the Prophet, for he gave us everything, every order of the priesthood. . . .He said he had given the sisters instructions that they could administer to the sick and he wanted to make us, as the women were in Paul's day, "A kingdom of priestesses."

34. Young Woman's Journal, 16:117, 1905---"The Open Door for Women"; Susa Young Gates.

The privileges and powers outlined by the Prophet in those first meetings [of the Relief Society] have never been granted to women in full even yet. Did those women, do you and I, live so well as to be worthy of them all?

35. Letter from Pres. Joseph F. Smith to Nephi Pratt, Portland, Oregon Mission Pres. December 18-21, 1908. Reel 39, CHO.
[Nephi Pratt wrote to Pres. Smith inquiring if he should set Relief Society sisters apart to wash and anoint other sisters for their confinement, and if so were there any forms to follow. This is Pres. Smith's response:]

Some of our Relief Society Sisters appear to have confounded. . .with one of the temple ordinances. . . .We desire you therefore to impress upon the sisters of your Relief Society that this practice is in no sense whatever an ordinance, and must not be regarded as such, unless it be attended to under the direction of proper authority in connection with the ordinance of laying on of hands for the healing of the sick.

[He said that even women who had not received their endowments could participate in the washing & anointing]

. . .as there is no impropriety whatever in their doing so, inasmuch as they do it in a proper way, that is, in the spirit of faith and prayer, and without assumption of special authority, no more in fact than members of the church generally need to be barred from receiving a blessing at the hands of faithful women. . . .As to the particular form of words to be used, there is none, not any more than there is for an elder to use in administering to the sick.

36. Relief Society Minutes, Vol 3:184
17 December 1909, p. 136

[First Presidency endorsed Wilford Woodruff's letter of 1888 and made one correction to it:]

. . .namely in the clause pertaining to women administering to children, President [Anthon H.] Lund had said those sisters need not necessarily be only those who had received their endowments, for it was not always possible for women to have the privilege and women of faith might do so [give blessings].

37. Cache Valley Stake Relief Society Minute Book B, 1881-1914; Vol. 2:438-440; 5 March 1910; CR 1280, 14. Minutes of a Relief Society Testimony Meeting.

[Pres Lucy S. Cardon "read some instructions to the sisters on the washing and anointing the sick and how it should be done properly," adding her testimony of the importance of having the Lord's spirit. In response to a question from a sister she responded:]

. . .[that] she had done as much washing and anointing as anyone in this Stake. Related an experience of a blessing which she had given while she was in Salt Lake. Said she wanted to spend the rest of her life in doing good to others and blessing and confirming them. Related of experiences where all had blessed and anointed people. Said she had written Pres. J.F.Smith on the sub. and he told her to keep on and bless & comfort as she had done in the past. It was a gift that was only given to a few, but all sisters who desired and are requested can perform this.

[Rel. Soc. President Margaret Ballard] "spoke of her exp in washing and anointing and said they had carried out these instructions given. The sisters felt that the Bishop should be acquainted with the work we do." [Sister Ballard commented] "how she had been impressed to bless and administer to her father who was sick and suffering and he had been healed. Had also been impressed to bless her husband and he was healed."

Sister Moench felt that we had had so much good said today. Said while she was very young she went out to wash and anoint the sick. Said Sister Richards had given them a foundation to go by and had said to get the spirit of the Lord then they would do right. Related an experience in blessing a child who had been given up by the doc and it got well. Know that it we get the faith and the spirit of God with us we can bless as well as the Brethren....

Pres. Hattie Hyde spoke of her experiences in Wyo. where the brethren had helped the sisters to bless and anoint the sick.

Sister R. Moench said that Pres. Young had said that the sisters need not be set apart for this calling but if they can call in any good brethren to seal the anointing so much the better.

Pres. Lucy S. Cardan said they use to in the Temple have the brethren seal the anointing but now they do not. Knows that one sister can bless another. We have that privilege but when we can get the brethren we should have them seal the blessing.

38. The House of the Lord, p. 94; James E. Talmage; 1912 ed.

It is a precept of the Church that women of the Church share the authority of the priesthood with their husbands, actual or prospective; and therefore women, whether taking the endowment for themselves or for the dead, are not ordained to specific rank in the Priesthood. Nevertheless there is no grade, rank, or phase of the temple endowment to which women are not eligible on an equality with men. True, there are certain of the higher ordinances to which an unmarried woman cannot be admitted, but the rule is equally in force as to a bachelor. The married state is regarded as sacred, sanctified, and holy in all temple procedure; and within the house of the Lord the woman is the equal and the help-meet of the man. In the privileges and blessings of that holy place, the utterance of Paul is regarded as a scriptural degree in full force and effect: "Neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man, in the Lord."

39. Address by President Joseph F. Smith at the home of A. W. McCune, Nov. 14, 1913; Ms/d/5150/fd l/CHO; Mrs. McCune having invited Church leaders and a few guests to be present. After some personal references and general remarks, the President said:

Now I want to say this: I look to-night upon the countenances of prophets and seers and revelators---right here in this assembly: and I want it distinctly understood that in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints there are thousands and perhaps tens of thousands of prophets and of seers and of revelators. 1 look upon these mothers in Israel, who have been endowed with the gift of the Holy Ghost, who have been born again, as you and I--the daughters of Israel have been born of the water and of the Spirit, and they have been endowed with the gift of the Holy Ghost, by the laying on of hands of those who had authority to convey that power and that gift to the daughters of Zion, as well as to the sons of Zion. I believe that every mother has the right to be a prophetess and to have the gift of sight, foreseeing prescience, to foresee danger and evil and to know what to do in her family and in her sphere, ever her children, in their guidance and direction; and that mother and every mother possessing that spirit has the gift of revelation, the gift of inspiration and the gift of knowledge, which is the spirit of prophecy, the spirit of discernment, a gift of God to them, to govern their households and lead their children in the path of righteousness and truth. They are prophetesses, they are seers, they are revelators to their households and to their families, and they reveal to their children the word of God, the precepts of the Gospel of the Son of God, and they show them the way of life everlasting.

When you speak of the one who stands-- by the voice of the people and by the voice and will of God-- at the head of the Church, as being prophet, seer and revelator, I dont want you to forget the fact that there are tens of thousands of people called to be prophets and seers and revelators in the spheres in which they are called to act, and when you honor the head, honor the body and the limbs, honor each branch in its place and hold in sacred remembrance and in sacred reverence the rights and privileges and endowments that God has bestowed upon his children who have been faithful before him in keeping his commandments and in doing and working righteousness in the earth.

40. Young Woman's Journal, Vol 25:602-603; October, 1914; James E. Talmage; "The Eternity of Sex":

In the restored Church of Jesus Christ, the Holy Priesthood is conferred, as an individual bestowal, upon men only, and this in accordance with Divine requirement. It is not given to woman to exercise the authority of the Priesthood independently; nevertheless, in the sacred endowments associated with the ordinances pertaining to the House of the Lord, woman shares with man the blessings of the Priesthood. When the frailties and imperfections of mortality are left behind, in the glorified state of the blessed hereafter, husband and wife will administer in their respective stations, seeing and understanding alike, and co-operating to the full in the government of their family kingdom. Then shall woman be recompensed in rich measure for all the injustice that womanhood has endured in mortality. Then shall [she] reign by Divine right, a queen in the resplendent realm of her glorified state, even as exalted man shall stand, priest and king unto the Most High God. Mortal eye cannot see nor mind comprehend the beauty, glory, and majesty of a righteous woman made perfect in the celestial kingdom of God.

41. Letter from the First Presidency to all Bishops and Stake Presidents, October 1914 Official policy on "Relief Society Sisters Regarding Anointing the Sick" Messages of the First Presidency, JR Clark, Vol 4:314-15.

To the Presidents of Stakes and Bishops of wards:--

Questions are frequently asked in regard to washing and anointing our sisters preparatory to their confinement. In a circular issued by the leading sisters of the Relief Society a number of questions on this matter have been answered and correct instructions given, but notwithstanding this having been done, we judge from the contents of letters received by us that there exists some uncertainty as to the proper persons to engage in this administration; we have therefore considered it necessary to answer some of these questions, and give such explanations as will place this matter in the right light. We quote some of these questions and give our answers:

1. Is it necessary for one or more sisters to be set apart to wash and anoint the sick?

2. Should it be done under the direction of the Relief Society? Answer: Any good sister, full of faith in God and in the efficacy of prayer may officiate. It is therefore not necessary for anyone to be set apart for this purpose, or that it should be done exclusively under the direction of the Relief Society.

3. Must the sister officiating be a member of the Relief Society?
Answer: It is conceded that most of our sisters, qualified to perform this service and gifted with the spirit of healing and the power to inspire faith in the sick, belong to the Relief Society, but if the sick should desire to have some good sister who is not a member of the Relief Society administer to her, that sister had the right to so administer.

4. Have the sisters the right to administer to the sick children?
Answer: Yes: they have the same right to administer to sick children as to adults, and may anoint and lay hands upon them in faith.

5. Should the administering and anointing be sealed?
Answer: It is proper for sisters to lay on hands, using a few simple words, avoiding the terms employed in the temple, and instead of using the word "seal" use the word "confirm."

6. Have the sisters a right to seal the washing and anointing, using no authority, but doing it in the name of Jesus Christ, or should men holding the priesthood be called in?
Answer: The sisters have the privilege of laying their hands on the head of the person for whom they are officiating, and confirming and anointing in the spirit of invocation. The Lord has heard and answered the prayers of sisters in these administrations many times. It should, however, always be remembered that the command of the Lord is to call in the elders to administer to the sick, and when they can be called in, they should be asked to anoint the sick or seal the anointing.

7. Are sisters who have not received their endowments competent to wash and anoint sisters previous to confinement?
Answer: It must always be borne in mind that this administering to the sick by the sisters is in no sense a temple ordinance, and no one is allowed to use the words learned in the temple in washing and anointing the sick. Sisters who have had their endowments have received instructions and blessings which tend to give them stronger faith and especially qualify them to officiate in this sacred work; but there are good faithful sisters, who through circumstances have not received their endowments, and yet are full of faith and have had much success in ministering to the sick, who should not be forbidden to act, if desired to do so by our sisters.
In conclusion we have to say that in all sacred functions performed by our sisters there should be perfect harmony between them and the Bishop, who has the direction of all matters pertaining to the Church in his ward.

When a woman is sealed to a man holding the Priesthood, she becomes one with him. . . .The glory and power and dominion that he will exercise when he has the fulness of the Priesthood and becomes a 'king and a priest unto God,' she will share with him.

43. Conference Report, 3 April 1921; Photo-reprint, p. 199; Pres. Charles W. Penrose.

As I say, there are occasions when perhaps it would be wise for a woman to lay her hands upon a child, or upon one another sometimes, and there have been appointments made for our sisters, some good women, to anoint and bless others of their sex who expect to go through times of great personal trial, travail and labor; so that is all right, so far as it goes. But when women go around and declare that they have been set apart to administer to the sick and take the place that is given to the elders of the Church by revelation as declared through James of old, and through the Prophet Joseph in modern times, that is an assumption of authority and contrary to scripture, which is that when people are sick they shall call for the elders of the Church and they shall pray over them and officially lay hands on them.

MISCELLANEOUS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

"If a man were alone with a sick person should he anoint with oil and give the blessing and seal it by himself?"

If an elder is alone and no help available, and he is called on to administer to the sick, he has full authority both to anoint and sea] the anointing.

"Is it proper to anoint the afflicted parts of the body?"

No. The anointing should be on the crown of the head. (It could be a matter of impropriety to anoint afflicted parts of the body.)

"Is it permissible to administer the oil internally?"

No. Taking the oil internally is not part of the administration. If persons who are ill wish to take oil internally, they are not forbidden, but many sicknesses will not be improved by oil in the stomach.

"Is it proper for an elder to take with him a brother holding the Aaronic Priesthood to assist in administering to the sick?"

This question has been answered by the First Presidency and Council of the Twelve as follows:

". . .it was the sense of the Council . . . that the practice [of administering] be confined to the elders; but in the case of absolute necessity, that is where an elder finds himself in the situation that he cannot avail himself of the company of another elder, he may, if opportunity affords, avail himself of the company of a member of the Aaronic Priesthood, or even a lay member, but for the purpose only of being supported by the faith of such member or members, the elder alone to officiate in the ordinance of administration; or the elder may administer alone without such assistance of a laymember or one holding the Aaronic Priesthood." (Journal History, Feb. 18. 1903)

"If a man and his wife were alone with a sick person, could he anoint with the oil and then seal the anointing with his wife assisting using the priesthood she holds jointly with her husband?"
President Joseph F. Smith in The Improvement Era, Vol. 10, page 308, answered this question as follows:

"Does a wife hold the priesthood with her husband and may she lay hands on the sick with him, with authority?"

"A wife does not hold the priesthood with her husband, but she enjoys the benefits thereof with him; and if she is requested to lay hands on the sick with him, or with any other officer holding the Melchizedek Priesthood, she may do so with perfect propriety. It is no uncommon thing for a man and wife unitedly to administer to their children. . . ."

The wife would lay on hands just as would a member of the Aaronic Priesthood, or a faithful brother without the priesthood, thus giving support by faith to the ordinance. The Prophet Joseph Smith said,

"Respecting females administering for the healing of the sick, there could be no evil in it, if God gave his sanction by healing; that there could be no more sin in any female laying hands on and praying for the sick, than in wetting the face with water; it is no sin for anybody to administer that has faith, or if the sick have faith to be healed by their administration." (TPJS, pp 224-225)

46. Lucile H. Ursenbach statement; August 14, 1980; In possession of Maureen Ursenbach Beecher.

In the years from the early 1930's on, in the Calgary Ward R.S. under presidents---Bergeson, Maude Hayes, Lucile Ursenbach, the sisters often asked for a washing and blessing before going into the hospital for an operation or childbirth. In this ordinance two sisters washed the parts of the body, pronouncing appropriate words of prayer and blessing, being advised to avoid similarity to expressions used in a temple ordinance, and at the conclusion put their hands on the head of the recipient and, in the name of the Lord pronounced a further blessing.

47. Letter from Martha A. Hickman to Louise Y. Robison, General Relief Society President 28 November 1935, CHO.

Is it orthodox and sanctioned by the Church today to perform "washing" and "anointings" for the sick (sisters) especially in preparation for confinement in childbirth?
Some have advocated that the proper procedure would be to have a special administration by some member bearing the Priesthood for those desiring a special blessing at this time.

Some years ago when our temples did away with this ordinance for the sick and expectant mothers, in many of our wards in this stake, as well as adjoining stakes, committees of sisters, generally tow or three in each committee, were called and set apart for this work of "washing" and "anointing," in their respective wards, wherever this ordinance was desired.
I happen to be the head of this committee in the First Ward of Logan Stake. We have officiated in this capacity some ten years, have enjoyed our calling, and have been appreciated. However, since above questions have arisen we do not feel quite at ease. We would like to be in harmony, as well as being able to inform correctly those seeking information. Our Stake Relief Society President, nor our Stake President seem to have nothing definite on this matter.

48. Letter from Louise Yates Robison, General Relief Society President, to Martha A. Hickman of Logan, Utah; 5 December 1935.

In reference to the question raised, may we say that this beautiful ordinance has always been with the Relief Society, and it is our earnest hope that we may continue to have that privilege, and up to the present time the Presidents of the Church have always allowed it to us. There are some places, however, where a definite stand against it has been taken by the Priesthood Authorities, and where such is the case we cannot do anything but accept their will in the matter. However, where the sisters are permitted to do this for expectant mothers we wish it done very quietly, and without any infringement upon the Temple service. It is in reality a mother's blessing, and we do not advocate the appointment of any committees to have this in charge, but any worthy good sister is eligible to perform this service if she has faith, and is in good standing in the Church. It is something that should be treated very carefully, and as we have suggested, with no show or discussion made of it.

We have written to Sister Hickman and told her to consult you in this matter, as it is always our custom to discuss matters of this kind with our Stake Presidents, and have them advise the sisters in their Wards.

49. Letter from Elder Joseph Fielding Smith to General Relief Society Presidency (Belle S. Spafford, Marianne C. Sharp, Gertrude R. Garff) 29 July 1946 (Quoted in Messages of the First Prescy, Vol 4:314).

While the authorities of the Church have ruled that it is permissible, under certain conditions and with the approval of the priesthood, for sisters to wash and anoint other sisters, yet they feel that it is far better for us to follow the plan the Lord has given us and send for the Elders of the Church to come and administer to the sick and afflicted.

50. BYU Genealogical Devotional Addresses, 1967; Provo; BYU Press, 1968, p. 91; "The Eternal Family Concept"; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

Joseph Smith says that in the temple of God there is an order of the priesthood. 'Go to the temple,' he says, 'and find out about this order.' So I went to the temple, and I took my wife with me, and we kneeled at the altar. There on that occasion we entered, the two of us, into an 'order of the priesthood.' When we did it, we had sealed upon us, on a conditional basis, every blessing that God promised Father Abraham---the blessings of exaltation and eternal increase. The name of that order of priesthood, because Abraham was a natural patriarch to his posterity, is the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage.

51. Doctrines of the Kingdom, pp. 411-412; 1973; lst Edition; Hyrum L. Andrus.

The Prophet taught further that through the rites of the temple, faithful women would achieve exaltation within the eternal family order, as priestesses and as queens to their husbands and over their posterity for endless ages of time. This meant that within the home, women shared priesthood rights with their husbands. A priestess is a female priest---one who exercises priestly rights and powers by virtue of the priesthood. In this context, a queen is a woman with a political stature and power in the home, within the patriarchal order of the priesthood. Looking to the fruition of the divine program in eternity, Brigham Young promised: "The man that honors his priesthood, and the woman that honors her Priesthood, will receive an everlasting inheritance in the kingdom of God." (J.D. 17:119)
The priesthood rights of women pertained to the home; they did not extend in a general way to the Church- But within the divine patriarchal order, a woman's ministry in the home was derived from the priesthood, and the functions of teaching, guiding, and directing her family were priestly acts. Charles W. Penrose explained the basis of the priesthood rights of women: "When a woman is sealed to a man holding the Priesthood, she becomes one with him. . . .The glory and power and dominion that he will exercise when he has the fulness of the Priesthood and becomes a 'king and a priest unto God,' she will share with him." (Conf. Report, April, 1921, p.198) This did not mean that a woman merely became a recipient of the blessings of the priesthood which her husband held, but that being one with him in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage she held priesthood rights in their family in connection with him. In his address to the Relief Society, Joseph Smith thus "spoke of delivering the keys of the Priesthood to the Church [through the sacred rites and appointments made in the temple]. and said that the faithful members of the Relief Society should receive them in connection with their husbands, that the Saints whose integrity has been tried and proved faithful, might know how to ask the Lord [through the keys of divine communication given in the temple] and receive an answer." Having disclosed this glorious fact, the Prophet said of faithful women: "The keys of the kingdom are about to be given to them, that they may be able to detect everything false; as well as to all the Elders who shall prove their integrity in due season." (H.C. 4:604-605)

52. New Era, 1981, pp 46, 50; "President Kimball Speaks out on Administration to the Sick".

The administration proper is an ordinance of two parts, the anointing and the sealing. An elder pours a small quantity of oil on the head of the one to be blessed, near the crown of the head if convenient, never on the other parts of the body, and in the name of the Lord and by authority of the priesthood, he anoints the person for the restoration of health. The sealing is performed by two or more elders, one of whom, as mouth, seals the anointing and gives an appropriate blessing, also in the name of Jesus Christ and by authority of the priesthood. * * *
Then there is the prayer that is unlike the administration; it makes request to the Lord to heal and may be offered by any soul who has a desire to do so and is not an ordinance in the same sense. The prayer is a request for the Lord to act, whereas the blessing or the administration is given by the brethren in the name of Christ.

Hyrum [Smith] said my wife and I were not one; to become one, we would have to be sealed up to eternal life; my wife was then sealed to me. And I acted in behalf of my father, who was dead, and was sealed to my mother.

54. The Mediation and Atonement, pp. 158-159; 1882 ed., (1973 photo-mechanical reprint), President John Taylor.

Hence, while they are saviors, preach to the spirits in prison and judge the dead, we build temples and administer for them upon the earth, and thus become, as it is written, "saviors upon Mount Zion," operating and co-operating with the Priesthood behind the veil, in the interest, happiness, salvation and exaltation of the human family. Thus shall we also become legitimately and by right through the atonement and adoption, Kings and Priests---Priests to administer in the holy ordinances pertaining to the endowments and exaltation; and Kings, under Christ, who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords, to rule and govern, according to the eternal laws of justice and equity, those who are thus redeemed and exalted.

A COMPILATION OF QUOTATIONS ON CELESTIAL OR PLURAL MARRIAGE

1. Revelation given to Joseph Smith Jr., July 17, 1831; reported by W. W. Phelps.

Part and substance of a revelation by Joseph Smith Jr., given over the boundary, west of Jackson County, Missouri, on Sunday morning, July 17, 1831, when seven Elders: viz., Joseph Smith Jr., Oliver Cowdery, W. W. Phelps, Martin Harris, Joseph Coe, Ziba Peterson and Joshua Lewis united their hearts in prayer, in a private place, to inquire of the Lord who should preach the first sermon to the remnant of the Lamanites and Nephites and the people of that section, that should assemble that day in the Indian country, to hear the Gospel and the revelations according to the Book of Mormon.

Among the company, there being neither pen, ink nor paper, Joseph remarked that the Lord could preserve his words, as he had ever done, till the time appointed, and proceeded:

1 Verily, Verily, saith the Lord, your Redeemer, even Jesus Christ, the light and the life of the world, ye cannot discern with your natural eyes, the design and the purpose of your Lord and your God, in bringing you thus far into the wilderness, for a trial of your faith, and to be especial witnesses, to bear testimony of this land, upon which the zion of God shall be built up in the last days, when it is redeemed.

2 Verily, inasmuch as ye are united in calling upon my name to know my will concerning who shall preach to the inhabitants that shall assemble this day to learn what doctrine you have to teach them, you have done wisely, for so did the prophets anciently, even Enoch, and Abraham, and others; and therefore, it is my will that my servant Oliver Cowdery should open the meeting with prayer; that my servant W. W. Phelps should preach the discourse; and that my servants Joseph Coe and Ziba Peterson should bear testimony as they shall be moved by the Holy Spirit. This will be pleasing in the sight of your Lord.

3 Verily, I say unto you, you are laying the foundation of a great work for the salvation of as many as will believe and repent, and obey the ordinances of the Gospel, and continue faithful to the end: For, as I live, saith the Lord, so shall they live.

4 Verily, I say upon you, that the wisdom of man, in his fallen state, knoweth not the purposes and the privileges of my holy priesthood, but ye shall know when ye receive a fulness by reason of the Lamanites and Nephites, that their posterity may become white, delightsome and just, for even now their females are more virtuous than the gentiles.

5. Gird up your loins and be prepared for the mighty work of the Lord to prepare the world for my second coming to meet the tribes of Israel, according to the predictions of all the holy prophets since the beginning; For the final desolation decreed upon Babylon: For, as the everlasting gospel is carried from this land, in love for peace, to gather mine elect from the four quarters of the earth, for Zion - even so shall rebellion follow after, speedily, with hatred for war until the consumption decreed hath made a full end of all the kingdoms and nations, that strive to govern themselves by the laws and precepts, and force and powers of men under the curse of sin, in all the world.

6 Verily, I say unto you, that the day of vexation and vengeance is nigh at the doors of this nation, when wicked, ungodly and daring men will rise up in wrath and might, and go forth in anger, like as the dust is driven by a terrible wind; and they will be the means of the destruction of the government: and come the death and misery of men's souls, but the faithful among my people shall be preserved in holy places, during all these tribulations.

7. Be patient, therefore, possessing your souls in peace and love, and keep the faith that is now delivered upon you for the gathering of scattered Israel, and lo, I am with you, though you cannot see me, till I come: even so. Amen.

About three years after this was given, I asked brother Joseph, privately, how "we," that were mentioned in the revelation could take wives from the "natives" as we were all married men? He replied, instantly "In the same manner that Abraham took Hagar and Keturah; and Jacob took Rachel, Bilhah and Zilpah; by revelation - the saints of the Lord are always directed by revelation."

2. "Historical Record", Vol 6:219-220; by Andrew Jensen; Pres. Joseph F. Smith appearing in Deseret News, May 20, 1886; c. November 1831.

The great and glorious principle of plural marriage was first revealed to Joseph Smith in 1831, but being forbidden to make it public, or to teach it as a doctrine of the Gospel, at that time, he confided the facts to only a very few of his intimate associates. Among them were Oliver Cowdery and Lyman E. Johnson, the latter confiding the fact to his traveling companion, Elder Orson Pratt, in the year 1832. And this great principle remained concealed in the bosom of the Prophet Joseph Smith and the few to whom he revealed it, until he was commanded, about 1842, to instruct the leading members of the Priesthood, and those who were most faithful and intelligent, and best prepared to receive it in relation thereto, at which time, and subsequently until his martyrdom, the subject, in connection with the great principles of baptism, redemption and sealings for the dead, became the great themes of his life, and, as the late Pres. Geo. A. Smith repeatedly said to me and others, .The Prophet seemed irresistibly moved by the power of God to establish that principle, not only in theory, in the hearts and minds of his brethren, but in practice also!. he himself having led the way. While this doctrine was thus being taught by the Prophet to those whom he could trust---those who had faith, righteousness and integrity, to believe and accept it, with all its consequences (which are no trifling things), it remained an .unwritten law' and commandment of the Almighty to the faithful only of His Saints, designed to be enlarged as intelligence and fidelity to the laws of God increased, until the 12th day of July, 1843, when a portion of the revelation was written in the manner, and (at that time) for the purpose set forth in the statement of Elder Clayton, now submitted to the world, and as indicated in the revelation itself, as follows: .And now, as pertaining to this law, verily, verily I say unto you, I will reveal more unto you hereafter, therefore let this suffice for the present.' (Verse 66)

Let all the Latter-day Saints know that Joseph Smith, the martyred Prophet, is responsible to God and the world for this doctrine, and let every soul know that he and his brother Hyrum did practice the doctrine in their lifetime, and until their death, notwithstanding their seeming denials as published in the Times and Seasons, and which are so fervently relied upon as evidence against the fact by a certain class of anti-polygamists. Those denials can be explained, and have been, and while they are true in the sense, and for the purpose for which they were designed, they are not denials of plural or celestial marriage as taught by Joseph and Hyrum Smith and practiced at the time by both of them, and many others in prominent standing in the Church. These seeming denials themselves are specific proofs of the existence of the true coin, the counterfeit of which they denounced.

Let every Saint know by unimpeachable testimony, as well as by the spirit of inspiration, to which each Saint is entitled, that God Almighty revealed this doctrine to Joseph the martyr, and that under God he was and is the founder, by precept and example, of the same in the Church.

Praying God to bless this testimony to the comforting of the Saints and the confusion of their enemies, I have the heartfelt pleasure to remain eternally yours for the truth, .if it wake the dead.'

3. "Historical Record", Vol 6:232-233; by Andrew Jensen; c. November 1831. Comments by Joseph B. Noble at quarterly Stake conference held at Centreville, Davis Co., Utah, June 11, 1883.

Elder Joseph B. Noble next addressed the conference. He stated that the Prophet Joseph told him that the doctrine of celestial marriage was revealed to him while he was engaged on the work of translation of the Scriptures, but when the communication was first made the Lord stated that the time for the practice of that principle had not arrived. Subsequently, he stated, the angel of the Lord appeared to him and informed him that the time had fully come. Elder Noble sealed his wife's sister to Joseph, that being the first plural marriage consummated. The Prophet gave the form of the ceremony, Elder Noble repeating the words after him. Elder Noble bore testimony to the purity of character of his sister-in-law, who was a woman of irreproachable morality, who entered into the plural marriage relation on a deep-seated conviction that the doctrine was from God.

4. J.D. 13:193; Orson Pratt; c. November, 1831.

I will tell you what the Prophet Joseph said in relation to this matter [concerning one wife and adultery] in 1831, also in 1832, the year in which the law commanding the members of this Church to cleave to one wife only was given. Joseph was then living in Portage county, in the town of Hiram, at the house of Father John Johnson. Joseph was very intimate with that family, and they were good people at that time, and enjoyed much of the Spirit of the Lord. In the fore part of the year 1832, Joseph told individuals, then in the Church, that he had inquired of the Lord concerning the principle of plurality of wives, and he received for an answer that the principle of taking of more wives than one is a true principle, but the time had not yet come for it to be practiced. That was before the Church was two years old.

5. Charles L. Walker Journal, VIII:118; or large journal p. 444; BYU Special Collections. Comments by Brigham Young, July 26, 1872 in 14th Ward, SLC, referring to the Kirtland Period; c. summer 1833.

They [Joseph & Oliver] had a revelation that the order of Patriarchal Marriage and the sealing was right. Oliver said unto Joseph, .Br. Joseph why don't we go into the Order of Polygamy, and practice it as the ancients did, we know it is true then why delay.' Joseph's reply was, I know that we know it is true and from God, but the time has not yet come.' This did not seem to suit Oliver who expressed a determination to go into the order of Plural Marriage anyhow, altho Joseph said, .Oliver if you go into this thing it is not with my faith or consent.' Disregarding the counsel of Joseph, Oliver Cowdery took to wife Annie Lyman cousin of Geo. A. Smith. From that time he went into darkness and lost the spirit. Annie Lyman is still alive, a witness to these things.

6. Juvenile Instructor, XVI, No. 18 (September 5, 1881), p. 206; "History of the Church", Geo. Q. Cannon, ed.; Kirtland, Ohio period; c. summer 1883.

For instance, the Lord revealed to the Prophet Joseph in an early day, some points connected with the doctrine of celestial marriage. He was told that it was to obey God's will that His ancient servants had taken more wives than one; and he probably learned, also, that His servants in these days would be commanded to carry out this principle. The Prophet Joseph, however, took no license from this. He was content to await the pleasure and command of the Lord, knowing that it was as sinful to enter upon the practice of a principle like this before being commanded to do so, as it would be to disobey it when required to carry it into effect. Not so with Oliver Cowdery. He was eager to have another wife. Contrary to the remonstrances of Joseph, and in utter disregard of his warning, he took a young woman and lived with her as a wife, in addition to his legal wife. Had Oliver Cowdery waited he could have taken this young woman, had her sealed to him as his wife, and lived with her without condemnation. But taking her as he did was a grievous sin, and was doubtless the cause of his losing the Spirit of the Lord, and of being cut off from the Church.

7. J.D., Vol. 20:29; Joseph F. Smith; c. Summer 1833.

I have declared that the principle of plural marriage was not first revealed on the 12th day of July, 1842. It was written for the first time on that date, but it had been revealed to the Prophet many years before that, perhaps as early as 1832. About this time, or subsequently, Joseph, the Prophet, instructed this fact to Oliver Cowdery; he abused the confidence imposed in him, and brought reproach upon himself, and thereby upon the church by .running before he was sent. and .taking liberties without license,' so to speak hence the publication by O. Cowdery, about this time, of an article on marriage, which was carefully worded, and afterwards found its way into the Doctrine and Covenants without authority.

8. Section CI, Article on Marriage, taken from the original Doctrine and Covenants of the Church, printed on or about August, 1835. This article was prepared by Oliver Cowdery. On August 17, 1835 it was presented to a general assembly at Kirtland, and unanimously accepted. It should be noted that the Prophet Joseph was not in attendance at this General Assembly, nor his second counselor: F. G. Williams. Joseph was visiting the saints in Michigan and returned to Kirtland August 23, 1835. (See H.C. 2:253)

1. According to the custom of all civilized nations, marriage is regulated by laws and ceremonies: therefore we believe, that all marriages in this church of Christ of Latter Day Saints, should be solemnized in a public meeting, or feast, prepared for that purpose; and that the solemnization should be performed by a presiding high priest, high priest, bishop, elder, or priest, not even prohibiting those persons who are desirous to get married, of being married by other authority. We believe that it is not right to prohibit members of this church from marrying out of the church, if it be their determination so to do, but such persons will be considered weak in the faith of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

2. Marriage should be celebrated with prayer and thanksgiving; and at the solemnization, the persons to be married, standing together, the man on the right, and the woman on the left, shall be addressed, by the person officiating, as he shall be directed by the Holy Spirit; and if there be no legal objections, he shall say, calling each by their names: "You both mutually agree to be each other's companion, husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition; that is, keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives." And when they have answered "Yes", he shall pronounce them "husband and wife" in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by virtue of the laws of the country and authority vested in him: "may God add his blessings and keep you to fulfill your covenants from henceforth and forever. Amen."

3. The clerk of every church should keep a record of all marriages, solemnized in his branch.

4. All legal contracts of marriage made before a person is baptized into this church, should be held sacred and fulfilled. Inasmuch as this church of Christ has been reproached with the crime of fornication, and polygamy: we declare that we believe, that one man should have one wife; and one woman, but one husband, except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again. It is not right to persuade a woman to be baptized contrary to the will of her husband; neither is it lawful to influence her to leave her husband. All children are bound by law to obey their parents; and to influence them to embrace any religious faith, or be baptized, or leave their parents without their consent, is unlawful and unjust. We believe that all persons who exercise control over their fellow beings, and prevent them from embracing the truth, will have to answer for that sin.

9. H.C. 2:243-44; General Assembly of the Priesthood & the Church; August 17, 1835.

A general assembly of the Church of Latter-day Saints was held at Kirtland on the 17th of August, 1835, to take into consideration the labors of a committee appointed by a general assembly of the Church on the 24th of September, 1834, for the purpose of arranging the items of the doctrine of Jesus Christ for the government of the Church. The names of the committee were: Joseph Smith, Jr., Sidney Rigdon, Oliver Cowdery and Frederick G.

Williams, who, having finished said book according to the instructions given them, deem it necessary to call a general assembly of the Church to see whether the book be approved or not by the authorities of the Church: that it may, if approved, become a law and a rule of faith and practice to the Church. Wherefore, Oliver Cowdery and Sidney Rigdon, members of the First Presidency, (Presidents Joseph Smith, Jun., and Frederick G. Williams being absent on a visit to the Saints in Michigan,) appointed Thomas Burdick, Warren Parrish, and Sylvester Smith clerks, and proceeded to organize the whole assembly....

President Cowdery arose and introduced the "Book of Doctrine and Covenants of the Church of the Latter-day Saints," in behalf of the committee. He was followed by President Rigdon, who explained the manner by which they intended to obtain the voice of the assembly for or against said book. * * * Elder John Smith, taking the lead of the High Council in Kirtland, bore record that the revelations in said book were true, and that the lectures were judiciously arranged and complied, and were profitable for doctrine. * * * The several authorities and the general assembly, by a unanimous vote, accepted the labors of the committee. (p. 246)

President W. W. Phelps then read the following article on marriage, which was accepted and adopted and ordered to be printed in said book, by a unanimous vote.* * *

President Oliver Cowdery then read the following article on "Governments and Laws in General," which was accepted and adopted and ordered to be printed in said book, by a unanimous vote. (p. 247)

Brigham on that occasion (on the occasion he made this statement) made the damaging avowal that the Appendix (Article of Marriage) was written by Oliver Cowdery against Joseph's wishes, and was permitted to be published only after Cowdery's incessant teasing and Joseph's warning to him of the trouble which his course would create.

. . . For he (Oliver) insisted, Brigham says, upon adding to his marital relations a young woman familiar with his family, and did hold the relation of husband to her. To silence the clamour and surmising that arose over this "second wife," he wrote that Appendix. . . .

Inasmuch as this church of Christ has been reproached with the crime of fornication, and polygamy; we declare that we believe, that one man should have one wife; and one woman, but one husband, except in the case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again.

Concerning the doctrine of celestial marriage the Prophet told my father (Levi) in the days of Kirtland, that it was the will of the Lord for His servants who were faithful to step forth in that order. But, said Brother Joseph, .Brother Levi, if I should make known to my brethren what God has made know to me they would seek my life.. My father made some things known to me concerning those days, and the part he took with the Prophet in trying to assist him to start the principle with a few chosen friends in those days. My father had required of me to bear testimony of these things at a proper time.

13. Letter of Benjamin F. Johnson to George F. Gibbs (Church Historian); 1903; Kirtland, Ohio, c. 1835. In 1835, at Kirtland, I learned from my sister's husband, Limay R. Sherman, who was close to the Prophet, and received it from him, .That the ancient order of Plural Marriage was again to be practiced by the Church.. This, at the time, did not impress my mind deeply, although there lived then with his family (the Prophet's) a neighbor's daughter, Fannie Alger, a very nice and comely young woman about my own age, toward whom not only myself, but every one seemed partial, for the amiability of her character; and it was whispered even then that Joseph loved her. * * * Without doubt in my mind, Fanny Alger was, at Kirtland, the Prophet's first wife, in which, by right of his calling, he was justified of the Lord. (pp. 11, 14) * * *

And there was some trouble with Oliver Cowdery, and whisper said it was relating to a girl then living in his (the Prophet's) family; and I was afterwards told by Warren Parish [sic], that he himself and Oliver Cowdery did know that Joseph had Fanny Alger as wife, for they were spied upon and found together. (p. 12) * * *

On learning from the Prophet .the Lord had required him to take plural wives,' and that he had then thought to ask for some of my sisters (in Nauvoo), the past (Kirtland days) with its conditions and influences began more fully to unfold to my mind, the causes that must, at least in part, have led to the great apostasy and disruption in Kirtland.... Oliver Cowdery, J. Carter, W. Parrish, or others were not justified in their criticism upon the doings of the Prophet, or in their becoming a .law unto themselves,. thru which they lost the light of their calling and were left to darkness.(p. 14)

The doctrine of celestial marriage, I have the best of reasons for believing, was understood and believed by him (Joseph Smith, the Prophet) away back in the days when he lived in Kirtland, when he and the Saints, in their poverty, were toiling to erect that sacred edifice (the Kirtland Temple), wherein you (referring to Joseph Smith, the son of the Prophet) now falsify him, seeking, by your unsupported declarations, to nullify his most sacred doctrines. Even there, as I believe, he was instructed of the Lord respecting the sacred ordinance of plural marriage; but he was not required to reveal it to the Church until some time during the residence of the Saints at Nauvoo, where he received a revelation from the Lord setting forth in detail the results to be obtained by keeping inviolate all the laws connected with this sacred condition of things. And in consequence of the prejudices of the Saints and the tide of persecution which he well knew he would have to encounter from the outside world, wherein his life would be endangered, he delayed, as long as possible, to make this principle known, except to a few of the most faithful and humble of the Saints.

When he (Joseph) was here we had some conversation, in which in every instance, I did not fail to affirm that what I had said was strictly true. A dirty, nasty, filthy affair of his (Joseph's) and Fanny Alger's was talked over in which I strictly declared that I had never deviated from the truth in the matter, and as I supposed was admitted by himself. At any rate, just before leaving, he wanted to drop every past thing, in which had been a difficulty or difference---he called witnesses to the fact, gave me his hand in their presence.

JOSEPH BATES NOBLE'S TESTIMONY.

"Territory of Utah }ss.
County of Salt Lake }

Be it remembered that on this twenty-sixth day of June, A.D. 1869, personally appeared before me, James Jack, a notary public in and for said county, Joseph Bates Noble, who was by me sworn in due form of law, and upon his oath saith, that in the fall of 1840, Joseph Smith taught him the principle of celestial or plural marriage, or a plurality of wives; and that the said Joseph Smith declared that he had received a revelation from God on the subject, and that the angel of the Lord had commanded him (Joseph Smith) to move forward in the said order of marriage; and further, that the said Joseph Smith requested him (Joseph B. Noble) to step forward and assist him in carrying out the said principle, saying, 'In revealing this to you, I have placed my life in your hands, therefore do not in an evil hour betray me to my enemies.'

Subscribed and sworn to by the said Joseph B. Noble, the day and year first above written.

Pratt's Testimony; comments by Joseph F. Smith.

At a meeting held in Plano, Illinois, Sept. 12, 1878, Apostle Orson Pratt explained the circumstances connected with the coming forth of the revelation on plural marriage. He refuted the statement and belief of those present that Brigham Young was the author of that revelation; showed that Joseph Smith, the Prophet, had not only commenced the practice of that principle himself, and further taught it to others, before President Young and the Twelve had returned from their missions in Europe, in 1841, but that Joseph actually received revelation upon that principle as early as 1831. He said, .Lyman Johnson, who was very familiar with Joseph at this early date, Joseph living at his father's house, and who was also very intimate with me, we having traveled on several missions together, told me himself that Joseph had made known to him as early as 1831, that plural marriage was a correct principle. Joseph declared to Lyman that God had revealed it to him, but that the time had not come to teach or practice it in the Church, but that the time would come.' To this statement Elder Pratt bore his testimony. He cited several instances of Joseph having had wives sealed to him, one at least as early as April 5, 1841, which was some time prior to the return of the Twelve from England. Referred to his own trial in regard to this matter in Nauvoo, and said it was because he got his information from a wicked source, from those disaffected, but as soon as he learned the truth he was satisfied.

30. Journal of Mary Elizabeth Rollins Lightner.

An unnamed angel visited Joseph Smith three different times and commanded him to practice plural marriage. The last time the angel came, he came with a drawn sword ready to slay the Prophet if he refused to obey. Mary E. Lightner (who says she was the first plural wife of the Prophet) has given us the accounts of the angel's visits to Joseph and of the angel who visited her. Here is her story.

"Every principle that has been given in the Church by the Prophet is true. I know whereon I stand, I know what I believe, I know what I know and I know what I testify to you is the living truth. As I expected to meet it at the bar of the eternal Jehovah it is true. And when you stand before the bar you will know. He preached polygamy and he not only preached it but he practiced it. I am a living witness to it. It was given to him before he gave it to the Church. An angel came to him and the last time he came with a drawn sword in his hand and told Joseph if he did not go into that principle he would slay him. Joseph said he talked to him soberly about it, and told him it was an abomination and quoted scripture to him. He said in the BOOK OF MORMON it was an abomination in the eyes of the Lord, and they were to adhere to these things except when the Lord speaks. I am the first being that the revelation was given to him for one (sic) I was one thousand miles away in Missouri for we went up to Jackson County in 1841. . . . I asked him if Emma knew about me, and he said, "Emma thinks the world of you." I was not sealed to him until I had a witness.

"I had been dreaming for a number of years I was his wife. I thought I was a great sinner. I prayed to God to take it from me for I felt it was a sin; but when Joseph sent for me he told me all of these things. "Well," said I, "don.t you think this was an angel of the Devil that told you these things?" Said he, "NO. It was an angel of God. God almighty showed me the difference between an angel of Light and Satan's angels. The angel came to me three times between the year of 1834 and 1842 and said I was to obey that principle or he would slay me." "But," said he, "they called me a false and fallen prophet but I am more in favor with my God this day than I ever was in all my life before. I know that I shall be saved in the Kingdom of God. I have the oath of God upon it and God cannot lie. All that he gives me I shall take with me for I have that authority and that power conferred upon me." Well, I talked with him for a long time and finally I told him I would have a witness. Said I, "If God told you that why does he not tell me?" He asked me if I was going to be a traitor. "I have never told a mortal and shall never tell a mortal I had such talk from a married man," said I.

"Well," said he, "pray earnestly for the angel said to me you should have a witness." Well Brigham Young was with me. He said if I had a witness he wanted to know it. "Why should I tell you?" said I. "Well," said he, "I want to know for myself." Said he, "do you know what Joseph said?" "Since we left the office the angel appeared to him and told him he was well pleased with him and that you should have a witness." I made it a subject of prayer and I worried about it because I did not dare to speak to a living being except Brigham Young. I went out and got between three haystacks where no one could see me. As I knelt down I thought why not pray as Moses did? He prayed with his hands raised. When his hands were raised Israel was victorious but when they were not raised the Philistines were victorious. I lifted my hands and I have heard Joseph say the angles covered their faces. I knelt down and if ever a poor mortal prayed I did. A few nights after that an angel of the Lord came to me and if ever a thrill went through a mortal it went through me. I gazed upon the clothes and figure but the eyes were like lightning. They pierced me from the crown of my head to the soles of me feel. 1 was frightened almost to death for a moment. I tried to waken my aunt but I could not. The angel leaned over me and the light was very great although it was night. When my aunt woke up she said she had seen a figure in white robes pass from our bed to my mother's bed and pass out of the window. Joseph came up the next Sabbath. He said, "have you had a witness yet?" "No." Said he, "the angel expressly told me you should have." Said I, "I have not had a witness, but I have seen something I have never seen before. I saw an angel and I was frightened almost to death. I did not speak." he studied awhile and put his elbows on his knees and his face in his hands. He looked up and said, "How could you have been such a coward?" Said I, "I was weak." "Did you think to say, .Father help me.?" "NO." "Well if you had just said that your mouth would have been opened for that was an angel of the living God. He came to you with more knowledge, intelligence, and light than I ever dared to reveal." I said, "If that was an angel of light why did he not speak to me?" "YOU COVERED YOUR FACE AND FOR THIS REASON THE ANGEL WAS INSULTED." Said I, "will it ever come again?" He looked around very sorely and then he thought a moment and the said, "No. Not the same one, but if you are faithful you shall see greater things than that."

31. Statement of Sister Maria Jane Woodward of Huntington, Emery County, Utah, Maiden Name, Maria J. Johnston.

I was living at the Prophet Joseph's as hired girl 19 years of age to work for Emma Smith, The Prophet's wife, in the mansion at Nauvoo, Ill. While working in the evening, the rest of the girls having finished their work and gone to bed, I heard conversation between two personages but I did not know who they were at the time. They came into a little room back of the dining room where I was, and after listening a few moments I found that Emma Smith was one of them, but I did not know at the time that it was the Prophet that was with her. After listening I found out that she was crying and in trouble about something. He came to the door of the room where I was and then said to me: "It is you that is here is it Jane?" I told him it was and then he asked me if I would go down and tell Brother Hyrum Smith, his brother, to come to him and so I went. He told me that the guard at the gate would know me. I went out and the guard went with me down the street until I met the other guard. Then he came back to his place and the other guard went with me to Hyrum's door and I told Sister Thompson that Brother Joseph wanted Brother Hyrum. She went in and told him. He inquired who came for him (p. 2) and she told him. He said for me to wait and he would go with me. In going up Hyrum asked me where Brother Joseph was, and I told him he was in the little room back of the dining room in the mansion. Hyrum said no more to me until we got up to the mansion and he walked through the hall into this back room and I went to my work in the dining room. I heard him say to Emma when he went in: "Well Sister Emma, what is the matter?" Then I heard no more of their conversation that night, but the next morning I was up stairs making beds and Emma came to me and said, "lt was you that Joseph came to when he sent for Hyrum last night was it?" I said, "Yes Ma.am." Then she told me to sit down on the bed by her and we both sat down on the bed that I was making. She looked very sad and cast down, and there she said to me, "The principle of plural marriage is right, but I am like other women, I am naturally jealous hearted and can talk back to Joseph as long as any wife can talk back to her husband, but what I want to say to you is this. You heard me finding fault with the principle. I want to say that that principle is right, it is from our Father in Heaven", (sic) and then she again spoke of her jealousy. Then she continued, "What I said I have (p. 3) got to repent of. The principle is right but I am jealous hearted. Now never tell anybody that you heard me find fault with Joseph of that principle. The principle is right and if I or you or anyone else finds fault with that principle we have got to humble ourselves and repent of it. I do not know why it is that Brother Hyrum holds such a controlling power over my spirit but when he comes to me and speaks to me I am melted to tears and I cannot talk back to him."

After that I never heard her say anything about it and although I lived there quite a while after I did as I was told by her and said nothing about it. She was President of the Relief Society in Nauvoo at the time and she realized that it would not be well for them to know that she found fault with that principle.

About two months ago I dreamed that the Prophet Joseph came to me and asked me to bear testimony of what I had heard her say about the principle of polygamy, that it was right, and he said something to this effect, "It will be hard enough for her anyway." (p. 4)

Some people have denied that there was any such thing as endowments or endowment clothes before the time of Brigham Young, but I know there was. They were of the same pattern, had the same marks and were the same in every way as now. I was living with Father Smith, the Prophet's uncle and on one occasion the Prophet wrote a letter to his uncle to meet him the next morning in Nauvoo, (we were twenty-five miles from there). Mother Smith, George A.

Smith's mother, was sick and as I was the hired girl I had to get these clothes and fix them in time for Father Smith to meet the Prophet Joseph in Nauvoo. Mother Smith told Father Smith to explain to me about this clothing, what they were for and what they did with them, the reason he had to have them and have them in good condition, before I got them out, and he did so. That was the first I knew about endowment clothes but they were the same as they are now. Sister Smith told me where they were and how to prepare them for him. They were in a chest locked up, inside of a little cotton bag made for the purpose and were all together. Then I got the clothes and pressed them out and put them in good condition and he went to meet the Prophet. These clothes were never put out publicly, in the washing or in any other way. When we washed them we hung them out between sheets because we were in the midst of the Gentiles.

32. "Historical Record" by Andrew Jensen; Vol. 6:232; Early 1842. Testimony of Sarah M. Kimball.

Early in the year of 1842, Joseph Smith taught me the principle of marriage for eternity, and the doctrine of plural marriage. He said that in teaching this he realized that he jeopardized his life; but God had revealed it to him many years before as a privilege with blessings, now God had revealed it again and instructed him to teach it with commandment, as the Church could travel (progress) no further without the introduction of this principle. I asked him to teach it to some one else. He looked at me reprovingly, and said, .Will you tell me who to teach it to? God required me to teach it to you, and leave you with the responsibility of believing or disbelieving.' He said, .I will not cease to pray for you, and if you will seek unto God in prayer, you will not be led into temptation.'

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE RELIEF SOCIETY IN NAUVOO

The Female Relief Society of Nauvoo was organized on March 17, 1842, Emma Smith President. Sidah Clements was a member of this society. She also worked for the Prophet's family. Emma became very much alarmed concerning the revelation on Celestial Marriage which Joseph had received and set her hand and mind to uproot it by counselling the Sisters that if they knew of any such work going on to burst doors open, etc. But Joseph Said to them if ever they knew of any of that to tell him and he would roll the ball. This talk was done in a female meeting and Sister Clements was present. And on another occasion she said he was going from home one day when she saw Emma go up to him and she was in a passion. She jerked him by the collar and talked to him about going after women. She says that one day while she was at her work that Emma went upstairs and pulled Eliza R. Snow downstairs by the hair of her head as she was staying there, although she had consented to give him one or more women in the beginning and it was rumored when I, M. A. Barzee Boyce, was in Nauvoo that she got in such a rage about it that she left home and went down to Quincy but came back again while I was there. Then she sought to stop the Relief Society but they tried to go on by meeting in private houses secretly. The prophet would sometimes meet and give them encouragement, but finally they ceased to meet for persecution raged and it went down with the troublesome times. It was re-organized in Salt Lake by Brigham Young between the years 67 and 70, with Eliza R. Snow Smith at the head as the Elect lady. The first chapter of the second epistle of John was read at the first organization of the Relief Society in Nauvoo and was printed at the head of the article on regulations of said Society. Again it was rumored that Law and Foster for an excuse said in consequence of such a revelation given to Joseph or that he had pretended this, was the reason why they helped to raise the mob to slay them in prison.

My husband's sister and her husband, Thruman Gilbert, lived in a log house which had two rooms. She often talked to me about the prophet and of women coming here and holding council in that room. No I as the reason why there was so much talk.

The first intimation I had from Brother Joseph that there was a pure and holy order of plural marriage, was in the spring of 1842, but I was not married until 1843. I was married to him on the llth of May, 1843, by Elder James Adams. Emma was present. She gave her free and full consent. She had always, up to this time, been very kind to me and my sister Eliza, who was also married to the Prophet Joseph with Emma's consent. Emma, about this time, gave her husband two other wives--Maria and Sarah Lawrence.

City of Nauvoo,
July 17, 1842

Beloved Brother Pratt:

I set down to write a few words to you. Many things happen in the last days, and especially in Nauvoo. As a general thing all goes first rate. The temple goes on finely and will be a splendid orifice when completed. The brethren are very spirited about it. Doct. John Cook Bennett is turned out of the Church, and report says gone to Mo. to raise a mob to come to drive us from our homes--I guess General Joab has got a hard stent on hand.

Br. Orson Pratt is in trouble in consequence of his wife. His feelings are so wrought up that he does not know whether his wife is wrong, or whether Joseph's testimony and others are wrong, and do lie, and he deceived for 12 years or not; he is all but crazy about the matters. You may ask what the matter is concerning Sister P. It is enough, and Doct. J. C. Bennett could tell all about himself and his * * * enough of that. We will not let Br. Orson go away from us. He is too good a man to have a woman destroy him.

At a meeting of the citizens of the city of Nauvoo held in said city at the meeting ground, July 22nd, 1842.

Orson Spencer Esq. was called to the chair, and Gustavus Hills was appointed clerk.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, who stated the object of the meeting to be to obtain an expression of the public mind in reference to the reports gone abroad, culminating the character of Pres. Joseph Smith. Gen Wilson Law then rose and presented the following resolution.

RESOLVED--That, having heard that John C. Bennett was circulating many base falsehoods respecting a number of the citizens of Nauvoo, and especially against our worthy and respected Mayor, Joseph Smith, we do hereby manifest to the world that so far as we are acquainted with Joseph Smith we know him to be a good, moral, virtuous, peaceable and patriotic man, and a firm supporter of law, justice and equal rights; that he at all times upholds and keeps inviolate the constitution of this State and of the United States.

A vote was then called and the resolution adopted by a large concourse of citizens, numbering somewhere about a thousand men. Two or three, voted in the negative.

Elder Orson Pratt then rose and spoke at some length in explanation of his negative vote. Pres. Joseph Smith spoke in reply--

Question to Elder Pratt, "Have you personally a knowledge of any immoral act in me toward the female sex, or in any other way?" Answer, by Elder 0. Pratt, "Personally, toward the female sex, I have not."

Elder 0. Pratt responded at some length. Elder B. Young then spoke in reply. . .

When Elder Pratt returned home from his mission, and learned of the secret teaching of the spiritual wife doctrine, and the true situation of things, it was too much for him, and his mind temporarily gave way, and he wandered away, no one knew where. I remember well the excitement which existed at the time, as a large number of the citizens turned out to go in search for him, fearing that he had committed suicide. He was found some 5 miles below Nauvoo, sitting on a rock, on the bank of the Mississippi river, without a hat. He recovered from his insanity, but at the next conference, when the vote was called to sustain Joseph Smith as President of the Church, he alone voted, No. He could not at that time conscientiously sustain him in that position.

August, 1842 * * * There was a council of the TWELVE held for four days, with Elder Orson Pratt to labor with him to get him to recall his saying against Joseph & the Twelve but he persisted in his wicked course & would not recall any of his sayings which were made in public against Joseph & others, sayings which were unjust & untrue. The Twelve then rejected him as a member of their quorum and he was cut off from the church. Dr. John Cook Bennett was the ruin of Orson Pratt.

August 8, 1842. Attended City Council.

Assisted by Elders H. C. Kimball and Geo. A. Smith, I spent several days laboring with Elder Orson Pratt, whose mind became so darkened by the influence and statements of this wife, that he came out in rebellion against Joseph, refusing to believe his testimony or obey his counsel. He said he would believe his wife in preference to the prophet. Joseph told him if he did believe his wife and follow her suggestions he would go to hell.

We reported to the Prophet that we had labored with brother Orson diligently in a spirit of meekness, forbearance and long-suffering. He requested us to ordain brother Amasa Lyman in brother Orson's stead. After receiving these instructions, we met brother Orson near my house, and continued to labor with him. He said to us, There is brother Amasa Lyman in your house, brother Young; he has been long in the ministry, go in and ordain him in my stead.

Nauvoo, August 18, 1842

Dear and beloved Brother and Sister Whitney and &.

I take this opportunity to communicate some of my feelings, privately, at this time, which I wish you three eternally to keep in your own bosoms; for my feelings are so strong for you since what has passed lately between us, that the time of my absence from you seems so long, and dreary, that it seems as if I could not live long in this way; and if you three would come and see me in this my lonely retreat, it would afford me great relief of mind, if those with whom I am alied do love me, now is the time to afford me succor, in the days of exile, for you know I foretold you of these things. I am now at Carlos Granger's, just back of Brother Hyrum's farm, it is only one mile from town. The nights are very pleasant, indeed, all three of you can come and see me in the forepart of the night. Let Brother Whitney come a little ahead and knock at the south east corner of the house, at the window, it is next to the cornfield; I have a room intirely [sic] by myself, the whole matter can be attended to with the most perfect safety. I know it is the will of God that you should comfort me now in this time of affliction, or not at all, now is the time or never; but I have no need of saying any such thing to you, for I know the goodness of your heart and that you will do the will of the Lord, when it is made known to you, the only thing to be careful of, is to find out when Emma comes, then you can not be safe, but when she is not here there is the most perfect safety, only be careful to escape observation as much as possible. I know it is an heroic undertaking; but so much the greater friendship and the more joy when I see you I will tell you all my plans; I can not write them on paper.

Burn this letter as soon as you read it. Keep all locked up in your breasts, my life depends upon it.

One thing I want to see you for, is to get the fulness of my blessing sealed upon our heads. You will pardon me for my earnestness on this subject, when you consider how lonesome I must be. Your good feelings know how to make every allowance for me. I close my letter. I think Emma wont come tonight. If she don.t, don.t fail to come tonight. I subscribe myself your most obedient and affectionate companion and friend.

(Mss History of Brigham Young, pp. 120-121):

August 20, 1842, Brother Orson Pratt was cut off from the Church, and according to the Prophet's direction, brothers H. C. Kimball, Geo. A. Smith and I ordained brother Amasa Lyman in his stead.

(Documentary History of the Church):

August 20, 1842.---the Twelve met in council, and ordained Amasa Lyman to be one of the Twelve Apostles. Amasa Lyman was born in Lyman, Grafton County, N. H., 30th March, 1813, where he received the gospel through the ministry of Elder Orson Pratt, 27th April, 1832; ordained an elder under my hands, 23rd August, 1832, in Hiram, Portage county, Ohio. He was one of my fellow-prisoners, bound with the same chain in Richmond jail, Missouri.

John C. Bennett was declared unworthy to hold the office of chancellor of the University, and was discharged; and Orson Spencer was elected in his stead, and received the oath of office. Amasa Lyman was elected regent of the University, in place of Vinson Knight, deceased.

45. History of the Church, V, pp. 131-2; 26 August 1842.

Friday, August 26.--At home all day. In the evening, in council with some of the Twelve and others. I gave some important instructions upon the situation of the Church, showing that it was necessary that the officers who could should go abroad through the states; and inasmuch as a great (p. 131) excitement had been raised, through the community at large, by the falsehoods put into circulation by John C. Bennett and others, it was wisdom in God that the Elders should go forth and deluge the state with a flood of truth, setting forth the mean, contemptible persecuting conduct of ex Governor Boggs of Missouri, and those connected with him in his mean and corrupt proceedings, in plain terms, so that the world might understand the abusive conduct of our enemies, and stamp it with indignation.

I advised the Twelve to call a special conference on Monday next to give instructions to the Elders, and call upon them to go forth upon this important mission; meantime that all the affidavits concerning Bennett's conduct be taken and printed, so that each Elder could be properly furnished with correct and weighty testimony to lay before the public.

46. Manuscript History of Brigham Young, pp. 121, 122.

--26--Met in the evening in Council with the Prophet Joseph and some of the Twelve. We received much good instruction and counsel from Joseph, relative to the situation of the Church, and the policy to be pursued in sending many Elders through the States to preach the Gospel and disabuse the public mind in relation to false statements of Dr. J. C. Bennett.

The Prophet also directed us to call a Special conference on Monday next, and nominate the Elders to go on this important mission, and give them their instructions; and that we should also get the (p. 122) affidavits against Dr. Bennett published, so that the Elders might be authentic and strong testimony to lay before the public in relation to those matters.

TESTIMONY OF MRS. GODDARD

Dr. Bennett came to my house one night about 12 o.clock, and sat on or beside the bed where Mrs. Pratt was and cursed and swore very profanely at her; she told me next day that the Dr. was quick tempered and was mad at her, but gave me no other reason. I concluded from the circumstances that she had promised to meet him somewhere and had disappointed him; on another night I remonstrated with the Dr. and asked him what Orson Pratt would think, if he should know that you were so fond of his wife, and holding her hand so much; the Dr. replied that he could pull the wool over Orson's eyes.

Mrs. Pratt stated to me that Dr. Bennett told her, that he could cause abortion with perfect safety to the mother, at any stage of pregnancy, and that he had frequently destroyed and removed infants before their time to prevent exposure of the parties, and that he had instruments for that purpose, etc. My husband and I were frequently at Mrs. Pratt's and stayed till after 10 o.clock in the night, and Dr. Bennett still remained there with her and her little child alone at that late hour.

On one occasion I came suddenly into the room where Mrs. Pratt and the Dr. were, she was lying on the bed and the Dr. was taking his hands out of her bosom; he was in the habit of sitting on the bed where Mrs. Pratt was lying, and lying down over her.

I would further state that from my own observation, I am satisfied that their conduct was anything but virtuous, and I know Mrs. Pratt is not a woman of truth, and I believe the statements which Dr. Bennett made concerning Joseph Smith are false, and fabricated for the purpose of covering his own iniquities, and enabling him to practice his base designs on the innocent.

Orson Pratt has attempted to destroy himself, and caused almost all the city to go in search of him. Is it not enough to put down all the infernal influences of the devil, what we have felt and seen, handled and evidenced, of this work of God? But the devil had influence among the Jews, after all the great things they had witnessed, to cause the death of Jesus Christ, by hanging Him between heaven and earth. They would deliver me up, Judas like; but a small band of us shall overcome.

The Excommunication of Orson Pratt
(secondary sources)

Orson Pratt arrived in Nauvoo from his English Mission about the second week of July, 1841, but the first indication of disagreement between himself and the church authorities was on May 11, 1842 when his name was not on the list of those of the authorities who withdrew fellowship from John C. Bennett (page 176). One is inclined to believe that Orson Pratt's disappearance on July 15th 1842 was in connection with the John C. Bennett incident, but the problem peaked in Orson Pratt's July 22nd 1842 speech in the public meeting (see page 178) where, drawing from the account of Wilford Woodruff (page 180), he made several "sayings" in public, against Joseph Smith and others, which were both unjust and untrue. According to Brigham Young (page 180) it was because of his wife, Sarah Marinda Bates Pratt, that Orson refused to believe either Joseph Smith, or his associates in the council of the Twelve.

Sarah Pratt has unknowingly left us an account which must be in most respects similar to the story she told her husband in 1842. Although inaccurate at its inception (as evidenced by the subsequent actions of both her and her husband) and beclouded by 42 intervening years, her account was given at a time (1884) when she was again bitter against the church, and again visualized Joseph Smith as a villain and John C. Bennett as the hero. Her account is given here in full: (contrast the affidavits on pages 560, 561)

related by Mrs. Orson Pratt
Salt Lake City
1884

As the wife of Orson Pratt the Apostle, Mrs. Pratt was very familiar with the workings of Mormonism for many years. Mrs. Emma Smith and Mrs. Heber C. Kimball were among her most intimate friends; specially intimate as she was left without any relative but her infant son while her husband was off on his missions to England.

While at Nauvoo, when about twenty-two years of age, she was thus left dependant for means of support as well as companionship. She would often take her child with her and spend a week or two at a time, in the family of Joseph Smith, earning by her needle provisions, or whatever was most convenient to pay. There was little money then in circulation and people were obliged to be content to earn what would merely keep soul and body together.

In Joseph Smith she had implicit confidence. She accepted his inspired revelations; her husband had written many at his dictation. He appeared much interested in her affairs and brought Dr. John C. Bennett once or twice with him when he called. At first his calls were made upon her in her home where she was living with another family; then when she moved into a little house by herself his attentions became more frequent. He told her at one time that his wife Emma had become jealous of her; she at once called upon Emma and assured her of the folly of such an idea; she told her that she was thoroughly bound up in her husband, Mr. Pratt, and had no [3] thought for any one else. At one of his calls with Dr. Bennett, Joseph told Mrs. Pratt that there was something he wanted to say to her but dare not for fear she would lose respect for him. That seemed impossible to her, as she told him; he however postponed the announcement. He told her that perhaps she would like to undertake to make Dr. Bennett's shirts and clothing, as he could pay in money; that many had tried but without giving him satisfaction. While she had never done anything of the kind before, she did it now from necessity, and cheerfully; she even did his washing after awhile for money was a scarce article of payment.

Sometime after this Joseph called again and said that now he should tell her what he meant to have told her before. He said that he knew she must be lonely now that her husband was away, and that it [4] was not at all necessary that it should be so. She needed the company of some man, and he would stay with her when she wished it; that there was no sin in it as long as she kept it to herself; that the sin was wholly in making it known herself to her husband or any one else. She replied to Joseph's proposal most indignantly; she told him she loved her husband most devotedly, and upbraided him sharply for what he had suggested. He replied that if she told of it he had it in his power to ruin her character. From that time she discontinued her habit of going to his house to sew, and asked Emma Smith to send the work to her instead.

After he had left her Mrs. Pratt was in great distress of mind. Here she was along scarcely more than twenty years of age, with one who was almost [5] as a god to her counselling her in this way. Regardless of his threats if she told, she went immediately to her friend Mrs. Harris, in whose virtue and faithfulness as a wife, as her old and tried friend she had implicit confidence; to her she told the story of the insult Joseph offered her, expecting to receive her hearty sympathy. To her surprise Mrs. Harris replied "You must think nothing of that; why I myself have been his mistress for the past four years." She soon saw for herself, with her eyes now opened, that there were houses whose back doors he entered on the sly, guarded as he was by Bennett who would tell Mrs. Pratt to watch Smith's entrance and exit here and there; women, too, would admit to her their intercourse with him and offer her opportunities of convincing herself that what they said was true. There was nothing said then as to Celestial Marriage or revelation.

One day Dr. Bennett, who knew of Smith's proposal to Mrs. Pratt and its rejection, and who in consequence confided to her some of Smith's iniquities, one day called upon her and told her that a revelation was to be made five days later, to Joseph Smith, authorizing polygamy; that Smith had been so general in his attentions to the women that he was obliged to shield himself by these means.

Five days from that time, the revelation was made, in the presence of a few of his chosen councillors. Mrs. Pratt says to the best of her knowledge it was written by Smith and Bennett conjointly.

It was first shown to Emma Smith who must be persuaded to accept and live up to, if possible. She did believe in her husband as a prophet, seer and revelator. But she knew him too well as a man, Mrs. Pratt said to believe in [7] this as a revelation. She indignantly threw the paper into the fire. The statement is differently made as regards the revelation finally made public. Some say that a single copy was preserved, others that it was written up from memory.

(Sarah Marinda Bates Pratt 1817-1888; CHO, Ms d 4048)

It appears that at least Joseph Smith and Brigham Young (see page 180) and Parley P. Pratt (see page 494) held Sarah Pratt at least partially responsible for Orson Pratt's rejection of the truth.

During this fall [of 1842] and the beginning of winter, the order of Celestial Marriage began to be talked of as existing in the Church. I must confess that my mind was somewhat troubled on the subject, until I had the following dream. I dreamed that my sister Hannah was dead in the spirit, took a chair and set down in front of my bed and said to me, "David, your mind is troubled in respect to the order of Marriage which you do not understand at the present, but where I am we understand all about it, its all right, and when the right time comes I want you to remember me."

About this time a Widow Johnson was living with Chas A. Chase. She had come with the Vermont Camp. She was much troubled about the order of marriage which was now almost the general topic. I used to take pleasure in talking to her on the subject and see her rage and scold about the system. One time I was talking to her when I asked her if she wanted me to prophesy on her head. She said she did not care whether I did or not, I then told her that twelve months would not pass over her head before she would be sealed to some man that had another wife. She was angry with me for saying so, but before six months had passed away she was sealed to Reynolds Cahoon, but I had no opportunity of laughing at her for so doing for she seemed quite shy every time I met her after.

During the winter private meetings where held all over the city in which much good instruction was given on the subject of the Plan of Redemption. Often the Sealing Covenant was touched upon but never plainly preached.

With the approach of spring the spirit of persecution began to rage in the bosoms of Robert D. Foster, Higbus, and others. Foster got up a printing press and began to issue a paper against Joseph and the Authorities in general called the Nauvoo Expositor. They issued one number of this paper and had the type set for the second number when the City Martial with the police took the paper and burnt it out in front of the house, and threw the type into the street. This was by order of the City Council, they having declared it a libelous establishment and a nuisance. This caused persecution to rage with a greater determined spirit, amongst both gentiles and apostates and every plan of device was entered into on the part of our enemies to destroy Joseph Smith and others, but Joseph avoided being drawn into the power of the mob.

Springfield, Illinois, January 10, 1843 Mr. Sidney Rigdon and Orson Pratt:

Dear Friends:--lt is a long time since I have written to you, and I should now much desire to see you, but I leave tonight for Missouri, to meet the messenger charged with the arrest of Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, Lyman Wright and others, for murder, burglary, treason, etc., etc., who will be demanded in a few days, on new indictments, found by the grand jury of a called court on the original evidence, and in relation to which a nolle prosequi was entered by the district attorney.

New proceedings have been gotten up on the old charges, and no habeas corpus can save them. We shall try Smith on the Boggs case, when we get him into Missouri. The war goes bravely on; and, although Smith thinks he is now safe, the enemy is near, even at the door. He has awakened the wrong passenger. The Governor will relinquish Joseph at once on the new requisition. There is but one opinion on the case, and that is, nothing can save Joseph on a new requisition and demand predicated on the old charges on the institution of new writs. He must go to Missouri; but he shall not be harmed, if he is not guilty; but he is a murderer, and must suffer the penalty of the law. Enough on this subject.

I hope that both your kind and amiable families are well, and you will please to give them all my best respects. I hope to see you all soon. When the officer arrives, I shall be near at hand. I shall see you all again. Please to write me at Independence immediately.

Yours respectfully,
John C. Bennett

Orson Pratt also had some difficulties while we were in Nauvoo, arising out of the introduction of the celestial order of marriage. It seems, from remarks made in a conversation that I had with him afterwards, that he did not fully realize or comprehend the situation. But, at the time of the occurrence, when I saw that he was very severely tried, as I had always held pleasant relations with him, I took every pains that I possibly could to explain the situation of things, to remove his doubts, and to satisfy his feelings, but without avail. At one time I talked with him for nearly two hours, to prevent, if possible, his apostasy or departure from the church. But he was very sorely tried, and was very self-willed and stubborn in his feelings, and would not yield. His feelings were bitter towards the Prophet Joseph Smith and others, and the result was that he was dropped from his position in the quorum. But I am not aware of his ever having written or published anything against the church. On the contrary, when Dr. John C. Bennett, who had apostatized, sent a letter to Sidney Rigdon, wherein he denounced President Smith, and stated that he was a villain and a scoundrel, and that a requisition would be made for him by the State of Missouri, and requested him to show this letter to Orson Pratt; although Sidney Rigdon, who was the first counselor to Joseph, did not show this statement unfolding this conspiracy to him yet, as soon as Sidney Rigdon handed the letter to Orson Pratt, he immediately took it to the Prophet Joseph. And thus, while Sidney Rigdon withheld this information from one to whom he was in honor and duty bound, as his first counselor, to make it known, yet Orson Pratt, although at the time disfellowshipped, (?) (Ex.) immediately made Joseph acquainted with the conspiracy that was being plotted against him, and thus exhibited a manhood and integrity that were so woefully deficient in Sidney Rigdon. . . .

P.S. Will Mr. Rigdon please to hand this letter to Mr. Pratt, after reading? J.C.B

In Journal History (again January lOth 1842) the following appears with respect to John C. Bennett's letter:

Elder John Taylor, who was the editor of the "Times and Seasons" in 1842, (sic) prepared the following editorial for publication together with the letter, but by the advice of the Prophet Joseph it was not printed:

"We had the following letter handed to us by General Joseph Smith. Mr. Rigdon received it from John C. Bennett and handed it to Mr. Orson Pratt and Mr. Pratt gave it to Joseph Smith, which Mr. Rigdon had delayed doing.

We are very sorry that our old and long esteemed friend, Mr. Rigdon should be holding correspondence with such a notorious scounderal as John C. Bennett; and more especially that he, of all others, should not acquaint President Joseph Smith with a circumstance of this kind, which threatened (in his opinion) to destroy him and other innocent men.

Are we indeed forced from evidence to believe that Mr. Rigdon who was charged with and imprisoned for the same crimes, that those gentlemen mentioned in the letter ostensibly were, can countenance, cloak over, and virtually leave his companions in tribulation, exposed to destruction, when he had it in his power to prevent it; and that he did believe that this was the case is evident from some remarks that he made to Mr. Smith that he would not take upon himself the responsibility of making it known,' fearful of the consequences of exposing villany and hiding himself under the iniquitous shade of their unhallowed protection. How is the gold become dim? and the fine gold, how is it changed! We are, however, happy to inform our readers that this letter is all vain glorying and empty boast; it is a tissue of falsehood intended to intimidate. Governor Ford informed Mr. Smith, when at Springfield that such a requisition had been made from Missouri; but that he knew that a nolle prosequi had been entered and refused to issue a writ.

How long shall the feelings of innocent men be goaded with repeated attempts at cruelty and injustice? .When the wicked rule the people mourn.' We are pleased, however, that we now have a governor whose bosom burns with pure patriotic principles.

"Who understands the people's rights, and will protect them too.."

Elder John Taylor gives the following explanation for withholding the letter and comments from the public:

"I was requested by Joseph Smith to prefer charges against Sidney Rigdon before a court composed of twenty-four High Priests and three Bishops. I asked who should give testimony in the case. Joseph Smith told me to collect what testimony I could for there was an abundance, and that I was to call upon him and Sister Emma who knew plenty to criminate him. He handed me the letter about the time and stated that Sidney Rigdon had kept it from him, and that Orson Pratt, as soon as he got it, handed it to him. Joseph Smith immediately went to Sidney and charged him with being leagued with the enemies to destroy him. Mr. Rigdon, or order to excuse himself, said, I know it was wrong; but I dared not take upon myself the responsibility of making it known.' This was the only excuse offered by him.

I had the above letter, with the accompanying remarks set up in type in the printing office, ready for printing, preparatory to commencing the trial of Sidney Rigdon. I, however, went to Bro. Joseph and told him what I had done and that I was now ready to proceed with the trial. Said I, Bro. Joseph, what shall I do? Shall I proceed? He paused for a moment and then replied, I think you had better not, we will save him if we can.."

56. The Orson Pratt Journals, by E. J. Watson, 1975; p. 187-188; January 20, 1843.

Brigham Young:

I attended Council with the Prophet and the Twelve at my house, in regard to Orson Pratt, who had confessed his sins and manifested deep repentance, which resulted in his baptism and re-ordination, by the Prophet, to his former standing in the Quorum of the Twelve. Brother Joseph Smith said that he would find another place for brother Amasa Lyman. (Mss History of BY, p. 126.)

Wilford Woodruff:

This was also an interesting day in consequence of the return of Orson Pratt to the quorum of the Twelve. He had returned and repented in dust & ashes as it were for opposing Joseph & the Twelve &c. We met at Brigham Young's, & the First Presidency & the Twelve conversed over the subject & Orson Pratt desired much to return to the quorum of the Twelve. We had an interesting time together. We then assembled at the river & Joseph the Seer went into the river from the ice & baptized Orson Pratt & his wife & widow Granger. Joseph confirmed them & ordained Orson Pratt to the Apostleship & his former standing which caused joy to our hearts. Elder Amasa Lyman who had been appointed in his stead as a member of the quorum of the Twelve was taken into the First Presidency which left the place again vacant for Orson Pratt.

Joseph Smith:

In the afternoon I attended a council of the Twelve, at President Young's. . . .

The council was called to consider the case of Orson Pratt who had previously been cut off from the Church for disobedience, and Amasa Lyman had been ordained an Apostle in his place. I told the quorum: you may receive Orson back into the quorum of the Twelve and I can take Amasa into the First Presidency. President Young said there were but three present when Amasa was ordained, the rest of the Twelve being either on a mission or sick. I told them that was legal when no more could be had. I told the council that from the sixth day of April next, I go in for preparing with all present for a mission through the United States, . . . * * *

At three o..clock, council adjourned to my house; and at four I baptized Orson Pratt and his wife, Sarah Marinda, and Lydia Granger in the Mississippi river, and confirmed them in the Church, ordaining Orson Pratt to his former office in the quorum of the Twelve. (HC 5:254-56)

57. Millennial Star, XX, 27 (Saturday 3 July 1858), "History of Joseph Smith"; pp. 422-3.

This Council was called to reconsider the case of Orson Pratt, who had previously been cut off from the quorum of the Twelve for neglect of duty; and Amasa Lyman had been ordained an Apostle in his place. I told the council that as there was not a quorum present when Orson Pratt's case came up before them, that he was still a member--that he had not been cut off legally, and I would find some other place for Amasa Lyman, to which the Council agreed. President Young said there were but three present when Amasa was ordained. I told them that was legal when no more could be had.

At three o.clock, Council adjourned to my house; and at four I baptized Orson Pratt and his wife, Sarah Marinda, and Lydia Granger in the Mississippi river, and confirmed them in the Church, ordaining Orson Pratt to his former office and standing in the quorum of the Twelve.

WILLIAM CLAYTON'S TESTIMONY

The following statement was sworn to before John T. Caine, a notary public, in Salt Lake City, Feb. 16, 1874:

"Inasmuch as it may be interesting to future generations of the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to learn something of the first teachings of the principle of plural marriage by President Joseph Smith, the Prophet, Seer, Revelator and Translator of said Church, I will give a short relation of facts which occurred within my personal knowledge, and also matters related to me by President Joseph Smith.

"I was employed as a clerk in President Joseph Smith's office, under Elder Willard Richards, and commenced to labor in the office on the lOth day of February, 1842. I continued to labor with Elder Richards until he went east to fetch his wife to Nauvoo.

"After Elder Richards started east I was necessarily thrown constantly into the company of President Smith, having to attend to his public and private business, receiving and recording tithings and donations, attending to land and other matters of business. During this period I necessarily became well acquainted with Emma Smith, the wife of the Prophet Joseph, and also with the children--Julia M. (an adopted daughter), Joseph, Frederick and Alexander, very much of the business being transacted at the residence of the Prophet.

"On the 7th of October, 1842, in the presence of Bishop Newel K. Whitney and his wife Elizabeth Ann, President Joseph Smith appointed me Temple Recorder, and also his private clerk, placing all records, books, papers, etc., in my care, and requiring me to take charge of and preserve them, his closing words being, .When I have any revelations to write, you are the one to write them..

"During this period the Prophet Joseph frequently visited my house in my company, and became well acquainted with my wife Ruth, to whom I had been married five years. One day in the month of February, 1843, date not remembered, the Prophet invited me to walk with him. During our walk, he said he had learned that there was a sister back in England, to whom I was very much attached. I replied there was, but nothing further than an attachment such as a brother and sister in the Church might rightfully entertain for each other. He then said, .Why don.t you send for her?. I replied, In the first place, I have no authority to send for her, and if I had, I have not the means to pay expenses.' To this he answered, I give you authority to send for her, and I will furnish you with means,' which he did. This was the first time the Prophet Joseph talked with me on the subject of plural marriage. He informed me that the doctrine and principle was right in the sight of our Heavenly Father, and that it was a doctrine which pertained to celestial order and glory. After giving me lengthy instructions and informations concerning the doctrine of celestial or plural marriage, he concluded his remarks with the words, It is your privilege to have all the wives you want.' After this introduction, our conversations on the subject of plural marriage were very frequent, and he appeared to take particular pains to inform and instruct me in respect to the principle. He also informed me that he had others wives living besides his first wife Emma, and in particular gave me to understand that Eliza R. Snow, Louisa Beman, Desdemona W. Fullmer and others were his lawful wives in the sight of Heaven.

60. "Nightfall At Nauvoo", by Samuel W. Taylor; p. 180; about Spring, 1843.

Eliza got out of bed, feeling queasy. It was early, the house quiet. Perhaps she'd be sick this morning again. Better got out back to the privy, in case. She stepped from her room just as Joseph's door opened. He paused a moment looking at her with affection--big, handsome, vital, her husband for time and eternity!--then they came together. She whispered, had he decided what to do? He nodded. They could meet at Sarah Cleveland's this afternoon to talk it over. Two-thirty. . .

"Bitch!"

A wild cry, then Emma was upon them with a broom-stick. Joseph staggered back. Emma flailed at Eliza with the heavy stick, calling her names, screaming. Eliza, trying to shield her head with her arms, dashed for the stairs, stumbled, fell headlong, and went head over heels down the steep steps as everything went black.

She awakened in bed. Emma was there, and Joseph, together with Dr. Bernhisel.

"Eliza," Emma said, "I'm sorry. . ."

"I understand," Eliza said. Her voice came as a weak whisper. Dr. Bernhisel nodded to Joseph and Emma, saying quietly that the patient needed rest. Joseph put an arm around Emma's shoulders and went out with her. Then the doctor turned to Eliza. He took her wrist to feel her pulse.

"lt is best that you should know immediately, Sister Eliza," he said quietly. "You have lost your baby."

He paused, then added, "And I am afraid that you never again will become a mother."

BENJAMIN F. JOHNSON'S TESTIMONY

The following affidavit was sworn to before James Jack, a notary public, in Salt Lake City, March 4, 1870:

"On the first day of April, A. D. 1843, President Joseph Smith, Orson Hyde and William Clayton, and others, came from Nauvoo to my residence in Macedonia or Ramus, in Hancock County, Ill., and were joyfully welcomed by myself and family as our guests. "On the following morning, Pres. Smith took me by the arm for a walk, leading the way to a secluded spot within an adjacent grove, where, to my great surprise, he commenced to open up to me the principle of plural or celestial marriage; but I was more astonished by his asking me for my sister Almera to be his wife. I sincerely believed him to be a Prophet of God, and I loved him as such and also for the many evidences of his kindness to me, yet such was the force of my education, and the scorn that I felt towards anything unvirtuous, that under the first impulse of my feelings, I looked him calmly, but firmly in the face and told him that I had always believed him to be a good man and wished to believe it still and would try to; and that I would take for him a message to my sister, and if the doctrine was true, all would be well, but if I should afterwards learn that it was offered to insult or prostitute my sister, I would take his life.' With a smile he replied, 'Benjamin, you will never see that day, but you shall live to know that it is true and rejoice in it.'

"He wished me to see my sister and talk to her. I told him I did not know what I could say to convince her. He replied, 'When you open your mouth you shall be able to comprehend, and you shall not want for evidence nor words.' He also told me that he would preach a sermon that day for me which I would understand, while the rest of the congregation would not comprehend his meaning. His subject was the ten talents, 'unto him that hath shall be given and he shall have abundantly, but from him that hath not (and will not receive), shall be taken away that which he hath (or might have had).' Plainly giving me to understand that the talents represented wives and children, as the principle of enlargement throughout the great future to those who were heirs of salvation.

"I called my sister to private audience, and with fear and trembling and feelings I cannot express, commenced to open the subject to her, when, just as he had promised, the light of the Lord shone upon my understanding and my tongue was loosed, and I, at least, was convinced of the truth of what I was attempting to teach.

"My sister received my testimony, and in a short time afterwards consented to become the wife of President Smith.

"Subsequent to this I took her to the city of Nauvoo, where she was married, or sealed for time and eternity, to President Joseph Smith, by his brother Hyrum Smith, in the presence of myself and Louisa Beaman, who told me she had also been sealed or married to the Prophet Joseph. This was at the residence of my sister, the widow of Lyman R. Sherman, who also was a witness.

"On the 27th of April, 1843, the Prophet Joseph Smith married to me Margaret Moon, for time and eternity, at the residence of Elder Heber C. Kimball; and on the 22nd of July, 1843, he married to me, according to the order of the Church, my first wife Ruth.

APOSTLE ERASTUS SNOW'S TESTIMONY:

The prophet Joseph Smith first taught me the doctrine of celestial marriage, including a plurality of wives in Nauvoo, Ill., in April, 1843. He also told me of those women he had taken to wives. My wife's sister, Louisa Beman, was his first plural wife, she being sealed to him by my brother-in-law, Joseph B. Noble, April 5, 1841. She was the daughter of Alva and Sarah Burtt Beman. The Prophet Joseph also gave me the privilege of taking another wife, which I did in March, 1844, the Patriarch Hyrum Smith officiating under the Prophet's direction.

APOSTLE LORENZO SNOW'S TESTIMONY,

The following affidavit was made before J. C. Wright, clerk of Box Elder County, Utah, Aug. 28, 1869:

"ln the month of April, 1843, I returned from my European mission. A few days after my arrival at Nauvoo, when at President Joseph Smith's house, he said he wished to have some private talk with me, and requested me to walk out with him. It was toward evening, we walked a little distance and sat down on a large log that lay near the bank of the river; he there and then explained to me the doctrine of plurality of wives.

"He said that the Lord had revealed it unto him and commanded him to have women sealed to him as wives, that he foresaw the trouble that would follow and sought to turn away from the commandment, that an angel from heaven appeared before him with a drawn sword, threatening him with destruction unless he went forward and obeyed the commandment.

"He further said that my sister Eliza R. Snow had been sealed to him as his wife for time and eternity.

"He told me that the Lord would open the way, and I should have women sealed to me as wives. This conversation was prolonged, I think, one hour or more, in which he told me many important things.

"I solemnly declare before God and holy angels, and as I hope to come forth in the morning of the resurrection, that the above statement is true.

"Be it remembered that on this twenty-eighth day of August, A. D. 1869, personally appeared before me, James Jack, a notary public in and for said county, John Benbow, who was by me sworn in due form of law, and upon his oath said that in the spring or forepart of the summer of 1843, at his house, four miles from Nauvoo, County of Hancock, State of Illinois, President Joseph Smith taught him and his wife, Jane Benbow, the doctrine of celestial marriage, or plurality of wives, Hyrum Smith being present.

And further, that Hannah Ells Smith, a wife of the Prophet, boarded at his house two months during the summer of the same year; and the said Hannah E. Smith also lived at his house several months in 1844, after the prophet's death. And further, that President Smith frequently visited his wife Hannah at his (J. B's.) house.

"On the lst day of May, 1843, I officiated in the office of an Elder by marrying Lucy Walker to the Prophet Joseph Smith, at his own residence.

"During this period the Prophet Joseph took several other wives. Amongst the number I well remember Eliza Partridge, Emily Partridge, Sarah Ann Whitney, Helen Kimball and Flora Woodworth. These all, he acknowledged to me, were his lawful, wedded wives, according to the celestial order. His wife Emma was cognizant of the fact of some, if not all, of these being his wives, and she generally treated them very kindly.

LUCY W. KIMBALL'S TESTIMONY.

"When the Prophet Joseph Smith first mentioned the principle of plural marriage to me I became very indignant, and told him emphatically that I did not wish him ever to mention it to me again, as my feelings and education revolted against anything of such a nature. He counseled me, however, to pray to the Lord for light and understanding in relation thereto, and promised me if I would do so sincerely, I should receive a testimony of the correctness of the principle. At length I concluded to follow this advice, and the consequence was that the Prophet's promise unto me was fulfilled to the very letter. Before praying I felt gloomy and downcast; in fact I was so entirely given up to dispair that I felt tired of life; but after I had poured out my heart's contents before God, I at once became calm and composed; a feeling of happiness took possession of me, and at the same time I received a powerful and irresistible testimony of the truth of plural marriage, which testimony has abided with me ever since. Shortly afterwards I consented to become the Prophet's wife, and was married to him May 1, 1843, Elder William Clayton officiating. I am also able to testify that Emma Smith, the Prophet's first wife, gave her consent to the marriage of at least four other girls to her husband, and that she was well aware that he associated with them as wives within the meaning of all that word implies. This is proven by the fact that she herself, on several occasions, kept guard at the door to prevent disinterested persons from intruding, when these ladies were in the house.

The first intimation I had from Brother Joseph that there was a pure and holy order of plural marriage, was in the spring of 1842, but I was not married until 1843. I was married to him on the 11th of May, 1843, by Elder James Adams. Emma was present. She gave her free and full consent. She had always, up to this time, been very kind to me and my sister Eliza, who was also married to the prophet Joseph with Emma's consent. Emma, about this time, gave her husband two other wives--Maria and Sarah Lawrence.

76. "Historical Record" by Andrew Jensen; Vol. 6:225-226; Wednesday, July 12, 1843. William Clayton's Testimony.

"On the morning of the 12th of July, 1843, Joseph and Hyrum Smith came into the office in the upper story of the .brick store,' on the bank of the Mississippi River. They were talking on the subject of plural marriage. Hyrum said to Joseph, 'If you will write the revelation on celestial marriage,

I will take and read it to Emma, and I believe I can convince her of its truth, and you will hereafter have peace.' Joseph smiled and remarked, .You do not know Emma as well as I do.' Hyrum repeated his opinion and further remarked, 'The doctrine is so plain, I can convince any reasonable man or woman of its truth, purity or heavenly origin,' or words to their effect. Joseph then said, 'Well, I will write the revelation and we will see.' He then requested me to get paper and prepare to write. Hyrum very urgently requested Joseph to write the revelation by means of the Urim and Thummim, but Joseph, in reply, said he did not need to, for he knew the revelation perfectly from beginning to end.

"Joseph and Hyrum then sat down and Joseph commenced to dictate the revelation on celestial marriage, and I wrote it, sentence by sentence as he dictated. After the whole was written, Joseph asked me to read it through, slowly and carefully, which I did, and he pronounced it correct. He then remarked that there was much more that he could write, on the same subject, but what was written was sufficient for the present.

"Hyrum then took the revelation to read to Emma. Joseph remained with me in the office until Hyrum returned. When he came back, Joseph asked him how he had succeeded. Hyrum replied that he had never received a more severe talking to in his life, that Emma was very bitter and full of resentment and anger.

"Joseph quietly remarked, 'I told you you did not know Emma as well as I did.' Joseph then put the revelation in his pocket, and they both left the office. "The revelation was read to several of the authorities during the day. Towards evening Bishop Newel K. Whitney asked Joseph if he had any objections to his taking a copy of the revelation; Joseph replied that he had not, and handed it to him. It was carefully copied the following day by Joseph C. Kingsbury. Two or three days after the revelation was written Joseph related to me and several others that Emma had so teased, and urgently entreated him for the privilege of destroying it, that he became so weary of her teasing, and to get rid of her annoyance, he told her she might destroy it and she had done so, but he had consented to her wish in this matter to pacify her, realizing that he knew the revelation perfectly, and could rewrite it at any time if necessary.

"The copy made by Joseph C. Kingsbury is a true and correct copy of the original in every respect. The copy was carefully preserved by Bishop Whitney, and but few knew of its existence until the temporary location of the Camps of Israel at Winter Quarters, on the Missouri River, in 1846.

"After the revelation on celestial marriage was written Joseph continued his instructions, privately, on the doctrine, to myself and others, and during the last year of his life we were scarcely ever together, alone, but he was talking on the subject, and explaining that doctrine and principles connected with it. He appeared to enjoy great liberty and freedom in his teachings, and also to find great relief in having a few to whom he could unbosom his feelings on that great and glorious subject.

"From him I learned that the doctrine of plural and celestial marriage is the most holy and important doctrine ever revealed to man on the earth, and that without obedience to that principle no man can ever attain to the fulness of exaltation in celestial glory.

JOSEPH C. KINGSBURY'S TESTIMONY

The following statement was given under oath before Charles W. Stayner, a notary public, in Salt Lake City, May 22, 1886:

"ln reference to the affidavit of Elder William Clayton, on the subject of the celestial order of patriarchal marriage, published in the Deseret Evening News of May 20th, 1886, and particularly to the statement made therein concerning myself, as having copied the original revelation written by Brother Clayton at the dictation of the Prophet Joseph, I will say that Bishop Newel K. Whitney handed me the revelation above refered to on either the day it was written or the day following, and stating that it was asked me to take a copy of it. I did so, and then read my copy of it to Bishop Whitney, who compared it with the original which he held in his hand while I read to him. When I had finished reading, Bishop Whitney pronounced the copy correct, and Hyrum Smith coming into the room at the time to fetch the original, Bishop Whitney handed it to him. I will also state that this copy, as also the original, are identically the same as that published in the present edition of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

"I will add that I also knew that the Prophet Joseph Smith had married other women besides his first wife--Emma; I was well aware of the fact of his having married Sarah Ann Whitney, the eldest daughter of Bishop Newel K. Whitney and Elizabeth Ann Whitney, his wife. And the Prophet Joseph told me personally that he had married other women, in accordance with the revealed will of God, and spoke concerning the principle as being a command of God for holy purposes.

Emma took that revelation [D&C 132], supposing she had all there was; but Joseph had wisdom enough to take care of it, and he had handed the revelation to Bishop Whitney, and he wrote it all off. After Joseph had been to Bishop Whitney's he went home, and Emma began teasing for the revelation. Said she--"Joseph, you promised me that revelation, and if you are a man of your word you will give it to me." Joseph took it from his pocket and said--"Take it." She went to the fire-place and put it in, and put the candle under it and burnt it, and she thought that was the end of it, and she will be damned as sure as she is a living woman. Joseph used to say that he would have her hereafter, if he had to go to hell for her, and he will have to go to hell for her as sure as he ever gets her.

ALLEN J. STOUT'S TESTIMONY

"At a meeting held at Rockville, Washington Co., Utah, Dec. 23, 1885, in commemoration of the Prophet Joseph Smith's birthday, Allen J. Stout, sen., testified, that while acting as one of the Prophet's body guard in the Nauvoo Mansion, only a single door separating him from the family, he listened to a conversation which took place between Joseph and Emma Smith, on the much vaunted subject of plural marriage. This impulsive woman from moments of passionate denunciation would subside into tearful repentance and acknowledge that her violent opposition to that principle was instigated by the power of darkness; that Satan was doing his utmost to destroy her, etc. And solemnly came the Prophet's inspired warning .Yes, and he will accomplish your overthrow, if you do not heed my counsel.." HOWARD CORAY'S TESTIMONY.

"Territory of Utah, }
County of Salt Lake. }ss.

"As many false statements have been made in relation to the authorship of the revelation on celestial marriage, I deem it but justice to all lovers of truth for me to express what I know concerning this very important matter.

"On the 22nd day of July, A. D. 1843, Hyrum Smith, the martyred Patriarch, came in a carriage to my house in Nauvoo; he invited me and my wife to take a ride with him; accordingly, as soon as we could make ourselves ready, we got into the carriage and he set off in the direction of Carthage. Having gone a short distance, he observed to us that his brother, Joseph Smith, the Prophet, had received a revelation on marriage, that was not for the public yet, which he would rehearse to us, as he had taken pains to commit it to memory. He then commenced rehearsing the revelation on celestial marriage, not stopping till he had gone quite through with the matter. After which he reviewed that part pertaining to plurality of wives, dwelling at some length upon the same in order that we might clearly understand the principle. And on the same day (July 22nd, 1843) he sealed my wife, formerly Martha Jane Knowlton, to me; and when I heard the revelation on celestial marriage read on the stand in Salt Lake City in 1852, I recognized it, as the same as that repeated to me by Brother Hyrum Smith. Not long after this I was present when Brother David Fullmer and wife were sealed by Brother Hyrum Smith, the martyred Patriarch, according to the law of celestial marriage. And, besides the foregoing, there was quite enough came within the compass of my observation to have fully satisfied my mind that plural marriage was practiced in the city of Nauvoo.

MERCY R. THOMPSON'S TESTIMONY

"SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 31, 1886. "A. Musser:

"DEAR BROTHER--Having noticed in the Deseret News an enquiry for testimony concerning the revelation on plural marriage, and having read the testimony of Brother Grover, it came to my mind that perhaps it would be right for me to add my testimony to his on the subject of Brother Hyrum reading it to the High Council. I well remember the circumstance. I remember he told me he had read it to the brethren in his office. He put it into my hands and left it with me for several days. I had been sealed to him by Brother Joseph a few weeks previously, and was well acquainted with almost every member of the High Council, and know Brother Grover's testimony to be correct. Now if this testimony would be of any use to such as are weak in the faith or tempted to doubt, I should be very thankful. Please make use of this in any way you think best, as well as the copy of the letter addressed to Joseph Smith, at Lamoni. Your Sister in the Gospel.

MERCY R. THOMPSON."

"SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 5, 1883.

"Mr. Joseph Smith Lamoni, Ill.:

"DEAR SIR--After having asked my Father in heaven to aid me, I sit down to write a few lines as dictated by the Holy Spirit.

"After reading the correspondence between you and L. 0. Littlefield I concluded it was the duty of some one to bear a testimony which could not be disputed. Finding from your letters to Littlefield that no one of your father's friends had performed this duty while you were here, now I will begin at once and tell you [my] experience.

"My beloved husband, R. B. Thompson, your father's private secretary to the end of his mortal life, died August 27th, 1841, (I presume you will remember him.) Nearly two years after his death your father told me that my husband had appeared to him several times, telling him that he did not wish me to live such a lonely life, and wished him to request your uncle Hyrum to have me sealed to him for time. Hyrum communicated this to his wife (my sister) who, by request, opened the subject to me, when everything within me rose in opposition to such a step, but when your father called and explained the subject to me, I dared not refuse to obey the counsel, lest peradventure I should be found fighting against God; and especially when he told me the last time my husband appeared to him he came with such power that it made him tremble. He then enquired of the Lord what he should do; the answer was, .Go and do as my servant hath required.' He then took an opportunity of communicating this to your uncle Hyrum who told me that the Holy Spirit rested upon him from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet. The time was appointed, with the consent of all parties, and your father sealed me to your uncle Hyrum for time, in my sister's room, with a covenant to deliver me up in the morning of the resurrection to Robert Blaskel Thompson, with whatever offspring should be the result of that union, at the same time counseling your uncle to build a room for me and move me over as soon as convenient, which he did, and I remained there as a wife the same as my sister to the day of his death. All this I am ready to testify to in the presence of God, angels and men. * * *

MERCY R. THOMPSON."

"President Taylor spoke briefly, stating that he was present at a meeting of the leading authorities of the Church in Nauvoo, at which the subject of the revelation on celestial marriage was laid before them and unanimously received as from God. Joseph declared that unless it was received the Church could progress no further. Soon after he met the Prophet Joseph, who, addressing the speaker, said the time had come when he must embrace the doctrine of plural marriage."

DAVID FULLMER'S TESTIMONY.

"Territory of Utah, } ss
County of Salt Lake. }

"Be it remembered that on this fifteenth day of June, A.D. 1869, personally appeared before me, James Jack, a notary public in and for said county, David Fullmer, who was by me sworn in due form of law, and upon his oath saith, that on or about the twelfth day of Aug., A.D. 1843, while in meeting with the High Council (he being a member thereof), in Hyrum Smith's brick office, in the city of Nauvoo, County of Hancock, State of Illinois, Dunbar Wilson made enquiry in relation to the subject of a plurality of wives, as there were rumors about respecting it, and he was satisfied there was something in those remarks, and he wanted to know what it was, upon which Hyrum Smith stepped across the road to his residence, and soon returned bringing with him a copy of the revelation on celestial marriage, given to Joseph Smith, July 12th, A.D. 1843, and read the same to the High Council, and bore testimony to its truth. The said David Fullmer further saith that, to the best of his memory and belief, the following named persons were present: Wm. Marks, Austin A. Cowles, Samuel Bent, Geo. W. Harris, Dunbar Wilson, Wm. Huntington. Levi Jackman, Aaron Johnson, Thos. Grover, David Fullmer, Phinehas Richards, James Allred and Leonard Soby. And the said David Fullmer further saith that Wm. Marks, Austin A. Cowles and Leonard Soby were the only persons present who did not receive the testimony of Hyrum Smith, and that all the others did receive it from the teaching and testimony of the said Hyrum Smith. And further, that the copy of said revelation on celestial marriage, published in the Deseret News extra of September 14th, A.D. 1852, is a true copy of the same.

(Signed) DAVID FULLMER. "Subscribed and sworn to by the said David Fullmer the day and year first above written.

THOMAS GROVER'S TESTIMONY.

"FARMINGTON, Davis Co., Utah, Jan. 10, 1885.

"A. M. Musser:

"Your note is before me, and I answer with pleasure. "Now concerning the matter about which you ask information. I don't know of any member of that High Council living except myself. Leonard Soby may still be living. He apostatized on the strength of that revelation.

"The High Council of Nauvoo was called together by the Prophet Joseph Smith, to know whether they would accept the revelation on celestial marriage or not.

"The Presidency of the Stake, Wm. Marks, Father Cowles and the late Apostle Charles C. Rich were there present. The following are the names of the High Council that were present, in their order, viz: Samuel Bent, William Huntington, Alpheus Cutler, Thos. Grover, Lewis D. Wilson, David Fullmer, Aaron Johnson, Newel Knight, Leonard Soby, James Allred, Henry G. Sherwood and I think, Samuel H. Smith.

"Brother Hyrum was called upon to read the revelation. He did so, and after the reading said, .Now, you that believe this revelation and go forth and obey the same shall be saved, and you that reject it shall be damned.'

"We saw this prediction verified in less than one week. Of the Presidency of the Stake, Wm. Marks and Father Cowles rejected the revelation; of the Council that were present Leonard Soby rejected it. From that time forward there was a very strong division in the High Council. These three men greatly diminished in spirit day after day, so that there was a great difference in the line of their conduct, which was perceivable to every member that kept the faith.

"From that time forward we often received instructions from the Prophet as to what was the will of the Lord and how to proceed.

"After this the Prophet's life was constantly in danger. Being one of his life guard, I watched his interests and safety up to the time of his death.

"Wm. Marks died in Illinois, C. C. Rich died in Paris, Bear Lake County, Idaho, in full faith. Samuel Bent died in Garden Grove, Iowa, in full faith. Wm. Huntington died in Pisgah, Iowa, in full faith. Alpheus Cutler apostatized, and died in Iowa. Lewis D. Wilson died at Ogden, in full faith. David Fullmer died in Salt Lake City, in full faith. Aaron Johnson died at Springville, in full faith. Newel Knight died at Ponea, Nebraska. Leonard Soby went with Sidney Rigdon from Nauvoo. James Allred died in Sanpete, in full faith. Henry G. Sherwood came here with the pioneers and died in San Bernardino, Cal., out of the Church, I understand. Samuel H. Smith died at Nauvoo, in full faith.

At a meeting of the High Council in Nauvoo Sept 23 1843, Br Hirum Smith read the revelation relating to the plurality of wives; he said he did not believe it at first, it was so contrary to his feelings, but he said he knew Joseph was a profit of God, so he made a covenant that he would not eat, drink, or sleep until he knew for himself, that he had got a testimony that it was true, that he had even herd the voice of God concerning it.

This is what James Allred related on the night of the 15th of October, 1854.

"Again, on the 19th of October, the same year, President Smith made us another visit at Macedonia and remained till the 21st. He was accompanied by Wm. Clayton. At this time (Oct. 20th, 1843), he sealed my first wife to me for time and all eternity. * * *

"He also visited my mother at her residence in Macedonia and taught her in my hearing the doctrine of celestial marriage, declaring that an angel appeared unto him with a drawn sword, threatening to slay him if he did not proceed to fulfill the law that had been given to him. And counseled my mother to be sealed to his uncle, Father John Smith (father of Geo. A. Smith), to which she consented, and to my certain knowledge was subsequently sealed to him by the Prophet. * * *

"After the death of the Prophet, I told President Brigham Young what he (Joseph Smith) had said to me relative to my taking Mary Ann Hale to wife. Pres. Young said it was right and authorized Father John Smith to seal her to me, which he did on the 14th of November, 1844.

BISHOP S. A. WOOLLEY'S TESTIMONY.

"In September, 1843, at Nauvoo, Ill., I was taken very sick, so much so that most of my folks thought I could not recover. During the time of my illness the Prophet Joseph and Patriarch Hyrum Smith came and administered to me frequently. Father Joseph Smith, in a blessing previously given me, had made me a certain promise in regard to living, in which I had the most implicit confidence; and when I heard friends say (although so far gone that I did not recognize any one) that I would never get well, I would whisper .Yes, I will, Father Smith promised that I should live to see the coming of the Son of Man.' Brother Hyrum said, because of my faith in that blessing, I would not die at that time. The house, in which we lived, was a two-story one, and on the east side was built a store, from which a door opened into the sitting room. During my sickness I occupied one of the up-stairs rooms.

One afternoon in the month of October, A.D. 1843, I think on a Tuesday, about 2 o.clock (I cannot explain just how I knew it was 2 o.clock, but I knew it), I found myself in the sitting room down stairs, and walking to the door leading into the store, I saw my brother Edwin D. putting up the shutters of the store as though it was night. I turned around, saw Mary, his wife, putting down the blinds of the windows in the sitting room. I stood and looked and wondered what was to be done. I saw two or three other persons there; and presently some others, including Patriarch Hyrum Smith, came in. The fireplace was in the north end of the room, and Hyrum sat down at the east end of the grate with his face turned to the northwest. Presently I saw him take a paper out of his coat pocket, and I walked up to his left hand side, looked over his shoulder, and, as he opened the paper, I read .A Revelation on Eternal Marriage and Plurality of Wives,' etc. He then commenced to read what is now known as the revelation on plural marriage. I also read it myself as fast as he did. He stopped and explained as he went along. There was a sister present by the name of German, who, when he had read to a certain point, went to the southwest window, raised the curtain, looked out, then turned around and said, .Brother Hyrum, don.t read any more, I am full up to here,' drawing her hand across her throat. It was there told me by the same power that informed me it was 2 o'clock, that that revelation was of God, and that no man could or would receive a fulness of celestial glory and eternal life, except he obeyed that law, and had more than one living wife at the same time. From this time I commenced to get well, and did so very speedily. In the course of a few days I was down in the sitting room, and one day, as we sat by the fire, my sister-in-law (Mary) and Sister German, who boarded there, were talking about that principle allegorically. I remarked, .Mary, thee need not be afraid to talk right out about that principle, for I know more about it than thee does.' .What principle?. said she. .Why, that principle about a man having more wives than one,' I replied. She looked with amazement and said, .What does thee mean?. (We were raised Quakers.) .I mean,' said I, .that I stood right there (pointing to the place) when Brother Hyrum read that revelation the other day.' .What revelation?. said she (seeming very incredulous). 'Why, the one on plural marriage,' I answered. My brother Edwin D. testified in a public meeting in Manti, Sanpete Co., a number of years ago, that the revelation was read by Bro. Hyrum just as I said, but he (Edwin D.) did not see me there, and he could not relate it as accurately as I have done. Were I to go back on every other principle of what the world call 'Mormonism,' I would have to acknowledge that the principle of plural marriage is of God. I, like Paul of old, whether in the body or out, saw and heard things which were unlawful to utter at that time, for I understood that I was not to tell anyone, or to talk to anyone about it, except those who already knew about it.

Sunday, 5.--Rode out with mother and others for her health. At dinner I was taken suddenly sick; 1 went to the door and vomited all my dinner, dislocated my jaw, and raised fresh blood, and had many symptoms of being poisoned.

In the evening a prayer-meeting in the hall over the store. Mr. Cole having kept a school in the hall for some time, the noise proved a nuisance for the clerks in the history office, and I gave Dr. W. Richards orders to tell Mr. Cole he must find some other room in which to teach school, as the room is needed for councils.

During the evening I walked over to Br Taylors & spent some time in conversing about the principle of the celestial world, or some of them. Br Hiram Smith was in with us & presented some ideas of much interest to me concerning baptism for the dead, the resurrection, redemption and exaltation in the new and everlasting covenant that reacheth into the eternal world. He sealed the marriage covenant between me and my wife Phebe W Carter for time and eternity and gave us the principle of it which was interesting to us. After spending the evening pleasantly we returned home and spent the night.

Letter from Gen. Bennett.

The following was received several weeks since, during our absence. We now lay it before our readers, as we believe many of them are interested in every thing pertaining to the Mormons. Gen. B. it will be recollected, once belonged to that sect, and published a book in exposition of their doctrines and practices. We of course assume none of the responsibility of the statements contained in this letter; but give it as we received it.

Moscow, Iowa, Oct., 28th A.D. 1843.

MR. JAMES G. EDWARDS, Sir:--According to promise, I now address you a few lines in relation to the new doctrine of "MARRYING FOR ETERNITY," lately gotten up by the Holy Joe, the Rough He Goat of Mormonism, for the benefit of his flock. Joe says that as they neither marry, nor are given in marriage; but are as the angels which are in Heaven," in eternity, it has been revealed to him that there will be no harmony in heaven unless the Saints select their companions and marry IN TIME, FOR ETERNITY!!! They must marry in time so as to begin to form that sincere attachment and unsophisticated affection which it is so necessary to consummate in eternity in order to the peace of Heaven.[sic] So Joe Smith has lately been married to his present wife Emma, for eternity as well as for time. The doctrine is that a man may select as many wives for eternity as his devotion to the interests of the Mormon Church will entitle him--and this is to be determined by revelation through His Holiness, the Prophet!

As we have lately been credibly informed, that an Elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, by the name of Hiram Brown, has been preaching Polygamy, and other false and corrupt doctrines, in the county of Lapeer, state of Michigan.

This is to notify him and the Church in general, that he has been cut off from the church, for his iniquity; and he is further notified to appear at the Special Conference, on the 6th of April next, to make answer to these charges.

. . . I am anxious for you and all the rest of our family to be here You know according to Scripture all things have got to be restored if so the old man or patriarch is not to be Separated from his posterity until death nor the children from the father But like good old Jacob who stood at the head of his family till a good old age and then called his sons together and blessed them this doctrine along with many other glorious truths have got to be restored in there place This patriarchal order is already entered into by many families in this city This forenoon we have been hearing Joseph Smith preach in the open air to a congregation of several thousand I rejoice in the truths which I hear from time to time All the tribulation and disappointment through which the Saints have to pass is forgotten when the glory and greatness of the Eternal worlds are placed before our mind It is then of the greatest importance that we keep the commandments of god given to his Saints that we may escape the judgments which await the inhabitants of the earth My desire is that you and I with our Familys and conections may Stand on Mount Zion where there Shall be peace and Safty. . . .

95. Times & Seasons, Vol 5:474; Nauvoo, Ill.; March 15, 1844.

To the brethren of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, living on China Creek, in Hancock County, Greeting: Whereas brother Richard Hewitt has called on me today, to know my views concerning some doctrines that are preached in your place, and states to me that some of your elders say, that a man having a certain priesthood, may have as many wives as he pleases, and that doctrine is taught here: I say unto you that that man teaches false doctrine; for there is no such doctrine taught here; neither is there any such thing practised here. And any man that is found teaching privately or publicly any such doctrine, is culpable, and will stand a chance to be brought before the High Council, and lose his license and membership also: therefore he had better beware what he is about.

And again I say unto you, an elder has no business to undertake to preach mysteries in any part of the world, for God has commanded us all to preach nothing but the first principles unto the world. * * * Therefore beware what you teach! for the mysteries of God are not given to all men; and unto those to whom they are given they are placed under restrictions to impart only such as God will command them; and the residue is to be kept in a faithful breast, otherwise he will be brought under condemnation.

Your obedient servant,
Hyrum Smith

96. Discourse of Hyrum Smith; General conference of the Church. Extract of his 1 1/2 hour address given between 3:35 p.m. and 5:05 p.m.; "Manuscript History of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints--Book El," pp. 1986-1988; Church Archives, 8 April 1844. [Comments by Researcher: This is typed as in the original "Manuscript History"--including the retaining of spelling, punctuation, etc. without drawing attention to these peculiarities by use of sic. Paragraphing is mine, except for the first and last paragraph. The original manuscript of this talk may be found in the Miscellaneous Minutes Collection, Church Archives, and by my comparison, the above fleshed-out version is absolutely faithful to the original. For some reason--probably because it contained rhetorical "denials" of plural marriage--this discourse has never been published in Joseph Smith's History of the Church, though a brief summary of the discourse is found in H.C., VI, pp. 320-321.]

. . . All the mysteries are to be taught in Nauvoo, where they can be taught so as to be understood. no spiritual wife doctrine ever originated with me. God Almighty has given to us by revelation a plan of salvation, redemption, and deliverance, and the power and authority of the Holy Priesthood. Under (p. 1987) the constitution of the Almighty God, everything rightfully and lawfully belongs to man if he fulfills the stipulated conditions; and if a thing belongs to me legally it cannot belong to any one else.

I married me a wife and I am the only man who has any right to her. We had five children; the covenant was made for our lives. She fell into the grave before God showed us this order. God has shown me that the covenant is dead; and had no more force, neither could I have her in the resurrection, but we should be as the Angels: it troubled me.

Brother Joseph said--You can have her sealed to you upon the same principle as you can be baptized for the dead.

I enquired, What can I do for my second wife?

He replied, you can also make a covenant with her for eternity and have her sealed to you by the authority of the Priesthood.

I named the subject to my present wife, and she said "I will act as proxy for your wife that is dead and I will be sealed to you for eternity myself for I never had any other husband. I love you and I do not want to be separated from you nor be for ever alone in the world to come."

If there is any man that has no more sense, and will make a base story of such a fact, his name shall be published. What honest man or woman can find fault with such a doctrine as this? None. It is a doctrine not to be preached to the world; but to the Saints who have obeyed the gospel and gathered to Zion. It is glad tidings of great joy. The Lord has given to Joseph the power to seal on earth and in (p. 1988) heaven those who are found worthy; having the spirit of Elijah and Elias he has power to Seal with a Seal that shall never be broken, and it shall be in force in the morn of the resurrection. Talk about Spiritual wives! One that is dead and gone is Spiritual. We will come up in the morn of the resurrection; and every soul that is saved will receive an eternal increase of glory. Will you believe this? (Loud shouts of aye.) Every great and good principle should be taught to the Saints, but some must not be taught to the world; until they are prepared to receive them; it would be like casting pearls before swine.

No man must attempt to preach them.

97. Statement by Lucy Messerve Smith (wife of Geo. A. Smith, Apostle); Geo. A. Smith papers; Special Collections; University of Utah; Salt Lake City; May 18th, 1892; c. Aug. to Sept. 1845.

I worked for the prophet Joseph Smith's wife Emma Hale Smith Aug. to Sept. 1845. She bore testimony to me that Mormonism was true as it came forth from the servant of the Lord Joseph Smith, but said she, the Twelve have made Bogus of it. As a matter of course I told George A. what sister Emma had said. He related to me the circumstance of his calling on Joseph late one evening and he was just taking a wash and Joseph told him that one of his wives had just been confined, and Emma was the midwife and he had been assisting her. He told me this to prove to me that the women were married for time, as Emma had told me that Joseph never taught any such thing, they were only sealed for eternity they were not to live with them and have children, and now see said she (making reference to her pregnancy). I told her I did not know (anything about it). You do know said she, it's sticking out too plain. I said no more to her but went and told brother George A. Smith how she talked to me.

ANOTHER STATEMENT BY LUCY M. SMITH

I worked for the prophet Joseph's wife Emma Hale Smith in Aug. and Sept. 1845. Then David was one year old. I spun eight ten-knotted skeins forty threads to a knot two yards long, fine Marino wool warp yarn for Sister Emma, for which she paid me extra wages giving me credit of being an extra nice spinner.

Sister Emma bore testimony to me that Mormonism was true as it came forth from the servant of the Lord Joseph Smith, but said she, the Twelve have made bogus of it. She said they were living with their wives and raising children and Joseph never taught any such doctrine, they were only sealed to them for eternity. Said I, Sister Emma, I know nothing about it. Said she, you do know, it is sticking out too plain. I thought she was not much of a lady to dispute my word so I said no more, but informed Apostle George A. Smith what she said to me. Said he, Emma knows better. He then related to me the circumstance of calling on the Prophet one evening about 11 o.clock, and he was out on the porch with a basin of water washing his hands; I said to him what is up, said Joseph, "One of my wives has just been confined and Emma was midwife and I have been assisting her." He said she had granted a number of women for him. This is word for word as I had it from brother G. A. Smith.

98. The Orson Pratt Journals, by E. J. Watson, 1975; p. 495-497; January 11, 1846.

Feelings which began during this period of time continued over approximately three years when they came to a head on January 11th, 1846. Parley P. Pratt had been having difficulties with his own family (one wife left him shortly thereafter) and he apparently accused Sarah Pratt of "influencing his wife against him, and of ruining and breaking up his family," as well as "being an apostate, and of speaking against the heads of the Church and against him," and other accusations "of that agitated nature that I do not feel disposed to name them in this communication." Note here that harsh accusations and "mean" language were very common in frontier times so that the tone of the entire letter appears much harsher to us than it actually was.

Finally, at a meeting in the temple, on the evening of January 11th, 1846, P. P. Pratt publicly accused Sarah Pratt of "whispering against him all over the temple." Orson Pratt blew up. He defended his wife with such ardor that both he and his wife were thrown out of the temple (by vote, not by force) and he was disfellowshipped until he make "satisfaction." Orson Pratt wrote a letter to Brigham Young which is now found among the papers in the Brigham Young collection. This letter explains Orson Pratt's side of the situation and makes several accusations against Parley P. Pratt. Since many of the accusations against Parley were unjust, written in the heat of anger, it is thought best not to reproduce the entire communication here, but just those parts which shed light on the circumstances, and to give in my own words the general content of the letter: It begins as follows:

"City of Joseph, Ill., Jan. 12th 1846.

To Prest. B. Young and Counsel:

Dear Brethren, circumstances seem to urge upon me, the necessity of making some explanations in relation to the affair of last evening, and stating to you some of the true causes which led me to make the remarks which I did to P. P. Pratt."

Orson Pratt then claims that during the past three years Parley had circulated falsehoods about Orson's family, accused Sarah of being an apostate, of speaking evil against the church, against Parley directly, and of influencing Parley's wife against him, all of which Orson declares is false. In the face of these accusations Orson and his wife had held their peace:

"And yet with all these provocations where is there a person that ever heard either of us say the least disrespectful word concerning him or his family? That person cannot be found. His own conduct or that of his wife towards one another is nothing that concerns me or my wife. And consequently we have not meddled with it in any way, shape or manner. As an individual I care nothing about their conduct if he will let me and my family alone."

Orson then continues by making an accusation of adultery against Parley. Apparently these feelings had been festering in Orson's mind since he took over the presidency of the Eastern Saints from Parley in the fall of 1845:

> "With all the light and knowledge that he has received concerning the law of the priesthood and with all the counsels that he has received from our quorum, if he feels at liberty to go into the city of New York or elsewhere and seduce girls or females and sleep and have connexion with them contrary to the law of God, and the sacred counsels of his brethren, it is something that does not concern me as an individual. And if my quorum and the church can fellowship him, I shall find no fault with him, but leave it between him, the church, and God."

What Orson did not know was that Parley had taken a plural wife with him to New York. The following is a brief excerpt from the autobiographical sketch of Belinda Marden Pratt:

> I was sealed to Parley P. Pratt on or about the 20th of Nov. 1844 in one of the chambers of the house of Erastus Snow. I was sealed to this, one of the first twelve apostles of this dispensation by Pres. Brigham Young for time and all eternity. There was but one witness, Brother Erastus Snow.
> On or about the first of December Mr. Pratt was appointed and set apart for a mission to the Eastern States to take charge of the churches in the Atlantic States. As I was without home or relatives in this part of the country he wished me to follow him. I will not attempt to tell the joy that filled my heart. I had never expected to have so great a privilege. He gave me means to go and accordingly I started a day or two after he did. After arriving at St. Louis, went on the same boat with him to Pittsburg and Wheeling, Virginia. From there we crossed the Allegheny Mountains by stage to Wilmington; from there by rail to Philadelphia. Here we were obliged to wait a few days for money, then we went in to the city of New York by rail and arrived Christmas Eve--he to visit some of the saints and I to find a boarding place among strangers, for it was not known that the sealing power was practiced except by a few of the saints.

I found a boarding place and paid my expenses sewing. After a short time I rented a house and Mr. Pratt boarded with me. I commenced dress-making and knitting baby socks which I sold by the dozen, earning from fifty cents to a dollar a day nearly all the time I was there besides my house work and washing.

Mr. Pratt was called home to Nauvoo August 18th, 1845 and I started with him. We came home by the Erie Canal and lakes journeying from Chicago to Nauvoo by land. I went to Mr. Beach's tavern to board while Mr. Pratt went to his home. After a while it was arranged for his wife Mary and I to commence housekeeping in rooms upstairs in Mr. Pratt's house. (WDPP 74-75)

Orson's letter continues:

"All these things, however despicable, we could have borne without uttering one syllable to any person living.

But when it comes to that, that my wife cannot come into this holy & consecrated temple to enjoy the meetings and society of the saints, without being attacked by his false accusations and hellish lies, and that too, in the presence of a large assembly, I feel as though it was too much to be borne. Where is there a person, that was present last evening, that heard my wife say the least thing against him or his family; I am bold to say that you may question every one then present in the temple and you cannot find one that will say that she uttered the most distant hint or insinuation against him. And yet she was accused by him, before that respectable company, in the most impudent and malicious manner of whispering against him all over the temple. Under these circumstances, brethren, I verily supposed that I had a perfect right to say a few words in defense of my much injured family. I therefore accused him of false accusations and lying. It was my belief at that time, that there was no place nor circumstances, in heaven, on earth, or in hell, too sacred to defend the cause of my innocent family when they were publicly attacked in so unjust and insulting manner. Which of you, brethren, would have suffered any man to attack, abuse, and insult your wife in so shameful a manner & not opened his mouth? Would any of you have borne it with the same patience and with as few words as I did? If I had, especially without the least cause, insulted any of your families in so disgraceful a manner I should have been very thankful if I escaped without getting my head broke. And I never would have voted to turn one of you out of meeting... under the same circumstances.

Now with regard to confession; After I learned that it was my duty to stand and hear my family abused in the highest degree without the least provocation, and yet not open my mouth in her defense, I immediately confessed my fault to the counsel, but my confession was rejected. Now brethren, I stand ready and willing to make any further confessions to the council, necessary to my restoration from banishment to the enjoyment of your meetings, which you in your wisdom may dictate. By the decision of last evening I cannot consider myself entitled to take any part in any meetings of that sacred nature until such times as you shall dictate. And as I frankly & freely confessed the thing pointed out by the Prest. as being wrong, namely "The opening of my mouth." And as I know of nothing else which the counsel require me to confess, I can but remain in my banishment until the council shall reveal their will concerning me which I pledge myself to abide let it be what it will.

Brethren I have freely poured out my complaints before you, and boldly say that you are the only persons to whom I have stated my grievances, and to you I look for counsel and again pledge myself to abide the same. . . whatever else you shall require I will do it if possible.

With feelings of the most profound respect and unlimited confidence I subscribe myself your much injured though patient brother,

Orson Pratt."

On the 16th I met with the Twelve and others at the house of G.B. Wallace. The High Council was organized as follow: --lsaac Morley

(President), Eleazer Miller, Tutus Billings, Levi Jackman, Shadrach Roundy, John Vance, Ira Elkridge, Henry G. Sherwood, Phinehas Richards, Edwin D. Woolley, William W. Major, and Elisha H. Groves. John Nebeker was appointed President of the Elders. quorum. I instructed bishop Newel K. Whitney to organize the lesser priesthood. I advised the best high priests, the most substantial men, be set apart to act as teachers under their bishops or presidents, so that the bishops might have their wards perfectly visited and like little children, and that the high priests might take young men with them, that they might also have experience in teaching. The bishops counsellors also might act as teachers in their wards. In relation to the duties of the president of the stake I remarked: --"He should take charge of all the affairs of the stake, spiritual and temporal, under the direction of the First Presidency. It is his privilege to call on the Presidency, the Twelve, the High Priests, the different quorums, or any man in the stake, to assist him, whether in making a suitable place to meet in, or in spiritual matters, and he should see that the bishops and teachers do their duty. He should be present when the lesser priesthood are organized and called together, and give directions in temporal matters, and lay before them the necessities of the place: to build up a city to the name of the Lord. He should see that there are no iklers and no waste, and he should be always on hand. He should be the first man to walk on the stand at meetings. It is his right to call on me and whom he pleases to preach, and I submit to the powers that be; and if I choose to preside, I.11 tell him. It is his duty to see that the congregation is in order, and that every man is in his place in spiritual things and in temporal things, to see that every man pays his tithing and his taxes, and if any will not pay, bring up such a man to account. The Twelve are not the ruling authorities here, they are as subject to the authorities, to the President of the Stake and the High Council, and ought to observe every law and ordinance as much, as any other members of the Church, the same as if they had no office. If the First Presidency are absent, and the Presidency of this stake, or the High Council, are in transgression, then, if the Twelve; or any one of them, be there, it is his right and duty to step in and say "I am the man to lead you," and if the High Council think they are as big as he, let him call the people together, and he can wield the power and the sword of the Spirit as he pleases if he is magnifying his office. If the people are given up to wickedness, and will not hearken to him, he can bid them good bye, and leave them in the hands of the devil and God. The High priests are a local quorum, to fill up the travelling quorum, when needed."

Brother Lorenzo Snow made some remarks on the character of Jesus Christ, and asked for light. I replied --"While on a mission to England, the following came forcibly to my mind --.As God was, so are we now; as he is, so we shall be.. Our Father was once born of parents, having a father and a mother the same as we have. He is the very eternal Father, because of the creation of God. He is the Savior of the world, the root of spirit and the offering of flesh, the only Begotten of the Father in the flesh. The Father came down and begat him, the same as we do now, and Jesus was the only one. Moses was as God to the children of Israel, so was Joseph to us, and no man could love God without loving Joseph. In him centred [sic] the revelations of God. The spirit went right to him and told him. The spiritual wife doctrine came upon me while abroad, in such a manner that I never forget. Particular things belong to one blood, but, after all, we are of one blood and one flesh, all the nations of the earth. Joseph said to me-"I command you to go and get another wife." I felt as if the grave was better for me than anything, but I was filled with the Holy Ghost, so that my wife and brother Kimball's wife would upbraid me for lightness in those days. I could jump up and hollow. My blood was as clear as West India rum and my flesh was clear. I said to Joseph, "Suppose I should apostatize, after taking another wife, would not my family be worse off?" Joseph answered--"There are certain bounds set to men, and if a man is faithful and pure to these bounds, God will take him out of the world; if he sees him falter, he will take him to himself. You are past these bounds, Brigham, and you have this consolation." But I never had any fears of not being saved. Then I said to Joseph, I was ready to go ahead. He passed certain bounds before certain revelations were given."

(p. 54) It is well known, however, to the congregation before me, that the Latter-day Saints have embraced the doctrine of a plurality of wives, as a part of their religious faith. It is not, as many have supposed, a doctrine embraced by them to gratify the carnal lusts and feelings of man; that is not the object of the doctrine. * * *

. . . we will show you that it is incorporated as a part of our religion, and necessary for our exaltation to the fulness of the Lord's glory in the eternal world. . . . we consider it an essential doctrine to glory and exaltation, to our fulness of happiness in the world to come. * * *

(P. 58) The Lord ordained marriage between male and female as a law through which spirits should come here and take tabernacles, and enter into the second state of existence. The Lord Himself solemnized the first marriage pertaining to this globe. . . . The first marriage that we have any account of, was between two immortal beings--old father Adam and old mother Eve; they were immortal beings. . . . This marriage was celebrated between two immortal beings. For how long? Until death? No. That was entirely out of the question; there could have been no such thing in the ceremony.

. . . the ordinance of union was eternal; the sealing of the great Jehovah upon Adam and Eve was eternal in its nature, and was never instituted for the purpose of being overthrown and brought to an end. It is known that the "Mormons" are a peculiar people about marriage; we believe in marrying, not only for time, but for all eternity. * * *

(p. 59) What is the object of this union. . . ? It is clearly expressed; for, says the Lord unto the male and female, I command you to multiply and replenish the earth. And, inasmuch as we have proved that the marriage ordinance was eternal in its nature, previous to the fall, if we are restored back to what was lost by the fall, we are restored for the purpose of carrying out the commandment given before the fall, namely, to multiply and replenish the earth. Does it say, continue to multiply for a few years, and then the marriage contract must cease, and there shall be no further opportunity of carrying out this command, but it shall have an end? No, there is nothing specified of this kind; but the fall has brought in disunion through death; it is not a part of the original plan; consequently, when male and female are restored from the fall, by virtue of the everlasting and eternal covenant of marriage, they will continue to increase and multiply to all ages of eternity, to raise up beings after their own order, and in their own likeness and image, germs of intelligence, that are destined, in their times and seasons, to become not only sons of God, but Gods themselves. * * *

Let us say a few words, before we leave this part of the subject, on the promises made to Abraham, Isaac, (p. 60) and Jacob. The promises were, Lift up your eyes, and behold the stars; so thy seed shall be, as numberless and the stars. What else did He promise: Go to the sea-shore, and look at the ocean of sand, and behold the smallness of the particles thereof, and then realize that your seed shall be as numberless as the sands. * * *

How did Abraham manage to get a foundation laid for this mighty kingdom? Was he to accomplish it all through one wife? No. Sarah gave a certain woman to him whose name was Hagar, and by her a seed was to be raised up unto him. Is this all? No. We read of his wife Keturah, and also of a plurality of wives and concubines, which he had, from whom he raised up many sons. Here then, was a foundation laid for the fulfilment of the great and grand promise concerning the multiplicity of his seed. It would have been rather a slow process, if Abraham had been confined to one wife, like some of those narrow, contracted nations of modern Christianity.

I think there is only about one-fifth of the population of the globe, that believe in the one-wife system; the other four-fifths believe in the doctrine of a plurality of wives. They have had it handed down from time immemorial, and are not half so narrow and contracted in their minds as some (p. 61) of the nations of Europe and America, who have done away with the promises, and deprived themselves of the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The nations do not know anything about the blessings of Abraham; and even those who have only one wife, cannot get rid of their covetousness, and get their little hearts large enough to share their property with a numerous family; they are so penurious, and so narrow and contracted in their feelings, that they take every possible care not to have their families large; they do not know what is in the future, nor what blessings they are depriving themselves of, because of the traditions of their fathers; they do not know that a man's posterity, in the eternal worlds, are to constitute his glory, his kingdom, and dominion. * * *

Again, let us look at Sarah's peculiar position in regard to Abraham. She understood the whole matter; she knew that, unless seed was raised up to Abraham, he would come short of his glory; and she understood the promise of the Lord, and longed for Abraham to have seed. And when she saw that she was old, and fearing that she should not have the privilege of raising up seed, she gave to Abraham, Hagar. Would Gentile Christendom do such thing now-a-days? 0 no; they would consider it enough to send a man to an endless hell of fire and brimstone. Why? Because tradition has instilled this in their minds as a dreadful, awful thing.

It matters not to them how corrupt they are in female prostitution, if they are lawfully married to only one wife; but it would be considered an awful thing by them to raise up a posterity from more than one wife; this would be wrong indeed; but to go into a brothel, and there debauch themselves in the lowest haunts of degradation all the days of their lives, they consider only a trifling thing; nay, they can even license such institutions in Christian nations, and it all passes off very well. * * *

(p. 62) It [whoredoms, adultery, fornication] is to be prevented in the way the Lord devised in ancient times; that is, by giving to His faithful servants a plurality of wives, by which a numerous and faithful posterity can be raised up, and taught in the principles of righteousness and truth...

But again, there is another reason why this plurality should exist among the Latter-day Saints. I have already given you one reason, and that is, that you might inherit the blessings and promises made to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and receive a continuation of your posterity, that they may become as numerous as the sand upon the sea-shore. There is another reason, and a good one, too. * * *

. . . the righteous are gathering out, and are still being gathered from among the nations, and being planted by themselves, one thing is certain--that people are better calculated to bring up children in the right way, than any other under the whole heavens. * * * I have already told you that the spirits of men and women, all had a previous existence, thousands of years ago, in the heavens, in the presence of God; and I have already told you that among them are many spirits that are more noble, more intelligent than others, that were called the great and mighty ones, reserved until the dispensation of the fulness of times, to come forth (p. 63) upon the face of the earth, through a noble parentage that shall train their young and tender minds in the truths of eternity, that they may grow up in the Lord, and be strong in the power of His might, be clothed upon with His glory, be filled with exceeding great faith; that the visions of eternity may be opened to their minds; that they may be Prophets, Priests, and Kings to the Most High God. * * *

Then is it not reasonable, and consistent that the Lord should say unto His faithful and chosen servants, that had proved themselves before Him all the day long; that had been ready and willing to do whatsoever His will required them to perform--take unto yourselves more wives, like unto the Patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob of old. . . ? Suppose the Lord should answer this question, would He not say, I have here in reserve, noble spirits, that have been waiting for thousands of years, to come forth in the fulness of times, and which I designed should come forth through these my faithful and chosen servants, for I know they will do my will, and they will teach their children after them to do it. Would not this be the substance of the language, if the Lord should give us an answer upon this subject?

But then another question will arise: how are these things to be conducted? Are they to be left at random? Is every servant of God at liberty to run here and there, seeking out the daughters of men as wives unto themselves without any restriction, law, or condition? No. We find these things were restricted in ancient times. * * *

So in these days; let me announce to this congregation, that there is but one man in all the world, at the same (p. 64) time, who can hold the keys of this matter; but one man has power to turn the key to inquire of the Lord, and to say whether I, or these my brethren, or any of the rest of this congregation, or the Saints upon the face of the whole earth, may have this blessing of Abraham conferred upon them; he holds the keys of these matters now. . . .

But, says one, how have you obtained this information? By new revelation. When was it given, and to whom? It was given to our Prophet, Seer, and Revelator, Joseph Smith, on the 12th day of July, 1843; only about eleven months before he was martyred for the testimony of Jesus.

He held the keys of these matters; . . . and they belong to that man who stands at the head to preside over all the affairs of the Church and kingdom of God in the last days. They are the sealing keys of power, or in other words, of Elijah, having been committed and restored to the earth by Elijah, the Prophet....

106. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 6; President Brigham Young; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; August 29, 1852.

You heard brother Pratt state, this morning, that a revelation would be read this afternoon, which was given previous to Joseph's death. It contains a doctrine a small portion of the world is opposed to; but I can deliver a prophecy upon it. Though that doctrine has not been practised by the Elders, this people have believed in it for years.

The original copy of this revelation was burnt up. William Clayton was the man who wrote it from the mouth of the Prophet. In the meantime, it was in Bishop Whitney's possession. He wished the privilege to copy it, which brother Joseph granted. Sister Emma burnt the original. The reason I mention this is because that the people who did know of the revelation suppose it is not now in existence.

The revelation will be read to you. The principle spoken upon by brother Pratt, this morning, we believe in. And I tell you--for I know it-it will sail over and ride triumphantly above all the prejudice and priestcraft of the day: it will be fostered and believed in by the more intelligent portion of the world as one of the best doctrines ever proclaimed to any people. Your hearts need not beat; you need not think that a mob is coming here to tread upon the sacred liberty which the Constitution of our country guarantees unto us, for it will not be. The world have known, long ago, even in brother Joseph's days, that he had more wives than one. One of the Senators in Congress knew it very well. Did he oppose it? No: but he has been our friend all the day long, especially upon that subject. He said pointedly to his friends, "If the United States do not adopt that very method--let them continue as they now are--pursue the precise course they are now pursuing, and it will come to this--that their generations will not live until they are 30 years old. They are going to destruction; disease is spreading so fast among the inhabitants of the United States, that they are born rotten with it, and in a few years they are gone." Said he, "Joseph has introduced the best plan for restoring and establishing strength and long life among men, of any man on the earth; and the Mormons are a very good and virtuous people."

Many others are of the same mind: they are not ignorant of what we are doing in our social capacity. They have cried out, "Proclaim it." But it would not do, a few years ago: everything must come in its time, as there is a time to all things. I am now ready to proclaim it.

The views of the Saints in regard to the ancient Patriarchal Order of Matrimony or Plurality of Wives as developed in a revelation given through Joseph the Seer, will be fully published.

The wife stands on the left hand of her husband, while the bride stands on her left. The President, then, puts this question to the wife: "Are you willing to give this woman to your husband to be his lawful and wedded wife for time and for all eternity? If you are, you will manifest it by placing her right hand within the right hand of your husband." The right hands of the bridegroom and bride, being thus joined, the wife takes her husband by the left arm, as if in the attitude of walking: the President, then, proceeds to ask the following question of the man: "Do you brother, (calling him by name,) take sister, (calling the bride by her name,) by the right hand to receive her unto yourself to be your lawful and wedded wife, and you to be her lawful and wedded husband for time and for all eternity, with a covenant and promise, on your part, that you will fulfill all the laws, rites, and ordinances, pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this in the presence of God, angels, and these witnesses of your own free will and choice?" The bridegroom answers, yes.

The President, then, puts the question to the bride: "Do you, sister, (calling her by name,) take brother, (calling him by name,) by the right hand, and give yourself to him, to be his lawful and wedded wife for time and for all eternity with a covenant and promise, on your part, that you will fulfill all the laws, rites, and ordinances, pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this in the presence of God, angels, and these witnesses of your own free will and choice?" The bride answers, yes.

The President then says, "In the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the authority of the Holy Priesthood, I pronounce you legally and lawfully husband and wife for time and for all eternity; and I seal upon you the blessings of the holy resurrection, with power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality, and eternal lives; and I seal upon you the blessings of thrones, and dominions, and principalities, and powers, and exaltations, together with the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and say unto you be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, that you may have joy and rejoicing in your posterity in the day of the Lord Jesus. All these blessings, together with all other blessings pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, I seal upon your heads, through your faithfulness unto the end, by the authority of the Holy Priesthood, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen."

109. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1:119-120; Brigham Young; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; February 27, 1853.

The Elders of Israel frequently call upon me--"Brother Brigham, a word in private, if you please." Bless me, this is no secret to me, I know what you want, it is to get a wife! "Yes, brother Brigham, if you are willing."

I tell you here, now, in the presence of the Almighty God, it is not the privilege of any Elder to have even ONE wife, before he has honored his Priesthood, before he has magnified his calling. If you obtain one, it is by mere permission, to see what you will do, how you will act, whether you will conduct yourself in righteousness in that holy estate. TAKE CARE! Elders of Israel, be cautious! or you will lose your wives and your children. If you abuse your wives, turn them out of doors, and treat them in a harsh and cruel manner, you will be left wifeless and childless; you will have no increase in eternity. You will have bartered this blessing, this privilege, away; you will have sold your birthright, as Esau did his blessing, and it can never come to you again, never, NO NEVER!

Look to it, ye Elders! you will awake from your dream, alas! but too soon, and then you will realize the truth of the remarks I am making to-day. Whose privilege is it to have women sealed to him? It is his who has stood the test, whose integrity is unswerving, who loves righteousness because it is right, and the truth because there is no error therein, and virtue because it is a principle that dwells in the bosom of Him who sits enthroned in the highest heavens; for it is a principle which existed with God in all eternities, and is a co-operator, a co-worker betwixt man and his Maker, to exalt man, and bring him into His presence, and make him like unto Himself! It is such a man's privilege to have wives and children, and neighbors, and friends, who wish to be sealed to him. Who else? No one. I tell you nobody else. DO YOU HEAR IT?

Many applications will unquestionably be made to me for wives, and, perhaps, by men too who will steal, or trespass upon me, their neighbors, kill their stock, do wickedly in various ways. Nothing would damn such men sooner than to give them this privilege. I answer the brethren, they have to go upon their own responsibility. I tell you the truth. If you are a first-rate good man, and honor your Priesthood, it is your privilege. The man who has proved himself before God, has been faithful, has gone through and performed everything the Lord has laid upon him to do, for the purpose of building up and sustaining His kingdom, has proved himself before men, angels, and his Father in heaven, he is the only character that will increase, and obtain a celestial glory.

110. The Seer, p. 41; Elder Orson Pratt; March 1853.

When a man who has a wife, teaches her the law of God, as revealed to the ancient patriarchs, and as manifested by new revelation, and she refuses to give her consent for him to marry another according to that law, then it becomes necessary for her to state before the President the reasons why she withholds her consent: if her reasons are sufficient and justifiable, and the husband is found in the fault or in transgression, then he is not permitted to take any step in regard to obtaining another. But if the wife can show no good reason why she refuses to comply with the law which was given unto Sarah of old, then it is lawful for her husband, if permitted by revelation through the Prophet, to be married to others without her consent, and he will be justified, and she will be condemned, because she did not give them unto him, as Sarah gave Hagar unto Abraham, and as Rachel and Leah gave Bilhah and Zilpah to their husband, Jacob.

* * * Celsus was a heathen philosopher; and what does he say upon the subject of Christ and his Apostles, and their belief? He says, "The grand reason why the Gentiles and philosophers of his school persecuted Jesus Christ, was, because he had so many wives; there were Elizabeth, and Mary, and a host of others that followed him." After Jesus went from the stage of action, the Apostles followed the example of their master. For instance, John the beloved disciple, writes in his second Epistle, "Unto the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth." Again, he says, "Having many things to write unto you (or communicate), I would not write with paper and ink: but I trust to come unto you, and speak face to face, that our joy may be full." Again--"The children of thy elect sister greet thee." This ancient philosopher says they were both John's wives. Paul says, "Mine answer to them that do examine me is this:--.

Have we not power to lead about a sister, a wife, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas." He, according to Celsus, had a numerous train of wives.

The grand reason of the burst of public sentiment in anathemas upon Christ and his disciples, causing his crucifixion, was evidently based upon polygamy, according to the testimony of the philosophers who rose in that age. A belief in the doctrine of a plurality of wives caused the persecution of Jesus and his followers. We might almost think they were "Mormons."

Do you, brother (calling him by name), take sister (calling the bride by her name) by the right hand and receive her unto yourself, to be your lawful and wedded wife, and you to be her lawful and wedded husband, for time and for all eternity, with a covenant and promise on your part, that you will fulfill all the laws, rites, and ordinances, pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this in the presence of God, Angels, and these witnesses, of your own free will and choice? (The bridegroom answers: yes)

In the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the authority of the Holy Priesthood, I pronounce you legally and lawfully husband and wife, for time and for all eternity; and I seal upon you the blessings of the holy resurrection, with power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality and eternal life; and I seal upon you the blessings of thrones, and dominions and principalities, and powers and exaltations, together with the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and say unto you, be faithful and multiply and replenish the earth, that you may have joy and rejoicing in your posterity in the day of the Lord Jesus. President Young preached this afternoon & spoke upon the Law of Consecration & had an interesting conversation in our Prayer Circle. The subject of Elder Orson Pratt publishing the Seer and the doctrine it contained was brought up in conversation. President Young said he ought not to have published the marriage ceremony--lt was sacred and one of the last ceremonies attended to in the endowments and ought not to have been given to the world. Brother Pratt said that he thought it was no harm as the plurality of wives and its doctrine was to be published to the world. He said he should not have done it--if he had thought there had been the least harm in it. President Young said he was satisfied that he intended no wrong in it.

114. History of Utah, pp. 353-354, by Hubert H. Bancroft. n.d.; Typed w/o [sic]. This rendition closely follows the pattern given by Orson Pratt in The Seer.

Ann Eliza Webb, who was twice married according to Mormon practice, once by Brigham, and afterward to him, thus describes the ceremonies:

After registration, which includes names, age, place of birth, with county, state, or country, .we went before Brigham Young, who was waiting for us,' and who asked, .Do you, Brother James Dee, take Sister Ann Eliza Webb by the right hand, to receive her unto yourself, to be your lawful and wedded wife, and you to be her lawful and wedded husband, for time and eternity, with a covenant and promise on your part that you will fulfill all the laws, rights, and ordinances pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this in the presence of God, angels, and these witnesses, of your own free will and accord?. .Yes.. .Do you, Sister Ann Eliza Webb, take Brother James Dee by the right hand, and give yourself to him, to be his lawful and wedded wife, for time and for all eternity, with a covenant and promise on your part that you will fulfill all the laws, rights, and ordinances, pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting

Amen.

'The scribe then entered the date of the marriage, together with the names of my mother and the one or two friends who accompanied us.' When the marriage is a polygamous one, the wife stands on the left of her husband, and the bride at her left hand. The president then puts this question to the wife: 'Are you willing to give this woman to your husband, to be his lawful and wedded wife for time and for all eternity? If you are, you will manifest it by placing her right hand within the right hand of your husband.' The right hands of the husband and bride being thus joined, the wife takes her husband by the left arm, as in walking, and the ceremony then proceeds as in the manner quoted above. Of course, as these ceremonies took place in the endowment house, the temple robes were worn.

. . . "Then you really mean to hold to the doctrine that the Savior of the world was married; do you mean to be understood so? And if so, do you mean to be understood that he had more than one wife?" * * *

Now suppose I should set out myself, and travel through the cities of the nation as a celebrated reformer, preaching revelations and sentiments as lofty as the skies, and rolling out ideas strange and new, to which the multitude were entirely unaccustomed; and wherever I went, suppose I had with me three or four women--one combing my head, another washing my feet, and another shedding tears upon them, and wiping them with the hair of her head. Suppose I should lean upon them, and they upon me, would it not appear monstrous in the eyes of the world? * * *

How was it with Mary and Martha, and other women that followed him? In old times, and it is common in this day, the women, even as Sarah, called their husbands Lord; the word Lord is tantamount to husband in some languages, master, lord, husband, are about synonymous. In England we frequently hear the wife say, "Where is my master?" She does not mean a tyrant, but as Sarah called her husband Lord, she designates hers by the word master. When Mary of old came to the sepulchre on the first day of the week, instead of finding Jesus she saw two angels in white, "And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She said unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord," or husband, "and I know not where they have laid him. And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away. Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master." Is there not here manifested the affections of a wife. These words speak the kindred ties and sympathies that are common to that relation of husband and wife. Where will you find a family so nearly allied by the ties of common religion? "Well," you say, "that appears rather plausible, but I want a little more evidence, I want you to find where it says the Savior was actually married." * * *

We will turn over to the account of the marriage in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. Yes, and somebody else too. You will find it in the 2nd chapter of John's Gospel; remember it and read it when you go home. "And the third day [JST of the week] there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there: and both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage. And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come. [JST "Woman, what wilt thou have me to do for thee? that will I do; for mine hour is not yet come"] His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it. And there were set there six water pots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece. Jesus saith unto them, Fill the water pots with water. And they filled them up to the brim. And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it. When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants which drew the water knew;) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom, and saith unto him"--that is, the ruler of the feast saith unto the bridegroom, "Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now."

Gentlemen, that is as plain as the translators, or different councils over this Scripture, dare allow it to go to the world, but the thing is there; it is told; Jesus was the bridegroom at the marriage of Cana of Galilee, and he told them what to do. * * *

. . . I shall say here, that before the Savior died, he looked upon his own natural children, as we look upon ours; he saw his seed, and immediately afterwards he was cut off from the earth; but who shall declare his generation? They had no father to hold them in honorable remembrance; they passed into the shades of obscurity, never to be exposed to mortal eye as the seed of the blessed one. For no doubt had they been exposed to the eye of the world, those infants might have shared the same fate as the children in Jerusalem in the days of Herod, when all the children were ordered to be slain under such an age, with the hopes of slaying the infant Savior. They might have suffered by the hand of the assassin, as the sons of many kings have done who were heirs apparent to the thrones of their fathers. * * *

Says one, "Why is it that men in your society may have more than one wife? What is the policy of it?" The men of God who hold the Priesthood of heaven, and imbibe the light of the Holy Ghost, have the privilege and right. Now let me illustrate one thing, and let me bring it home to you. There may be some under the sound of my voice that the case will fit. Some man will perhaps marry a wife of his youth. She dies--he loved her as he loves himself, and her memory ever lingers about his heart. He marries another, and she dies, and he loved her equally as well. He marries a third, and so on, and he loved them all. By and bye he dies, and he dies with devoted affection and love to them all.

Now in the resurrection, which of these wives will he claim? There is no difference in his love to any of them, and they have all perhaps borne children to him. He loves the children of one mother as well as the children of another. What say you? Which shall he have in the resurrection? Why, let him have the whole of them. To whom are they nearer allied? * * *

. . . The revelation of the Almighty from God to a man who holds the Priesthood, and is enlightened by the Holy Ghost, whom God designs to make a ruler and a governor in his eternal kingdom is, that he may have many wives, that when he goes yonder to another sphere he may still continue to perpetuate his species, and of the increase of his kingdom and government there shall be no end, says Daniel. How does the kingdom of God increase, but by the increase of its subjects? Everything increases, everything multiplies. * * *

These men of God who are married here by the authority of heaven are sealed on earth and in heaven. The good old book says, that which is sealed on earth is sealed in heaven; and whosesoever sins ye remit on earth shall be remitted in heaven, and whatsoever ye bind on earth shall be bound in heaven. That Priesthood that has not this power is no better than a rope of sand. The true Priesthood alone possesses it. The Priesthood that has not this power is a mock Priesthood, and not the Priesthood of the Almighty. * * *

When the servants of God and their wives go to heaven there is an eternal union, and they will multiply and replenish the world to which they are going.

116. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 2:88-90; Brigham Young; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; October 6, 1854.

In Paul's first epistle to Timothy, third chapter, he writes as follows--[Quotes 1 Timothy 3: 1-12]

Instead of my believing for a moment that Paul wished to signify to Timothy that he must select a man to fill the office of a Bishop that would have but one wife, I believe directly the reverse; but his advice to Timothy amounts simply to this--lt would not be wise for you to ordain a man to the office of a Bishop unless he has a wife; you must not ordain a single or unmarried man to that calling. * * *

Paul, knowing by observation and his own experience the temptations that were continually thrown before the Elders, gave instructions paramount to this--Before you ordain a person to be a Bishop, to take the charge of a Branch in any one district or place, see that he has a wife to begin with; he did not say, "but one wife;" it does not read so; but he must have one to begin with, in order that he may not be continually drawn into temptation while he is in the line of his duty, visiting the houses of widows and orphans, the poor, the afflicted, and the sick in his ward. He is to converse with families, sometimes upon family matters, and care for them, but if he has no wife, he is not so capable of taking care of a family as he otherwise would be, and perhaps he is not capable of taking care of himself. Now select a young man who has preserved himself in purity and holiness, one who has carried himself circumspectly before the people, and before God; it would not do to ordain him to the office of a Bishop, for he may be drawn into temptation, and he lacks experience in family matters; but take a man who has one wife at least, a man of experience, like thousands of our Elders, men of strength of mind, who have determination in them to preserve themselves pure under all circumstances, at all times, and in all places in their words. Now, Timothy, select such a man to be a Bishop. * * *

. . . But the whole subject of the marriage relation is not in my reach, nor in any other man's reach on this earth. It is without beginning of days or end of years; it is a hard matter to reach. We can tell some things with regard to it; it lays the foundation for worlds, for angels, and for the Gods; for intelligent beings to be crowned with glory, immortality, and eternal lives. In fact, it is the thread which runs from the beginning to the end of the holy Gospel of salvation--of the Gospel of the Son of God; it is from eternity to eternity.

117. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 2:216; President George A. Smith; March 18, 1855.

Now if the Lord had considered it wisdom, on the day of the Kirtland endowment and great solemn assembly, to come forward and reveal to the children of men the facts that are laid down plainly in the Bible, and had told them that without the law of sealing, no man could be exalted to a throne in the celestial kingdom, that is, without he had a woman by his side; and that no woman could be exalted in the celestial world, without she was exalted with a man at her head. . . had he revealed this simple sentiment, up would have jumped some man, saying, "What, got to have a woman sealed to me in order to be saved, in order to be exalted to thrones, dominions, and eternal increase?" "Yes." "I do not believe a word of it, I cannot stand that, for I never intended to get married, I do not believe in any of this nonsense." At the same time, perhaps somebody else might have had faith to receive it. Again up jumps somebody else, "Brother Joseph, I have had two wives in my lifetime, cannot I have them both in eternity?" "No." If he had said yes, perhaps we should all have apostatized at once.

118. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 3:264-266; President Brigham Young; the Bowery, Provo; July 14, 1855.

I have a few words to say concerning one item of doctrine, that I seldom think of mentioning before a public congregation; I refer to the doctrine pertaining to raising up a royal priesthood to the name of Israel's God, for which purpose the revelation was given to Joseph, concerning the right of faithful Elders, in taking to themselves more than one wife. * * *

. . . God never introduced the Patriarchal order of marriage with a view to please man in his carnal desires, nor to punish females for anything which they had done; but He introduced it for the express purpose of raising up to His name a royal Priesthood, a peculiar people. * * *

. . . but, by the introduction of this law, I can be the instrument in preparing tabernacles for those spirits which have to come in this dispensation. Under this law, I and my brethren are preparing tabernacles for those spirits which have been preserved to enter into bodies of honor, and be taught the pure principles of life and salvation, and those tabernacles will grow up and become mighty in the kingdom of our God.

. . . Spirits must be born, even if they have to come to brothels for their fleshly coverings, and many of them will take the lowest and meanest spirit house that there is in the world, rather than do without, and will say, "Let me have a tabernacle, that I may have a chance to be perfected."

The Lord has instituted this plan for a holy purpose and not with a design to afflict or distress the people; hence, an important and imperative duty is placed upon all holy men and women, and the reward will follow, for it is said, that the children will add to our honor and glory. * * *

This law was never given of the Lord for any but his faithful children; it is not for the ungodly at all; no man has a right to a wife, or wives, unless he honors his Priesthood and magnifies his calling before God. * * *

This revelation, which God gave to Joseph, was for the express purpose of providing a channel for the organization of tabernacles, for those spirits to occupy who have been reserved to come forth in the kingdom of God, and that they might not be obliged to take tabernacles out of the kingdom of God. * * *

Plurality of wives is not designed to afflict you nor me, but is purposed for our exaltation in the kingdoms of God. ***

Now if any of you will deny the plurality of wives, and continue to do so, I promise that you will be damned; and I will go still further and say, take this revelation, or any other revelation that the Lord has given, and deny it in your feelings, and I promise that you will be damned.

119. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; Wilford Woodruff; April 15, 1856.

While reading the revelation upon the patriarchal marriage. . . President Brigham Young remarked that the Lord will not require it of this people until they become sanctified and are led by the spirit of God so as not to shed innocent blood.

120. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 4:55-57; Brigham Young; the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; September 21, 1856.

Now for my proposition; it is more particularly for my sisters, as it is frequently happening that women say they are unhappy. Men will say, "My wife, though a most excellent woman, has not seen a happy day since I took my second wife;" "No, not a happy day for a year," says one; and another has not seen a happy day for five years. It is said that women are tied down and abused: that they are misused and have not the liberty they ought to have; that many of them are wading through a perfect flood of tears, because of the conduct of some men, together with their own folly.

I wish my own women to understand that what I am going to say is for them as well as others, and I want those who are here to tell their sisters, yes, all the women of this community, and then write it back to the States, and do as you please with it. I am going to give you from this time to the 6th day of October next, for reflection, that you may determine whether you wish to stay with your husbands or not, and then I am going to set every woman at liberty and say to them, Now go your way, my women with the rest, go your way. And my wives have got to do one of two things; either round up their shoulders to endure the afflictions of this world, and live their religion, or they may leave, for I will not have them about me. I will go into heaven alone, rather than have scratching and fighting around me. I will set all at liberty. "What, first wife too?" Yes, I will liberate you all. * * *

Let Every man thus treat his wives, keeping raiment enough to clothe his body; and say to your wives, "Take all that I have and be set at liberty; but if you stay with me you shall comply with the law of God, and that too without any murmuring and whining. You must fulfil the law of God in every respect, and round up your shoulders to walk up to the mark without any grunting.

. . . If my wife had borne me all the children that she ever would bare, the celestial law would teach me to take young women that would have children.

Do you understand this? I have told you many times that there are multitudes of pure and holy spirits waiting to take tabernacles, now what is our duty?--to prepare tabernacles for them; to take a course that will not tend to drive those spirits into the families of the wicked, where they will be trained in wickedness, debauchery, and every species of crime. It is the duty of every righteous man and woman to prepare tabernacles for all the spirits they can; hence if my women leave, I will go and search up others who will abide the celestial law, and let all I now have go where they please; though I will send the Gospel to them.

This is the reason why the doctrine of plurality of wives was revealed, that the noble spirits which are waiting for tabernacles might be brought forth. * * *

. . .And those that enter into it and are faithful, I will promise them that they shall be queens in heaven, and rulers to all eternity. * * *

. . .Many and many an Elder knows no better than to go home and abuse as good a woman as dwells upon this earth, because of what I have said this afternoon. Are you, who act in that way, fit to have a family? No, you are not, and never will be, until you get good common sense.

. . .Those are the men we are going to meet with; also with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, three of the old polygamists.

Do you suppose that Joseph and Hyrum and all those good men would associate with those ancient worthies, if they had not been engaged in the same practices? They had to do the works of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in order to be admitted where they are;--they had to be polygamists in order to be received into their society. God knows that I am not ashamed of those good men now, and how much more I shall prize my associate polygamists, when I am further advanced in knowledge, I do not know. I am talking in earnest, and from the experience I have had.

I know the character of the human family and the course that many men and women are taking; they are making a desolation and taking a course to bring destruction upon their root; they are following a course that would ultimately depopulate the earth. All will come to that, if they do not take a course of continual increase for ever and for ever.

123. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 4;254-256; President Daniel H. Wells; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; March 1, 1857.

The principles of plurality have been established, in order to raise up a righteous seed unto God. The way has been pointed out, and it is a blessing that has been restored to this generation. It is a turning back to the holy principles of ancient days, even to that purity that was known in primitive ages. In this way only may we rise from corruption, through the Holy Priesthood of our God. . . . It is a principle that is calculated to produce health, strength, and happiness here, as well as salvation hereafter. * * *

. . . I wish to have my sisters feel that this order is the order of God, and that in it they will find happiness and exaltation; in it they will find every principle that is calculated to lead them to glory and favour with God, and exaltation into His presence; and by it they are redeeming themselves and their posterity from the corruptions of man, that have been in existence for many generations before us, and from which they have been brought out by the sound and proclamation of the Gospel. * * *

. . . A man may have, perhaps, three or four wives, . . . and find fault, and be very exacting in requiring of them the most perfect obedience to every whim and notion. By taking such a course he is liable to lose the Holy Ghost, and if he does, he will lose his women. It is upon the principle that you are a man of God--that you have the Holy Ghost and desire to raise up a holy seed to the name of the Most High--that your wives have been sealed to you; they would not upon any other principle have come to you. Now if your wives discover that you lack in any virtues pertaining to the Holy Priesthood, and if you take a course that is not calculated to exalt them, do you not see that you lose their confidence? You will lose them also.

. . . This is a word for you, my brethren, who are now starting out on this principle. It is a good, virtuous, and holy principle, and not to be trifled with. . . .

I say to the sisters, seek to have confidence in your husbands, and believe that they are capable of leading you; and when you seek instruction, believe them capable of giving it to you; and be faithful, humble, and obedient to them. Their feelings should not be concentrated in you, but your feelings should be in them, and their's should be in those who lead them in the Priesthood. Their feelings are concentrated in the Lord their God and what is ahead, and there is where they should be.

124. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 4:258-260; Orson Hyde; Great Salt Lake City.

The order of heaven places man in the front rank; hence he is first to be addressed. Woman follows under the protection of his counsels, and the superior strength of his arm. Her desire should be unto her husband, and he should rule over her. I will here venture the assertion, that no man can be exalted to a celestial glory in the kingdom of God whose wife rules over him; and as the man is not without the woman, nor the woman without the man in the Lord, it follows as a matter of course, that the woman who rules over her husband, thereby deprives herself of a celestial glory. * * *

It is true that the people of Utah believe in and practise polygamy. Not because our natural desires lead us into that condition and state of life, but because our God hath commanded it, and wishing to comply with that as well as with all others of His commands, we are as we are. We also wish to be counted Abraham's children, to whom the promises were made, and also with whom the covenants were established; and being told that if we are the children of Abraham, we will do the works of Abraham, we are not a little anxious to do as he did. Among other things that he did, he took more than one wife. In this he was not alone, for this example was copied by most of the ancient worthies and others who succeeded him under the same everlasting covenant. Even the wisest and best men--men after God's own heart, entered the most deeply into this practice. Nor was this practice limited to the days of the Old Testament.

It will be borne in mind that once on a time, there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and on a careful reading of that transaction, it will be discovered that no less a person than Jesus Christ was married on that occasion. If he was never married, his intimacy with Mary and Martha, and the other Mary also whom Jesus loved, must have been highly unbecoming and improper to say the best of it.

I will venture to say that if Jesus Christ were now to pass through the most pious countries in Christendom with a train of women, such as used to follow him, fondling about him, combing his hair, anointing him with precious ointment, washing his feet with tears, and wiping them with the hair of their heads and unmarried, or even married, he would be mobbed, tarred, and feathered, and rode, not on an ass, but on a rail. What did the old Prophet mean when he said (speaking of Christ), "He shall see his seed, prolong his days, &c." Did Jesus consider it necessary to fulfil every righteous command or requirement of his Father? He most certainly did. This he witnessed by submitting to baptism under the hands of John. "Thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness," said he. Was it God's commandment to man, in the beginning, to multiply and replenish the earth? None can deny this, neither that it was a righteous command; for upon an obedience to this, depended the perpetuity of our race. Did Christ come to destroy the law or the Prophets, or to fulfil them? He came to fulfil. Did he multiply, and did he see his seed? Did he honour his Father's law by complying with it, or did he not? Others may do as they like, but I will not charge our Saviour with neglect or transgression in this or any other duty.

* * * If God be not our Father, grandfather, or great grandfather, or some kind of a father in reality, in deed and in truth, why are we taught to say, "Our Father who art in heaven?" How much soever of holy horror this doctrine may excite in persons not impregnated with the blood of Christ, and whose minds are consequently dark and benighted, it may excite still more when they are told that if none of the natural blood of Christ flows in their veins, they are not the chosen or elect of God. Object not, therefore, too strongly against the marriage of Christ, but remember that in the last days, secret and hidden things must come to light, and that your life also (which is the blood) is hid with Christ in God.

Abraham was chosen of God for the purpose of raising up a chosen seed, and a peculiar people unto His name. Jesus Christ was sent into the world for a similar purpose, but upon a more extended scale. Christ was the seed of Abraham, so reckoned. To these, great promises were made; one of which was, that in Abraham and in his seed, which was Christ, all the families of the earth should be blessed. When? When the ungodly or those not of their seed should be cut off from the earth, and no family remaining on earth except their own seed. Then in Abraham and in Christ, all the families and kindreds of the earth will be blessed--Satan bound, and the millennium fully come. Then the meek will inherit the earth, and God's elect reign undisturbed, at least, for one thousand years.

Is there no way provided for those to come into this covenant relation who may not possess, in their veins, any of the blood of Abraham or of Christ? Yes! By doing the works of Abraham and of Christ . . . .

I would not be afraid to promise a man who is sixty years of age, if he will take the counsel of brother Brigham and his brethren, that he will renew his age. I have noticed that a man who has but one wife, and is inclined to that doctrine, soon begins to wither and dry up, while a man who goes into plurality looks fresh, young, and sprightly. Why is this? Because God loves that man, and because he honours His work and word. Some of you may not believe this; but I not only believe it--I also know it. For a man of God to be confined to one woman is small business; for it is as much as we can do now to keep up under the burdens we have to carry; and I do not know what we should do if we had only one wife apiece.

126. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; June 2, 1857. He (B. Young) also said that there was no law in heaven or on earth that would compel a woman to stay with a man either in time or eternity.

The world say that we have things in common stock. There is no such thing. We throw our interest together, but my wives are wives that are given to me by the Almighty God through the proper source; and it is so with every other man. There is no man in this Valley that is a Saint that meddles with my wives, nor I with his. Those things are not carried on here. * * *

Plurality of wives! I have a good many wives. How much would you give to know how many? If I were to tell you, you would not believe it. I suppose many of you have not believed a word we have said today. We do not care whether you do or not. I am speaking to the unbelievers, and not to the Saints. If I spoke lies, you would believe quicker. Suffice it to say I have a good many wives and lots of young mustards that are growing, and they are a kind of fruitful seed.

You know my comparison was, when Dr. Bernhisel was at Washington, we did not know what the Dr. would think when we let the old cat out of the bag. I told him that the old cat would have kittens, and the kittens would have cats. It is so with "Mormonism;" it will flourish and increase, and it will multiply in young "Mormons." "To be plain about it, Mr. Kimball, what did you get these wives for?" The Lord told me to get them. "What for?" To raise up young "Mormons,"--not to have women to commit whoredoms with, to gratify the lusts of the flesh, but to raise up children. * * *

. . . I am doing the works of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and if I live and be a good man, and my wives are as good as they should be, I will raise up men yet, that will come through my loins, that will be as great men as ever came to this earth; and so will you.

I will tell you that some of the most noble spirits are waiting with the Father to this day to come forth through the right channel and the right kind of men and women. That is what has to be yet; for there are thousands and millions of spirits waiting to obtain bodies upon this earth.

128. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; Brigham Young speaking; August 26, 1857.

He (B.Y.) remarked that the revelation upon a plurality of wives was given to Joseph in 1831. He revealed it to Oliver Cowdery alone upon the solemn pledge that he would not reveal it or act upon it, but he did act upon it in a secret manner & that was the cause of his overthrow.

129. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 5:290-291; Erastus Snow; the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; Sunday morning, October 4, 1857.

The female portion of this community . . . are the best set of women that exist upon the earth; and that all the world will bear witness to, when they talk about plurality.

Men of some discretion in the Gentile world ask questions about the operations of the plurality of wives among us. "How many wives live in each house? How do they got along in their associations? Are they all the time quarrelling and fighting?" A man said to me once, "My wife would not stand it five minutes, if I should bring a woman into my house to have a share of my company and my affections: I should have a hell upon earth, and no house that I could build would be big enough to hold my wife. It is marvelous to me how you can live, and how it is you are not killed."

They cannot understand it, because they are governed by their passions, and not by principles; and it is the hardest thing in the world for them to be convinced that this people are governed by principle. This is the doctrine we have been preaching abroad, and it is the very thing the Gentiles will not receive; . . . .

Existence among this people is of itself one of the greatest privileges. The world of mankind may soon know that God is with us, and that he is at the helm, that he is the founder of this work, and that the women as well as the men are the best upon the earth, and that we are determined to live and be governed by principle and not passion.

Have we all learned to be altogether thus governed? No, we have not. But we are learning it: the men and women of Israel are learning it.... But many of us are learning to be governed by principle, not passion, and learning that we must become one,--that there is somebody else that has feelings besides them,--that there is somebody else worthy of respect and love besides them,--that there are some good qualifications in some other being,--and some other woman's children have some claims as well as mine; they are learning to let principle rule them.

Well, go on: let the good work continue. This is my prayer all the time. Are all the families of Israel and every woman striving herself to play well her part and reverence her husband as her lord; for he is her lord. * * * Do you uphold your husband before God as your lord? "What!--my husband to be my lord?" I ask, Can you get into the celestial kingdom without him? Have any of you been there? You will remember that you never got into the celestial kingdom without the aid of your husband. If you did, it was because your husband was away, and some one had to act proxy for him. No woman will get into the celestial kingdom, except her husband receives her, if she is worthy to have a husband; and if not, somebody will receive her as a servant.

130. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 6:190-191; Pres. Heber C. Kimball; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; Sunday afternoon, December 27, 1857.

. . . When I get a new wife, I always dedicate her to God, and this is the way I have done for years. I also make a practice of dedicating my children to the Lord, that they may grow up in his wisdom and increase in his power. * * *

I am preaching these things to my brethren and sisters, that they may know, if they have not dedicated and consecrated their children to the Lord, that it has to be done. But you may inquire, "How shall we do it?" You will have to do it as brother Brigham and others have done when in Nauvoo. We had to take our children and wash and anoint them, and place the birthright and father's blessing upon them in the house of God, and then have them sealed to us; and you will have to do just so.

If you do not take the right course to raise up a holy seed unto the Lord, but jangle and contend one with another, your children will not have so good a chance to get the blessings of celestial glory; but, in proportion as you bring yourselves into subjection, your children will receive the blessings of heaven.

131. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; November 18, 1858.

Brother Nathan E. Tinney was asked by President Young about John D. Lee marrying a squaw. He told the story. President Young said I think there has been more fuss made about it than was necessary. President Young said we have sent Elders for several years to go among the Indians, marry their squaws & identify themselves with the Indians, (to) go and live with them, but up to this day I could not get an Elder to do it. I have said if any man could get appointed to take my place I would show them how it was done. He said when an Elder goes among the Lamanites & finds a good spirited young squaw let him take her & make a wife of her & if any of the Brethren in the South want to take a squaw to wife, let him go to Amasa (Lyman) while he is in the South & let him seal them the same as anybody.

132. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 6:350-362; Orson Pratt; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; July 24, 1859.

Our traditions inform us that if a man has two wives, it is a great sin and transgression against the laws of heaven and the laws of man. * * * We were taught strictly, by our parents, by works on theology, by our neighbors, by our ministers from the pulpit, by the press, and by the laws of Christendom, that plurality of wives is a great crime. * * * If asked why polygamy is considered a crime, our only answer is, Because false tradition says so--popular opinion says it is a crime. * * *

Let us, therefore, carefully investigate the important question--Is polygamy a crime? * * * We may give a general answer, without investigating this subject, and say to the world, We have no information of that kind on record, except what we find in the Book of Mormon. There it was [p. 351] positively forbidden to be practised by the ancient Nephites.

The Book of Mormon, therefore, is the only record (professing to be Divine) which condemns plurality of wives as being a practice exceedingly abominable before God. But even that sacred book makes an exception in substance as follows--"Except I the Lord command my people." * * * We can draw the conclusion from this, that there are some things not right in the sight of God, unless he should command them. We can draw the same conclusion from the Bible, that there were many things which the Lord would not suffer his children to do, unless he particularly commanded them to do them. * * *

The substance of the idea in that book [the Book of Mormon] is that–When I the Lord shall command you to raise up seed unto myself, then it shall be right; but otherwise thou shalt hearken unto these things--namely, the law against polygamy. But when we go to the [p. 352] Jewish record, we find nothing that forbids the children of Israel from taking as many wives as they thought proper. God gave laws regulating the descent of property in polygamic families. [Quotes Deuteronomy 21:15]

In this law the Lord does not disapprobate the principle. Here would have been a grand occasion for him to do it, if it had been contrary to his will. * * * Does not this clearly prove that the Lord did not condemn polygamy, but that he considered it legal? * * *

[p. 353] . . . Leah said--"God hath given me my hire, because I have given my maiden to my husband." (See Genesis XXX. 18.)

Who ever heard of the Lord's hearing one's prayer, because a person was doing an evil? If polygamy were a crime, God would have condemned her, because she gave up her handmaiden to her husband. We cannot suppose that an woman not acquainted with the law and commandment of the Most High, and believing it to be sinful for her husband to have two wives, would express herself in such a manner--The Lord heard my prayer and gave me the fifth son, because I gave my handmaid to my husband to wife. This shows to us that Jacob's wife, Leah, [p. 354] did really consider it something pleasing in the sight of God. It was something that God and all his angels that appeared to Jacob approbated, and, instead of cursing him, blessed him more and more. By these four wives the whole twelve sons of Jacob were born, and they became the heads of the twelve tribes of Israel. * * * I suppose the people of this day would call the most of these sons of Jacob bastards; but they are to be honoured of God, not for a few years, but an honour that is to exist for ever and ever. . . . * * *

. . . Now, among the things written in that book of the law, we find these words--"If brethren dwell together, and one of them die, and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not marry without unto a stranger; her husband's brother shall go in unto her, and take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her. And it shall be that the firstborn which she beareth shall succeed in the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of Israel." (See Deuteronomy XXV. 5, 6.) Must his brother do this, if he has a family of his own? Yes. It does not matter [p. 355] whether he has a family or not, that command is given to him: it is the law of God, and the reason is given in order that the name of the dead might not perish and be cut off from Israel. * * * Now, suppose that there were seven brothers, as there often were families of that size in Israel; suppose they married them wives, and six of them should die without leaving male issue to bear up their name, but the seventh brother was still living; do you not see that this law and commandment would be binding on that seventh, still living, to take the six widows? This he would be compelled to do; and yet this generation say polygamy is a crime, while here is the sanction of Divine authority. ***

[p. 357] . . . There is such a principle as marriage for eternity, which may imply one wife or many. The marriage covenant is indissoluble; it is everlasting; it is not limited to time; but it is a covenant to exist while eternity exists: it pertains to immortality as well as mortality. I will prove this. The first example we have on record of a marriage was that of our first parents, Adam and Eve. Were they married as people marry now-a-days? Were they married as the world of Christendom marry at the present day? No: they married as immortal beings. They knew nothing about death; they never had seen any such thing as death. * * *

[p. 358] These were the personages first married. Question -- Were they married for a certain period of time, as persons are married by the world of Christendom at this day? * * *

. . . When Eve was presented to Adam as an helpmeet to him -- as a wife, it was not intended that that relation should cease after a few score of years, or when death should come; but it was as everlasting as Adam and Eve themselves. When they went down to their graves, they could go down with a sure and certain knowledge that they still were husband and wife, and that this sacred relationship would continue after the resurrection. * * *

. . . The same God that originated marriage for all eternity, in relation to the first pair, has again spoken from the heavens and told us something about this sacred ceremony. He has informed us that if we are married and expect to have claim on our wives, and wives on their husbands, in the eternal worlds, that this ordinance of marriage must be, not till death, but for ever and ever, reaching forward through all our future state of existence.

Having established this principle of marriage for eternity, let us examine the results flowing from it. Let me suppose that here is my neighbor; he has a wife, and she is married to him for all eternity. By-and-by, he dies and leaves his widow. I am a young unmarried man, and pay my attentions to her; and she, being still young, accepts my attentions and wishes to be married to me; yet she has been married to a man for all eternity. Can she be married to me for all eternity? No. I accept of her as a wife for time only, yielding her up with all her posterity in the morning of the first resurrection to her legal and lawful husband.

But now what shall become of me? I have got to give up this wife to her legal and lawful husband in the morning of the first resurrection; and I must not, according to the laws of Christendom, marry another so long as she lives; and she might live as long as I. Am I to be deprived of a wife for eternity, because I married this widow for time? or would plurality come in and supply me also with a wife?

This is one of the results necessarily arising, when marriage for eternity is admitted. There is just as much reason for it as for any other principle God has ever revealed to the human family.

Again, for instance, here . . . is a woman that [p. 359] has not had a privilege of being married. . . . * * * I ask, Would it be right, with a view that marriage is to exist, not only in time, but in eternity, that this woman, who is a good, moral, virtuous woman, should remain without a husband through all eternity, because she did not have an opportunity of being married? If marriage be of any benefit in the eternal world, would it not be far more consistent with the law of God that she should have the privilege, by her own free, voluntary consent, to marry a good man, though he might have a family, and claim him for her husband, not only through time, but eternity?

Jesus informs us that in the resurrection mankind are neither married nor given in marriage: all these things have to be attended to here. In the resurrection, a man is not to be baptized. Here is the place to attend to these things. * * * Just so, in the resurrection there will be no such thing as attending to the ceremony of marriage, so far as we are informed. But Jesus further says, concerning those persons who have not attended to those matters here, that in the resurrection they are as the angels of God: and some of the angels are a little lower than men. In what respect? They have not the power to increase their kingdom by the multiplication of their species, and this because they have not lawful and legal wives. They are probably among that class who have put off marriage for eternity, and die without attending to it; and after the resurrection, they find themselves wifeless, without any family or kingdoms of their own offspring. In this single and undesirable condition they are to remain, because they cannot hunt up a wife after the resurrection. Such, instead of receiving crowns, will merely become ministers or messengers for the crown, being sent forth by those who have attained to a higher glory, who have the power of receiving kingdoms, and increasing the same, through their own offspring that are begotten after the resurrection by the wives given to them while here in this world. These angels have forfeited this privilege; consequently, they are lower than the man who keeps a celestial law; and if these angels lived on the earth, they would be called old bachelors. * * *

[p.360] . . . they [holy men that understood the law of God, and practised it] are crowned kings and princes over their own descendants, which will become as numerous as the sands on the sea shore, while the angels have neither wives, sons, nor daughters to be crowned over? Shall a young, moral, virtuous woman, because she does not find a young man that is suitable to her nature, or worthy of her,--shall she be deprived of this exaltation in the eternal world, because of the Gentile laws of modern Christendom? No. The Latter-day Saints believe otherwise. We believe that woman is just as good as man, if she does as well. If a good man is entitled to a kingdom of glory--to a reward and crown, and has the privilege of swaying a sceptre in the eternal world, a good woman is entitled to the same, and should be placed by his side, and have the privilege of enjoying all the glory, honour, and blessings that are bestowed upon her lord and husband. If she cannot get any lord or husband through whom she can trust herself for exaltation to that glory, who can blame her for going into a family where she thinks she will be secure?

These are some of the reasons in favour of polygamy. * * * [p. 362] Thirteen years after the publication of the Book of Mormon, the same Prophet that translated the Book of Mormon received a revelation upon marriage, which commanded certain individuals in this Church to take unto themselves a plurality of wives for time and all eternity, declaring that it is a righteous principle, and was practised by inspired men in times of old.

In obedience to this commandment, many have gone forth and taken upon themselves a plurality of wives; . . . and the Constitution of America gives people a right to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. But our opponents say no person has a right to commit crime under that saying. I admit it. But prove that polygamy is a crime. * * * If you search the great commentaries on law, they will inform you that all criminal law is founded on Divine revelation. When Divine revelation points out a crime, they generally adopt it as such, and attach penalties. The Bible is the foundation of most of the criminal laws of Christendom. Point out in the Bible where polygamy is a crime, and then you may say we have no right to embrace it as a part of our religious creed, and pretend it as a part of our constitutional rights. * * * Congress have no more constitutional right to pass a law against polygamy than they have to pass a law against monogamy, or against a man living in celibacy.

133. Millennial Star, Vol. 22:498-499; 1860.

We do not find polygamy the peculiar feature of one age only; it was practised for two thousand five hundred years before the Law of Moses was given. Abraham practised it by Divine approval, under the Patriarchal, which was a Gospel dispensation, four hundred years before the giving of the law. The law of Moses was given to the children of Israel because they rejected the Gospel; but it did not do away with the practice of polygamy. * * *

Thus was polygamy practised both under the Gospel and under the law. * * *

Polygamy was established in the earliest ages of the world's history, running down through and embracing a period in which it was practised for four thousand years, and throughout the whole time, it was been sustained by the most unprecedented sanction of the Almighty himself. Who are the twelve tribes of Israel but the offspring of a renowned and worthy polygamist and Prophet by his four wives? * * * To this polygamic family pertain the law, the adoption, and the giving of the covenants. He has chosen from them his Prophets, and to them has he committed his sacred oracles. Such is the distinguished remembrance with which their names are held by the Almighty, that he has said, by the mouth of his servant John, that they should be inscribed upon the twelve gates of the heavenly Jerusalem, there to be perpetuated in eternal remembrance by the sanctified hosts of that celestial city. * * *

The polygamy of the "Mormons" is a renewal of the ancient patriarchal order. . . .

134. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 9:36-40; President Brigham Young; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; April 7, 1861.

. . . I will say to the sisters that I have heard but very few women, and not a great many men, ever talk sensibly upon the plurality of wives. When they begin to talk about it, they exhibit, almost without an exception, passion instead of principle. * * * It is for my sisters to be mothers of holy men and holy women--to receive and conceive in the name and by the power of the Holy Ghost--to bring forth their fruits to the praise and honour of the God of heaven. * * *

If the plurality of wives is to pander to the low passions of men and women, the sooner it is abolished the better. * * * The word and will of the Lord is what I want--the will and mind of God. He has revealed his mind and will. The time is coming when the Lord is going to raise up a holy nation. He will bring up a royal Priesthood upon the earth, and he has introduced a plurality of wives for that express purpose, and not to gratify lustful passion in the least. 1 would rather take my valise in my hand to-day, and never see a wife or a child again, and preach the Gospel until I go into the grave, than to live as I do, unless God commands it. I never entered into the order of plurality of wives to gratify passion. And were I now asked whether I desired and wanted another wife, my reply would be, It should be one by whom the Spirit will bring forth noble children. I am almost sixty years old; and if I now live for passion, I pray the Lord Almighty to take my life from the earth. * * *

. . . It is for you to bear fruit and bring forth, to the praise of God, the spirits that are born in yonder heavens and are to take tabernacles on the earth. You have the privilege of forming tabernacles for those spirits, instead of their being brought into this wicked world, that God may have a royal Priesthood, a royal people, on the earth. That is what plurality of wives is for, and not to gratify lustful desires. Sisters, do you wish to make yourselves happy? Then what is your duty? It is for you to bear children, in the name of the Lord, that are full of faith and the power of God,--to receive, conceive, bear, and bring forth in the name of Israel's God, that you may have the honour of being the mothers of great and good men--of kings, princes, and potentates that shall yet live on the earth and govern and control the nations. * * *

The world cries out against this obnoxious doctrine, that I should have more wives than one. And what would they do? Destroy the virtue of every woman in this community if they had the power. What do they care about virtue? With comparatively few exceptions, no more than do the devils in hell. * * *

Elders of Israel, have you entered into the doctrine that has been revealed, through passion? If you have, you will find that that course will take that which you seem to have, and the Lord will say--"Let this man, that man, or the other man go, for he has acted on passion, and not on principle. Take that which he seems to have, and give it to him that has been faithful with the five, the two, the three, or the one talent." That is the way it will be, by-and-by.

135. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 9:269; President Brigham Young; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; April 6, 1862.

. . . Many would make of the greatest blessings a curse to them, as they do now the plurality of wives--the abuse of that principle will send thousands to hell. There are many great and glorious privileges for the people, which they are not prepared to receive.

136. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 9: President Brigham Young; the Bowery, Salt Lake City; July 6, 1862.

When Jesus came to preach the will of his Father, he came to his own, but they would not receive him. He said to them, "I speak that which I have seen with my Father; and ye do that which ye have seen with your Father. They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, if ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham. But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God; this did not Abraham." The Jews wanted to make laws to guide God and his children. They believed many of the doctrines that Abraham believed and taught. They practised polygamy, as did Abraham, the Patriarchs, Moses, David, ad the Prophets down to the days of the Apostles.

Monogamy, or restrictions by law to one wife, is no part of the economy of Heaven among men. Such a system was commenced by the founders of the Roman empire. That empire was founded on the banks of the Tiber by wandering brigands. When these robbers founded the city of Rome, it was evident to them that their success in attaining a balance of power with their neighbors, depended upon introducing females into their body politic, so they stole them from the Sabines, who were near neighbors. The scarcity of women gave existence to laws restricting one wife to one man. Rome became the mistress of the world, and introduced this order of monogamy wherever her sway was acknowledged. Thus this monogamic order of marriage, so esteemed by modern Christians as a holy sacrament and divine institution, is nothing but a system established by a set of robbers.

The Congress of the United States have lately passed a law to punish polygamy in the Territories of the United States and in other places over which they have exclusive jurisdiction. In doing this, they have undertaken to dictate the Almighty in his revelations to his people, and those who handle edged tools, unless they are skillful, are apt to cut their fingers; and those who hand out insult to the Great I Am, in the end, are apt to get more than they have spoken for.

Why do we believe in and practise polygamy? Because the Lord introduced it to his servants in a revelation given to Joseph Smith, and the Lord's servants have always practiced it. "And is that religion popular in heaven?" It is the only popular religion there, for this is the religion of Abraham, and, unless we do the works of Abraham, we are not Abraham's seed and heirs according to promise.

137. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 11:54; John Taylor; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; January 18, 1865.

. . . Our marriage system is different from that of others--of that which is called the religious world at the present time--the Christian world, if you please; and this marriage system of ours, at the first sight appears to them as it did to us at first sight, the most revolting, perhaps, of anything that could be conceived of. Whatever others may have thought about it, I know what was thought about it by those who first embarked in it. If they could have plowed around the log, according to a facetious remark of President Lincoln, or burned it, or done anything else, they would have done it, rather than have entered into it; but they could not, and they had to take it up as the word of the Lord. It was not a matter of their own choice; it was the will and the commandment of the Almighty, for the guidance of his people.

138. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 11:111; President Brigham Young; on his visit to Utah, Juab, and Sanpete Counties; June and July 1865.

We are now located in the midst of these mountains, and are here because we were obliged to go somewhere. We were under the necessity of leaving our homes, and had to go somewhere. Before we left Nauvoo, three Members of Congress told us that if we would leave the United States, we should never be troubled by them again. We did leave the United States, and now Congressmen say, if you will renounce polygamy you shall be admitted unto the Union as an independent State and live with us. We shall live any way, and increase, and spread, and prosper, and we shall know the most and be the best-looking people there is on the earth. As for polygamy, or any other doctrine the Lord has revealed, it is not for me to change, alter, or renounce it; my business is to obey when the Lord commands, and this is the duty of all mankind.

139. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 11:210-213; President Heber C. Kimball; Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; April 4, 1866.

. . . The Lord designs that we shall be separate and distinct from every other people, and wishes to make us His peculiar people, and to raise up for himself a pure seed who will keep His law and walk in His statutes. For this purpose did He give the revelation on plurality of wives, as sacred a revelation as was ever given to any people, and fraught with greater blessings to us than we can possibly conceive of, if we do not abuse our privileges and commit sin. This doctrine is a holy and pure principle, in which the power of God for the regeneration of mankind is made manifest; but while it offers immense blessings, and is a source of immense power to God's people, it will bring sure and certain damnation to those who seek through its means to defile themselves with the daughters of Eve. All those who take wives from any other motive than to subserve the great purpose which God had in view in commanding his servants to take unto themselves many wives, will not be able to retain them. Wives are sealed to men by an everlasting covenant that cannot be broken, if the parties live faithfully before God, and perform with a single eye to his glory the duties of that sacred contract. *

I speak of plurality of wives as one of the most holy principles that God ever revealed to man, and all those who exercise an influence against it, unto whom it is taught, man or woman, will be damned, and they, and all who will be influenced by them, will suffer the buffetings of Satan in the flesh; for the curse of God will be upon them, and poverty, and distress, and vexation of spirit will be their portion; while those who honor this and every sacred institution of heaven will shine forth as the stars in the firmament of heaven, and of the increase of their kingdom and glory there shall be no end.

140. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 11:200-208; Amasa M. Lyman; the Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; April 5, 1866.

(p. 200). . . It is simply plural marriage that they complain of. They corrupt themselves elsewhere all over the world; but out in Utah men actually presume to marry women honestly;. . . .

How shall we determine anything about the value of plural marriage, so that we may know whether it is worth anything or not? I do not know any way better than by determining first whether single marriage is of value or not--whether it extends any advantages or not to those who are parties to this relationship. * * *

(p. 202) Does marriage possess any value, then? Would it not be a very good thing if the blessings arising from it, which you enjoy, could be extended to all? Why is it not so? Because monogamic Christianity says it shall not be extended to all. * * * If all men and all women in a community were honorably married, you can readily understand one (p. 203) thing, that there would be no prostitution of women in that community, there would be an end of the corruption of man in that community, there would be no illegitimacy there. You can see, then, that it is only a question of advantages resulting from a pure marriage to all the inhabitants of any community, who can be blessed by such an institution of marriage; only introduce this, and the cause of all this sin and moral and physical degeneracy would have an end.

(P. 204) . . . hence I say that plural marriage is the great necessity of the age, because it is a means that God has introduced to check the physical corruption and decline of our race; to stop further contributions to the already fearful aggregate of corruption that has been developed as the result of sin in man and woman. * * * (p. 205) That is what polygamy is worth. It is simply an extension of pure marriage to all the social elements in the community, man and woman, that is all.

Are you going to say something in support of plural marriage? No. I do not wish anybody to tell that I have said a word by way of supporting and sustaining plural marriage. Are you ashamed of it? No. Do you love it? Yes, I love it because it is true, and stands alone, without my aid. "What are you talking about it for, then?" That you may understand the truth and know its value, and secure to yourselves the blessings that only can accrue from the knowledge of the truth. That doctrine is safe and can take care of itself; and if you make an application of the truth to yourselves, it will take care of you; it will secure you from corruption, wretchedness, and death, and give you life and immortality; while others will still sink under the accumulating weight of corruption, until they go down to hell. * * *

(P. 206) The great Buchanan war brought the flower of the army of the United States out here; the bran and shorts were left behind. They came to correct the poor misguided Mormons. For making prostitutes of the women? No. There are plenty of them at home; but the Mormons make wives of them, and this awakened all their sense of horror. It is this that excites our friends in the east--because we think more and better of women than they do. * * *

Our business here in the mountains is to develop a community in which man and woman shall find, through the extension of honorable, pure, just, and virtuous marriage, the legitimate position that Heaven ordained them to occupy as wives and mothers, husbands and fathers, and a response to every requirement or nature, without stepping aside from the path of virtue and honor. * * *

(p. 207) . . . when he [the Lord] talked to the people of Nephi: He told them they should have but one wife, and concubines they should have none. Why would He not allow them to have concubines? I suppose it was because He delighted in the chastity of women. This was simply avowing His feeling with regard to that matter. Concubinage was displeasing in His sight. He left them at liberty to have a wife, but concubines they should have none; informing them that when He wanted His people to raise up seed unto Him, and if it was necessary they should have many wives He would command them. That is simply what He has done. He has commanded us. * * * The Saints are gathered together from all the world, that the provisions of a virtuous marriage may be extended to all the social element in the community, and that by this there should cease to be developed in that community the curse of woman's prostitution or man's corruption, and where mothers in Zion can make it their business to teach their children the way in which they should go; to implant in early childhood principles of truth; to lead them to God; * * *

(p. 208) . . . Our business here is to save men and women by teaching them to live lives of purity. Theses are self-evident truths. When we count up the men and women that are in the world, we shall find a broad margin more of women than men; and there is a numerical difference in the sexes, as they are developed in our community and every other community. Women must be saved, if the task should devolve on a man to marry two or three of them, and treat them as honorable wives, bless them, and bless their children, provide for them, and teach them principles of purity.

(p. 221) Where did this commandment come from in relation to polygamy? It also came from God. It was a revelation given unto Joseph Smith from God, and was made binding upon His servants. When this system was first introduced among this people, it was one of the greatest crosses that ever was taken up by any set of men since the world stood. Joseph Smith told others; he told me, and I can bear witness of it, "that if this principle was not introduced, this Church and kingdom could not proceed." When this commandment was given, it was so far religious, and so far binding upon the Elders of this Church, that it was told them if they were not prepared to enter into it, and to stem the torrent of opposition that would come in consequence of it, the keys of the kingdom would be taken from them. When I see any of our people, men or women, opposing a principle of this kind, I have years ago set them down as on the high road to apostacy, and I do today; I consider them apostates, and not interested in this Church and kingdom.  Where is there in the world a people that make any pretensions to have any claim upon their wives in eternity?  Marriage is solemnized until death do them part, and when death comes to either party, then there is an end to the whole matter, and what comes after death is in the dark to them. It was so with us up to the time of the giving of that revelation; we had no claim upon one wife in eternity. * * * It was necessary that one grand truth should be unlocked, which is, that man and woman are destined to live together and have a claim upon each other in eternity. * * *

(p. 222) Then, what did this principle open up to our view? That our wives, who have been associated with us in time--who had borne with us the heat and burden of the day, who had shared in our afflictions, trials, troubles, and difficulties, that they could reign with us in the eternal kingdoms of God, and that they should be sealed to us not only for time, but for all eternity. * * * Hence it is emphatically a religious subject so deep, sacred, and profound, so extensive and far-reaching, that it is one of the greatest principles that was ever revealed to man. * * * The Lord says that his servants may take to themselves more wives than one. Who gives to them one wife? The Lord. And has he not a right to give to them another, and another, and another? I think he has that right. Who has a right to dispute it, and prohibit a union of that kind, if God shall ordain it? Has not God as much right to-day to give to me, or you, or any other person two, three, four, five, ten, or twenty wives, as he had anciently to give them to Abraham, Isaac, David, Solomon, etc? * * *

(p. 223) After having, with uplifted hands to heaven, sworn that they [the Congress] will "make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof," to thus sacrilegiously stand between a whole community and their God, and deliberately debar them, so far as they have the power, from observing his law, do they realize what they are doing? * * * We do not expect that Congress is acquainted with our religious faith; but, as members of the body politic, we do claim the guarantees of the Constitution and immunity from persecution on merely religious grounds.

What are we to think of a United States judge who would marry a man to another man's wife. He certainly ought to know better. We are told that she was a second wife, and, therefore, not acknowledged. Indeed, this is singular logic. If she was not a wife, then polygamy is no crime in the eyes of the law; for Congress have passed no law against whoredom. A man may have as many mistresses as he please, without transgressing any law of Congress. The act in relation to polygamy contemplates punishing a man for having more wives, not mistresses. If she was simply his mistress, then the law is of no effect; and the very fact of Congress passing such a law is the strongest possible proof, in law, of the existence of a marriage covenant, (P. 224) which, until that law was passed, was by them considered valid. If, then, she was not his wife, no person could be punished under that law for polygamy. If she was his wife, then the judge transgressed the law which he professionally came to maintain.

142. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 11:261-262; President Brigham Young; the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; August 12, 1866.

Now, they suppose that they have got us safely on polygamy. What about that? I would say to Congress that if they will pass a law, making it death for any man to hold illicit intercourse with any woman but his lawful wife, we would meet them half way on that ground. It is not uncommon for men who have not been lawfully married to any woman, but who pass as old bachelors, to have children by several women. * * * Men may do as they please with women, have numerous children by them, and take as many liberties with them as if they were their wives, and yet not call them wives, and modern society smiles upon them. But whenever a man applies the sacred name of wife to the mother of his children, if he happen to have more than one, then the world professes to be wonderfully shocked at the idea. What inconsistency!

Such men will go to hell for ruining innocent women and increasing illegitimate children in the land. The community or nation that indulge in such practices will be damned. * * *

The doctrine of plurality of wives was revealed to this people from heaven, and if heaven had revealed that we should have no wife at all, it would have been as faithfully observed (p. 262) as the present law, even if it should result in the depopulation of the world, . . . But the Lord did not get his kingdom in that way. The kingdoms he possesses and rules over are his own progeny. Every man who is faithful and gets a salvation and glory, and becomes a king of kings and Lord of Lords, or a father of fathers, it will be by the increase of his own progeny. Our Father and God rules over his own children. Wherever there is a God in all the eternities possessing a kingdom and glory and power it is by means of his own progeny.

143. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 11:268-271; President Brigham Young; the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; August 19, 1866.

Every virtuous woman desires a husband to whom she can look for guidance and protection through this world. God has placed this desire in woman's nature. It should be respected by the stronger sex. Any man who takes advantage of this, and humbles a daughter of Eve to rob her of her virtue, and cast her off dishonored and defiled, is her destroyer, and is responsible to God for the deed. If the refined Christian society of the nineteenth century will tolerate such a crime, God will not; * * * It is this very class of men, though not all of them, who have set up such a howl against the doctrine of polygamy, which is so much despised and which was believed in and practiced by the ancients. . . .

This matter was a little changed in the case of the Savior of the world, the Son of the living God. The man Joseph, the husband of Mary, did not, that we know of, have more than one wife, but Mary the wife of Joseph had another husband. * * * That very babe that was cradled in the manger, was begotten, not by Joseph, the husband of Mary, but by another Being. Do you inquire by whom? He was begotten by God our heavenly Father.

* * * If it is wrong for a man to have more than one wife at a time, the Lord will reveal it by and by, and he will put it away that it will not be known in the Church. I did not ask Him for the revelation upon this subject. When that revelation was first read to me by Joseph Smith, I plainly saw the great trials and the abuse of it that would be made by many of the Elders, and the trouble and the persecution that it would bring upon this whole people. But the Lord revealed it, and it was my business to accept it.

* * * It is the word of the Lord, and I wish to say to you, and all the world, that if you desire with all your hearts to obtain the (p. 269) blessings which Abraham obtained, you will be polygamists at least in your faith, or you will come short of enjoying the salvation and the glory which Abraham has obtained. This is as true as that God lives. * * * The only men who become Gods, even the Sons of God, are those who enter into polygamy. Others attain unto a glory and may even be permitted to come into the presence of the Father and the Son; but they cannot reign as kings in glory, because they had blessings offered unto them, and they refused to accept them. * * *

I heard the revelation on polygamy, and I believed it with all my heart, and I know it is from God--I know that he revealed it from heaven; I know that it is true, and understand the bearings of it and why it is.

(p. 270) * * * You might as well make a law to say how many children a man shall have, as to make a law to say how many wives he shall have. * * * If a woman wants to live with me as a wife, all right; but the law says you must not marry her, and own her as your wife openly. As the law stands, she can come home to me, not as my wife, you know; she can sweep my house, make my bed, help me to make the butter and cheese, and share in all my pleasure and wealth, but the ceremony of marriage must not be performed. This is what is practiced in the outside world from the President in his chair to the lowest dog-whipper on the street that has means to obtain. They have their mistresses, and thereby violate every principle of virtue, chastity and righteousness. * * *

(p. 271) * * * I would not go across this bowery for polygamy, if it only pertained to this world. It is for the resurrection; . . . . The female sex have been deceived so long, and been trodden under foot of man so long, that a spirit has come upon them, and they want a place, and a name, and a head; for the man is the head of the woman, to lead her into the celestial kingdom of our Father and God.

I do not wonder at this people having trouble; I do not wonder at some of our sisters having sorrow in what is termed plural marriage; for they do not live so as to have the Spirit and power of God upon them; if they did, they would see its beauty and excellence, and not a word would be said against it from this time henceforth and for ever. But they see this with a selfish eye, and say, "I want my glory and my comfort here;" their eye is not on the resurrection and on the kingdom we are looking for when Jesus will come and reign King of nations as he does King of Saints.

147. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 12:261-263; President Brigham Young; delivered in the New Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; August 9, 1868.

There is a little matter I want to speak upon to you, my sisters. It is a subject that is very obnoxious to outsiders. They have given us the credit for industry and prudence; but we have one doctrine in our faith that to their view is erroneous, and very bad; it is painful to think of. Shall I tell you what it is sisters? "Oh," says one, "I know what you mean, my husband has two, four, or half a dozen wives." Well, I want to tell the sisters how to free themselves from this odium as many of them consider it. This doctrine so hateful and annoying to the feelings of many, was revealed from heaven to Joseph Smith, and obedience is required to it by the Latterday Saints,--this very principle will work out the moral salvation of the world. Do you believe it? It makes no difference whether you do or not, it is true. * * * Yes, this odious doctrine will work out the moral reformation and salvation of this generation. People generally do not see it; my sisters do not see it; and I do not know that all the elders of Israel see it. But if this course be pursued, and we make this the (p. 262) rule of practice, it will force all men to take a wife. Then we will be satisfied with one wife. I should have been in the beginning; the one wife system would not have disagreed with me at all. If the prophet had said to me, "Brother Brigham, you can never have but one wife at a time." I should have said, "glory, hallelujah, that is just what I like." But he said, "you will have to take more than one wife, and this order has to spread and increase until the inhabitants of the earth repent of their evils and men will do what is right towards the females. In this also I say glory, hallelujah. Do men do that which is right now? No. You see travelers--young, middle-aged, or old--roaming over the world, and ask them where their families are, and the answer will generally be, "I have none." * * *

Do not be startled, my sisters; do not be at all afraid; just get influence enough among the daughters of Eve in the midst of this generation until you have power enough over the males to bring them to their senses so that they will act according to the rule of right, and you will see that we will be free at once, and the elders of Israel will not be under the necessity of taking so many women. But we shall continue to do it until God tells us to stop, or until we pass into sin and iniquity, which will never be.

Do you see anything very bad in this? Just ask yourselves, historians, when was monogamy introduced on to the face of the earth? When those buccaneers, who settled on the peninsula where Rome now stands, could not steal women enough to have two or three apiece, they passed a law that a man should have but one woman. And thus started monogamy and the downfall of the plurality system. In the days of Jesus, Rome, having dominion over Jerusalem, they carried out the doctrine more or less. This was the rise, start and foundation of the doctrine of monogamy; and never till then was there a law passed, that we have any knowledge of, that a man should have but one wife.

* * * A good many young men go into the army, or go here or there. What is done with the daughters of Eve? In many countries they stick them in the factories, into the fields, the coal mines, and into the streets-* * * But the young men are sent to the wars. When England and the rest of the nations learn war no more, instead of passing a law in this or any other nation against a man having more than one wife, they will pass a law to make men do as they should in honoring the daughters of Eve and making wives of and providing for them. Will not this be a happy time? Yes, very fine. If you will produce this to-day, I'll tell you what I would be willing to do, I would be willing to give up half or two-thirds of my wives, or to let the whole of them go, if it was necessary, if those who should take them would lead them to eternal salvation. And then you may have my daughters, if you will only lead them in the way they should go that they may obtain eternal life; if you will teach them the gospel, how to live, how to honor their being, honor their God and live their religion. Do this and you are welcome to them.

Our sisters need not be worried about any doctrine. Brother Penrose said it would be better for them if they believed in the doctrine of polygamy. But they do believe it; they know it is true, and that is their torment. It perplexes and annoys many of them, because they are not sanctified by the spirit of it; if they were there would be no trouble. I want to say this much--the sisters do believe it. Where is the proof? You take a woman in this Church who does not believe in the doctrine of celestial marriage or plurality of wives, and she does not believe anything at all about the Gospel, and she will soon manifest this by her unwise course, and by and by she drops off and away she goes. But our sisters believe and know that this doctrine is true, and consequently they feel bound to abide it.

I am satisfied that there is an immense amount of misunderstanding among the people of the world with respect to the Latter-day Saints and their belief in this peculiar doctrine. It is generally believed that we have embraced it for sensual purposes, and that we are a sensual people. * * * How much easier it would be, if we were licentious, to practice licentiousness according to the popular method! Why go to the trouble and expense and incur the odium of sustaining wives and children merely to gratify licentiousness, when we could do it to the fullest extent, on the popular plan, without incurring odium or assuming responsibility and care? Read the records. . . and you may find that men can gratify their lustful desire without incurring odium. They can even destroy females by the thousands in the gratification of their sensual appetites, but because the Latter-day Saints choose to marry them, to make women and their children respected and honorable, all hell is moved against them. The devil does not like it. I will tell you a rule, brethren, sisters and friends, that I have observed through my intercourse with men, in my travels, and that is, that they who have opposed this principle most bitterly when they understood it, have been the most corrupt men, the very men who have practiced adultery and whoredom in secret; while openly, to hear them speak of our system of patriarchal marriage, one might think them immaculate; but I never found pure-minded men or women, honest and true to their God, and to their partners if they had them, but what, when they heard it explained as the Saints in this Territory understand, preach and practice it, let them believe what they might on other points, they would acknowledge that there was something god-like in that doctrine, if we carried it out as we believed it. That has been my experience.

152. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 13:188-196; Orson Pratt; delivered in the New Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; October 7, 1869.

* * * Let me say, then, that God's people, under every dispensation since the creation of the world, have, generally, been polygamists. . . . When God saw proper to call out Abraham from all the heathen nations, and made him a great man in the world, He saw proper, also, to make him a polygamist, and approbated him in taking unto himself more wives than one. Was it wrong in Abraham to do this thing? If it were, when did God reprove him for so doing?

When we come down to Jacob, the Lord permitted him to take four wives. They are so called in Holy Writ. They are not denominated prostitutes, neither are they called concubines, but they are called wives, legal wives; and to show that God approved of the course of Jacob in taking these wives, He blessed them abundantly, and hearkened to the prayer of the second wife just the same as the first. * * *

(p. 189) . . . We have seen that in the days of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, He approved of polygamy and blessed His servants who practised it, and also their wives and children.

(p. 190) . . . There can be no doubt that many men in those days were compelled to be polygamists in the fulfilment of this law, for any man who would not take the childless wife of a deceased brother and marry her, would come under the tremendous curse recorded in the book of Deuteronomy, and all the people would be obliged to sanction the curse, because he would not obey the law of God and become a polygamist. . . . They were the people of God, governed by divine law, and were commanded to be polygamists; not merely suffered to be so, but actually commanded to be. * * *

(p. 191) Coming down to the days of the prophets we find that they were polygamists; * * * He [the Lord] was with His servant, David the King, and blessed him. By and by, when David transgressed, not in taking other wives, but in taking the wife of another man, the anger of the Lord was kindled against him and He chastened him and took away all the blessings He had given him. All the wives David had received from the hand of God were taken from him. Why? Because he had committed adultery. Here then is a great distinction between adultery and plurality of wives. One brings honor and blessing to those who engage in it, the other degradation and death. * * *

(p. 192) Let us now come to the record in the Book of Mormon. . . . The same God that commanded one branch of the house of Israel in America, to take but one wife when the numbers of the two sexes were about equal, gave a different command to the hosts of Israel in Palestine. But let us see the qualifying clause given in the Book of Mormon on this subject. After having reminded the people of the commandment delivered by Lehi in regard to monogamy, the Lord says, "for if I will raise up seed unto me I will command my people, otherwise they shall hearken unto these things;" that is, if I will raise up seed among my people of the House of Israel, according to the law that exists among the tribes of Israel I will give them a commandment on the subject, but if I do not give this commandment they shall hearken to the law which I give unto their father Lehi. That is the meaning of the passage, and this very passage goes to prove that plurality was a principle God did approve under circumstances when it was authorized by Him. * * * (P. 193) . . . In the fore part of the year 1832, Joseph told individuals, then in the Church, that he had inquired of the Lord concerning the principle of plurality of wives, and he received for answer that the principle of taking more wives than one is a true principle, but the time had not yet come for it to be practised. * * *

. . . Suffice it to say that God revealed the principle through His servant Joseph in 1843. It was known by many individuals while the Church was yet in Illinois; and though it was not then printed, it was a familiar thing through all the streets of Nauvoo, and indeed throughout all Hancock county. Did I hear about it? I verily did. Did my brethren of the Twelve know about it? They certainly did. Were there any females who knew about it? There certainly were, for some received the revelation and entered into the practice of the principle. * * *

(p. 194) . . . So in regard to the revelation on plurality; it was only a short time after Joseph's death that we published it, having a copy thereof. But what became of the original? An apostate destroyed it; you have heard her name. That same woman, in destroying the original, thought she had destroyed the revelation from the face of the earth. She was embittered against Joseph, her husband, and at times fought against him with all her heart; and then again she would break down in her feelings, and humble herself before God and call upon His holy name, and would then lead forth ladies and place their hands in the hands of Joseph, and they were married to him according to the law of God. That same woman has brought up her children to believe that no such thing as plurality of wives existed in the days of Joseph, and has instilled the bitterest principles of apostacy into their minds, to fight against the Church that has come to these mountains according to the predictions of Joseph. * * * Let us speak for a few moments upon another point connected with this subject--that is, the reason why God has established polygamy under the present circumstances among this people. If all the inhabitants of the earth, at the present time, were righteous before God, and both males and females were faithful in keeping His commandments, and the numbers of the sexes of a marriageable age were exactly equal, there would be no necessity for any such institution. Every righteous man could have his wife and there would be no overplus of females. But what are the facts in relation to this matter? Since old Pagan Rome and Greece--worshippers of idols--passed a law confining man to one wife, there has been a great surplus of females who have had no possible chance of getting married. You may think this is a strange statement, but it is a fact that those nations were the founders of what is termed monogamy. All other nations, with few exceptions, had followed the Scriptural plan of having more wives than one. These nations, however, were very powerful (p. 195) and when Christianity came to them, especially the Roman nation, it had to bow to their mandates and customs, hence the Christians gradually adopted the monogamic system. The consequence was that a great many marriageable ladies of those days, and of all generations from that time to the present, have not had the privilege of husbands, as the one-wife system has been established by law among the nations descended from the great Roman empire--namely, the nations of modern Europe and the American States. This law of monogamy, or the monogamic system, laid the foundation for prostitution and the evils and diseases of the most revolting nature and character under which modern Christendom groans, for as God has implanted, for a wise purpose, certain feelings in the breasts of females as well as males, the gratification of which is necessary to health and happiness, and which can only be accomplished legitimately in the married state, myriads of those who have been deprived of the privilege of entering that state, rather than be deprived of the gratification of those feelings altogether, have, in despair, given way to wickedness and licentiousness; hence the whoredoms and prostitution among the nations of the earth, where the "Mother of Harlots" has her seat. * * *

(p. 196) . . . We might go on from State to State and then to the census taken by the United States, and a vast surplus would be shown of females over males of a marriageable age. What is to be done with them? * * * "We are going to make them either old maids or prostitutes, and we would a little rather have them prostitutes, then we men would have no need to marry." That is the conclusion many of these marriageable males, between twenty and thirty years of age, have come to. They will not marry because the laws of the land have a tendency to make prostitutes, and they can purchase all the animal gratification they desire without being bound to any woman; hence many of them have mistresses, by whom they raise children, and, when they get tired of them, turn both mother and children into the street, with nothing to support them, the law allowing them to do so, because the women are not wives. Thus the poor creatures are plunged into the depths of misery, wretchedness and degradation, because at all risks they have followed the instincts implanted within them by their Creator, and not having the opportunity to do so legally have done so unlawfully. There are hundreds and thousands of (unmarried) females in this boasted land of liberty, through the narrow, contracted, bigoted State laws, preventing them from ever getting husbands. That is what the Lord is fighting against; we, also, are fighting against it, and for the re-establishment of the Bible religion and the celestial or patriarchal order of marriage.

And I know, furthermore, that he [Joseph Smith] rejoiced in the fact that the law of redemption and Celestial Marriage was revealed unto the Church in such a manner that it would be out of the power of earth and hell to destroy it; * * *

The Latter-day Saints believe the Bible. An agent of the American Bible Society called on me the other day and wanted to know if we would aid the Society in circulating the Bible in our Territory? I replied yes, by all means, for it was the book from which we were enabled to set forth our doctrines, and especially the doctrine of plural marriage.

There is an opinion in the breasts of many persons, who suppose that they believe the Bible, that Christ, when he came, did away with plural marriage, and that he inaugurated what is termed monogamy; * * *

(p. 39) While we are considering this subject, we will inquire, did the Saviour in any place that we can read of, in the course of his mission on the earth, denounce a plurality of wives? He lived in a nation of Jews; the law of Moses was in force, plurality of wives was the custom, and thousands upon thousands of people, from the highest to the lowest in the land, were polygamists. The Saviour denounced adultery; he denounced fornication; he denounced lust; also divorce, but is there a single sentence asserting that plurality of wives is wrong? If so, where is it? * * *

(p. 40) . . . Hundreds of Saints had more wives than one; and if it had been wrong, what would have been the result? Why, John would have denounced the practice, the same as the children of Israel were denounced for marrying heathen wives, had it not been that the law of plurality was the commandment of God. * * *

If plurality of wives had been a violation of the seventh commandment those prophets would have denounced it, otherwise their silence on the matter would have been dangerous to themselves, inasmuch as the blood of the people would have been required at their hands. The opposers of Celestial Marriage sometimes quote (p. 41) a passage in the seventh chapter of Romans, second and third verses, to show that a plurality of wives is wrong; but when we come to read the passage it shows that a plurality of husbands is wrong. You can read that passage for yourselves. * * *

A reference to the Scriptures shows that the reproach of women was to be barren, . . .

The law regulating marriage previous to Moses, recognized a plurality of wives. Abraham and Jacob and others had a plurality. These are the men who are referred to in Scriptures as patterns of piety and purity. David had many wives. The Scripture says that David did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord and turned not aside from anything that he commanded him all the days of his life, save in the matter of Uriah the Hittite, ...

(p. 42) We will now inquire in relation to the Saviour himself. From whom did he descend? From the house of David a polygamist; . . . Then if plural marriage be adultery and the offspring spurious, Christ Jesus is not the Christ; and we must look for another. * * *

Those who denounce Patriarchal Marriage will have to stay without and never walk the golden streets. And any man or woman that lifts his or her voice to proclaim against a plurality of wives, under the Government of God, will have to seek an inheritance outside of that city. * * * Is not the man that denounces Celestial Marriage a liar? Does he not work abomination?

Gospel Mysteries

We have heard, during Conference, a great many precious instructions, and in none have I been more interested than in those which have been given to the Saints concerning that much mooted doctrine called Patriarchal or Celestial Marriage. I am interested in this doctrine, because I see salvation, temporal and spiritual, embodied therein. * * * I wish, here, to make one remark in connection with this subject--that while there is abundant proof to be found in the Scriptures and elsewhere in support of this doctrine, still it is not because it was practiced four thousand years ago by the servants and people of God, or because it has been practiced by any people or nation in any period of the world's history, that the Latter-day Saints have adopted it and made it part of their practice, but it is because God, our heavenly Father, has revealed it unto us. If there were no record of its practice to be found, and if the Bible, Book of Mormon and Book of Doctrine and Covenants were totally silent in respect to this doctrine, it would nevertheless be binding upon us as a people, God Himself having given a revelation for us to practice it at the present time.

(p.200) In the monogamic system, under which the possession of more than one living wife is regarded as such a crime, and as being so fearfully immoral, how could the promise of the Savior to his faithful followers, that they should have a hundred-fold of wives and children, in this present life, ever be realized? * * * God revealed that strait and narrow way to Abraham, and taught him how he could enter therein. He taught him the principle of plurality of wives; Abraham practiced it and bequeathed it to his children as a principle which they were to practice. * * *

There is nothing with which the Latter-day Saints can, with more confidence, refer to the Scriptures for confirmation and support, than the doctrine of plural marriage, which at the present time, among one of the most wicked, adulterous and corrupt generations the world has ever seen, is so much hated, and for which mankind generally are so anxious to cast out and persecute the Latter-day Saints. * * *

(p. 201) It is necessary that this principle should be practiced under the auspices and control of the Priesthood. God has placed that Priesthood in the Church to govern and control all the affairs thereof, and this is a principle which, if not practiced in the greatest holiness and purity, (p. 202) might lead men into great sin, therefore the Priesthood is the more necessary to guide and control men in the practice of this principle. There might be circumstances and situations in which it would not be wisdom in the mind of God for His people to practice this principle, but so long as a people are guided by the Priesthood and revelations of God, there is no danger of evil arising therefrom. If we, as a people, had attempted to practice this principle without revelation, it is likely that we would have been led into grievous sins, and the condemnations of God would have rested upon us; but the Church waited until the proper time came, and then the people practiced it according to the mind and will of God, making a sacrifice of their own feelings in so doing. * * * Rome, with her arts, sciences and warlike instincts, was once the mistress of the world; but her glory faded. She was a monogamic nation, and the numerous evils attending that system early laid the foundation for that ruin which eventually overtook her. * * *

(p. 203) . . . The Romans did not believe in plurality of wives, but in divorcing them; in taking wives for convenience and putting them away when they got tired of them. In our country divorces are increasing, yet Roman like, men expect purity and chastity from their wives they do not practice themselves. * * *

It [the monogamic system] had reached Palestine in the days of the Savior, hence by understanding the practices prevalent in those times amongst that people, you will be better able to appreciate the strong language used by Jesus against putting away, or divorcing wives. * * *

(p. 204) We have received the Gospel of the Lord Jesus, the principles of which elevate all who honor them, and will impart to our sisters every blessing necessary to make them noble and good in the presence of God and man.

Look at the efforts which are being made to elevate the sex among the Latter-day Saints! * * * The practice in the world is to select a few of the sex and to elevate them. There is no country in the world, probably, where women are idolized to the extent they are in the United States. But is the entire sex in the United States thus honored and respected? No, it is not. Any person who will travel, and observe while he is travelling, will find that thousands of women are degraded and treated as something very vile, and are terribly debased in consequence of the practices of men towards them. But the Gospel of Jesus and the revelations which God has given unto us concerning Patriarchal Marriage have a tendency to elevate the entire sex, and give all the privilege of being honored matrons and respected wives. There are no refuse among us--no class to be cast out, scorned and condemned; but every woman who chooses can be an honored wife and move in society in the enjoyment of every right which woman should enjoy to make her the equal of man as far as she can be his equal.

This is the result of the revelation of the Gospel unto us, and the effect of the preaching and practice of this principle in our midst. * * *

(p. 205) You, sisters, whose husbands have taken other wives, can you not bear testimony that the principle has purified your hearts, made you less selfish, brought you nearer to God and given you power you never had before? There are hundreds within the sound of my voice to-day, both men and women, who can testify that this has been the effect that the practice of this principle has had upon them.

I am speaking now of what are called the spiritual benefits arising from the righteous practice of this principle. * * *

(p. 206) The practice of this principle is by no means without its trials for the males. The difficulties and perplexities connected with the care of a numerous family, to a man who has any ambition, are so great that nothing short of the revelations of God or the command of Jesus Christ would tempt men to enter this order; the mere increase of facilities to gratify the lower passions of our natures would be no inducement to assume such an increase of grave responsibilities. * * *

I know it is true on the principle that I know that baptism, the laying on of hands, the gathering, and everything connected with the Gospel is true. If there (p. 207) were no books in existence, if the revelations itself were blotted out, and there was nothing written in its favor, extant among men, still I could bear testimony for myself that I know this is a principle which, if practiced in purity and virtue, as it should be, will result in the exaltation and benefit of the human family; and that it will exalt woman until she is redeemed from the effects of the Fall, and from that curse pronounced upon her in the beginning. I believe the correct practice of this principle will redeem woman from the effects of that curse--namely, "Thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." All the evils connected with jealousy have their origin in this. It is natural for woman to cleave to man; it was pronounced upon her in the beginning, seemingly as a punishment. I believe the time will come when, by the practice of the virtuous principles which God has revealed, woman will be emancipated from that punishment and that feeling. Will she cease to love man? No, it is not necessary for her to cease to love.

How is it among the nations of the earth? Why, women, in their yearning after the other sex and in their desire for maternity, will do anything to gratify that instinct of their nature and yield to anything and be dishonored even rather than not gratify it; and in consequence of that which has been pronounced upon them, they are not held accountable to the same extent as men are. Man is strong, he is the head of woman, and God will hold him responsible for the use of the influence he exercises over the opposite sex. . . . the faithful man may receive the power of God--the greatest He has ever bestowed upon man--namely, the power of procreation. * * * We were told there is a glory to which alone that power will be accorded in the life to come. Still there will be millions of women saved in the kingdom of God, while men, through the abuse of this precious gift, will not be counted worthy of such a privilege. And this very punishment will, in the end, be woman's salvation, because she is not held accountable to the same degree that men are. * * *

(p. 208) But in connection with the subject of plural marriage, the Priesthood is intimately interwoven.

155. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; February 2, 1870.

Brother John Holemen made a long speech. . . . He contended that no person could have a celestial glory unless he had a plurality of wives. President Young said there would be men saved in the celestial kingdom of God with one wife, with many wives, and with no wife at all.

156. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 13:309; President Brigham Young; Tabernacle, Ogden City; November 13, 1870. [Lord = Father]

The Scripture says that He, the Lord, came walking in the Temple, with His train; I do not know who they were, unless His wives and children; but at any rate they filled the Temple, and how many there were who could not get into the Temple I cannot say. This is the account given by Isaiah, whether he told the truth or not I leave every body to judge for himself.

The Bible also says the Lord talked with Moses; He talked with the rich and the poor, the noble and ignoble. He sent His angels, and at last sent His Son, who was in the express image of the Father--His Only Begotten Son, according to the flesh, here on this earth.

157. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; CHO/Ms/f/115; July 15, 1871.

President Young said he wished all who had a plurality of wives to make their will, and thought it well for all men to do so.

158. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; September 24, 1871.

President Young spoke 58 minutes. He said a man may embrace the law of Celestial marriage in his heart & not take the second wife & be justified before the Lord.

We believe in the great truths which God has revealed for the salvation of the human family; we are engaged in building up and establishing (p. 269) the Kingdom of God on the earth. The great Eloheim is our father, friend and benefactor; we lean upon his arm, and we know that he will guide and direct, influence and control the affairs of his people, therefore we rely upon him. We have engaged in nothing but what we have been directed by the Almighty in, except some of us who have got aside into transgression. We are married to our wives and don.t want any other associations. We respect and honor them,
